Gefährliche Liebschaften

vc 1

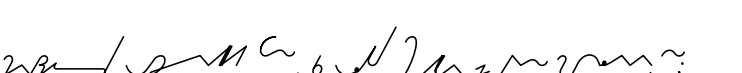
Marquise von Merteuil

Grafen Gercourt [ ],

Vicomte von Valmont

Madame von Tourvel
Cécile Volanges

Cécile Volanges

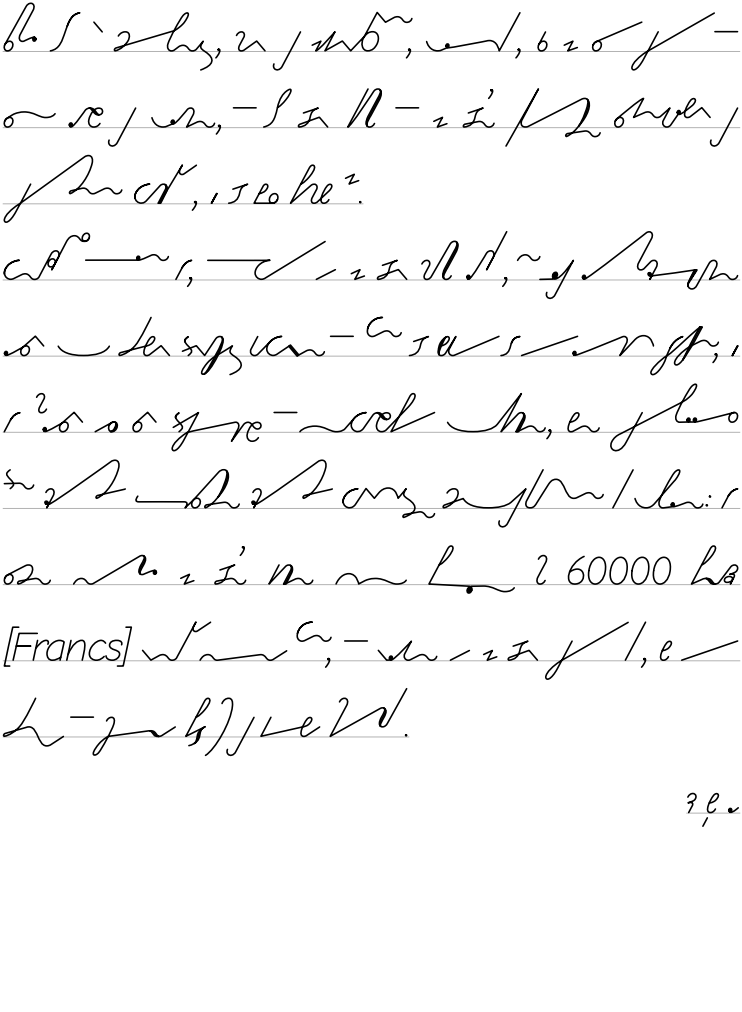


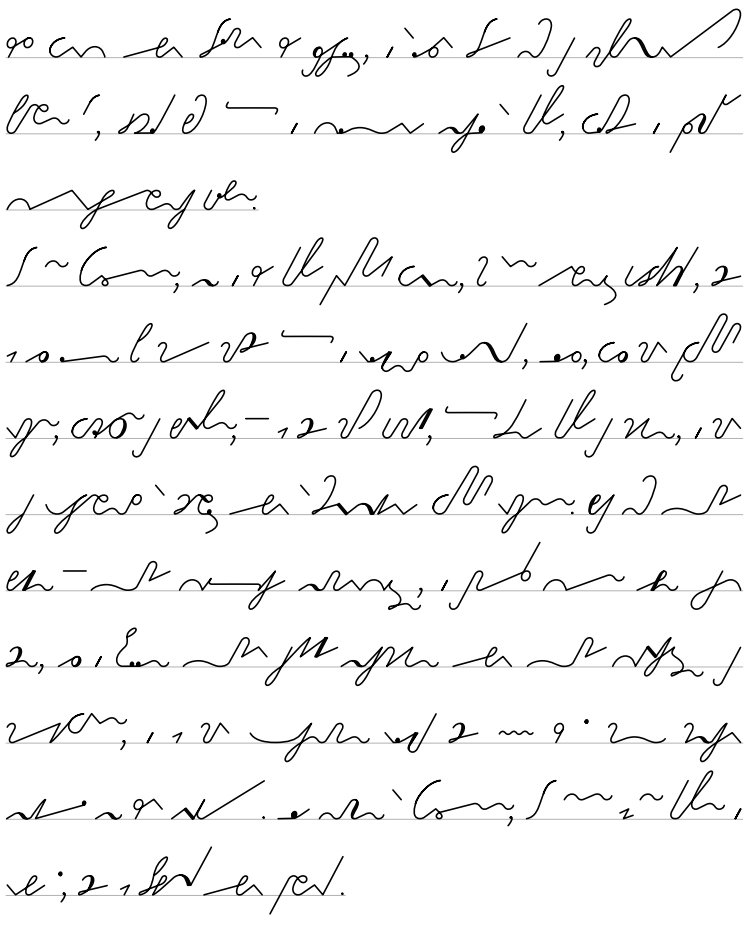
Chevalier Danceny

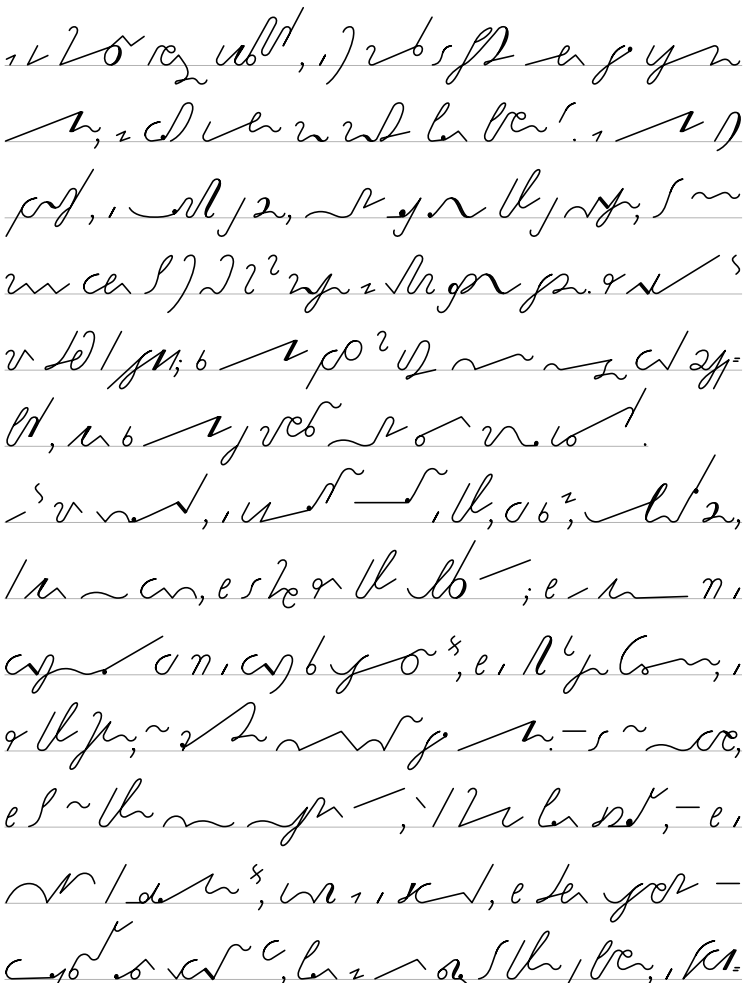
Madame de Tourvel

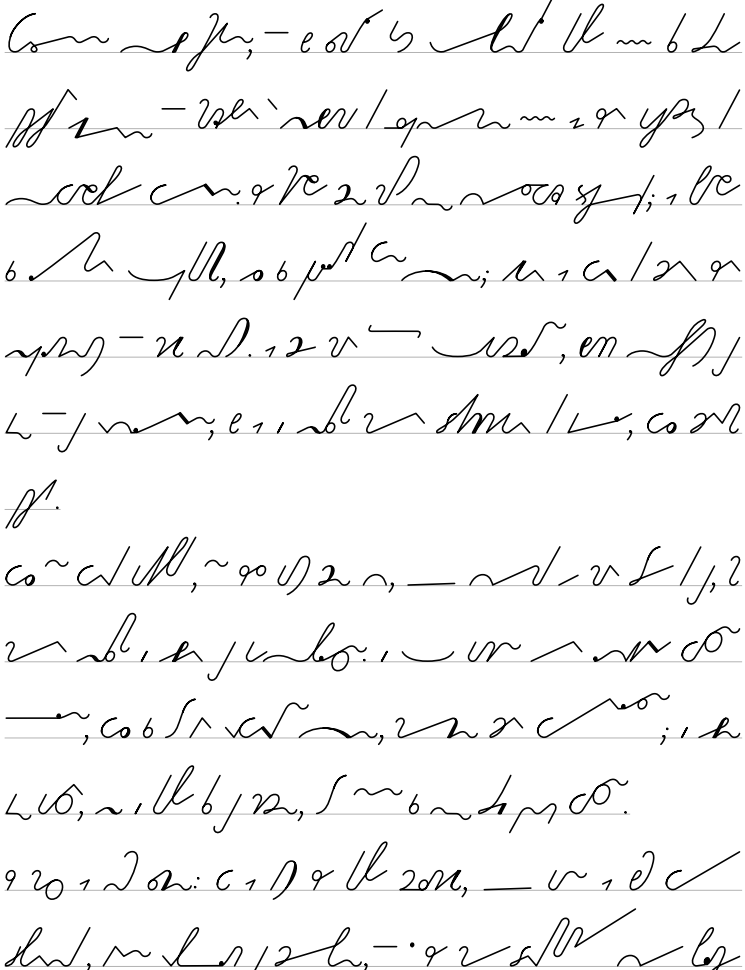
Madame de Rosemonde

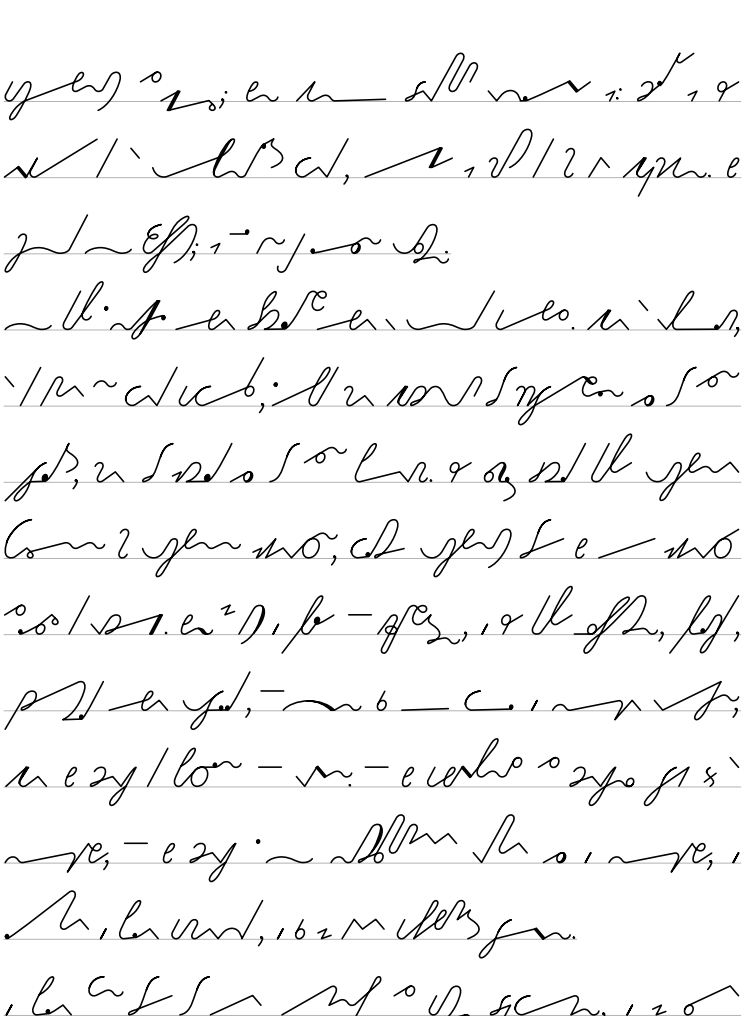
Madame Volanges

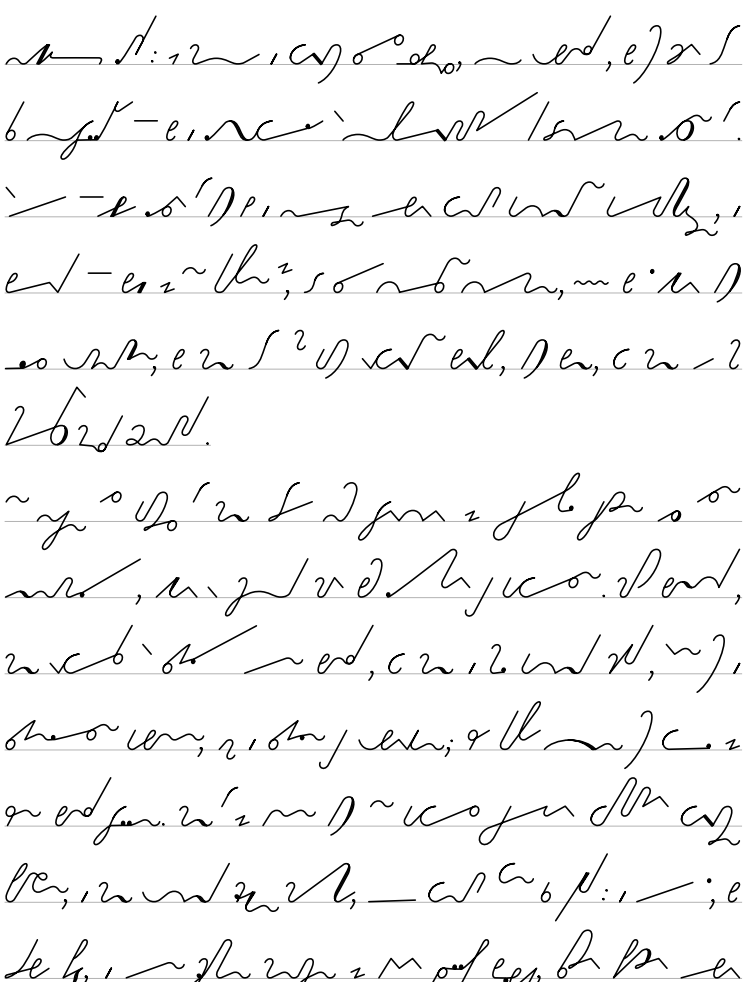


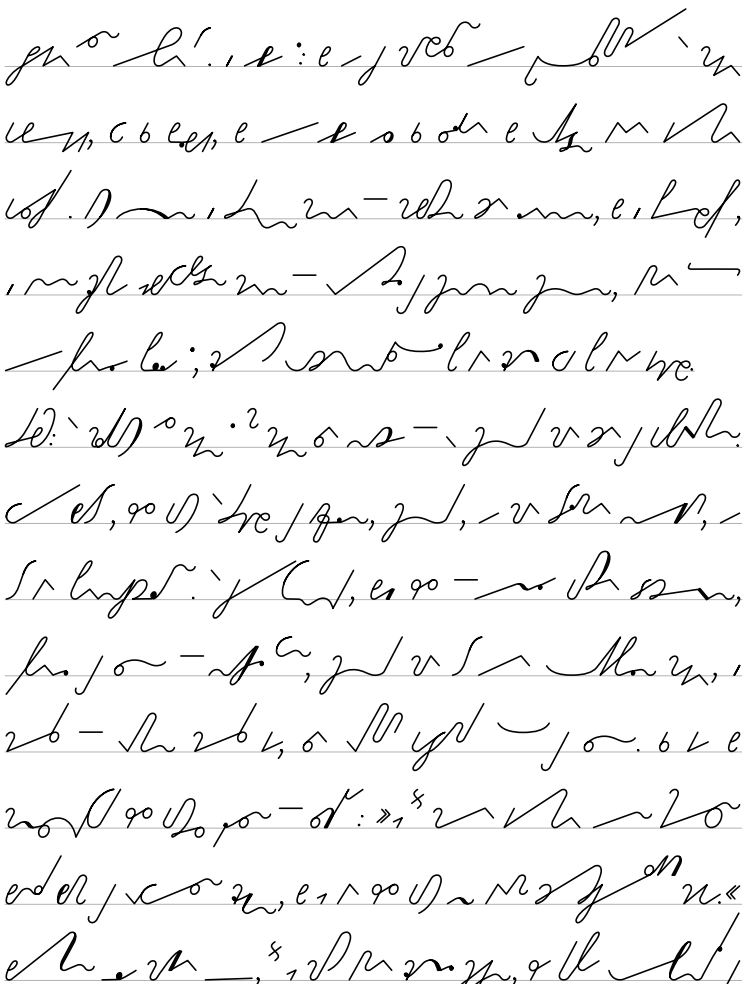




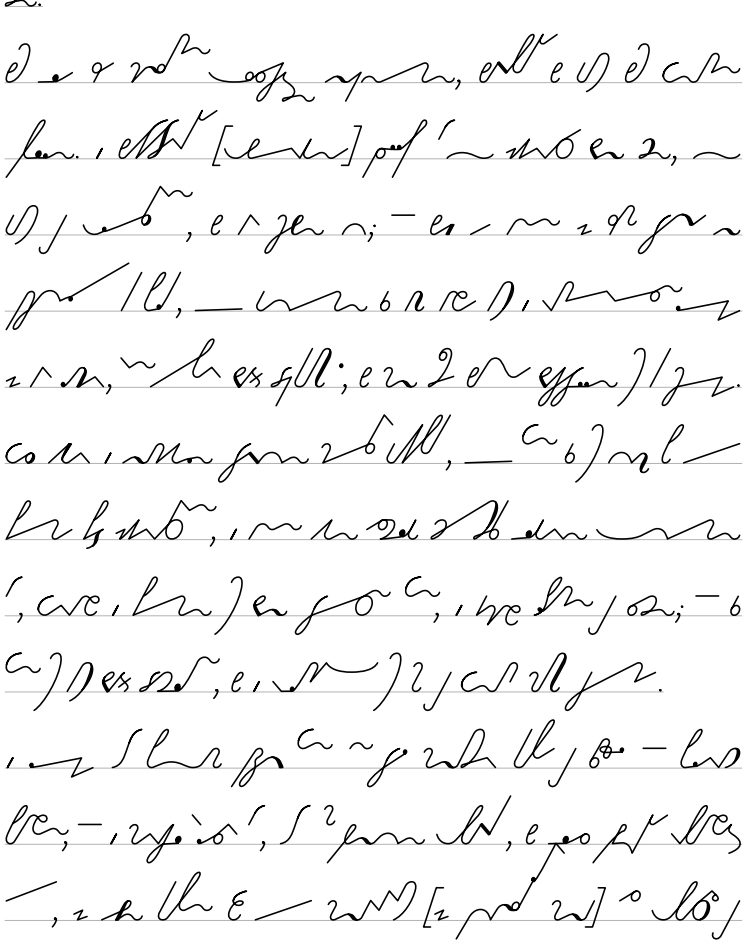


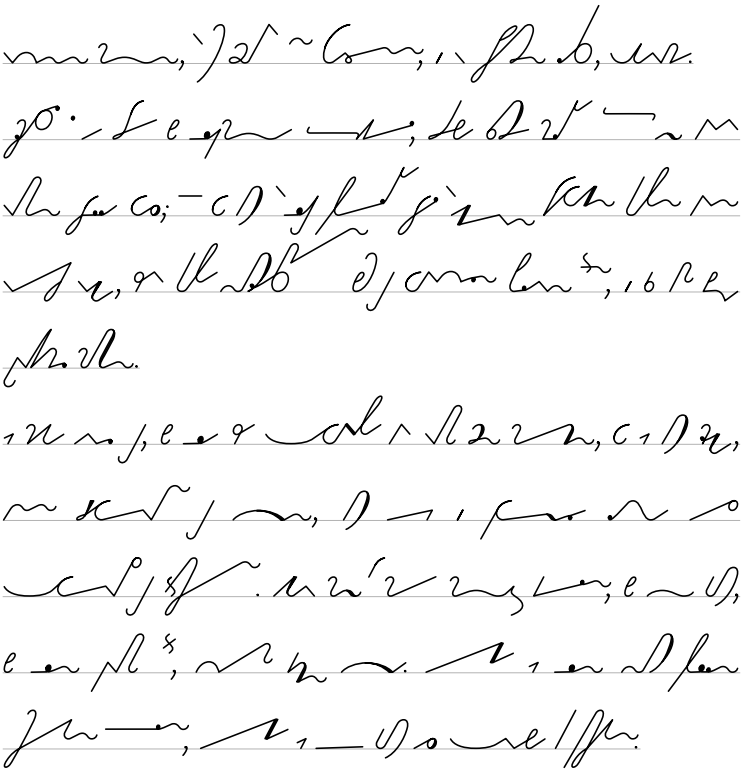


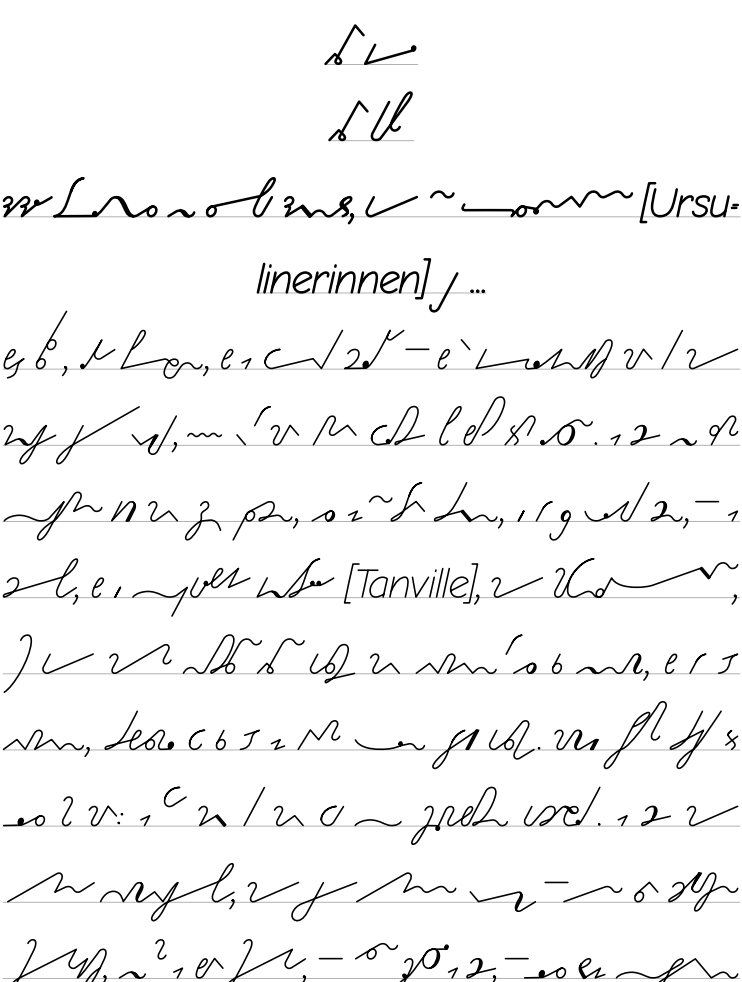


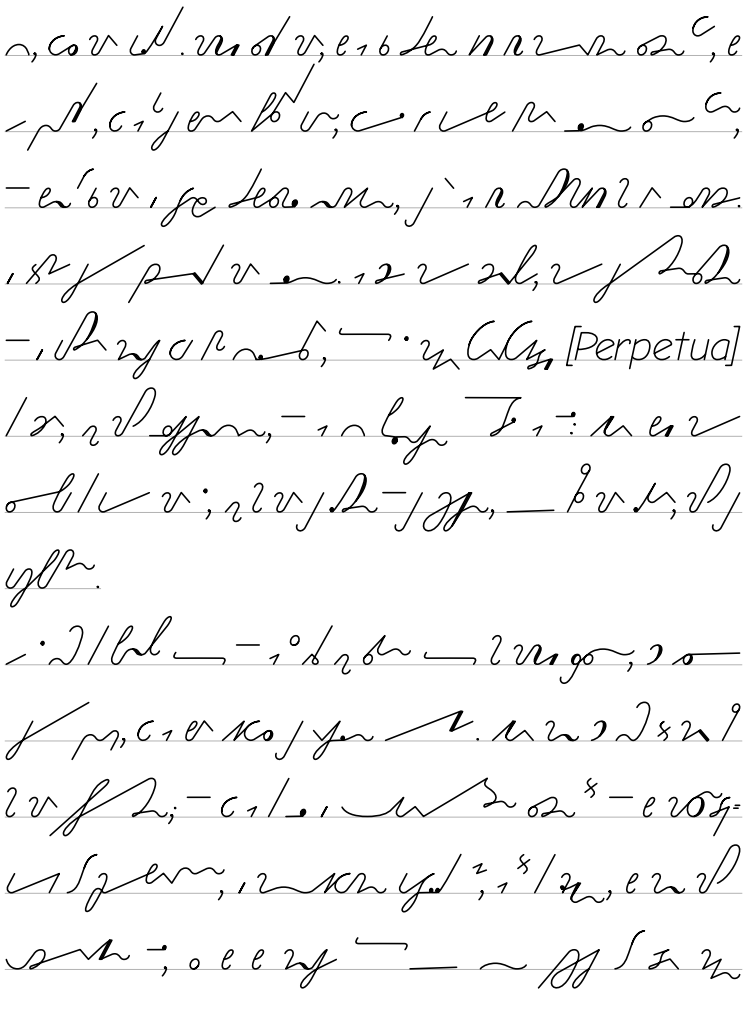


2.



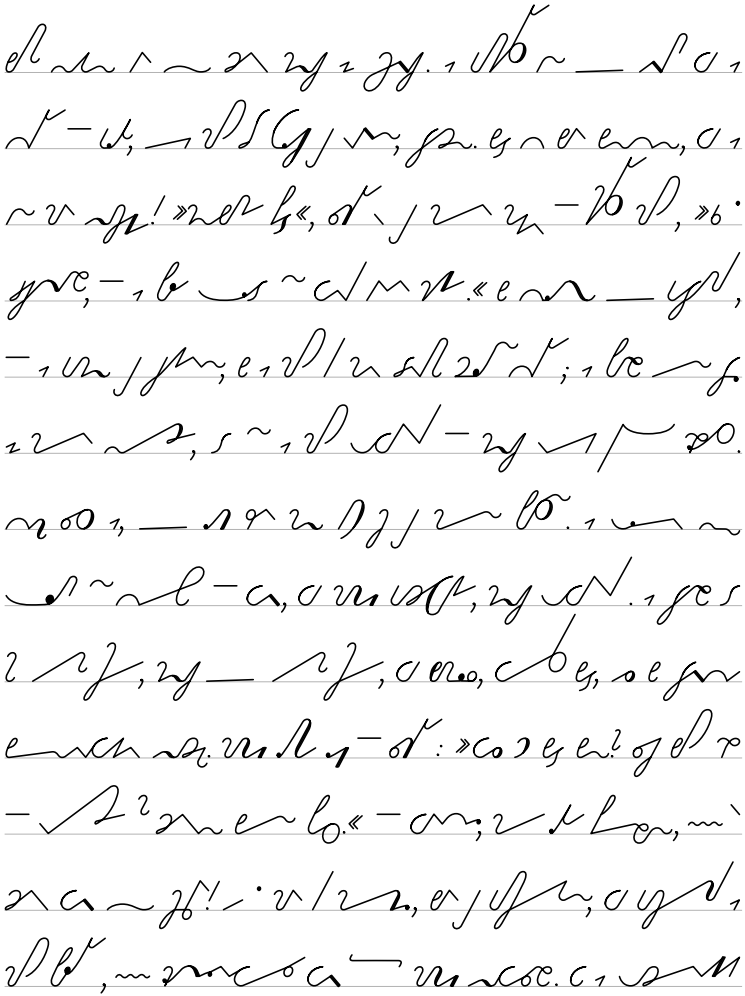


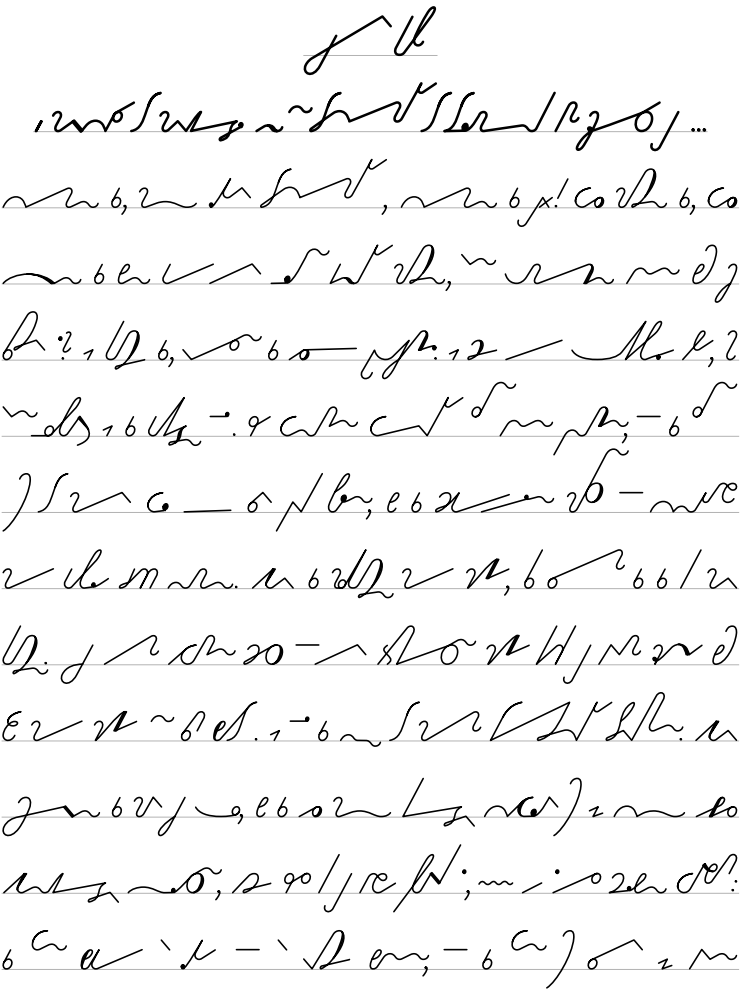


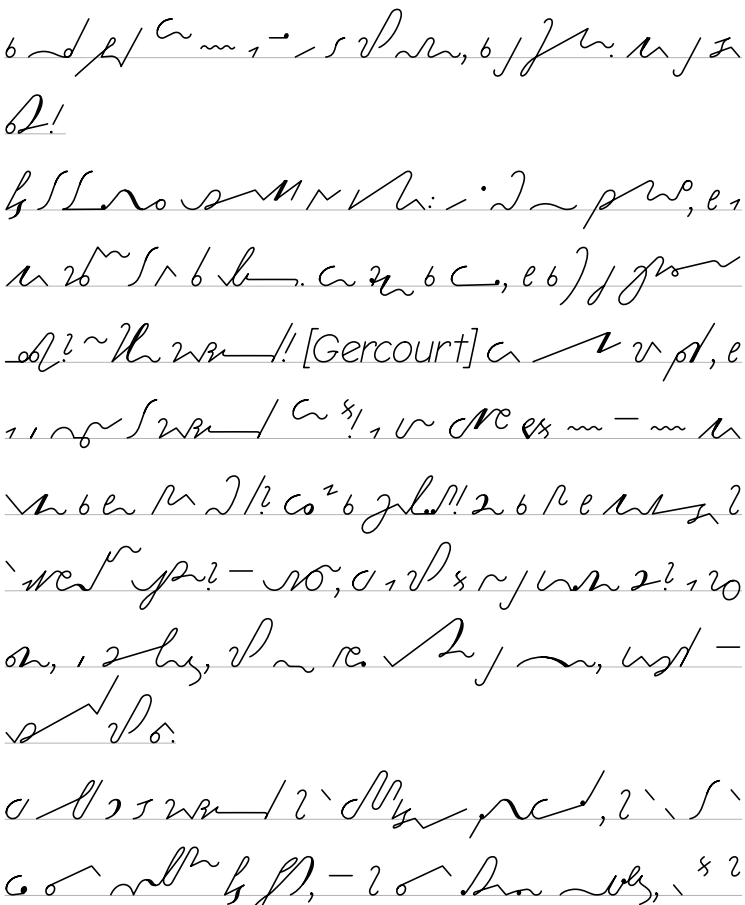


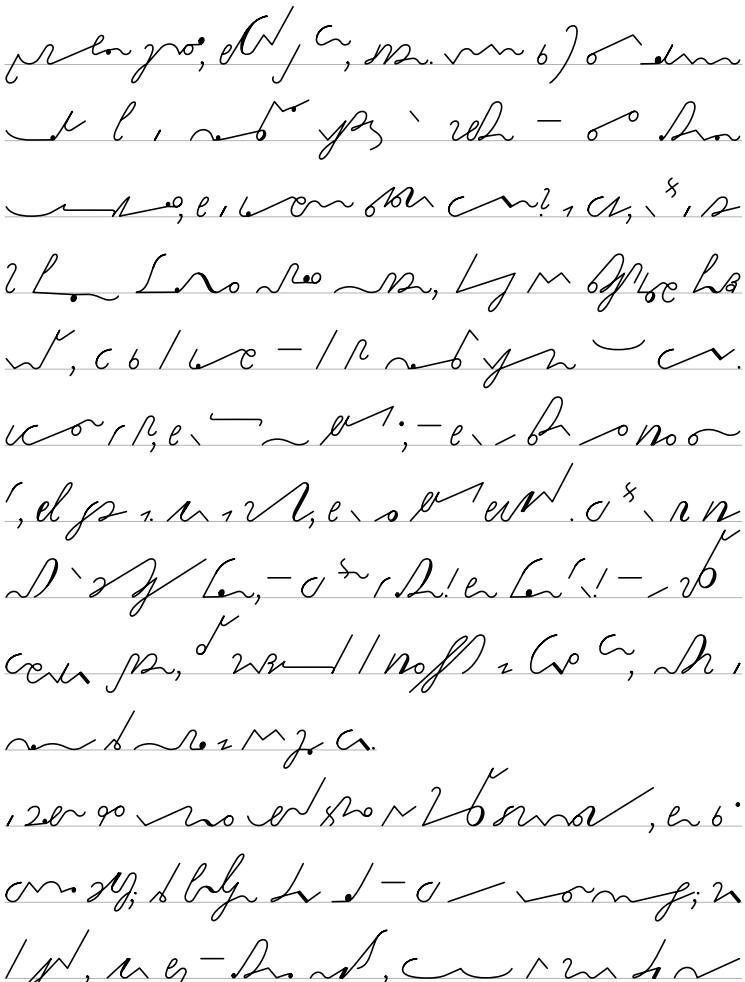
[Perpetua]

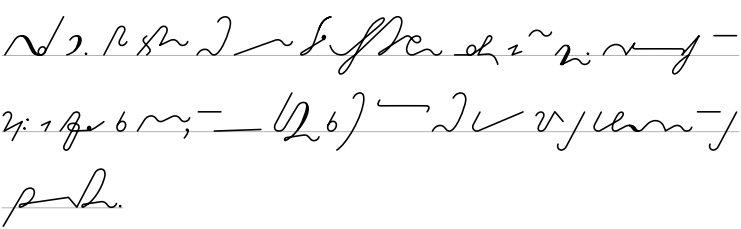
[Josephine]

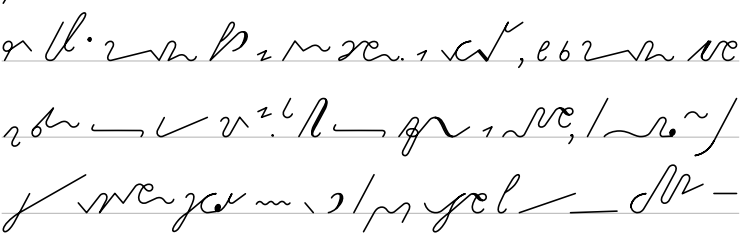


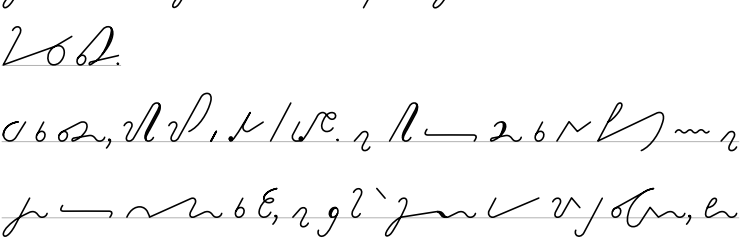


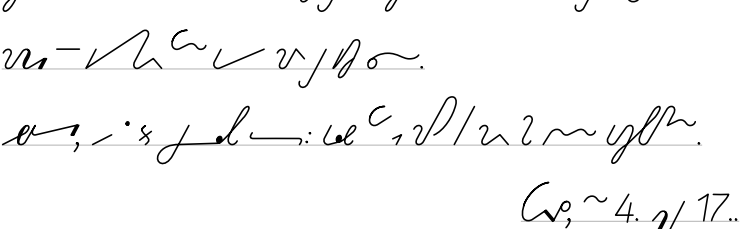


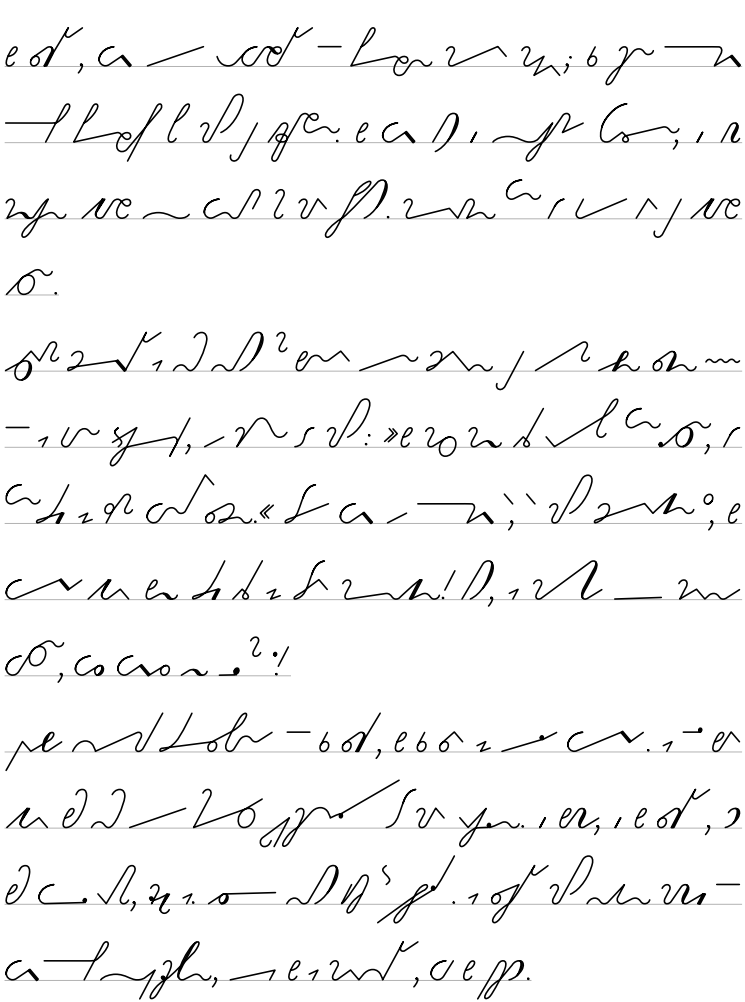


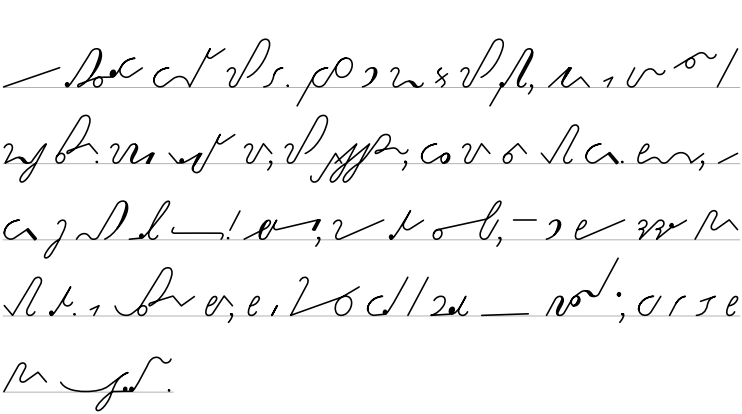


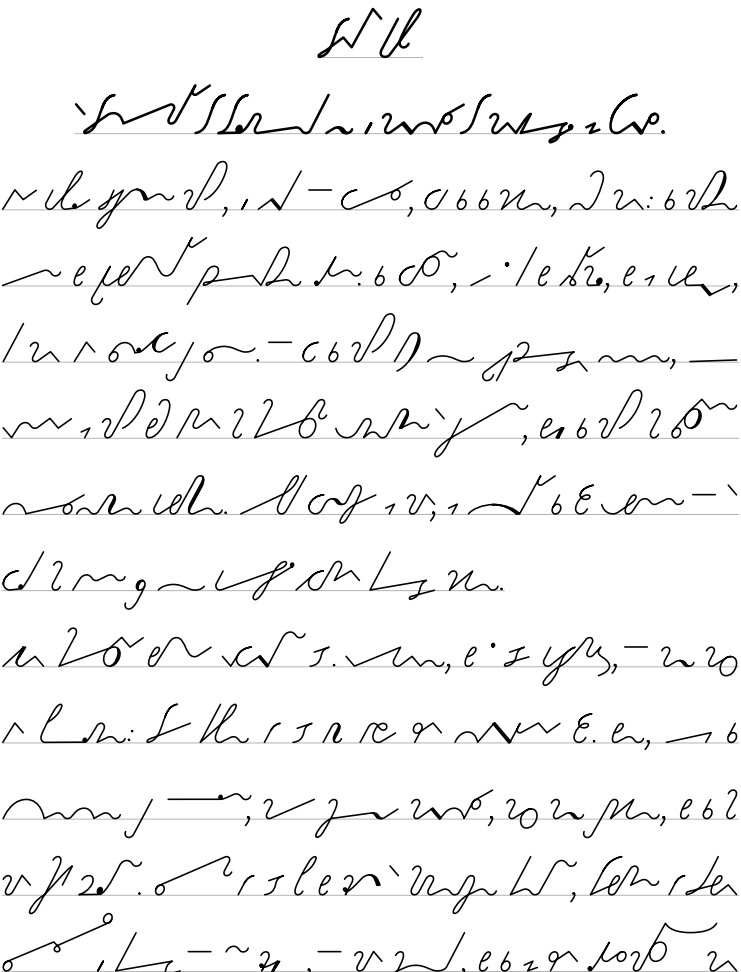


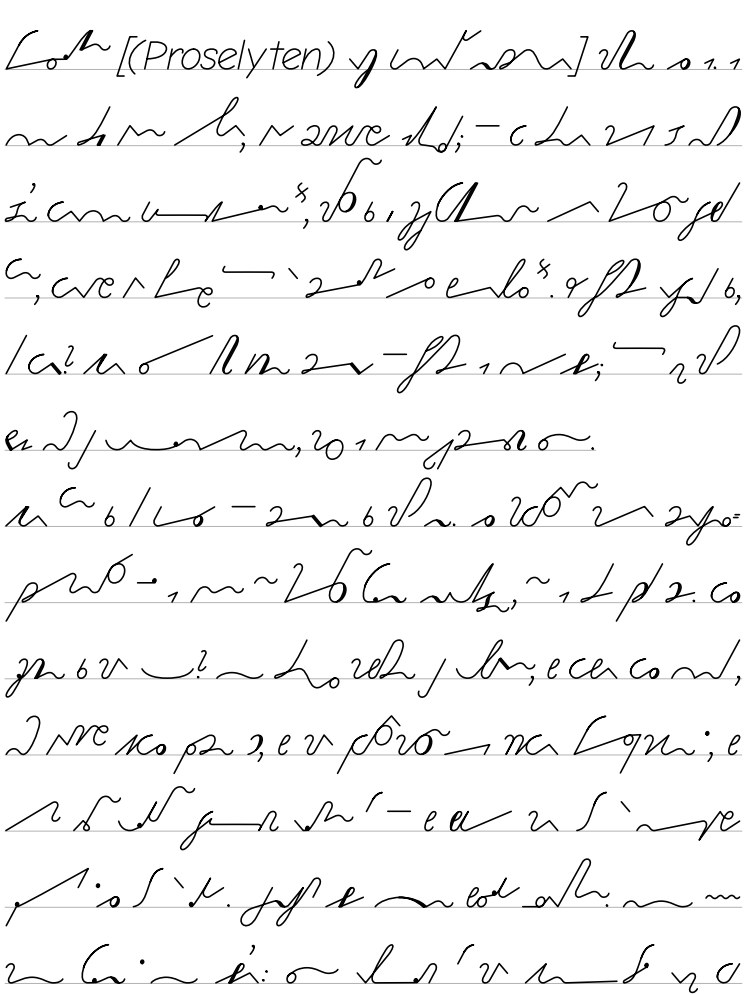


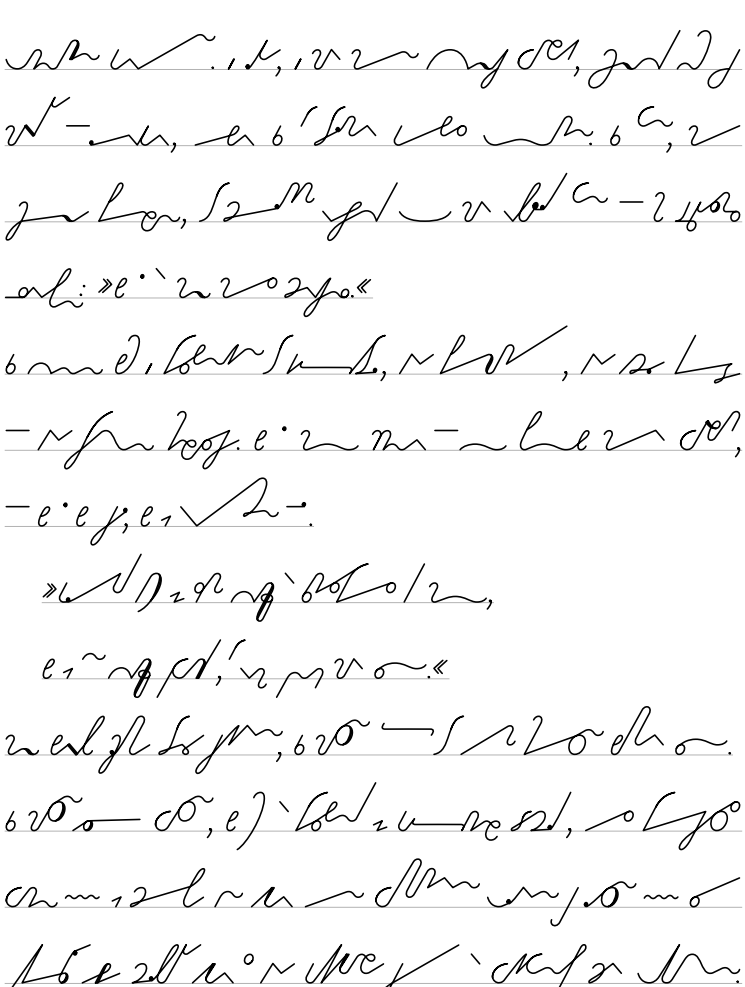


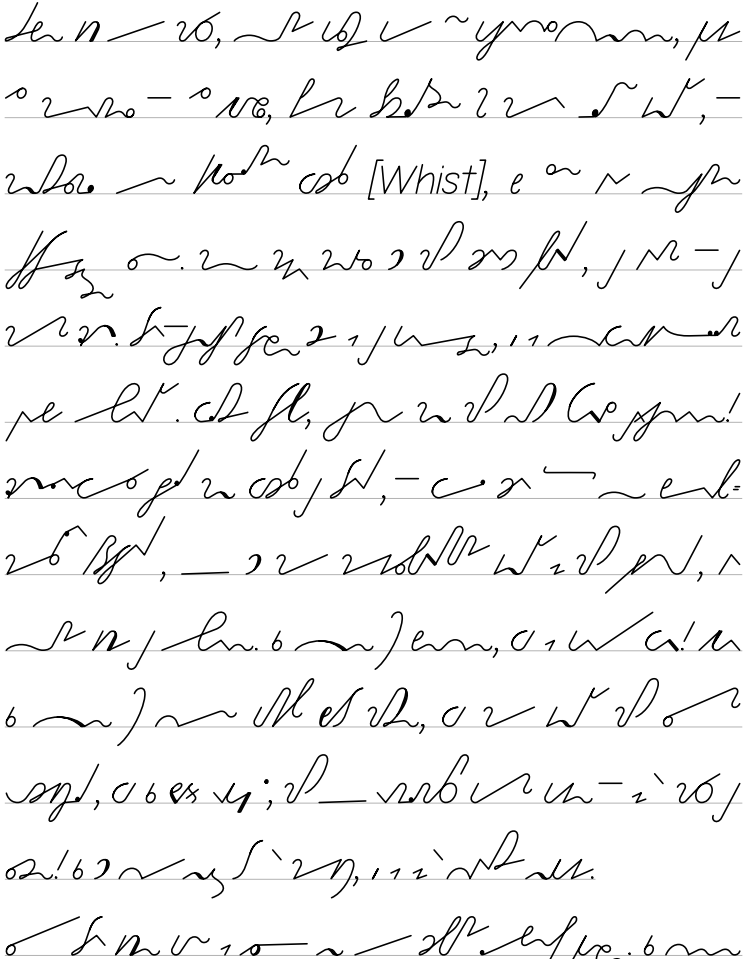


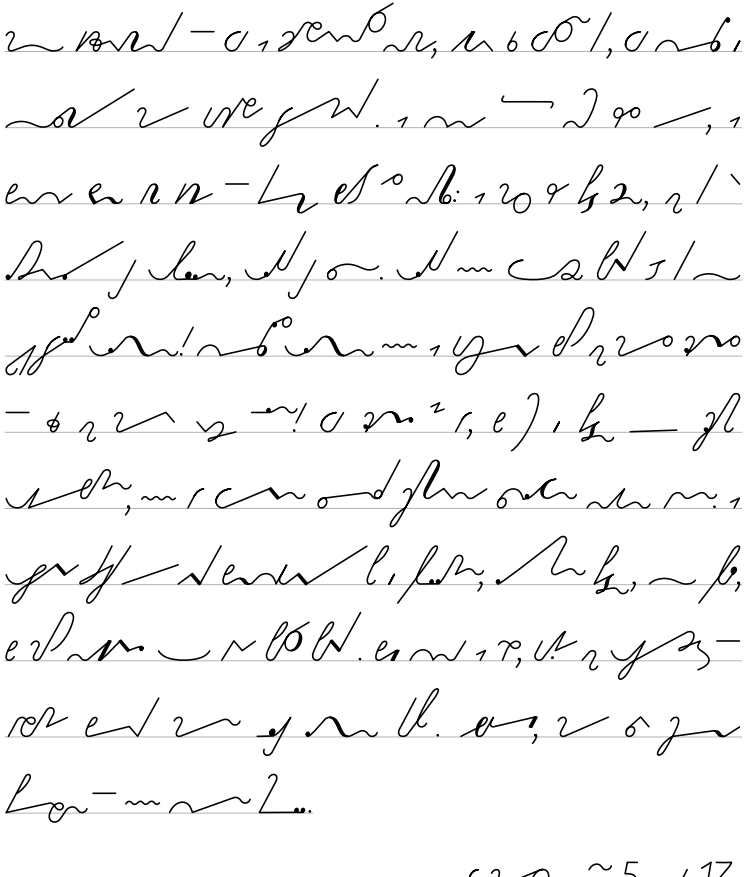




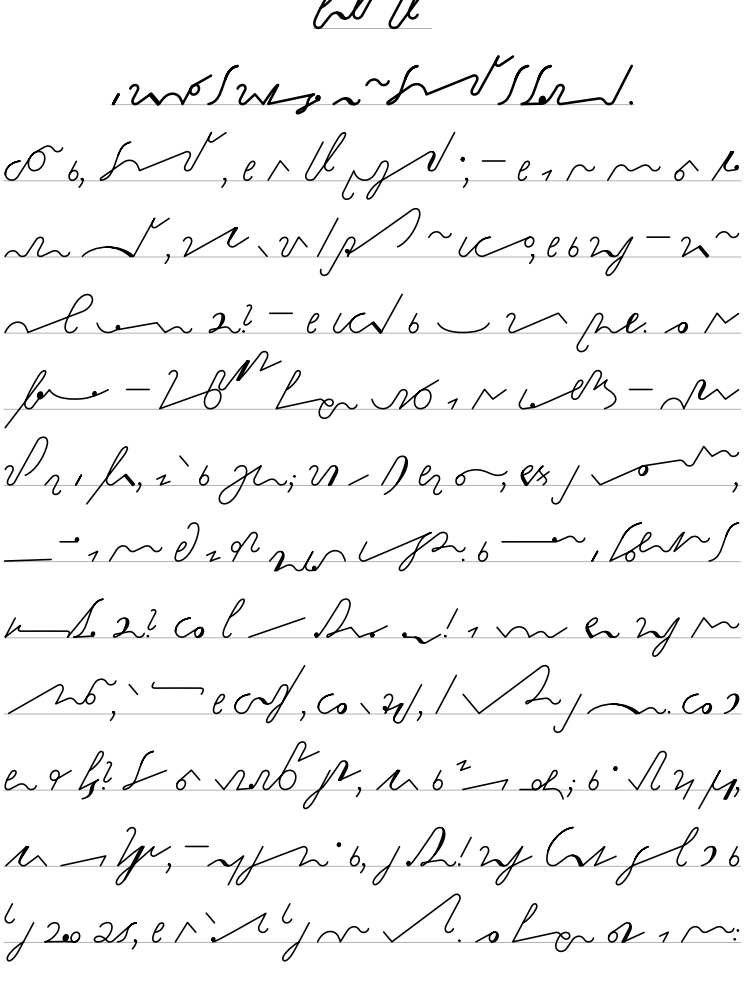


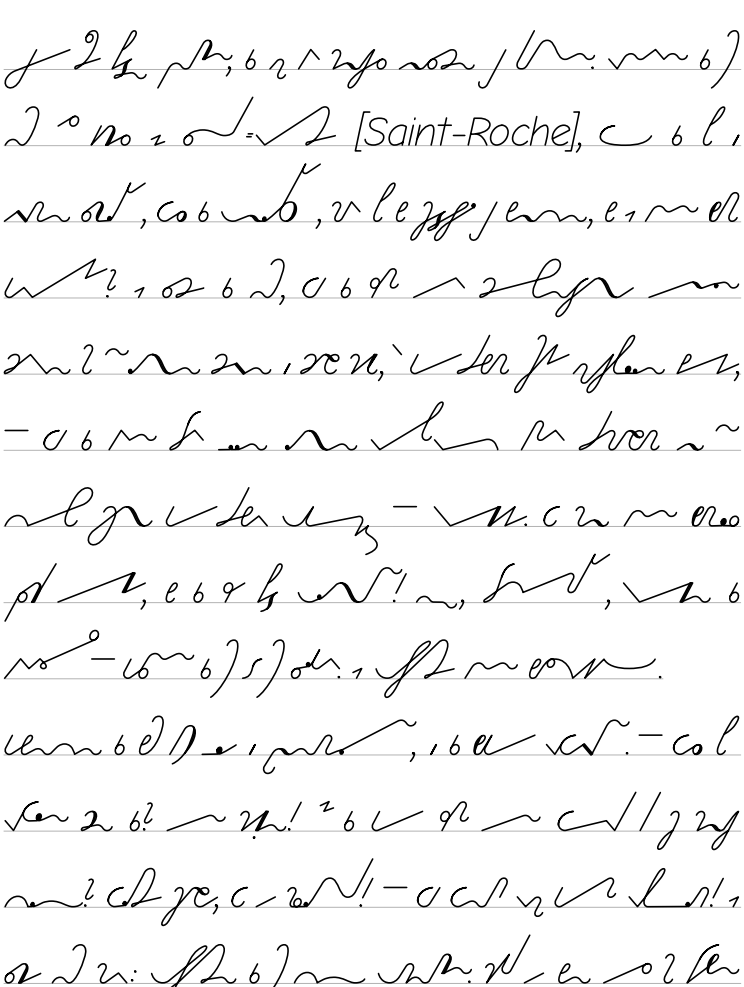


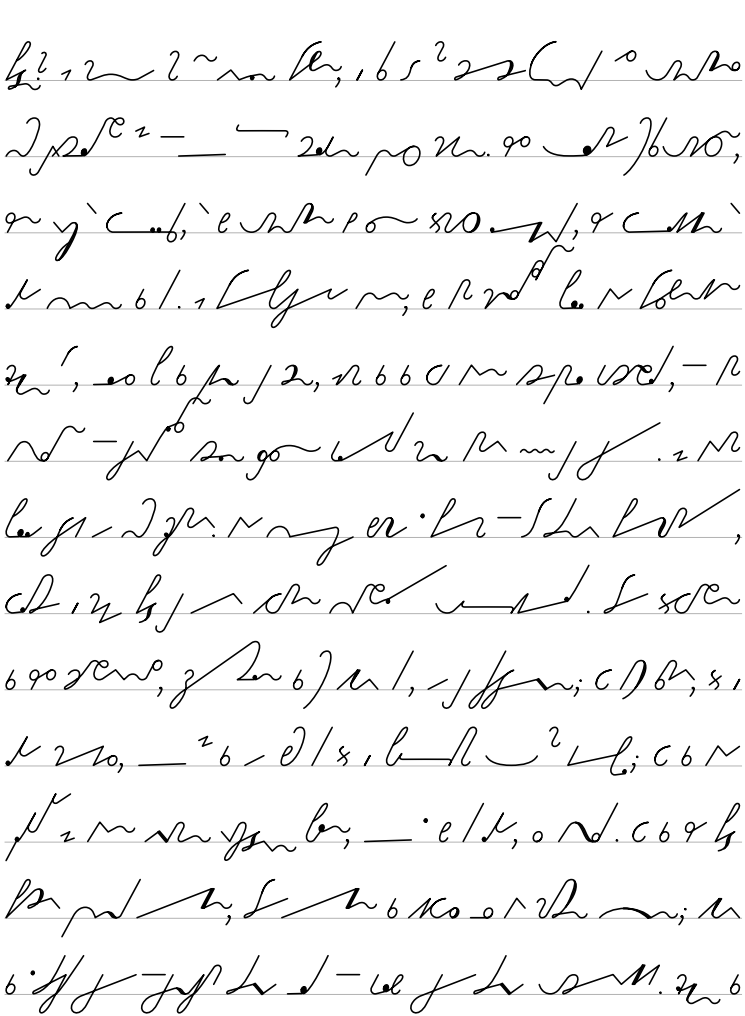


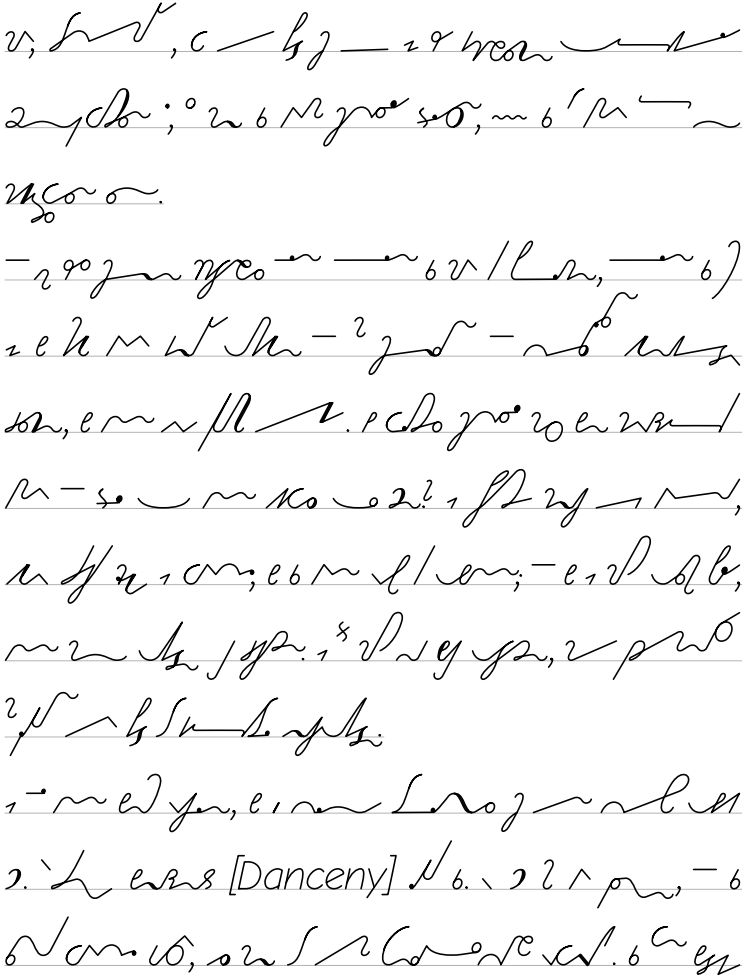


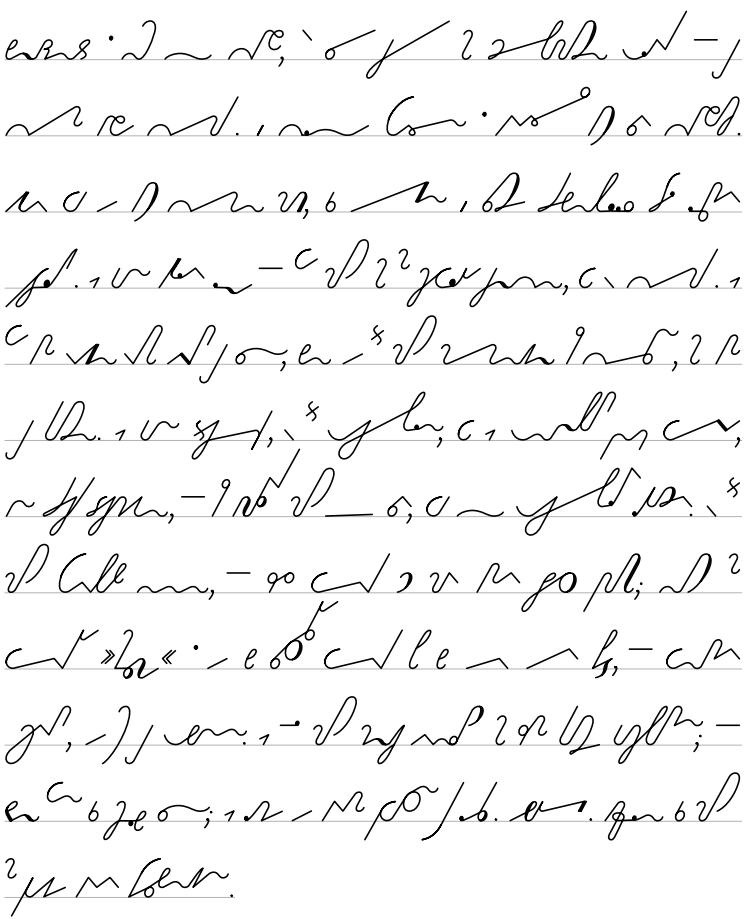
..., 5. 17..



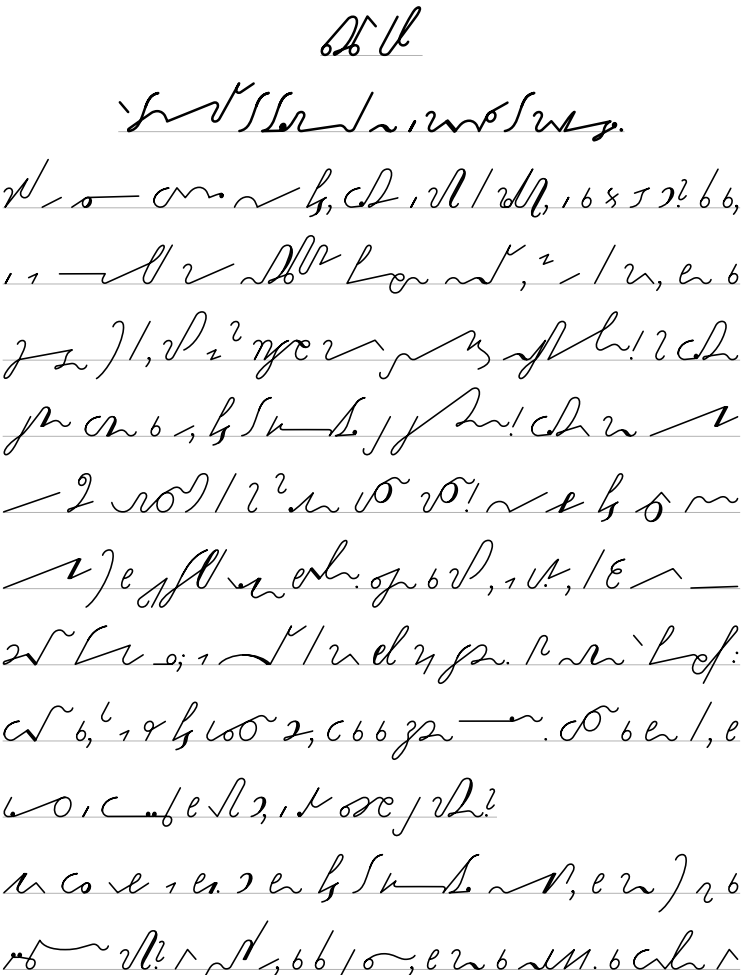


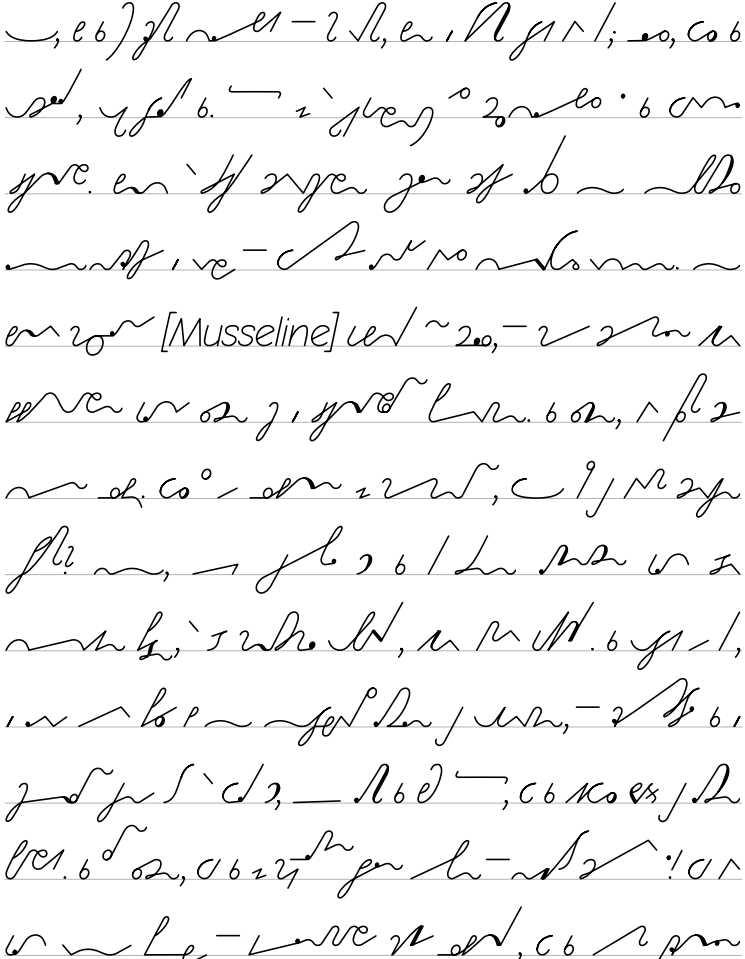




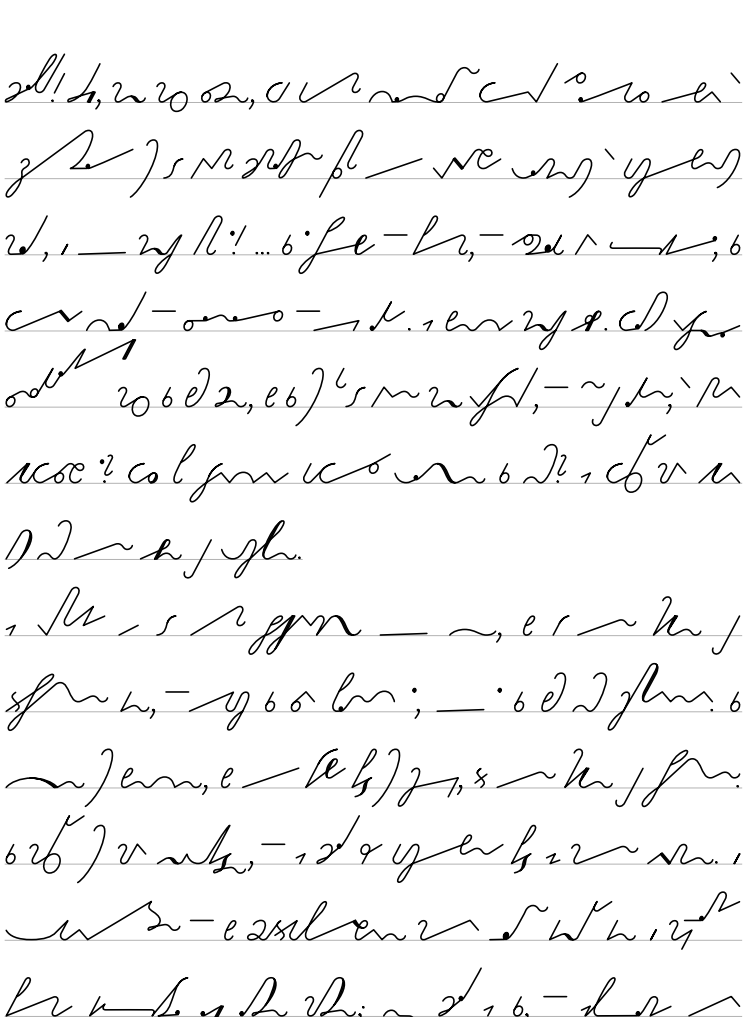


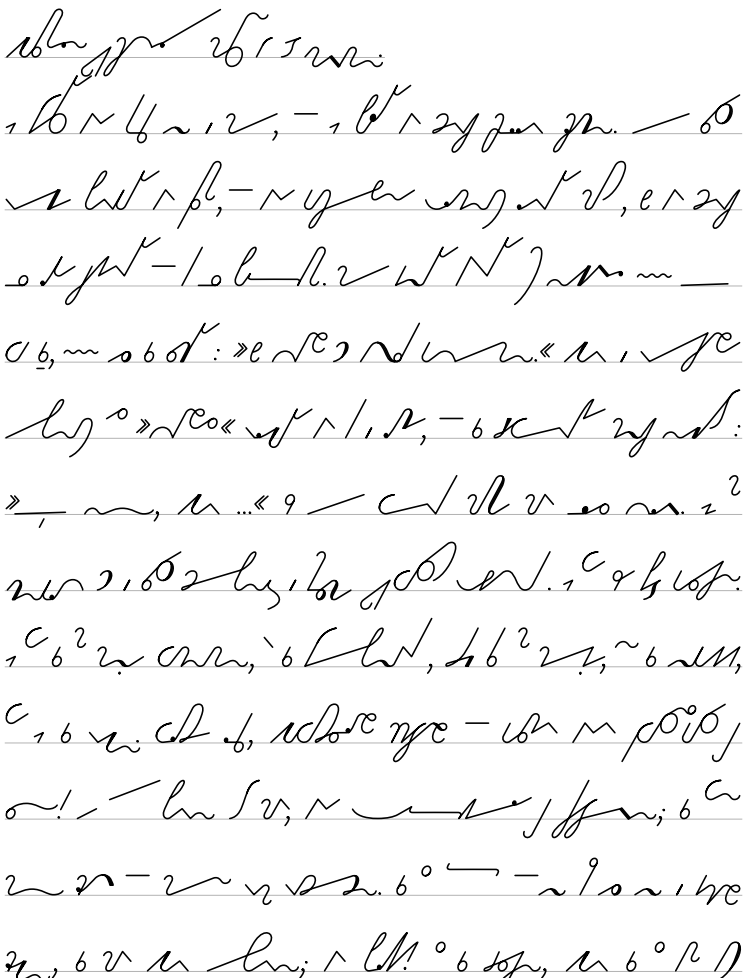
Cv; ~ 7. 4/ 17..

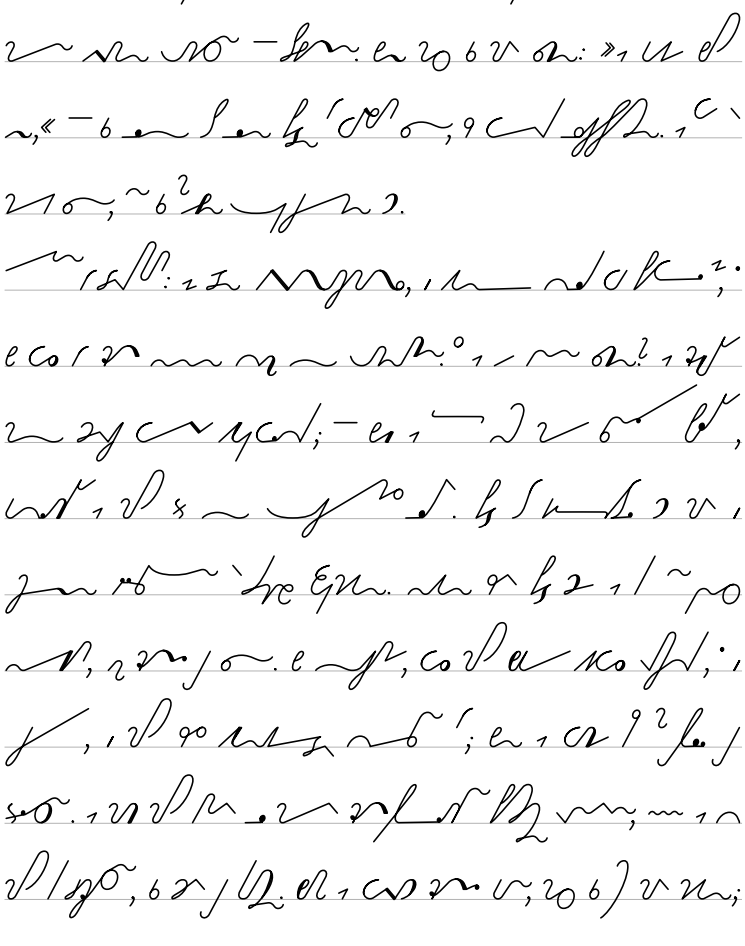


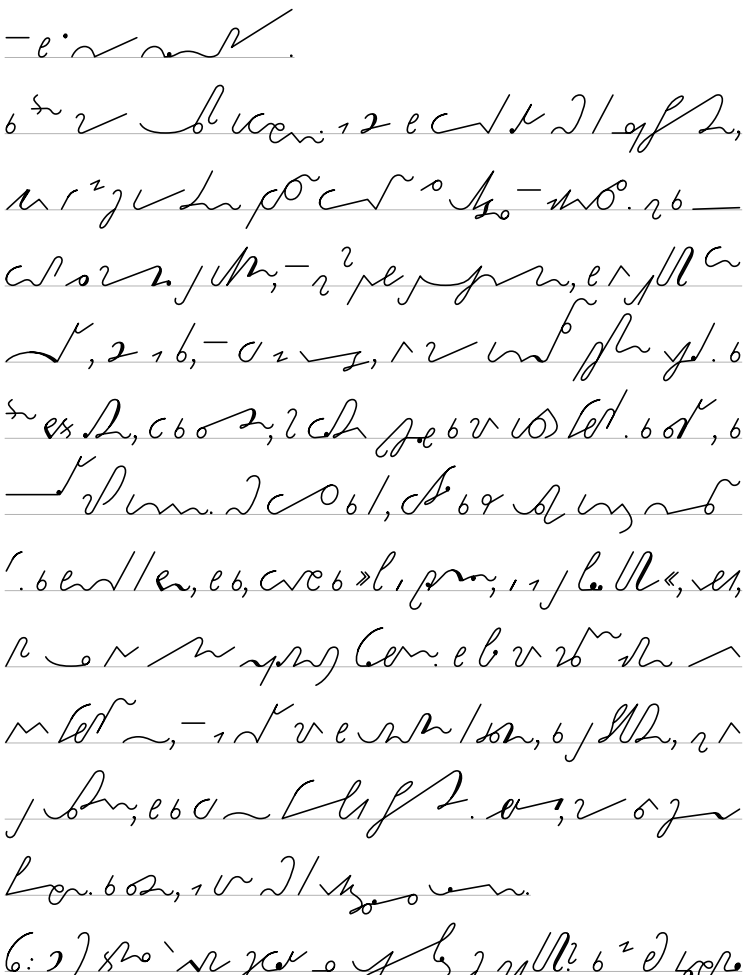


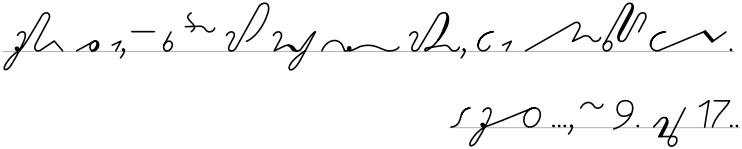
[Musseline]

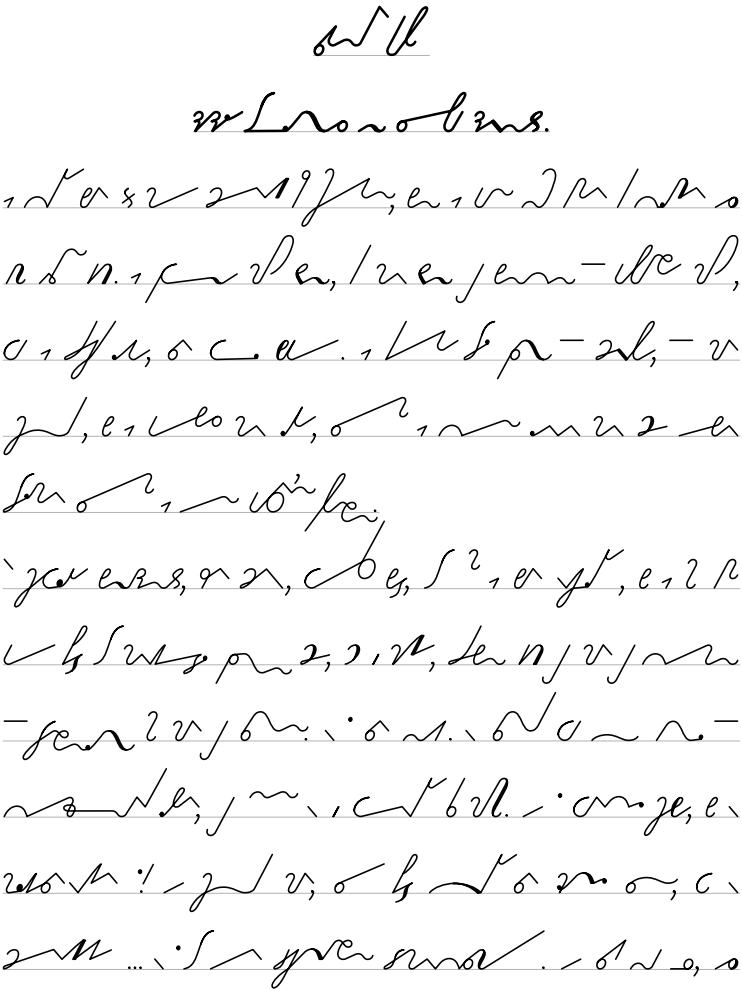


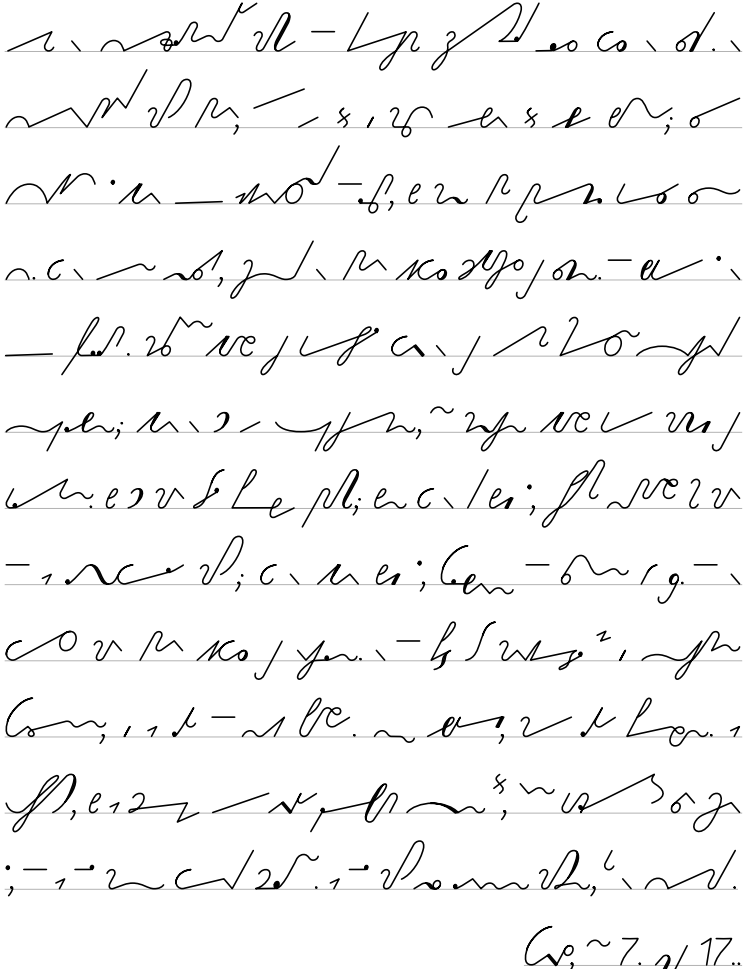




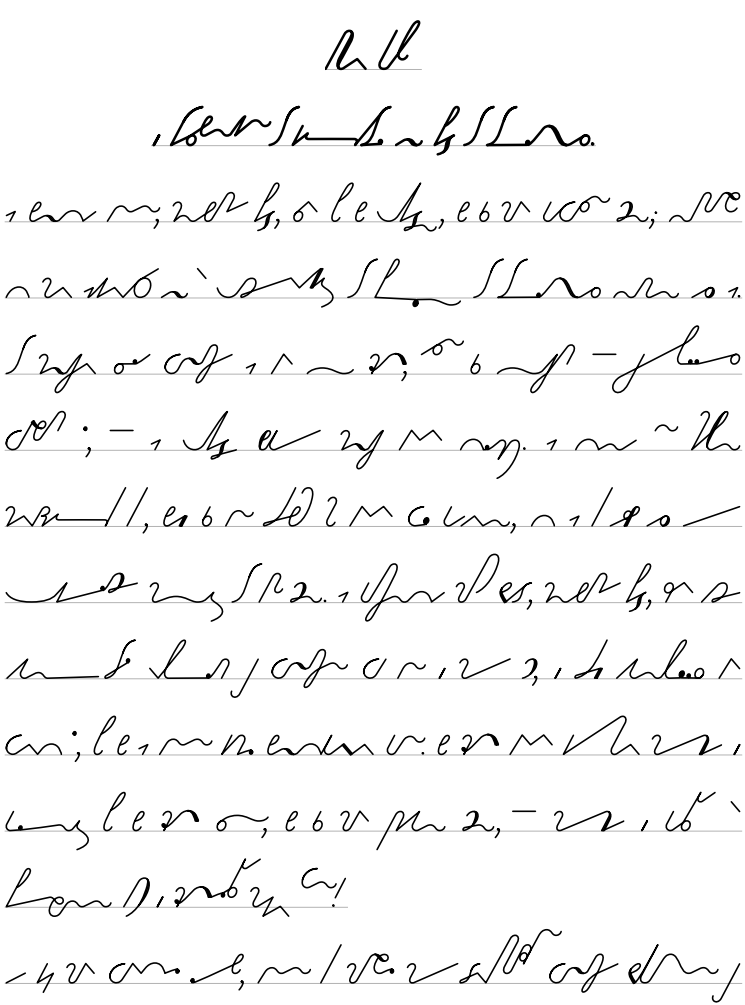


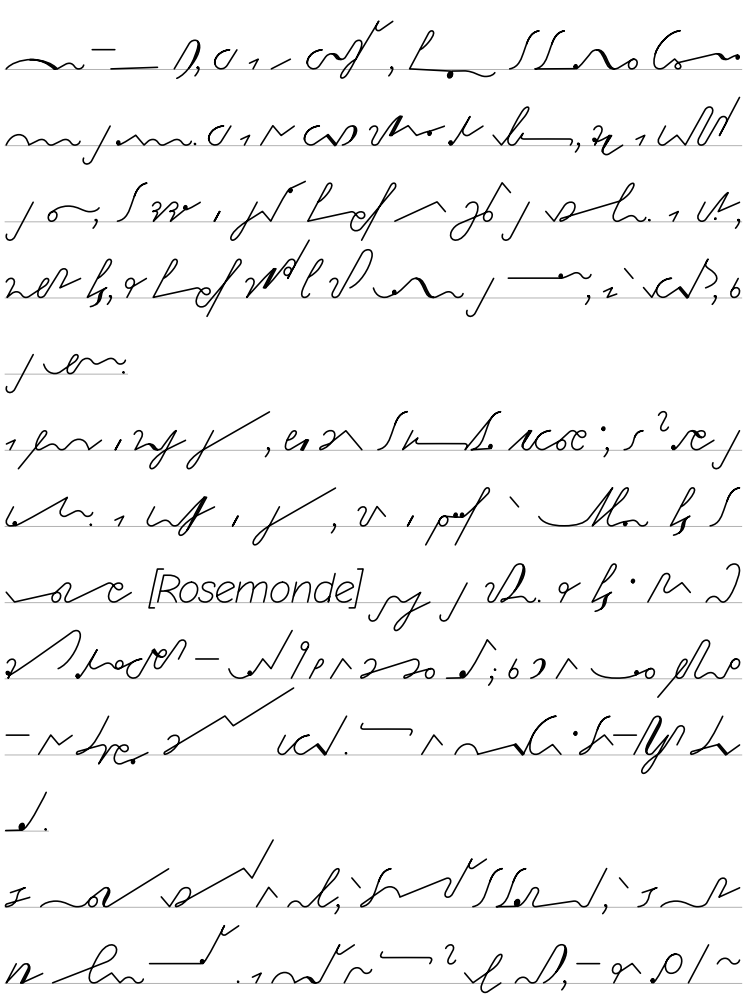




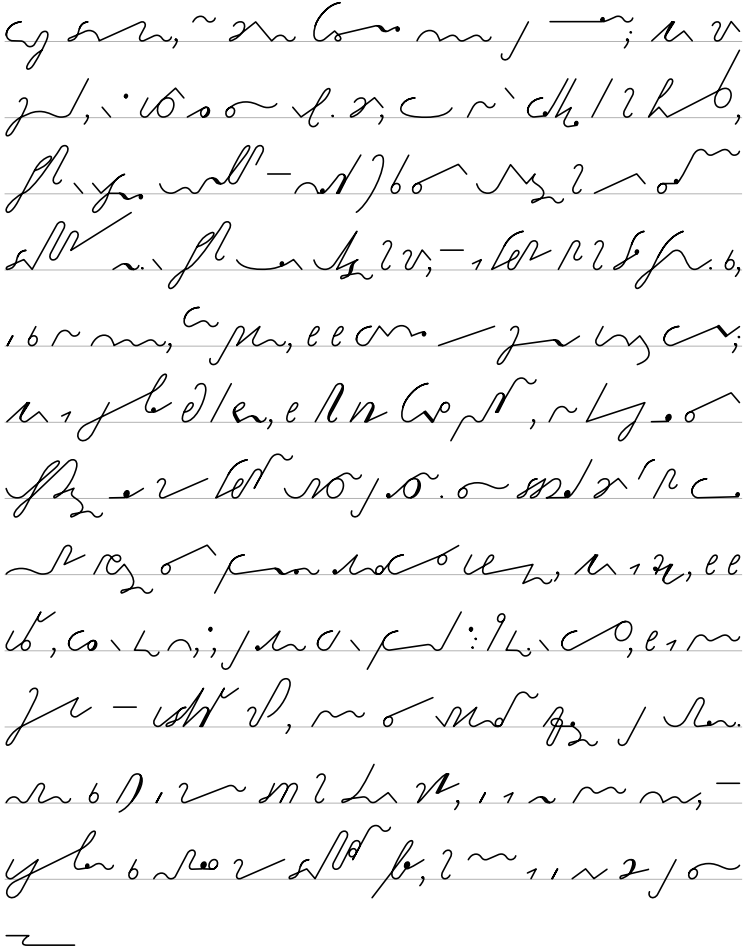


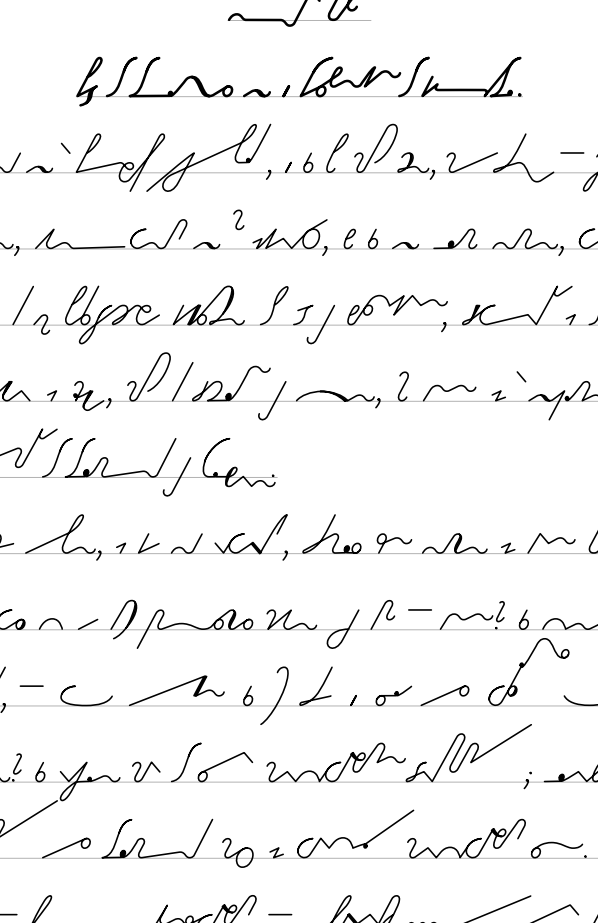
42

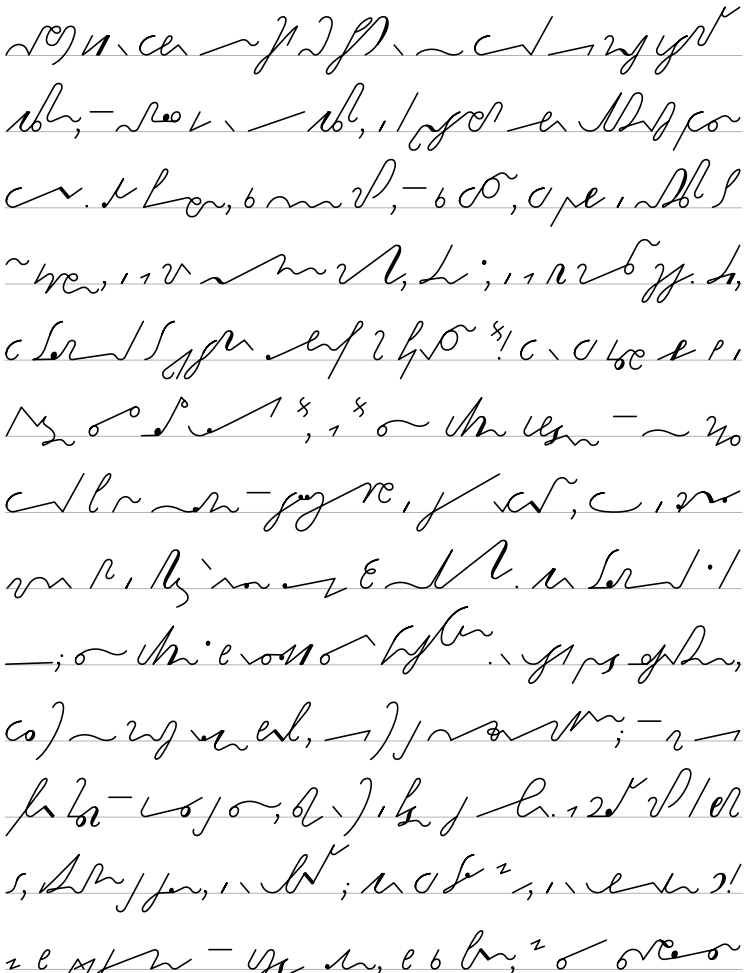


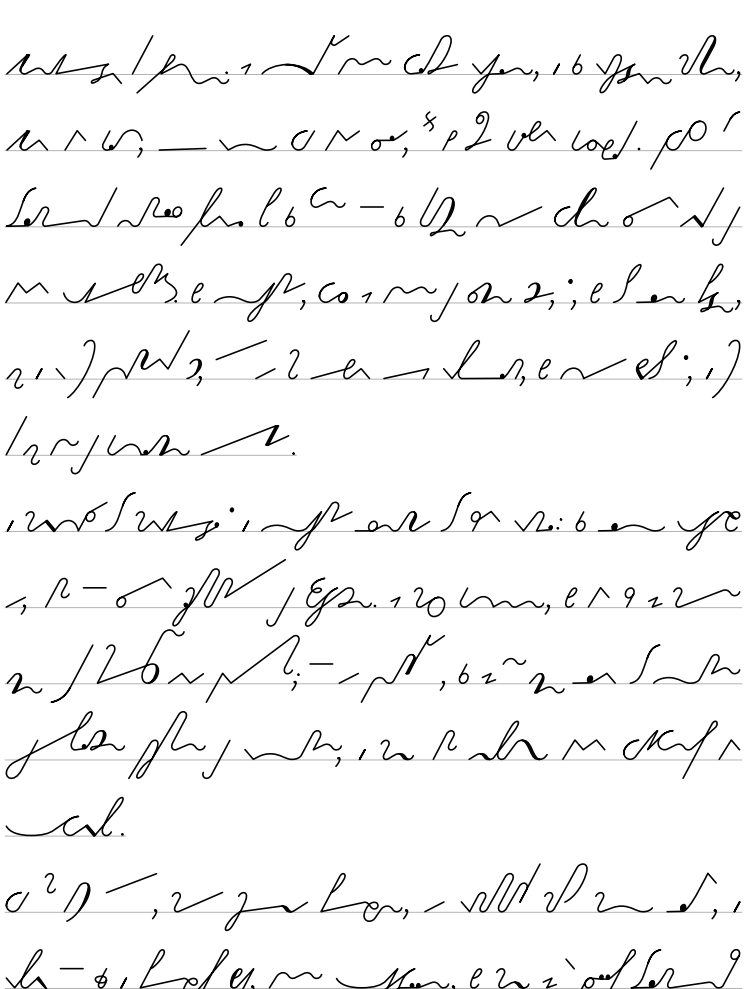


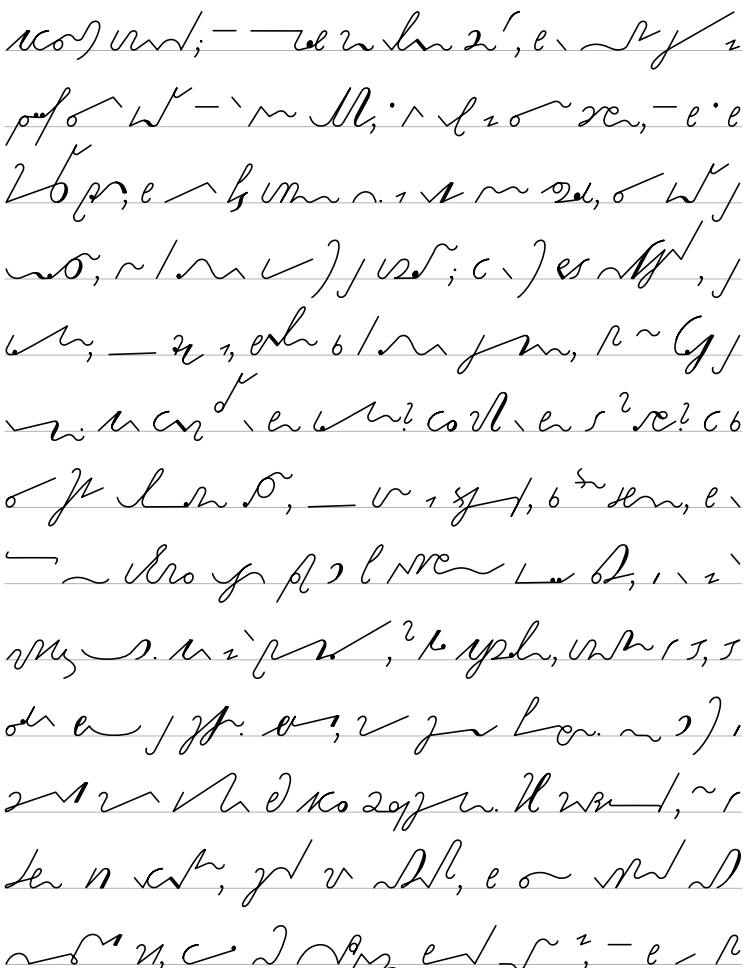
[Rosemonde]

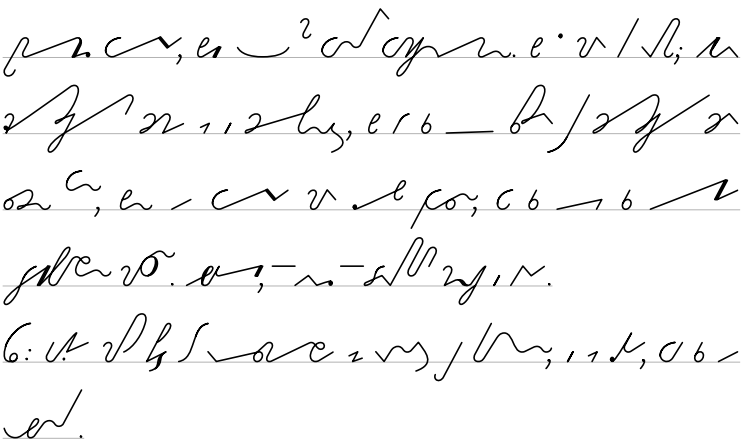


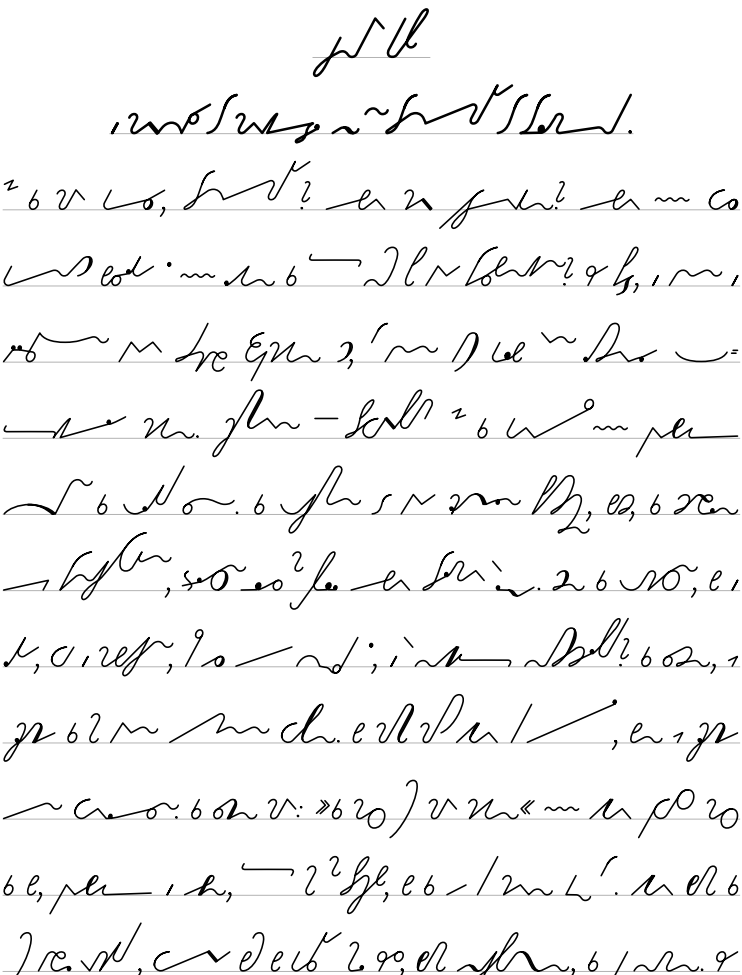


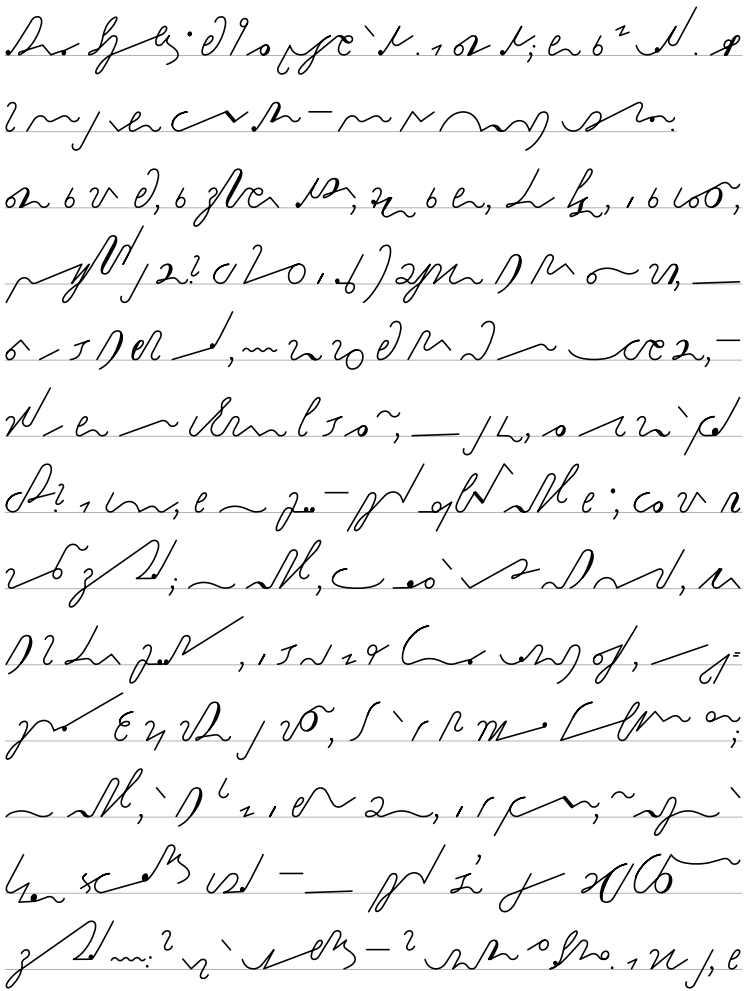


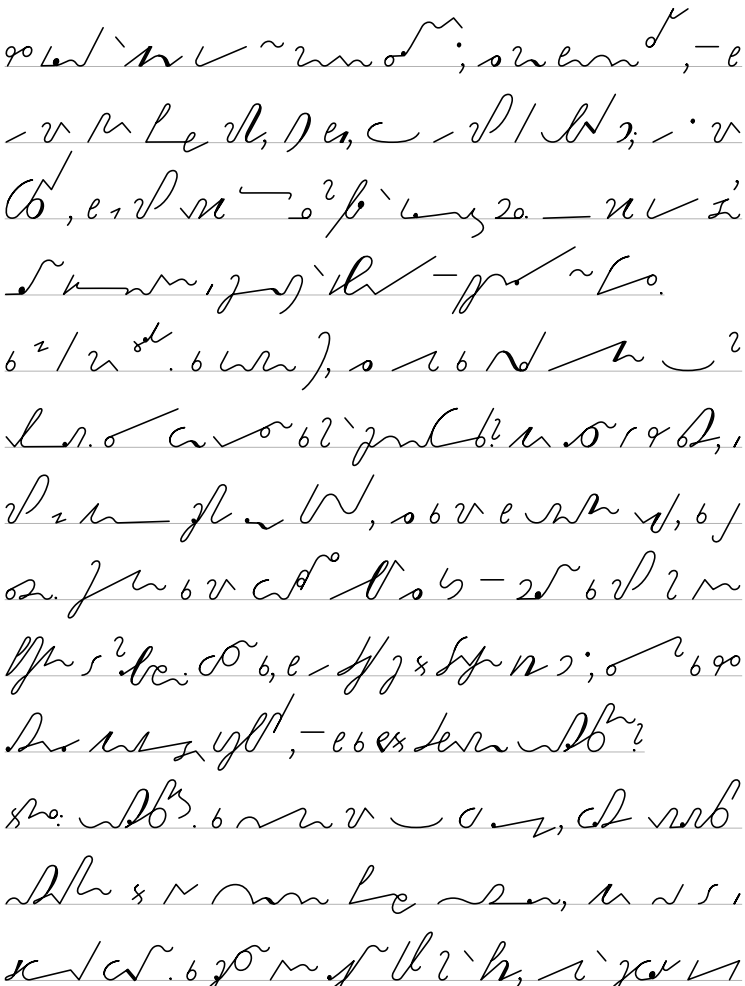


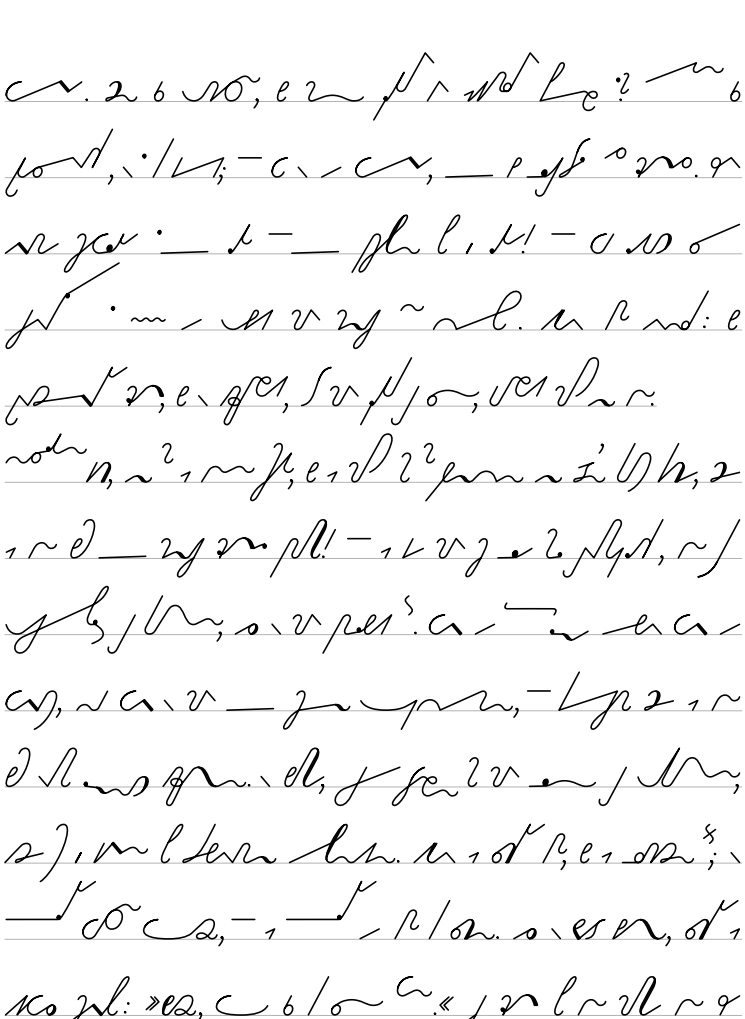


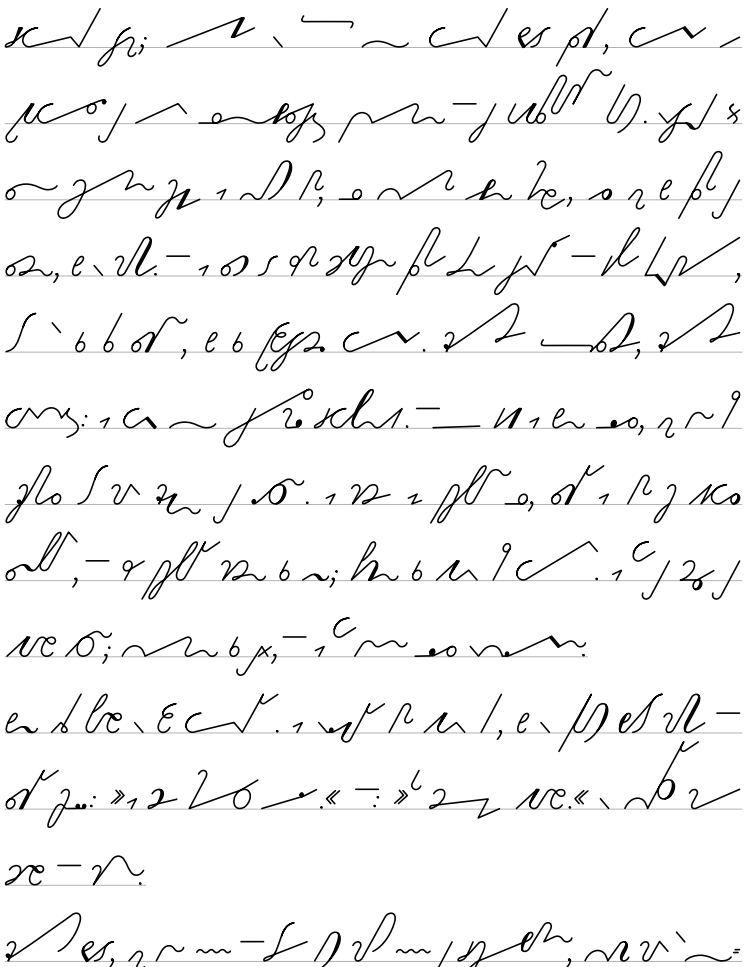


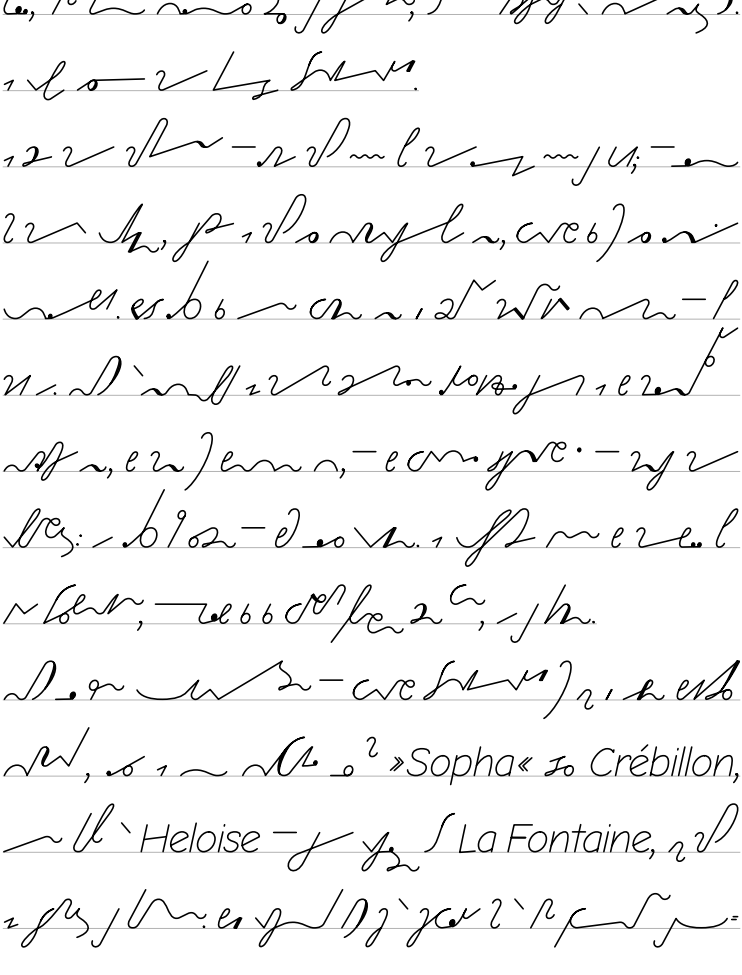




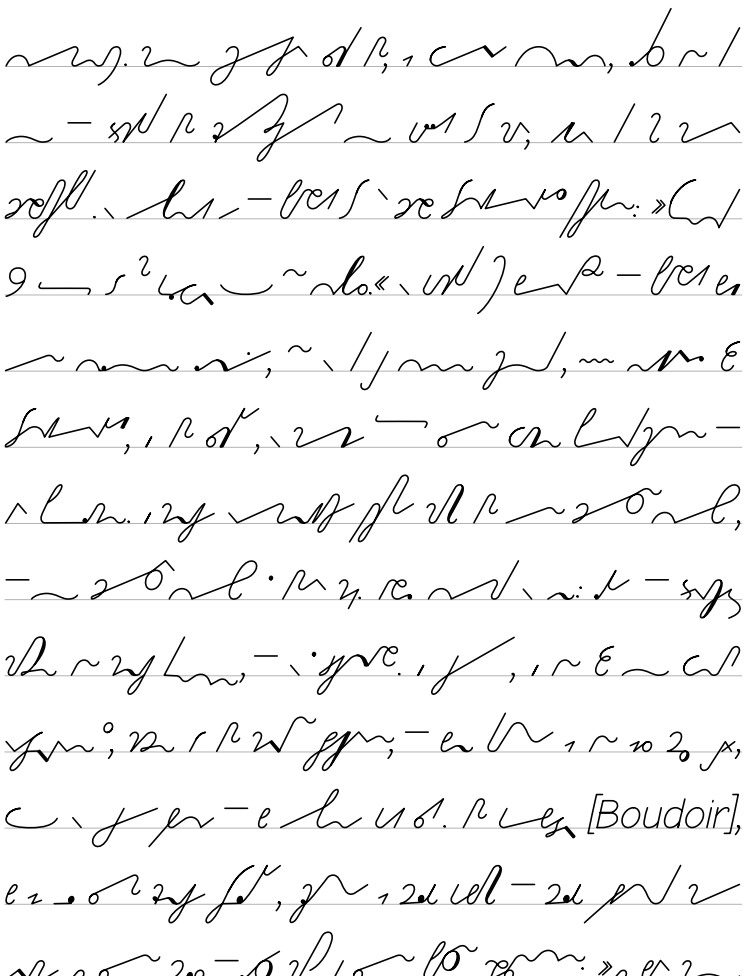




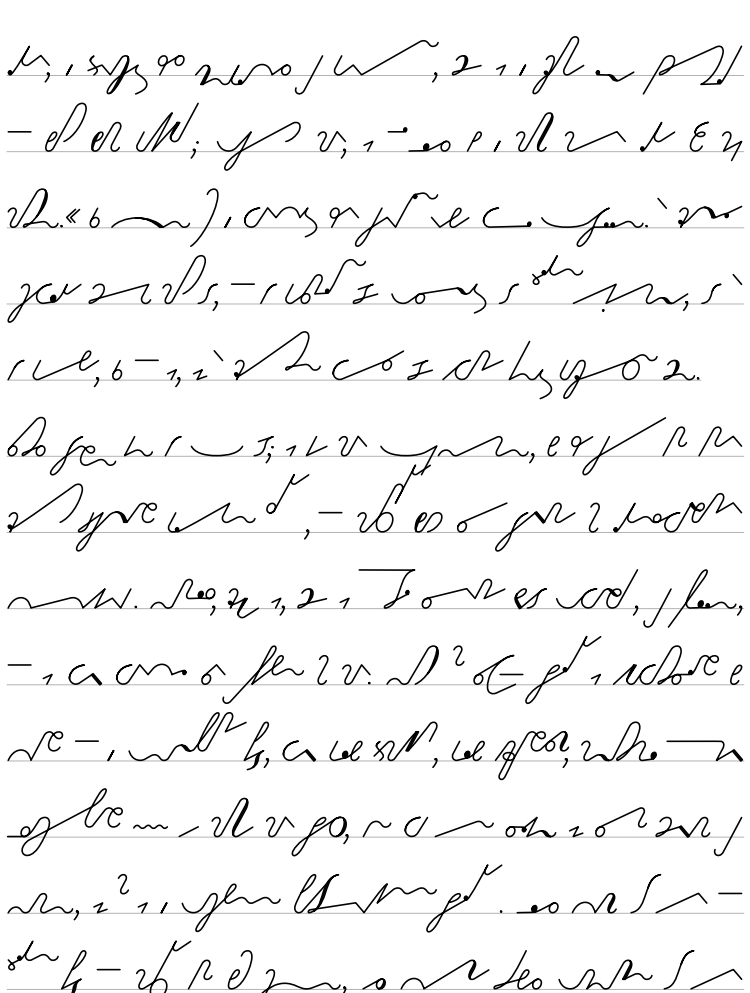


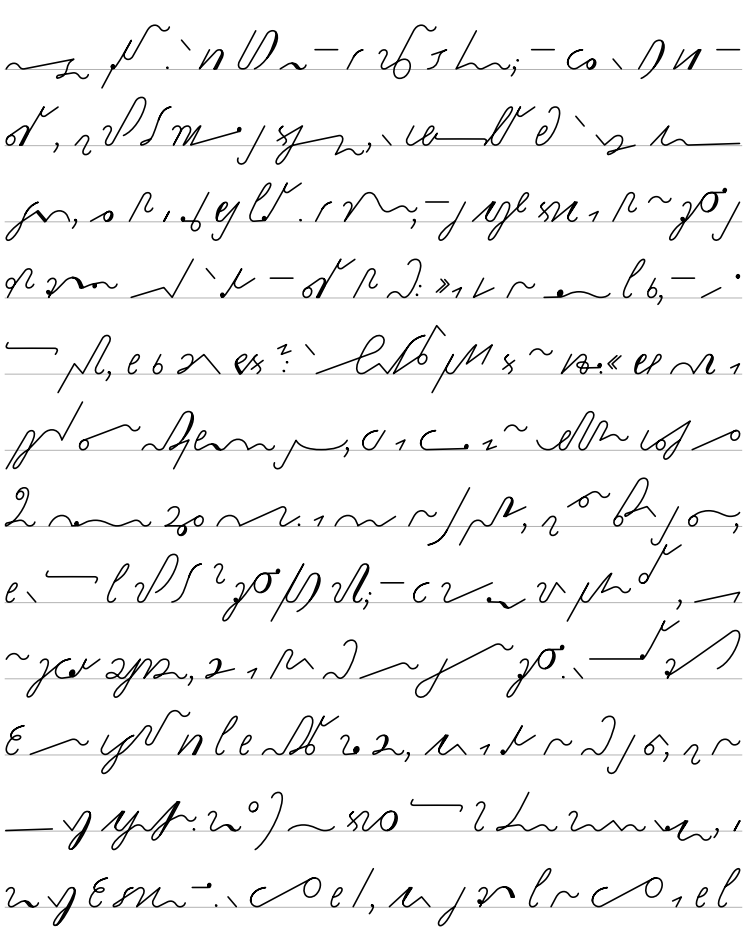


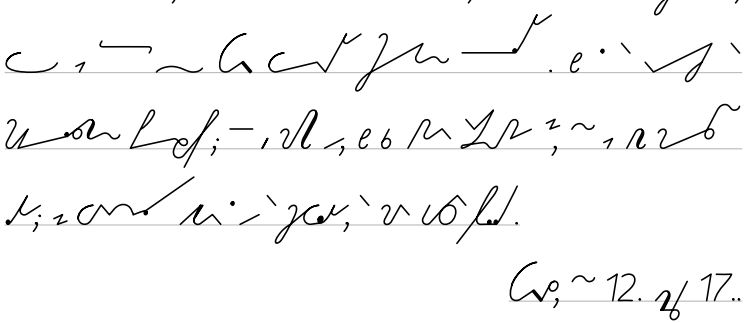
»Sopha« to Crébillon,
Heloise — of La Fontaine,



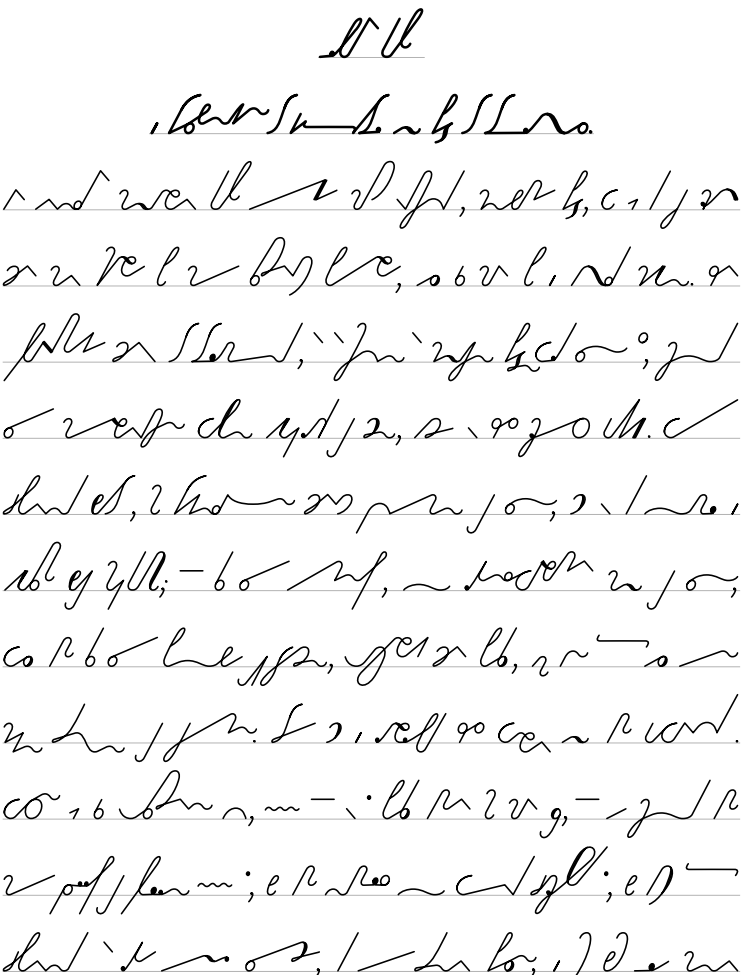
[Boudoir],

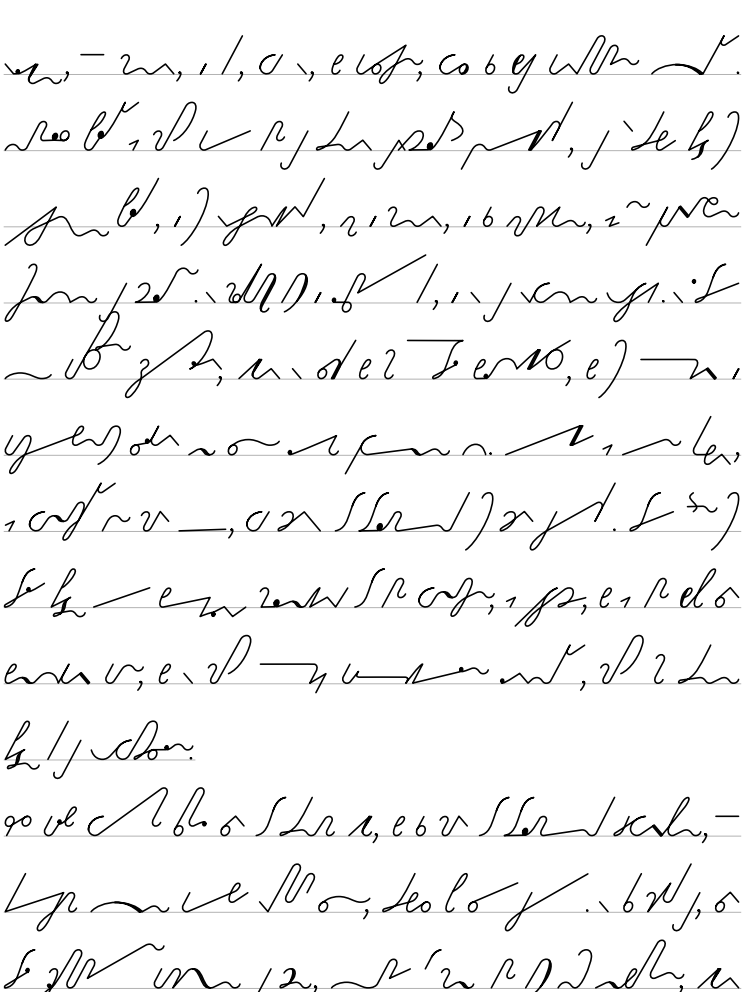


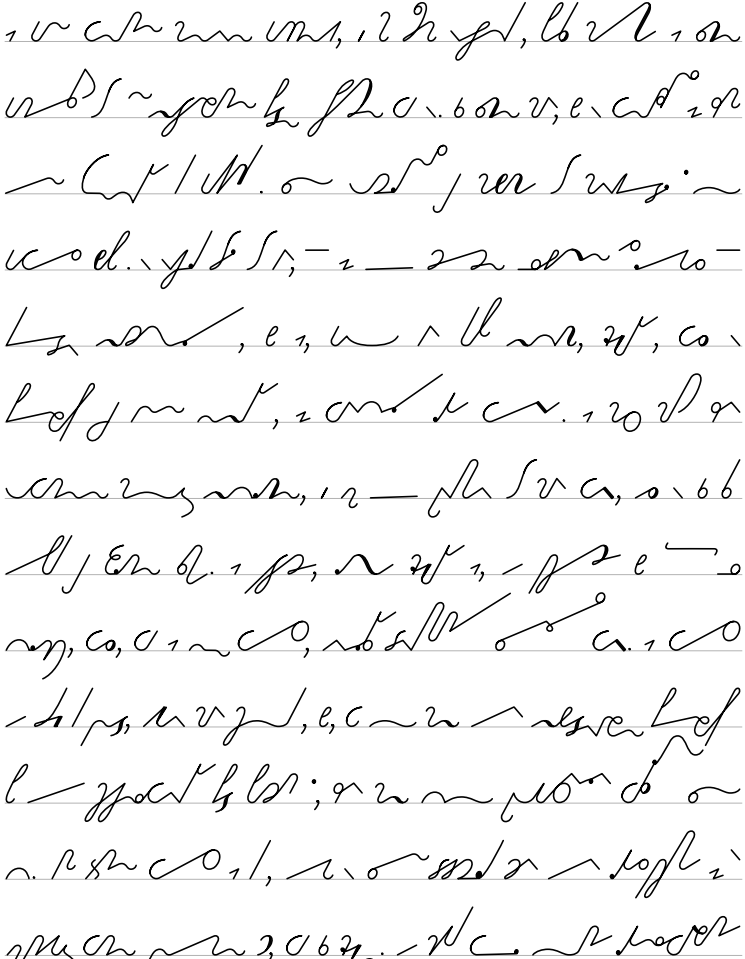


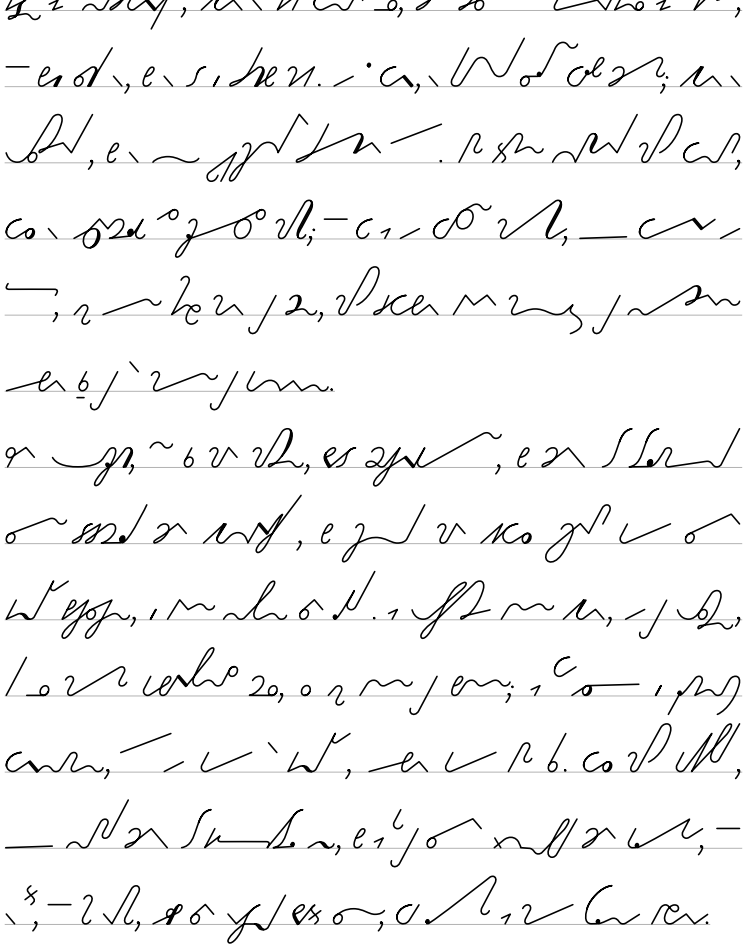


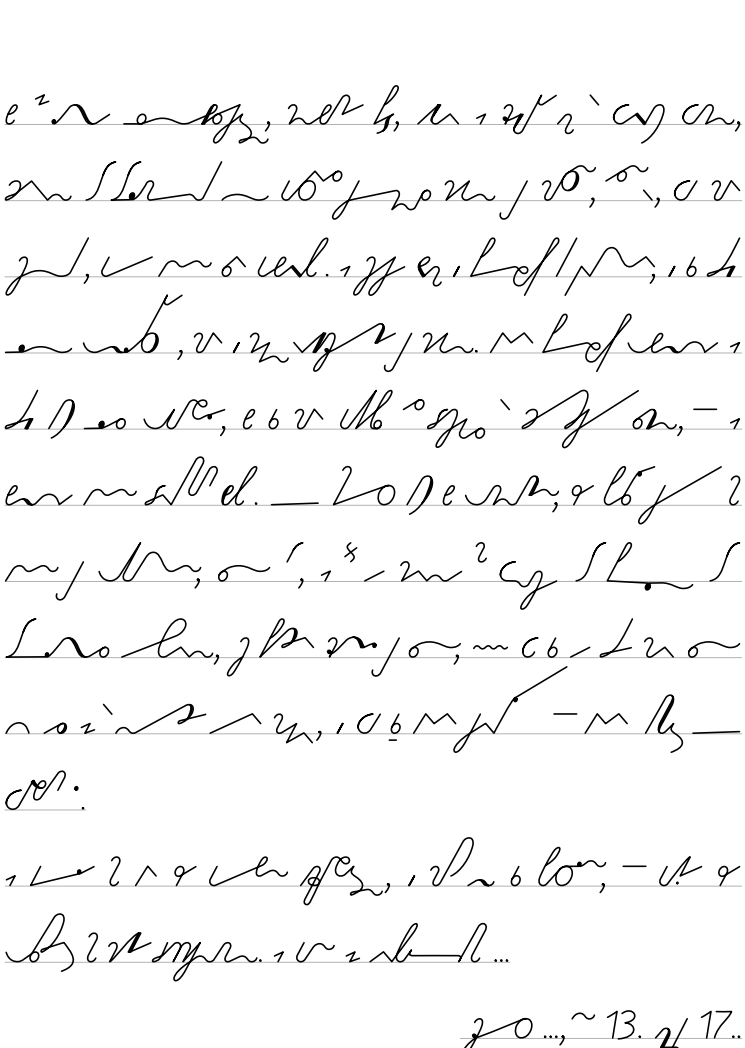
Сю, ~ 12. 4/ 17..



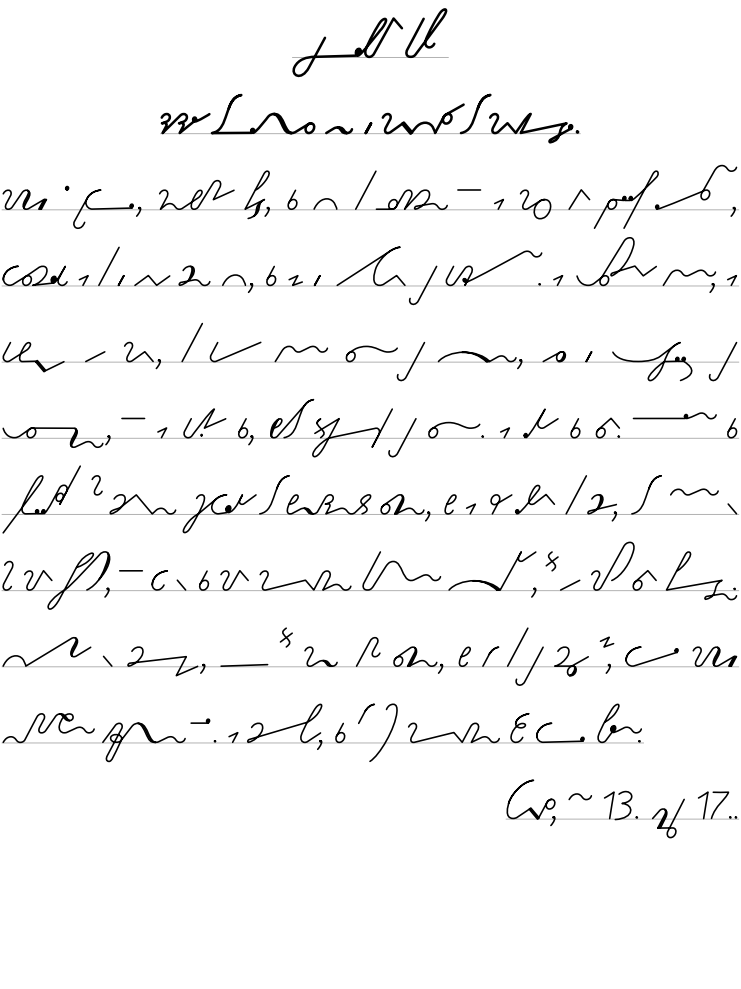


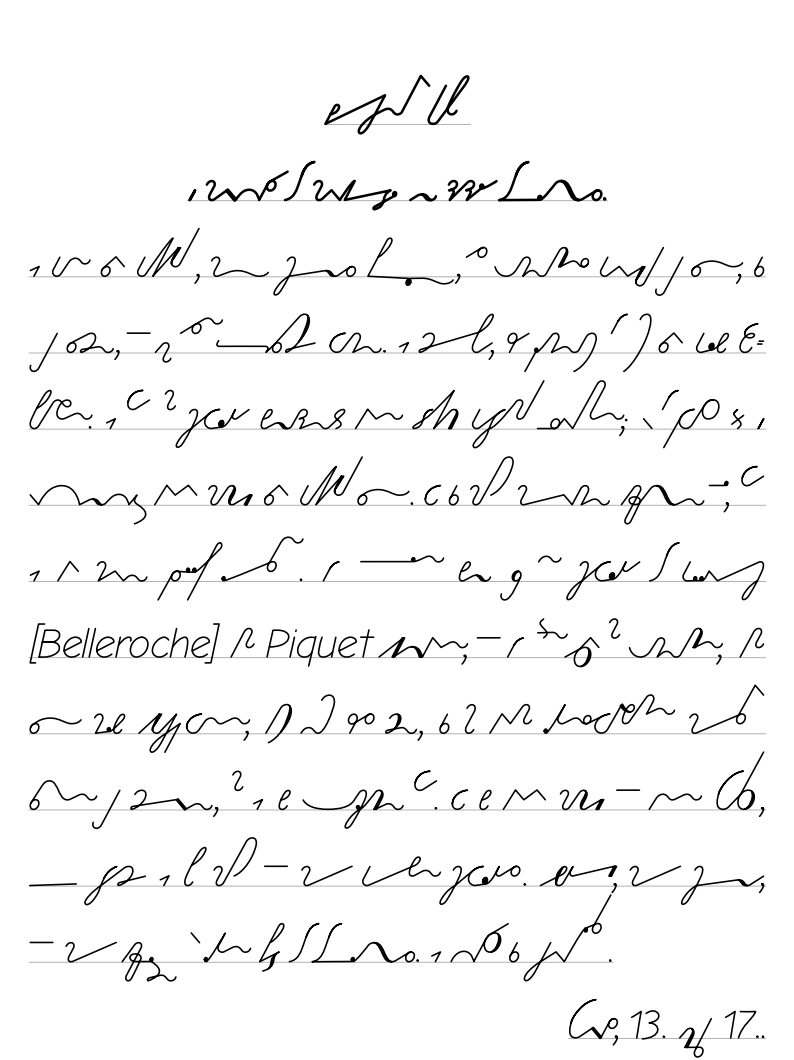




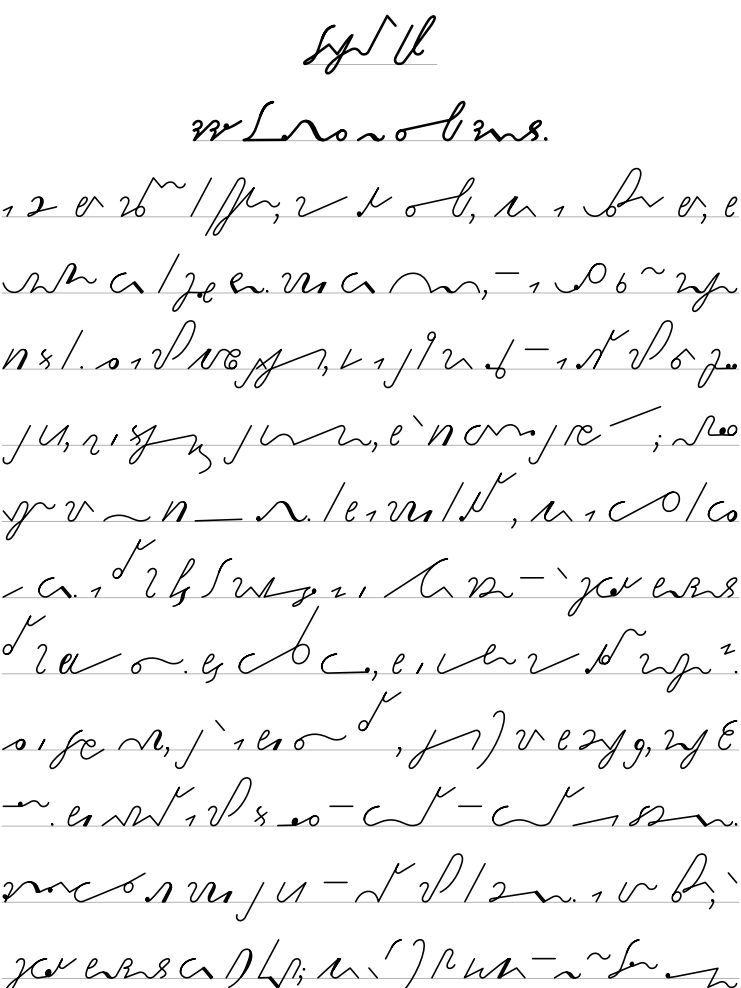


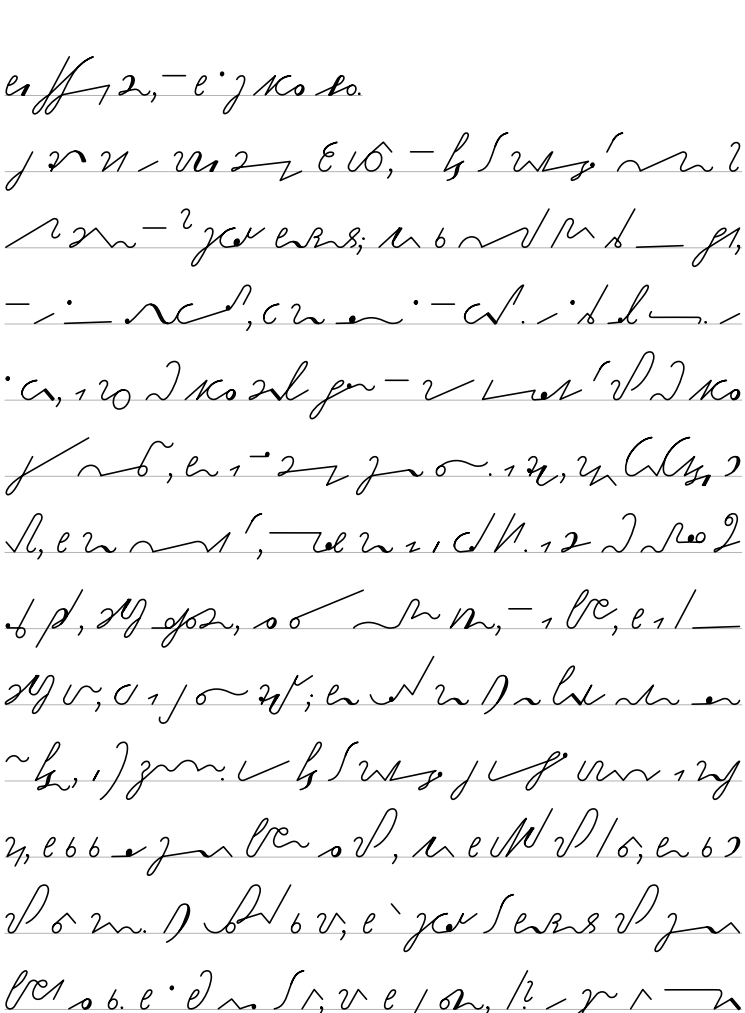
67

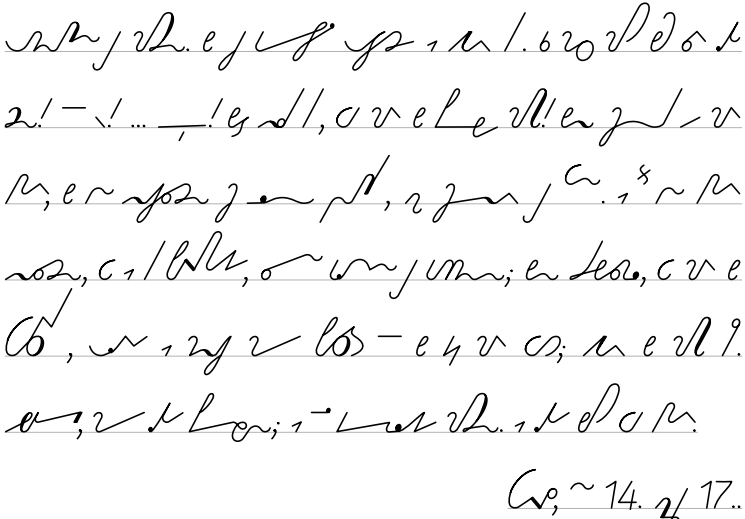


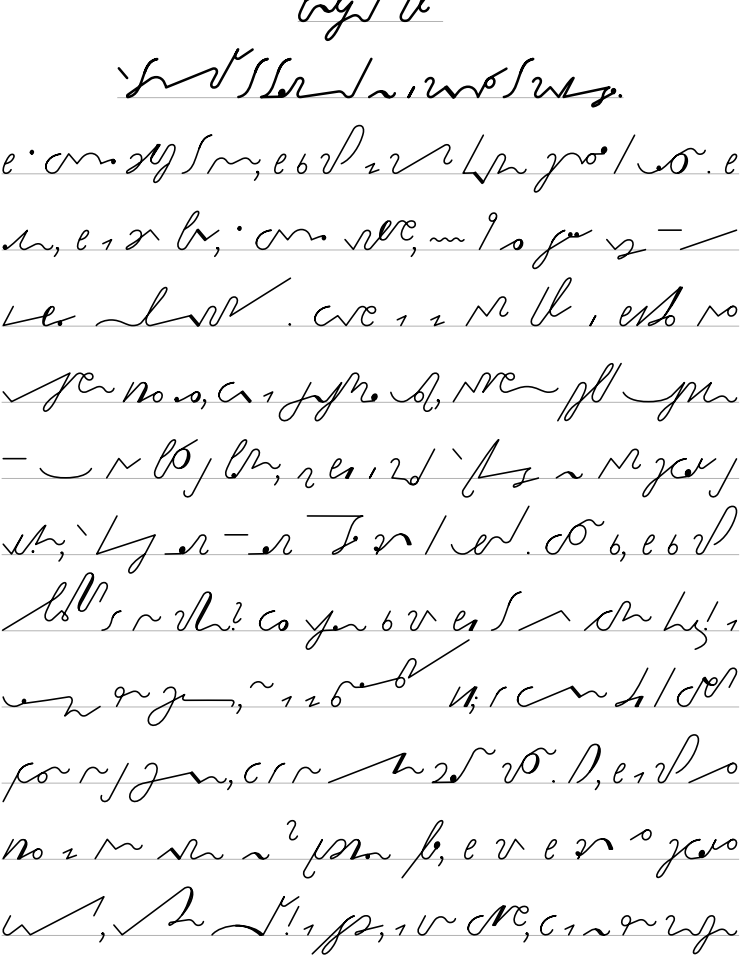


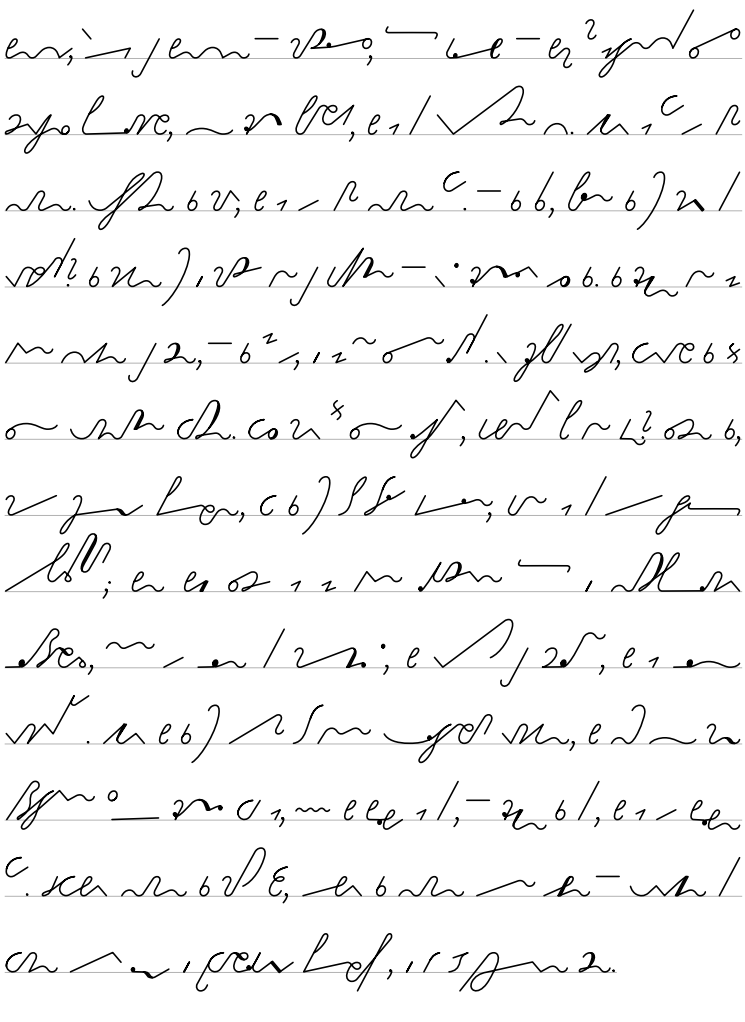
[Belleroche] Piquet

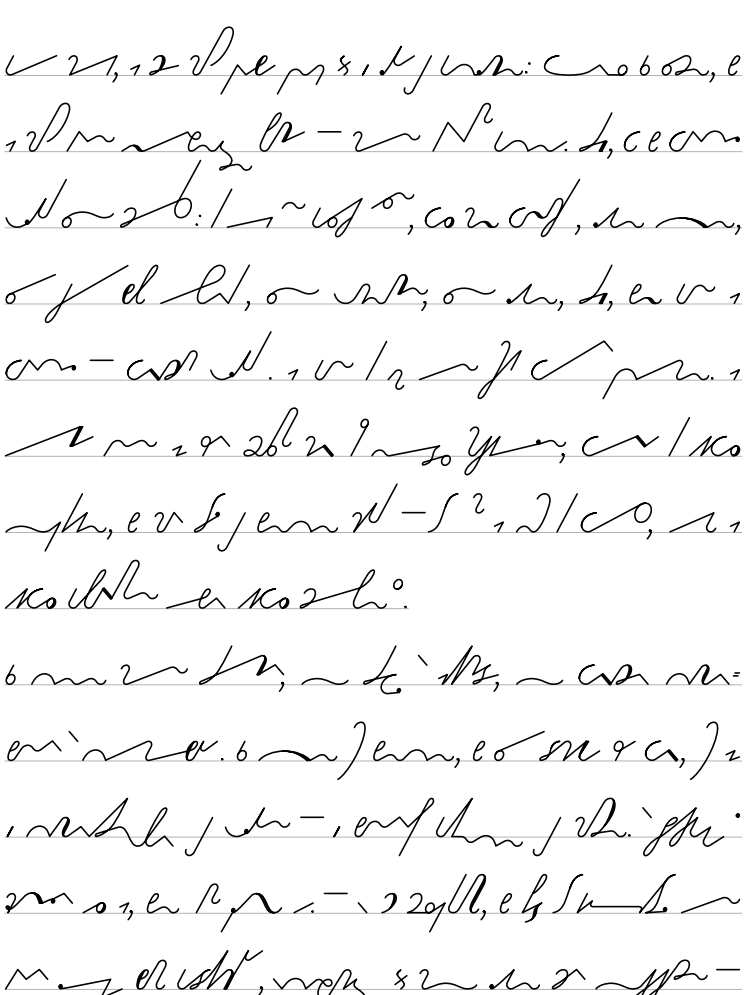


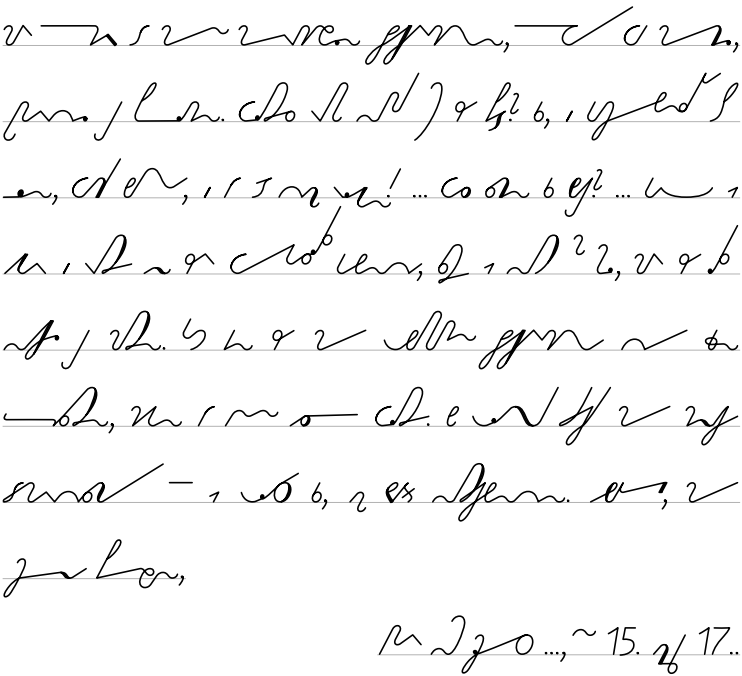


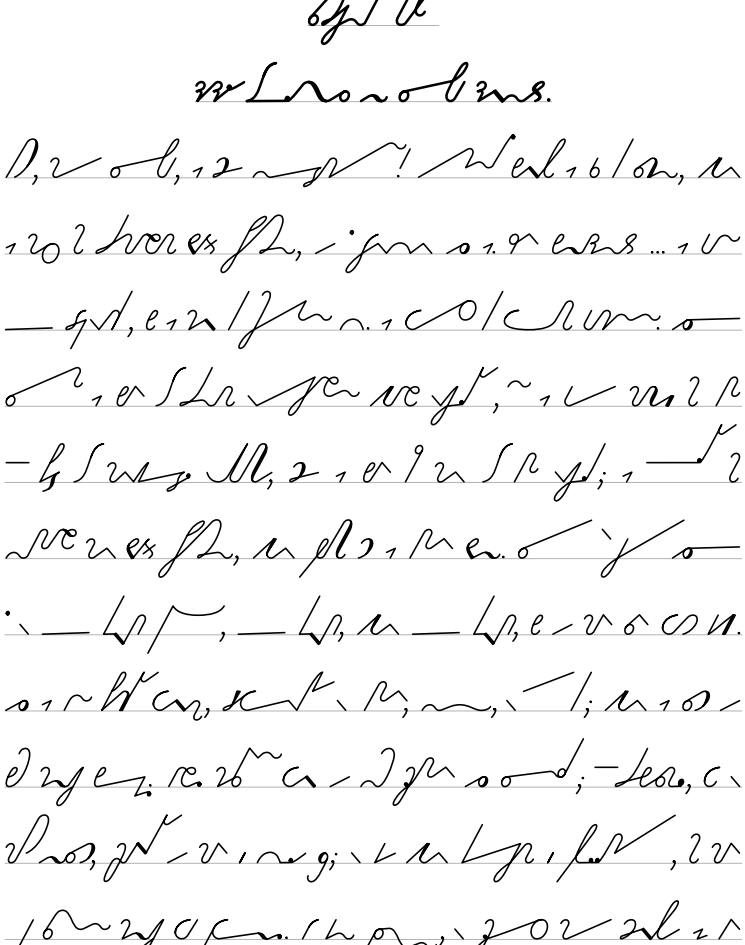


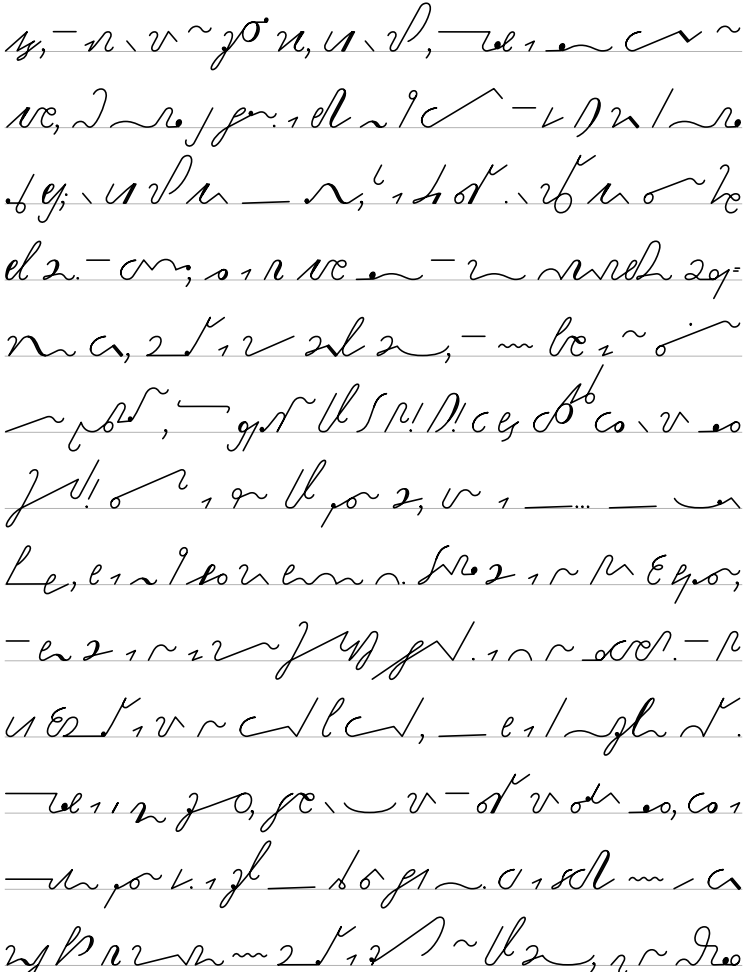


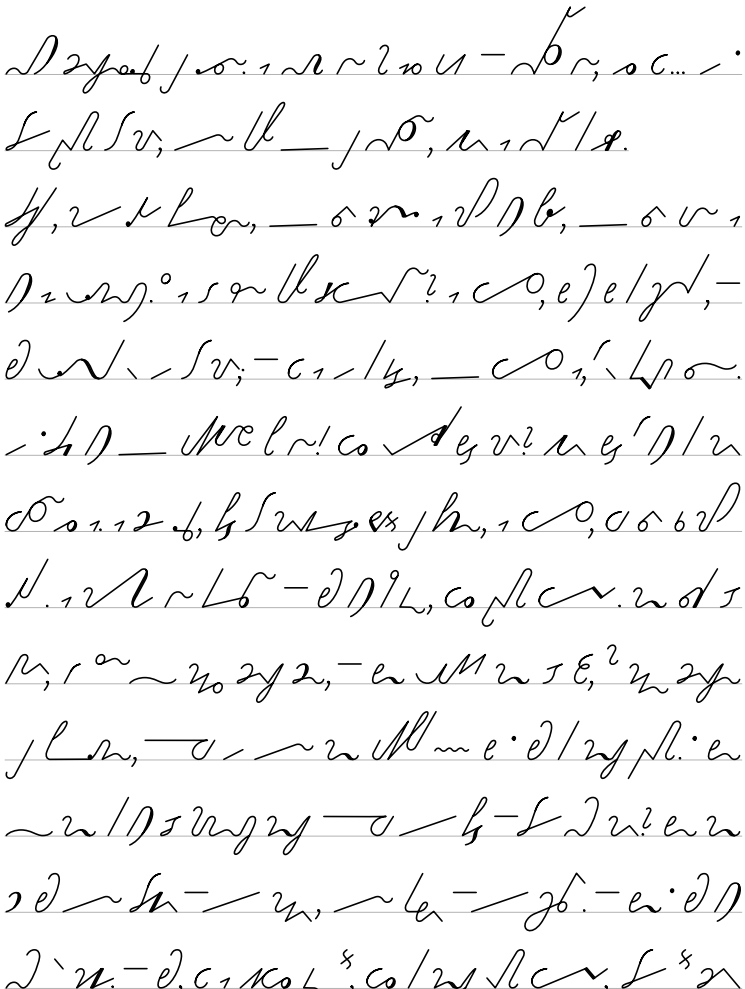


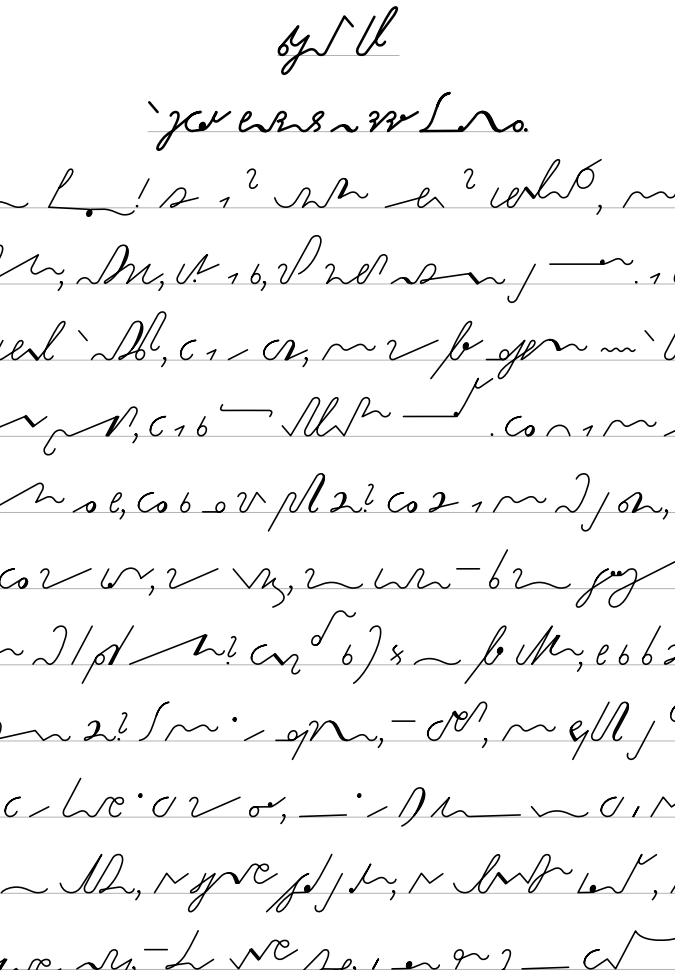


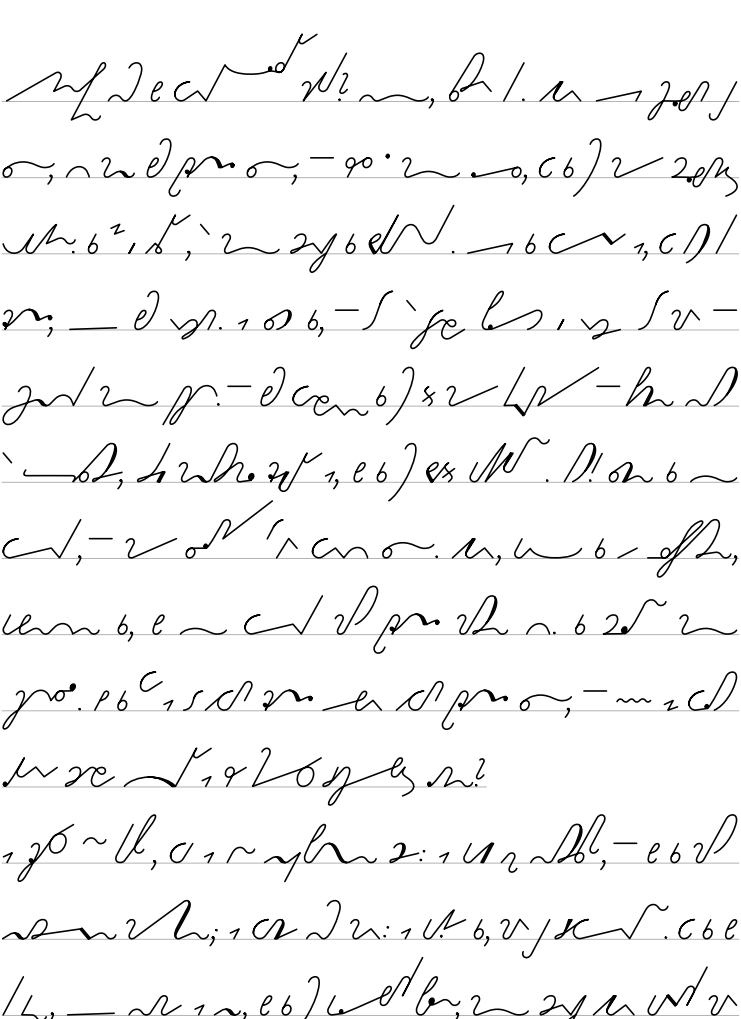


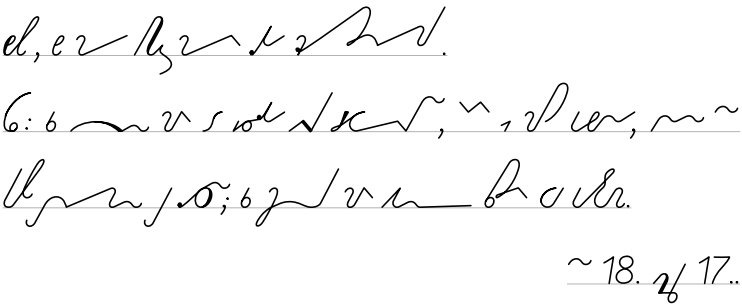




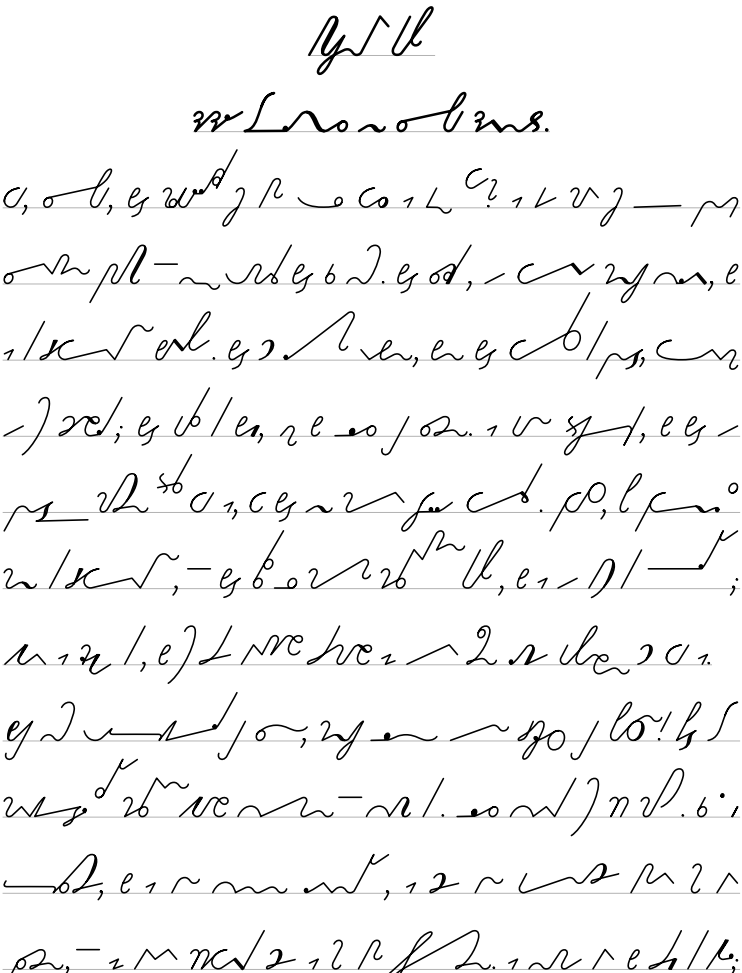


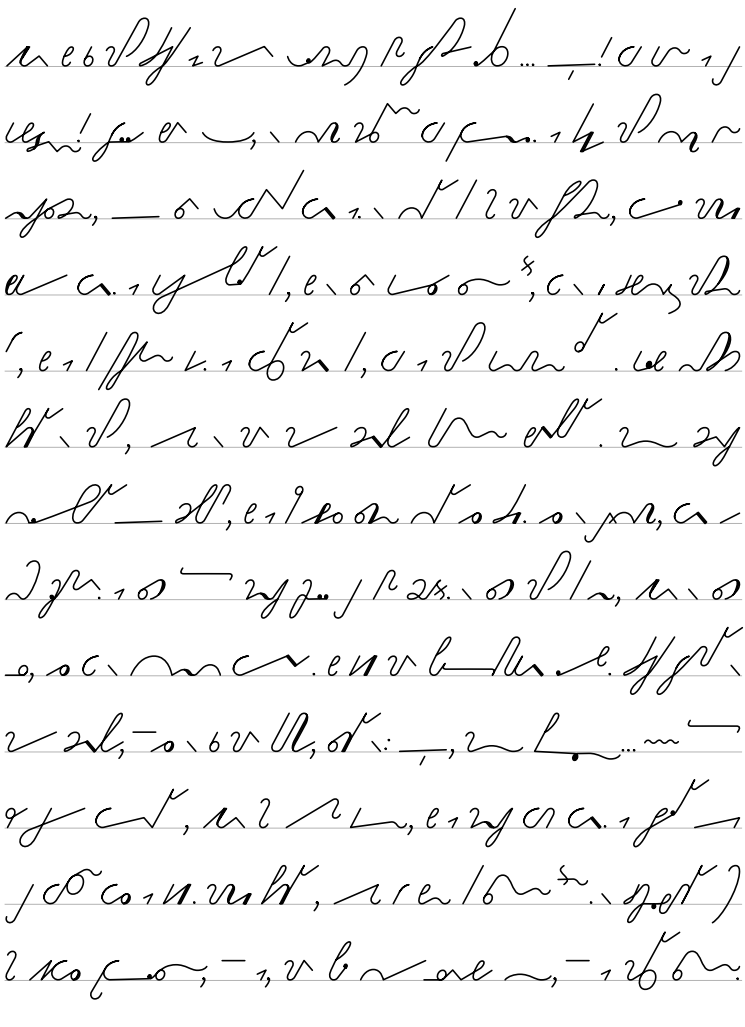


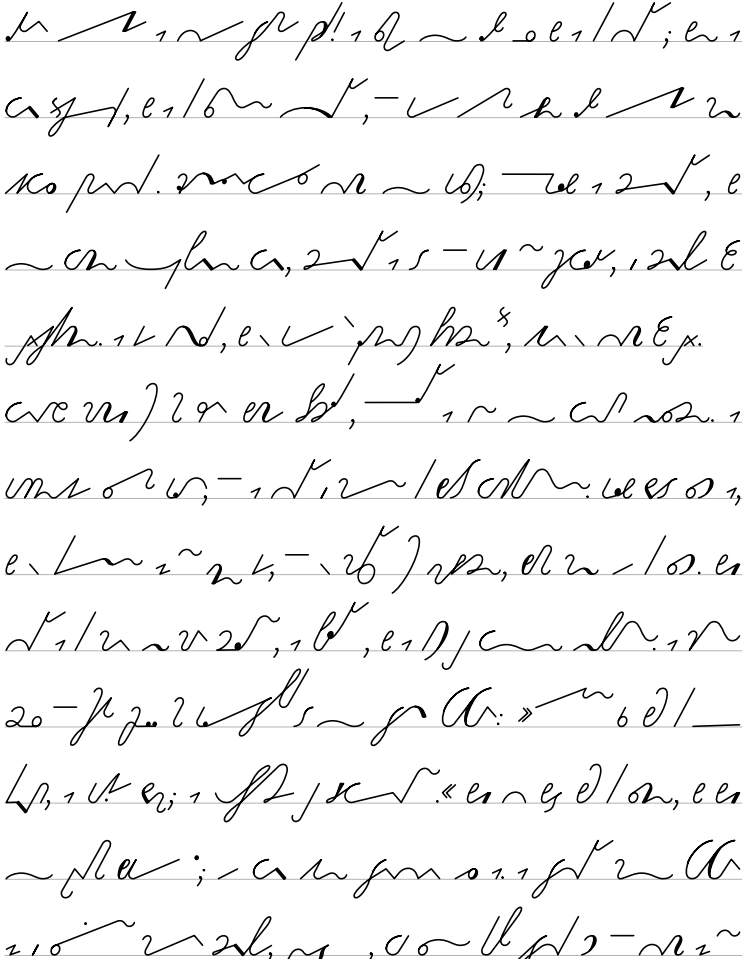


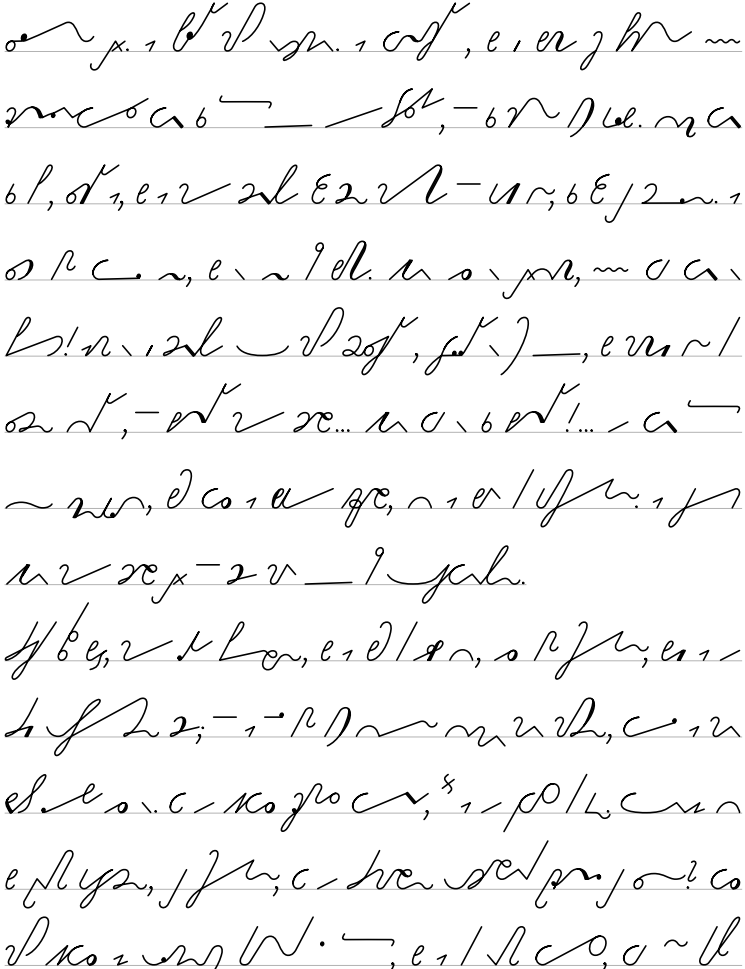


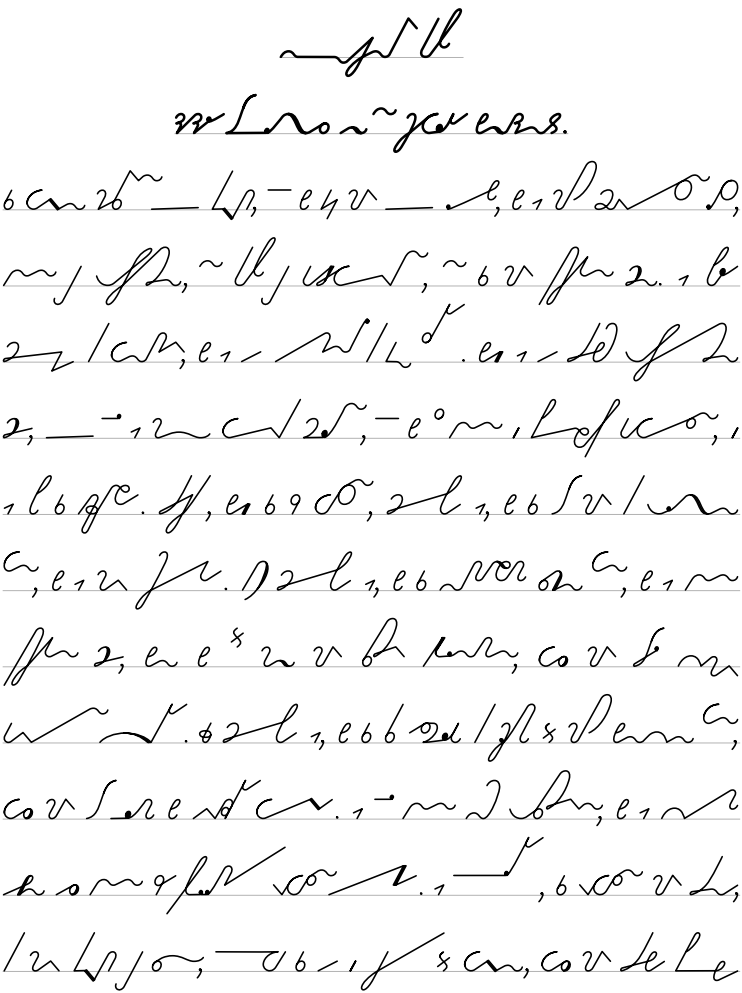
18. 17..

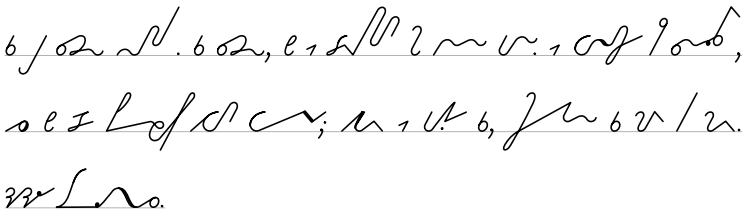




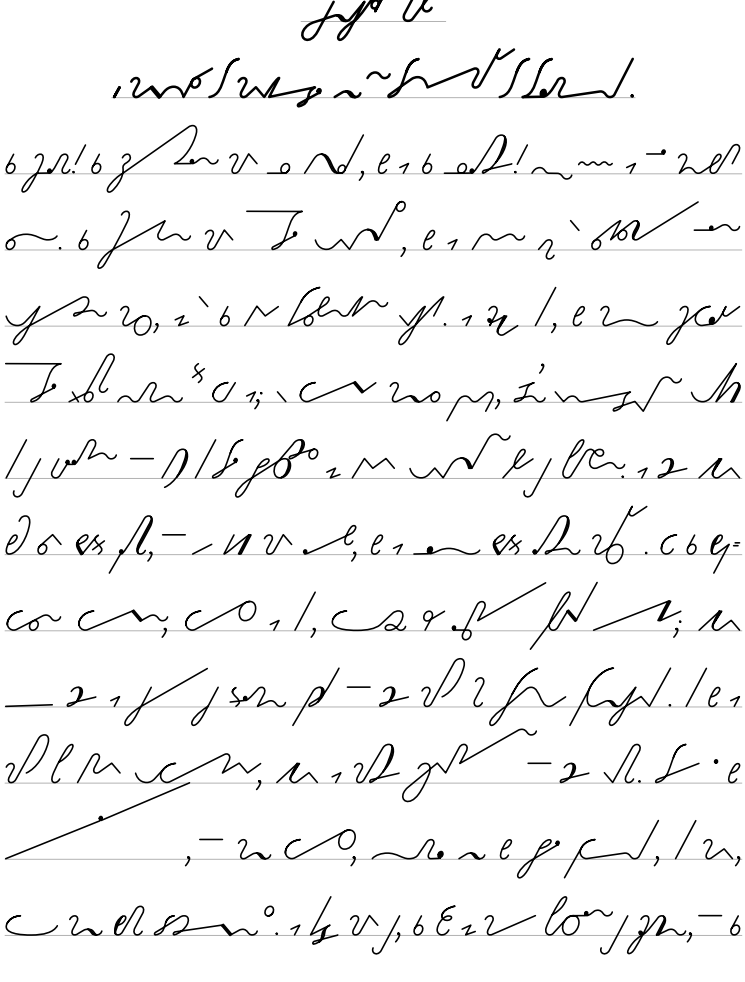


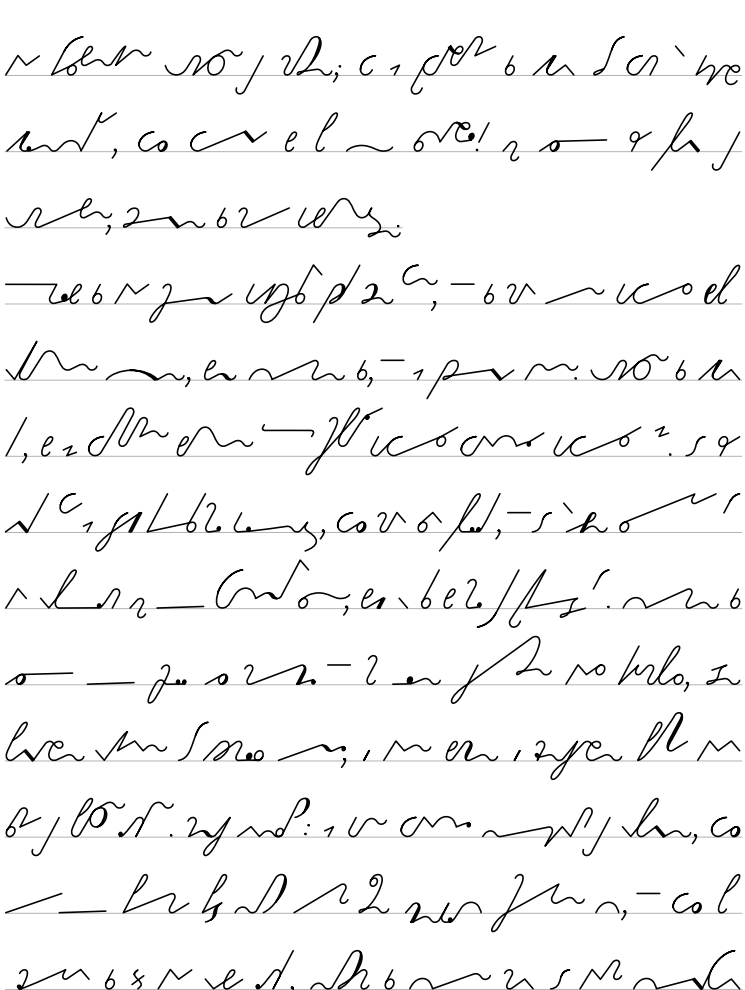


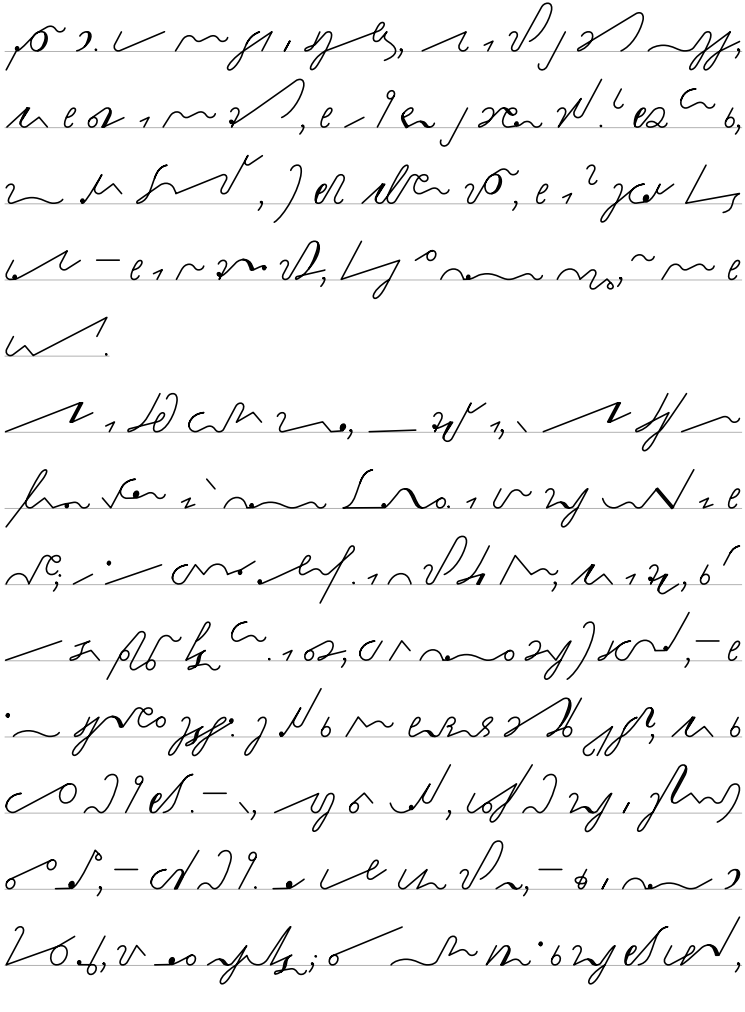


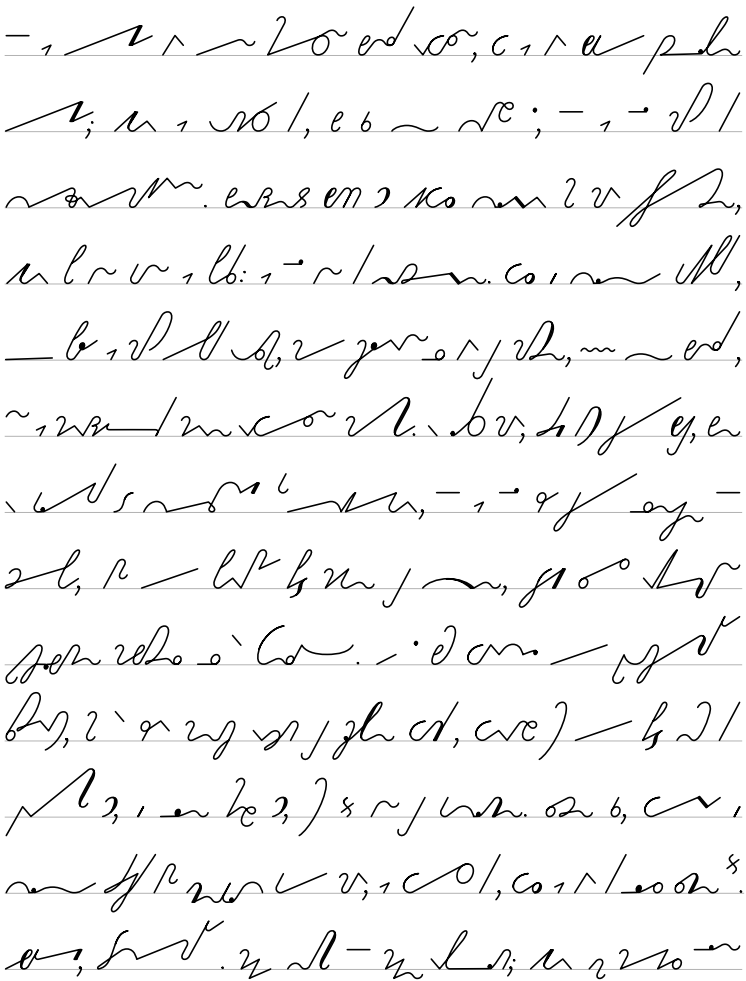


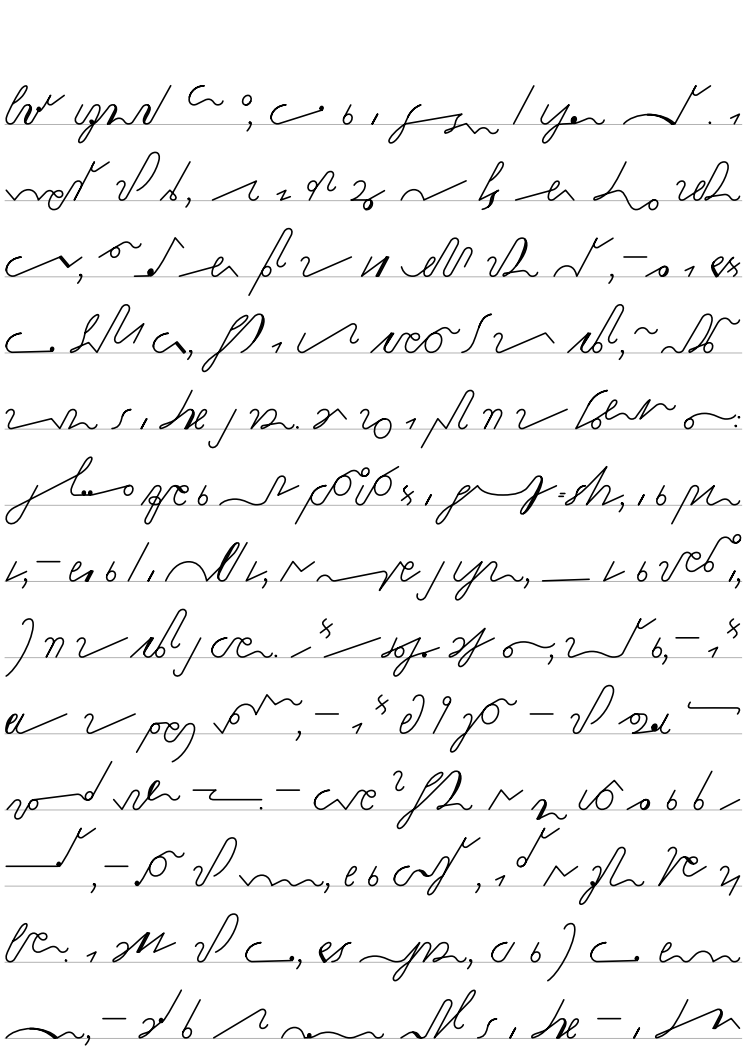
~20. 17..

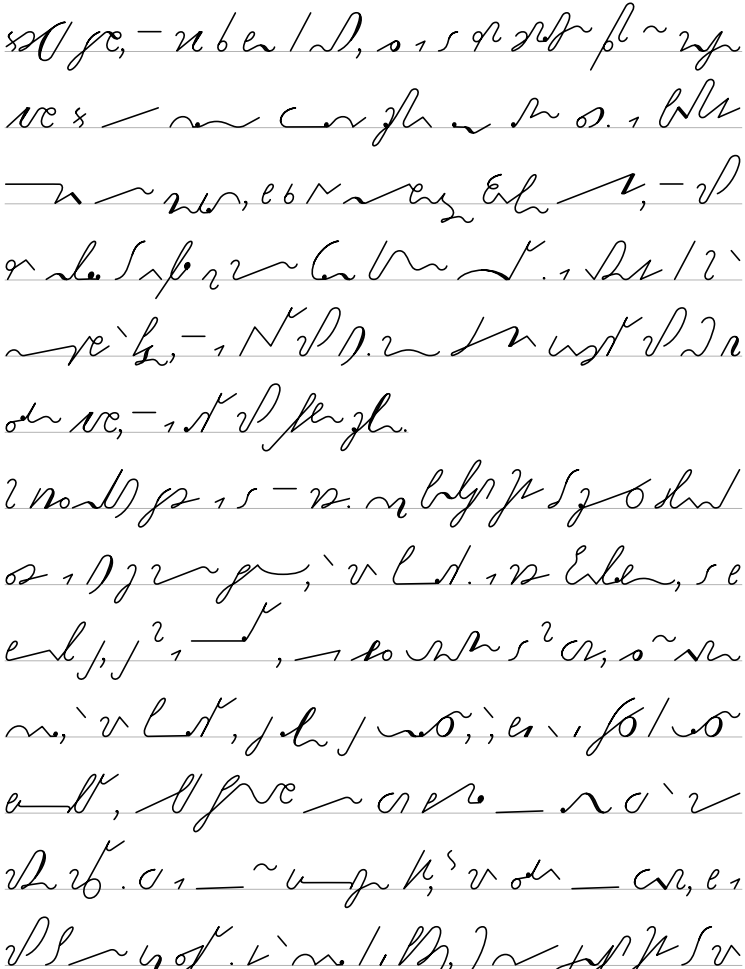


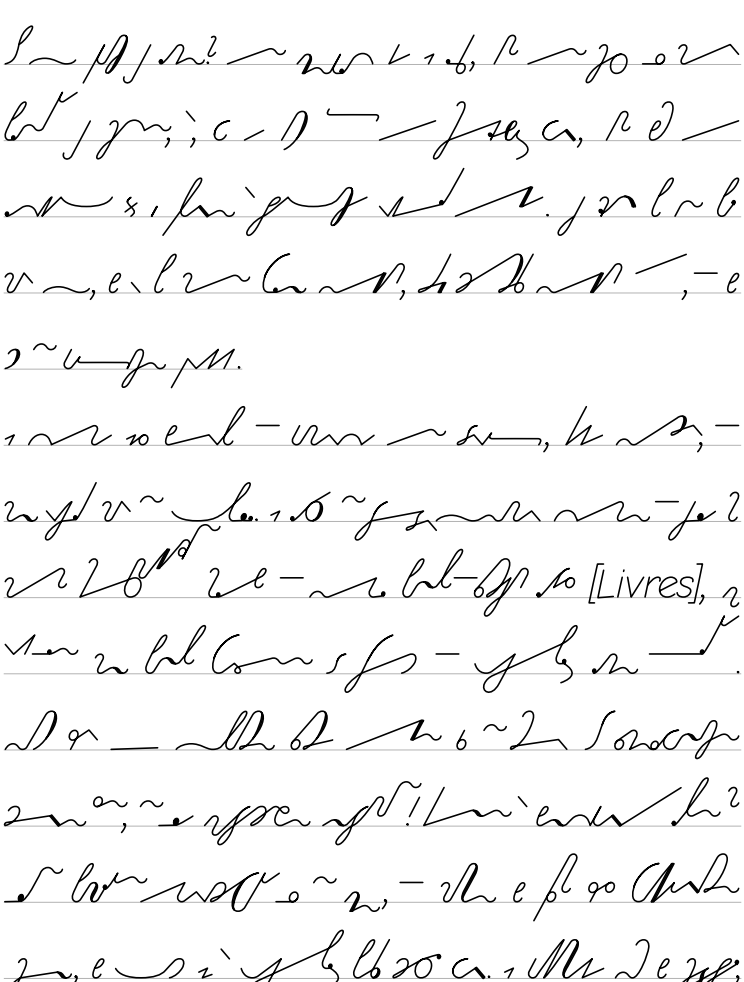


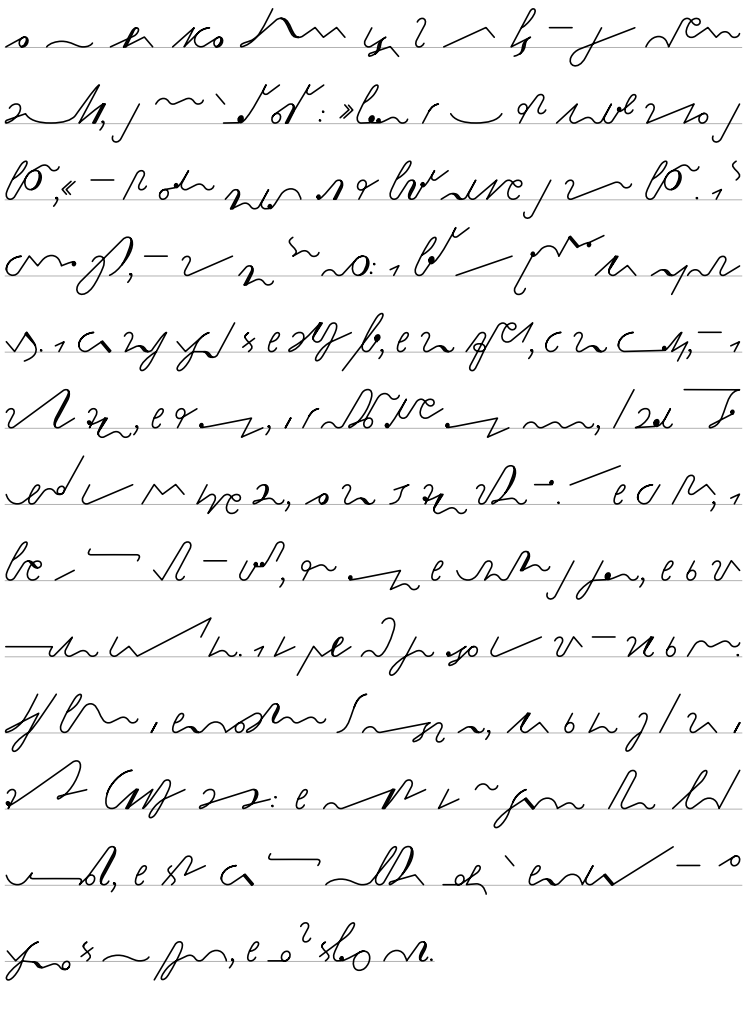


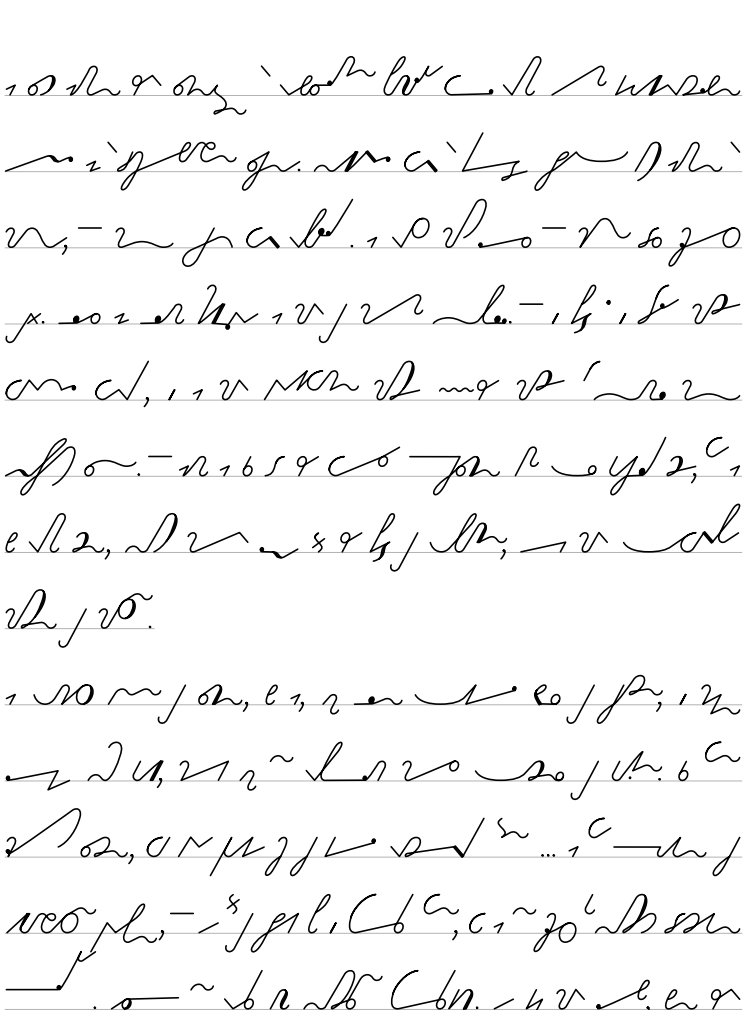


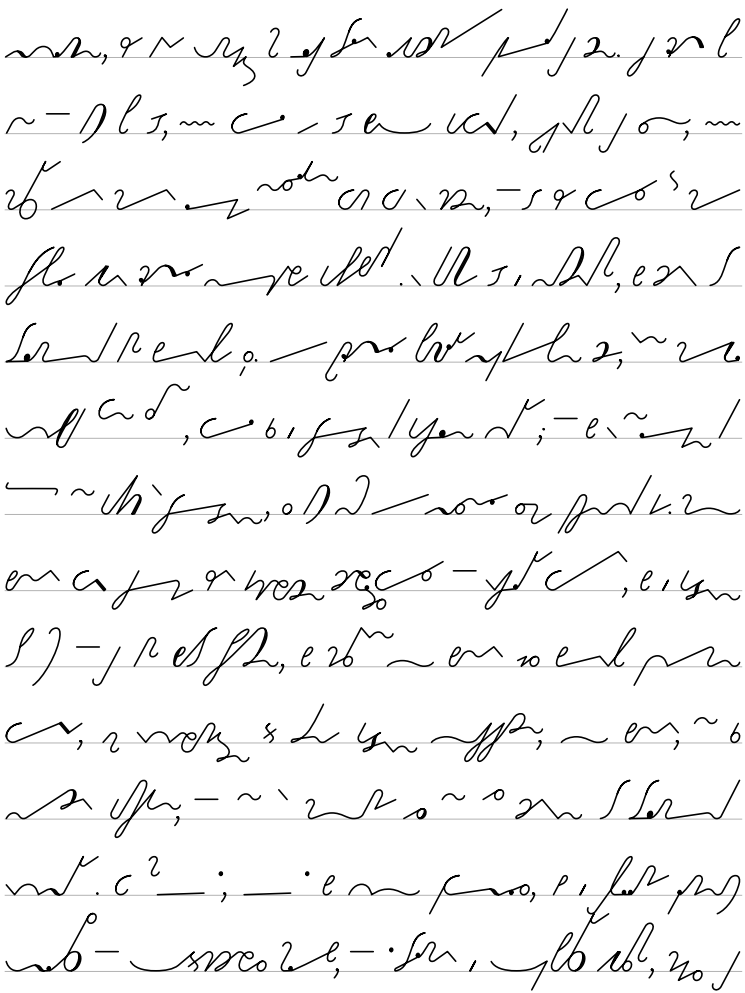


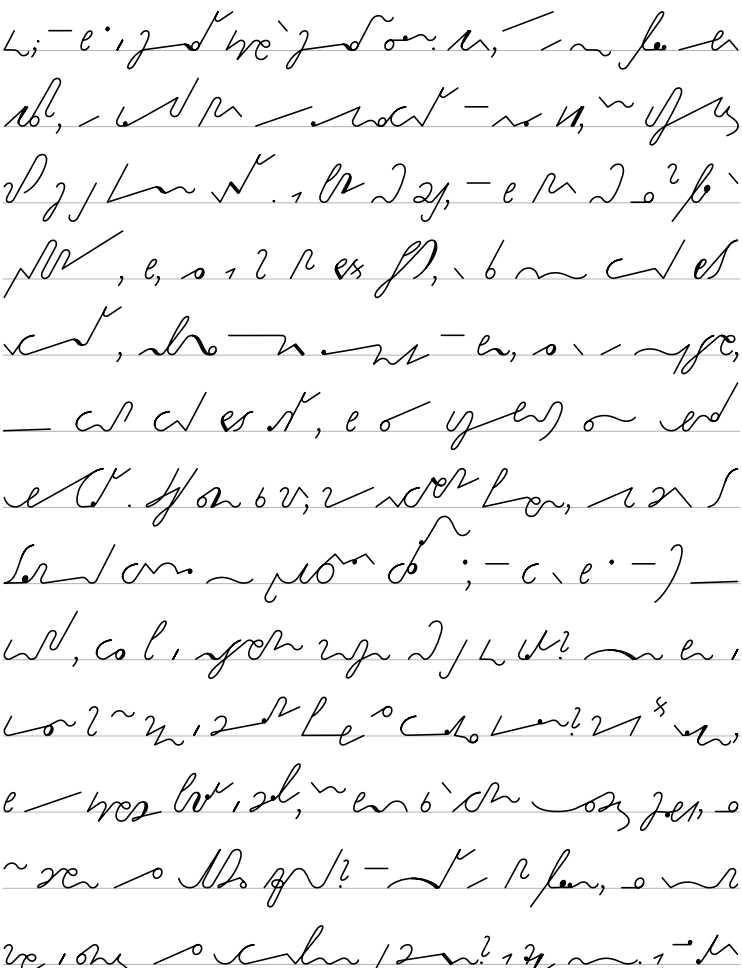


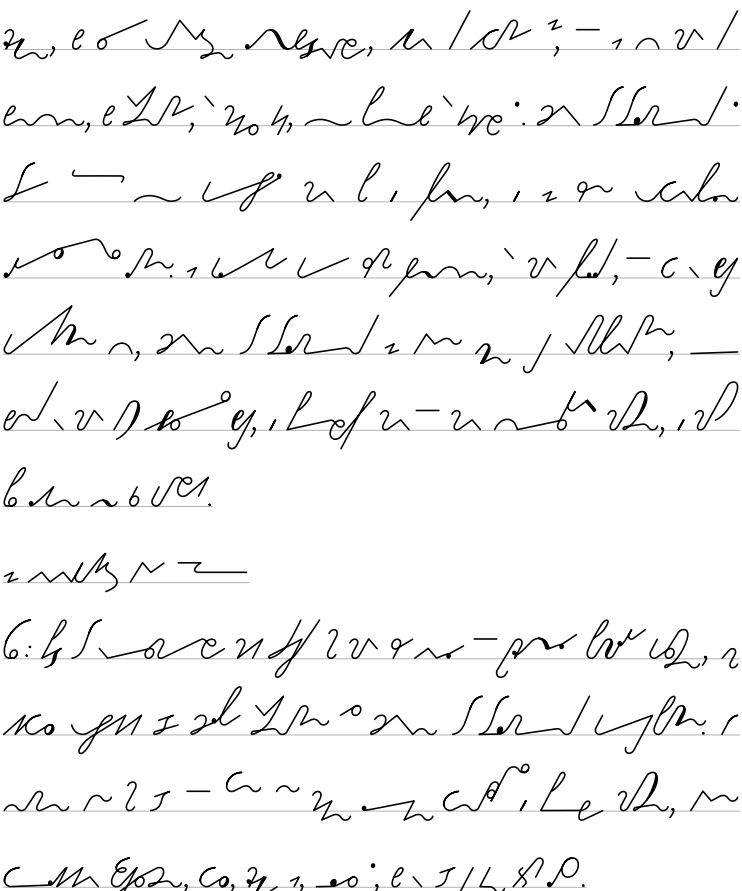


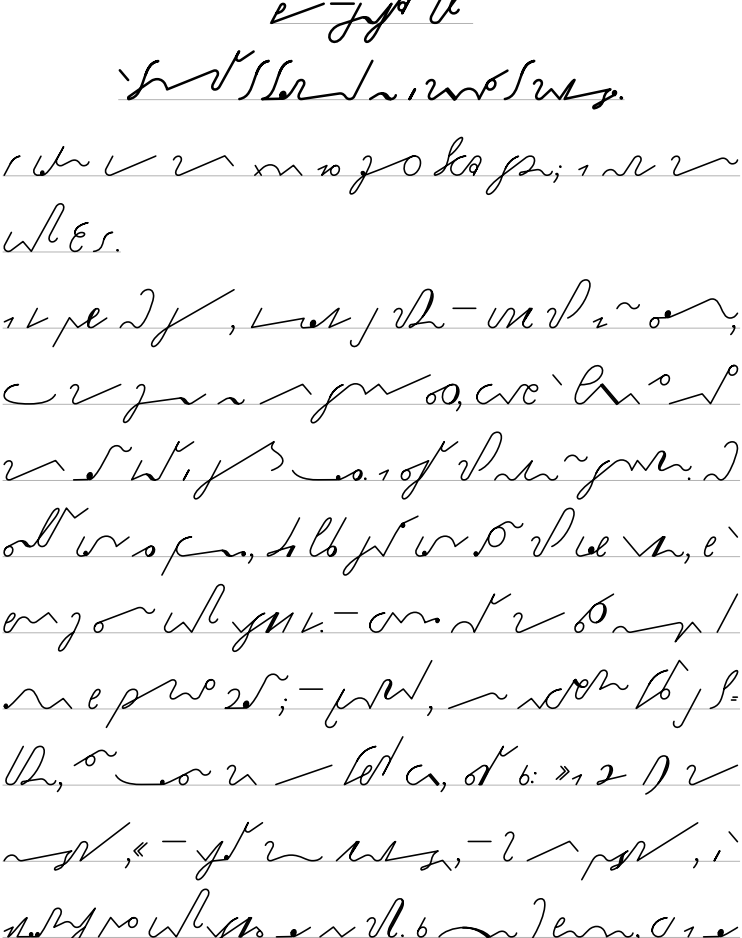


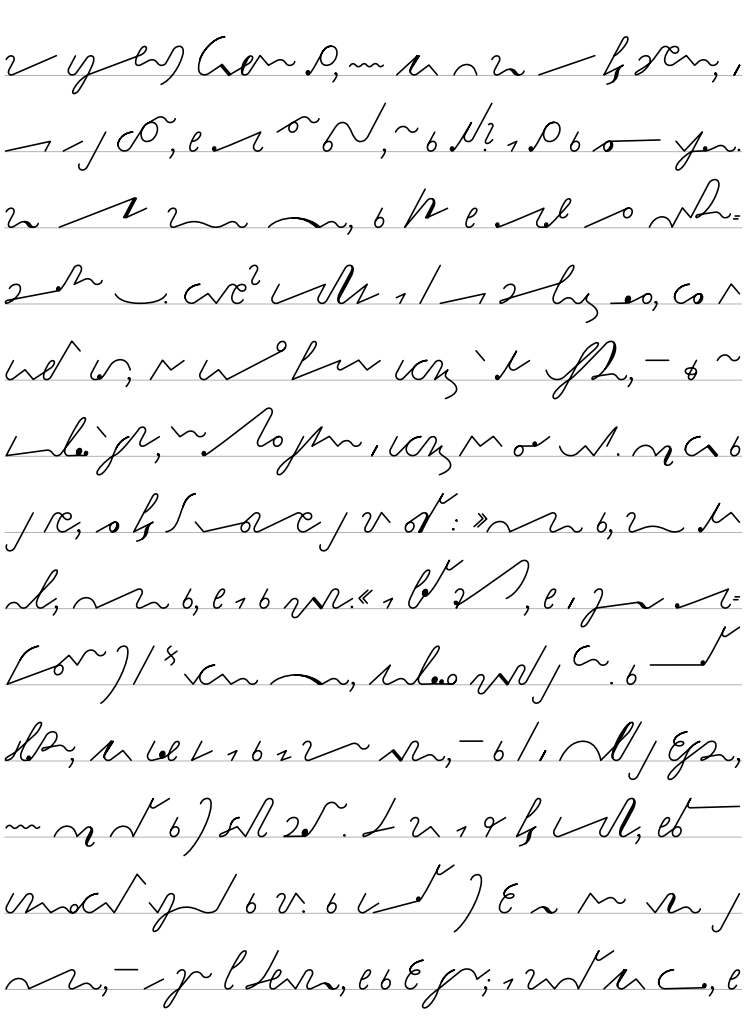


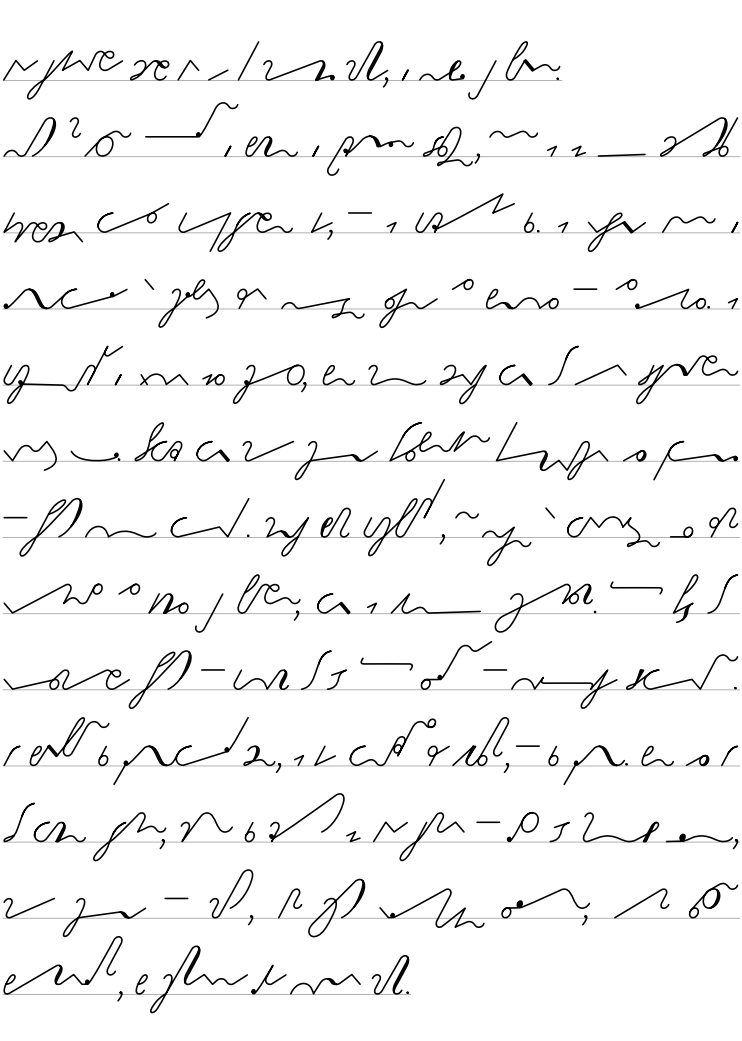


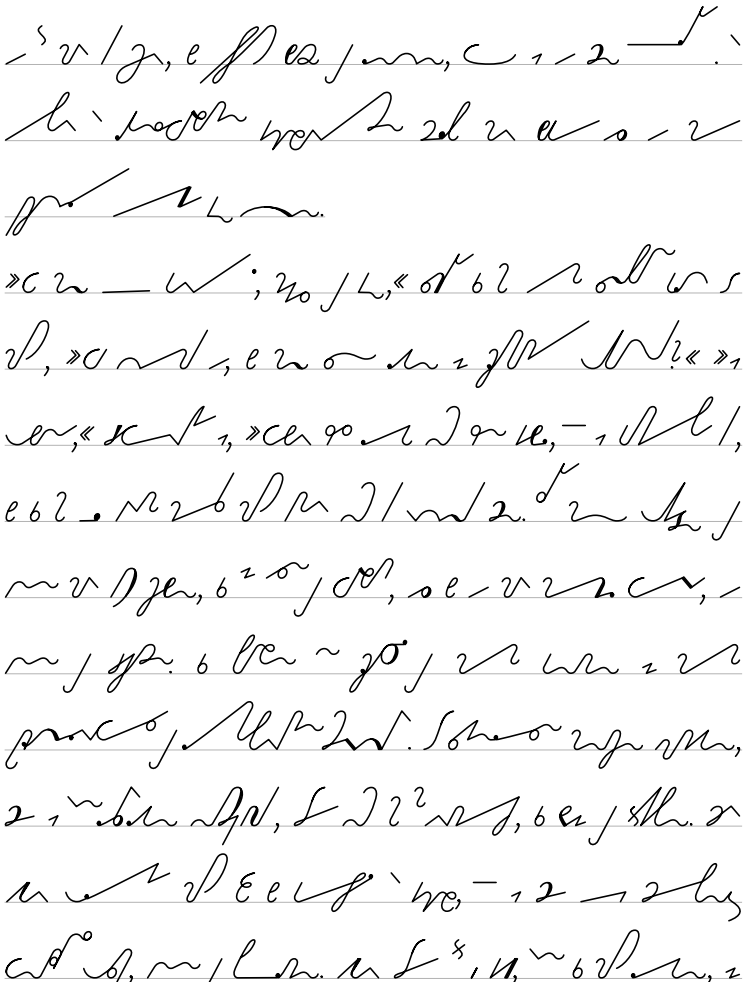


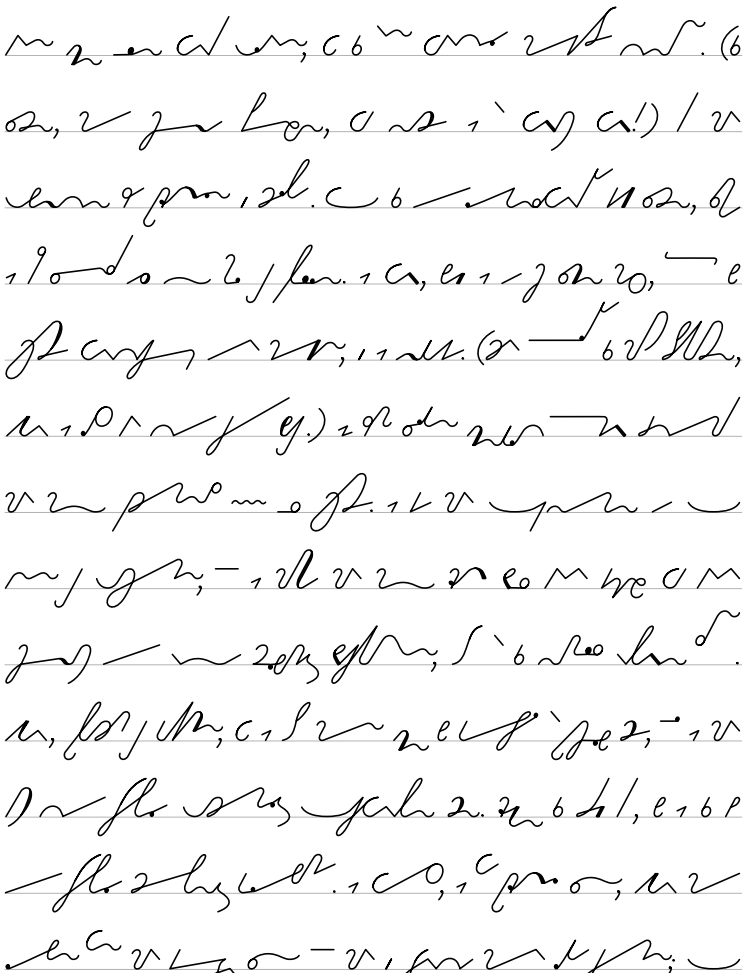


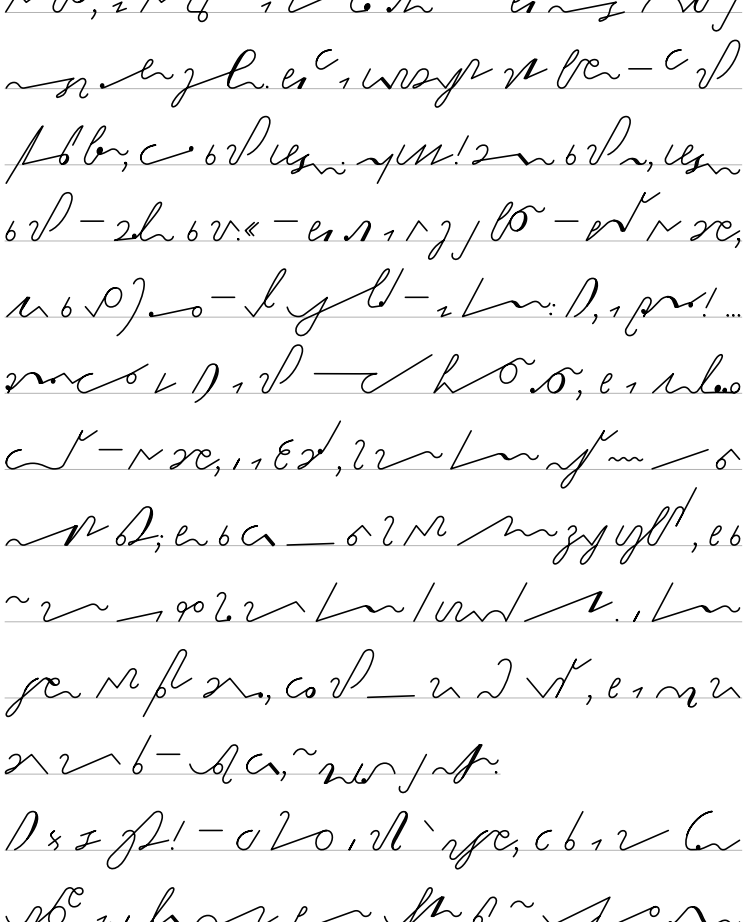


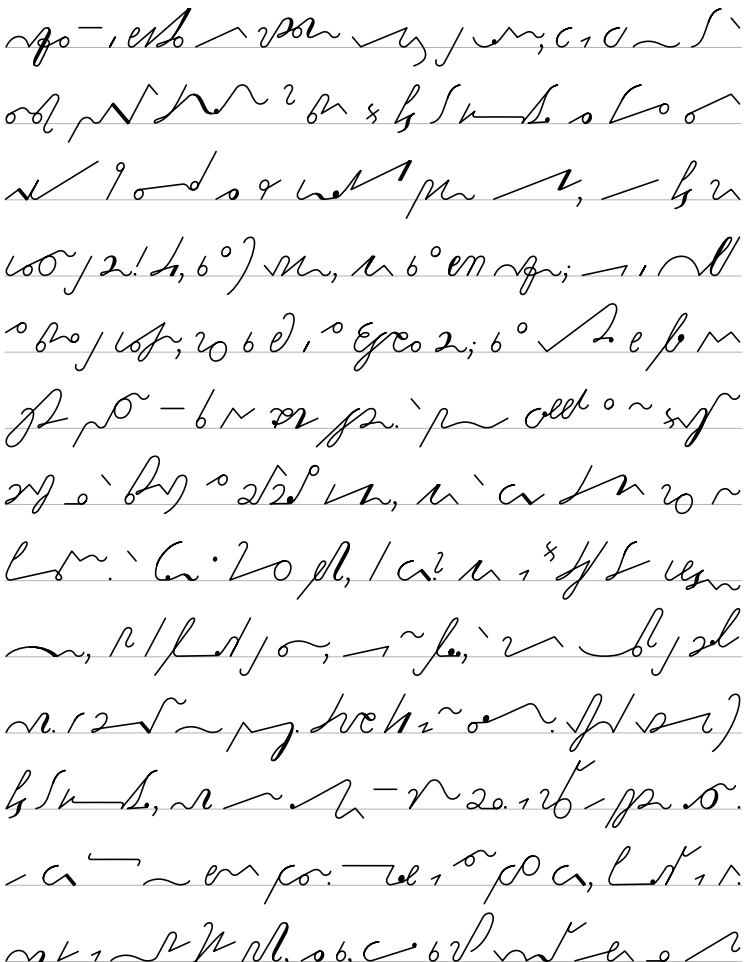


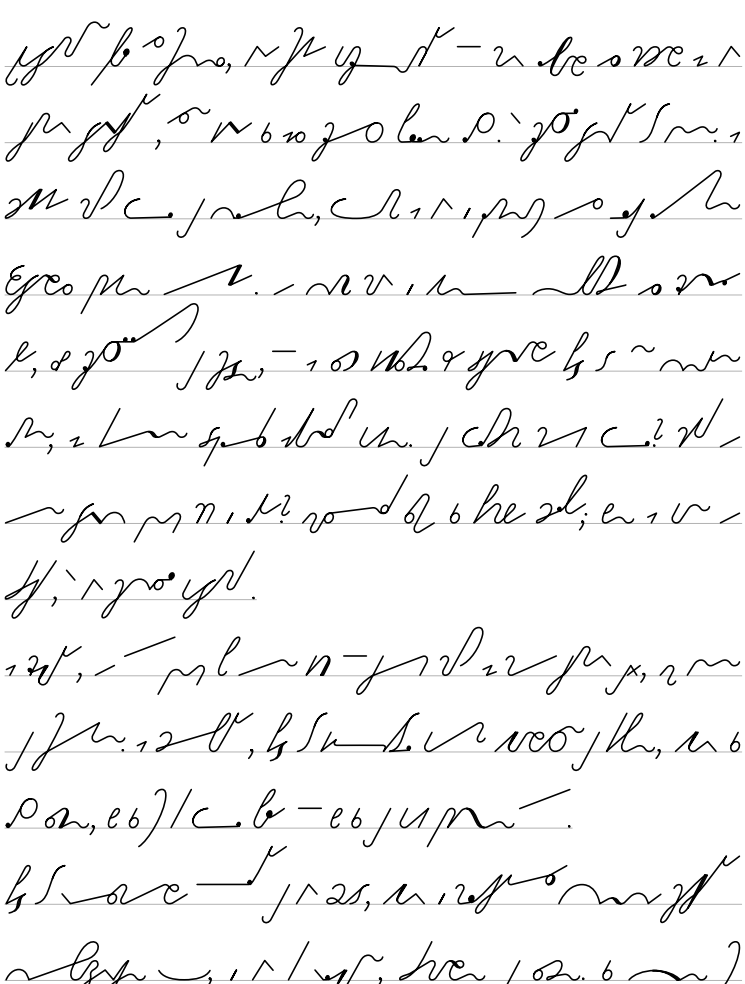


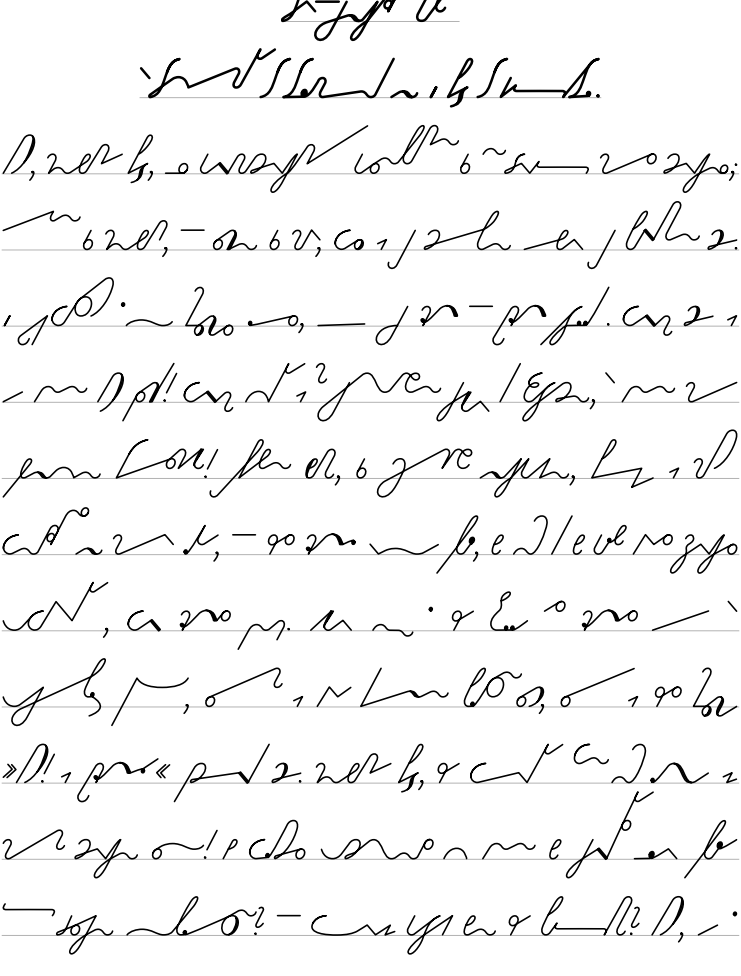


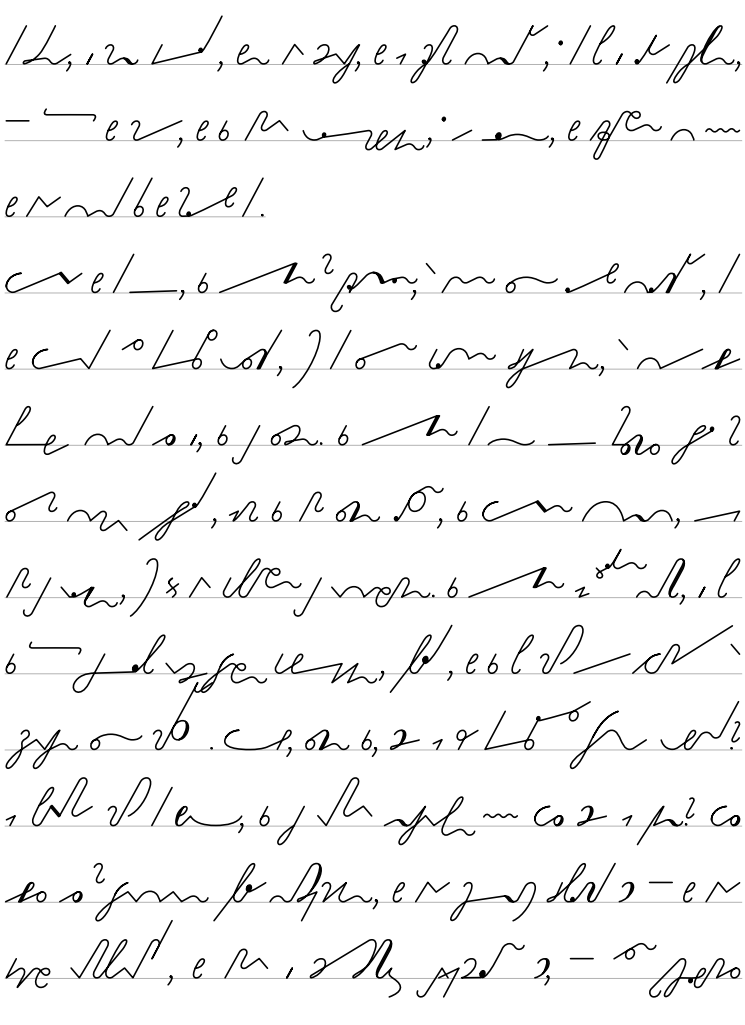


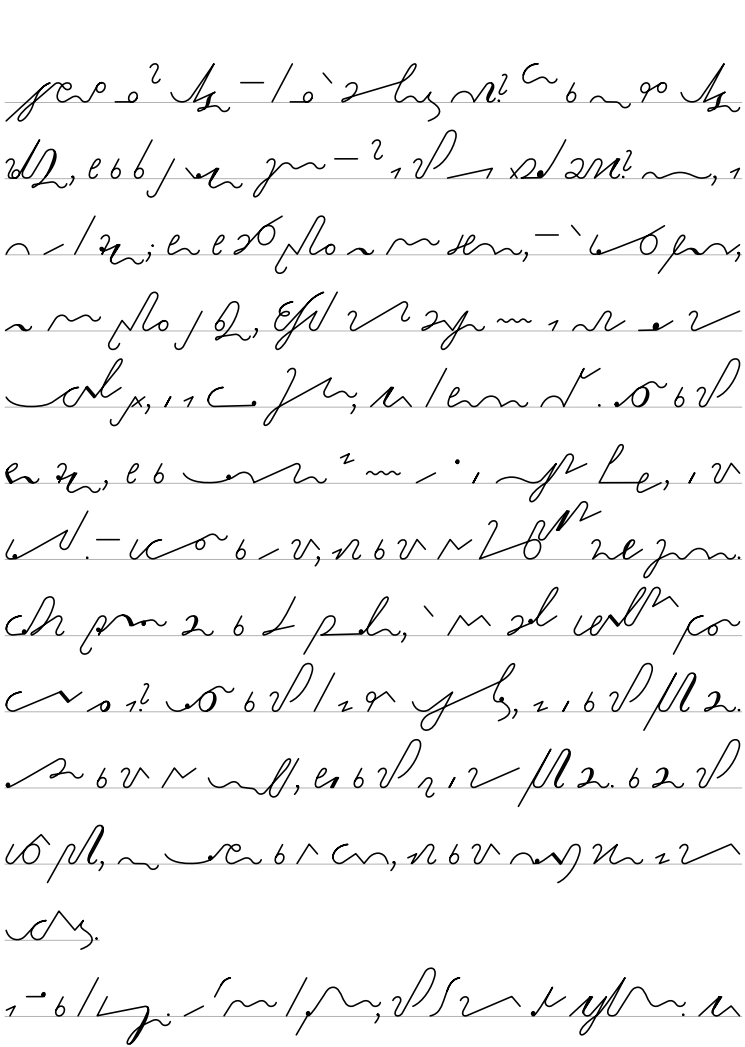


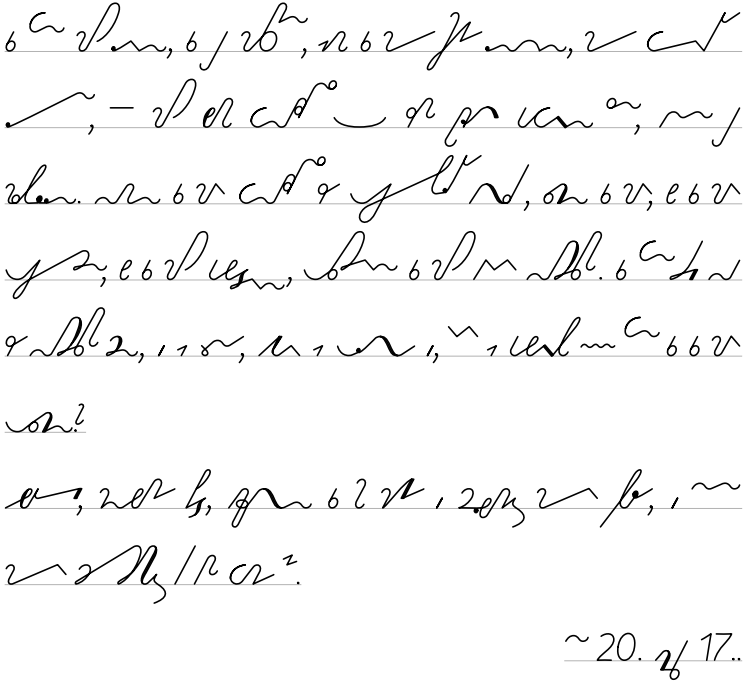




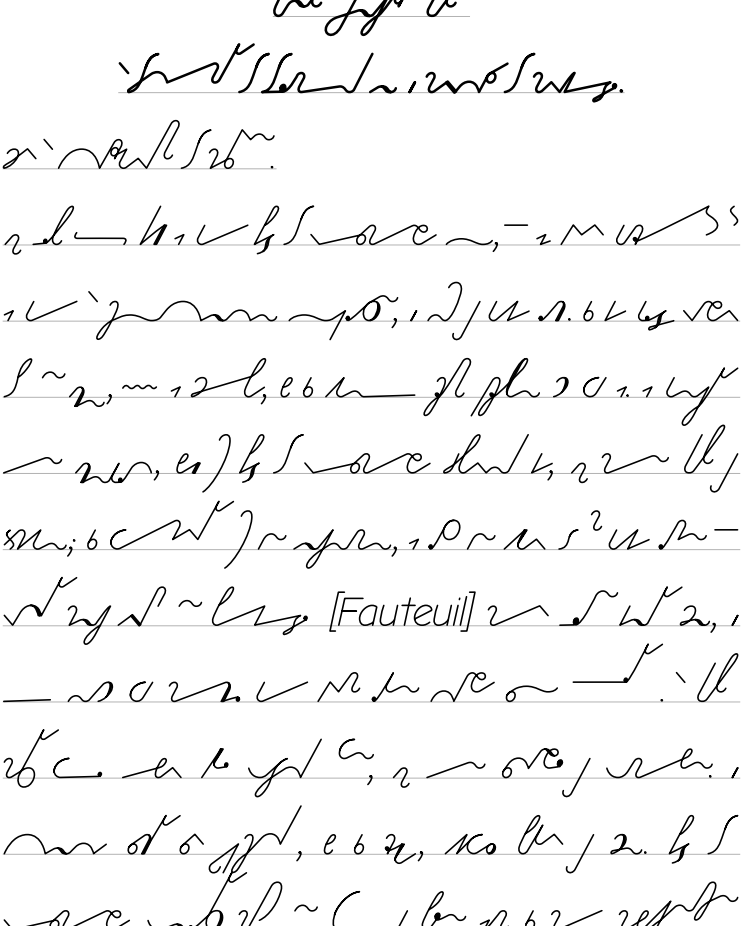




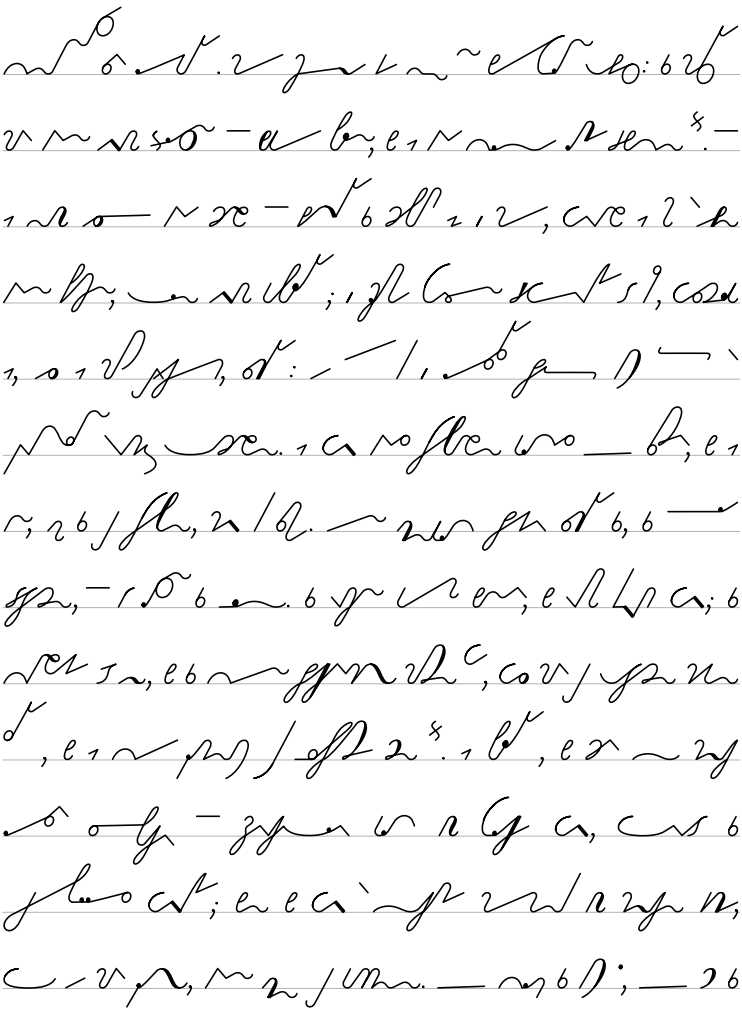


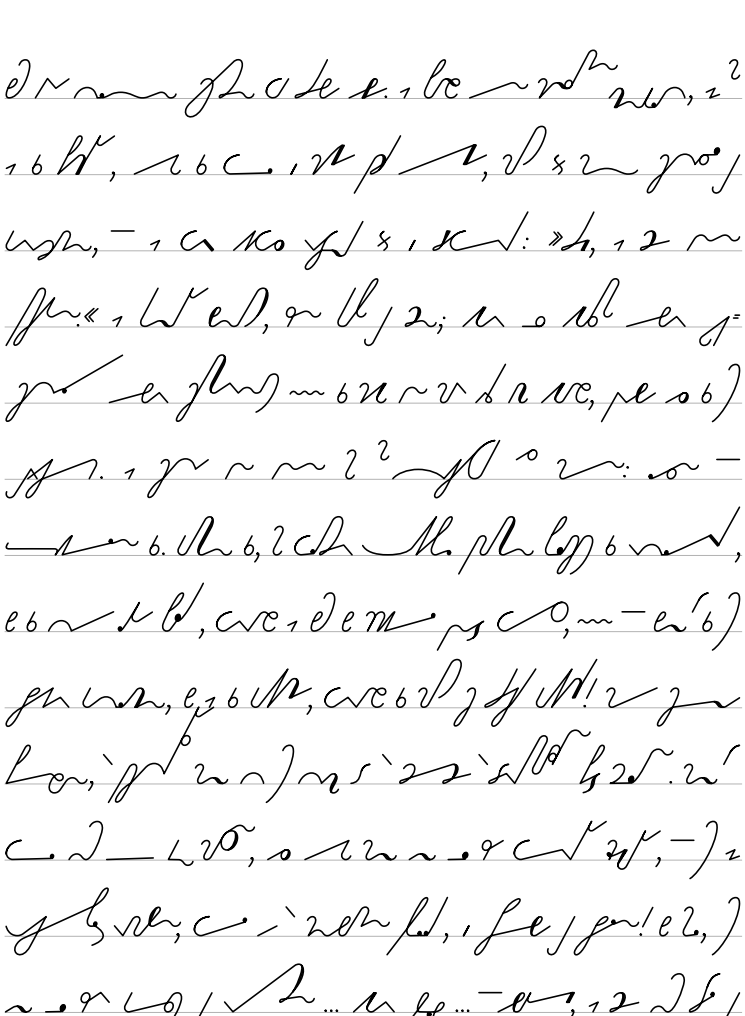


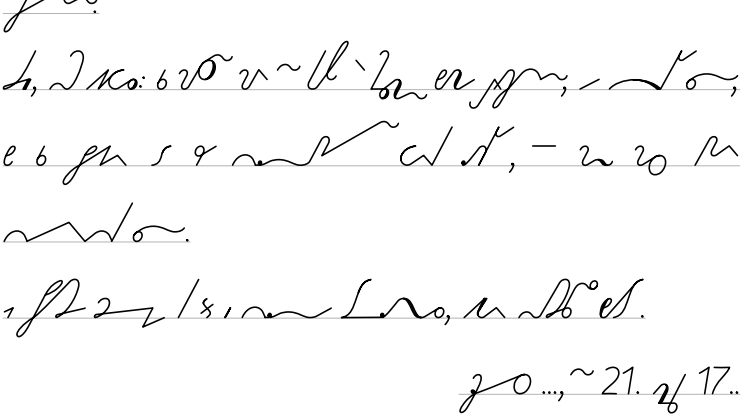
~20. 2/ 17..

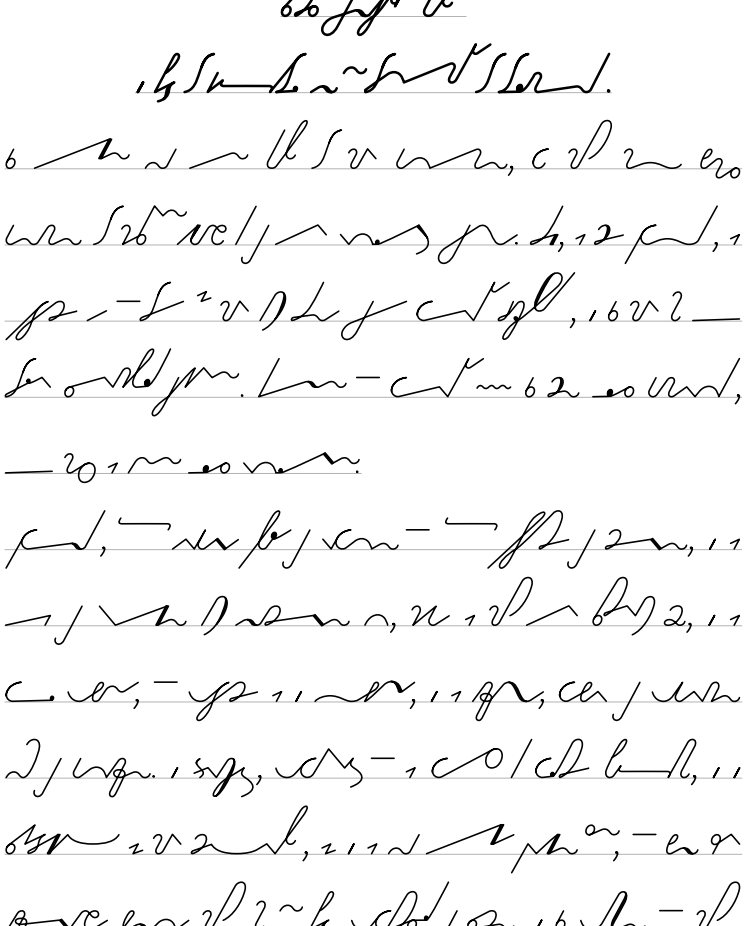


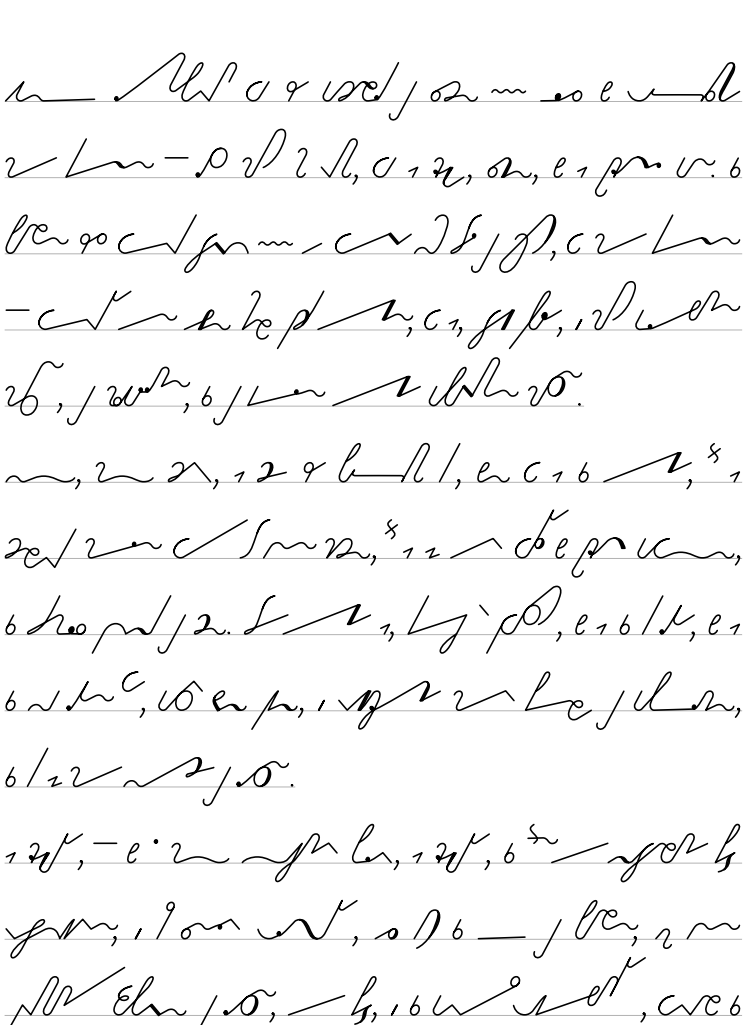
[Fauteuil]

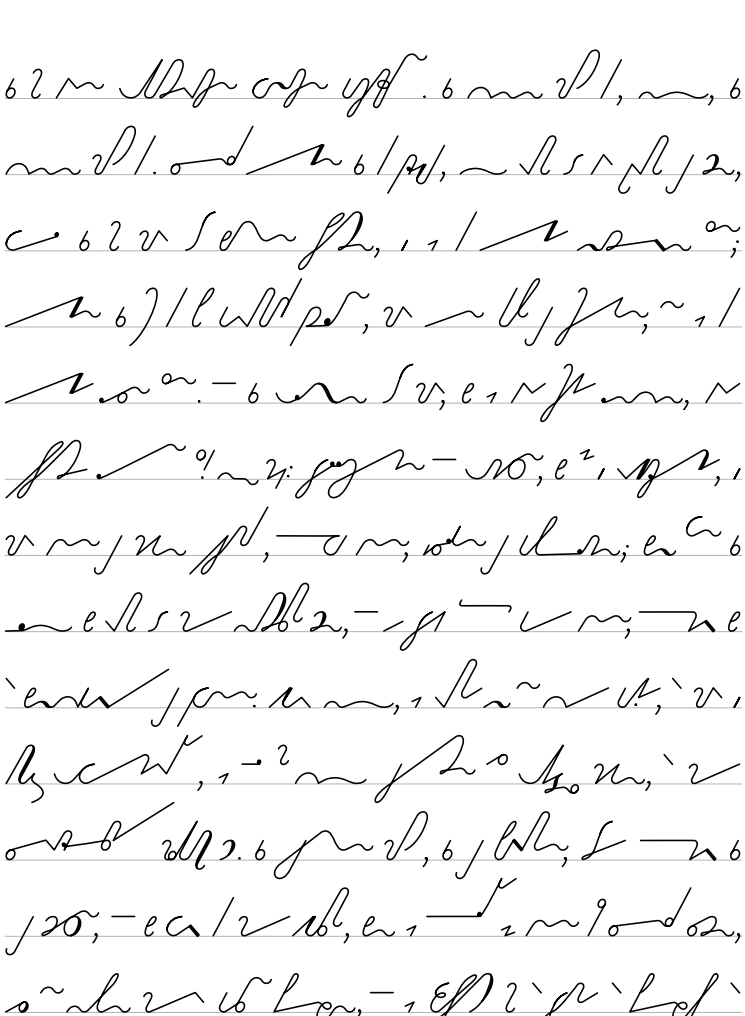


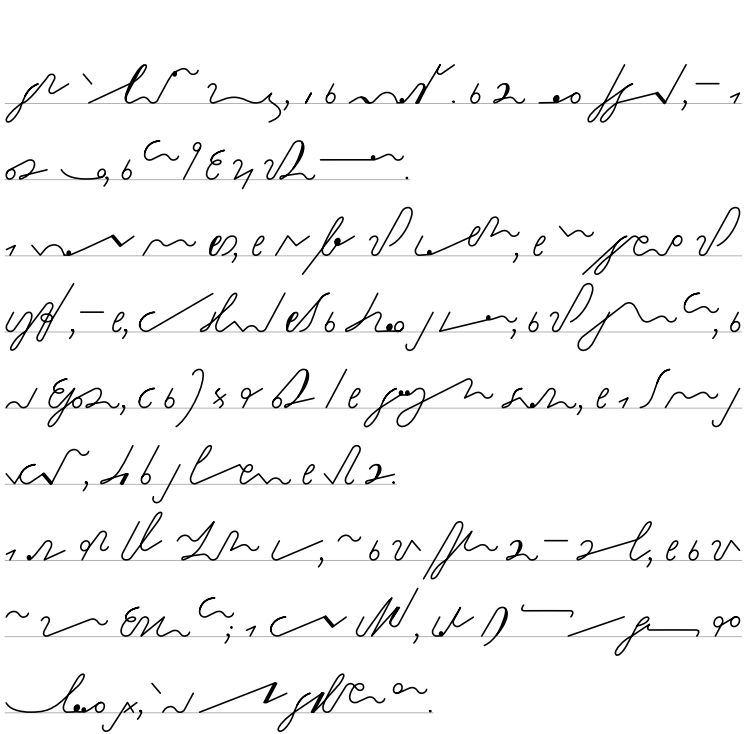




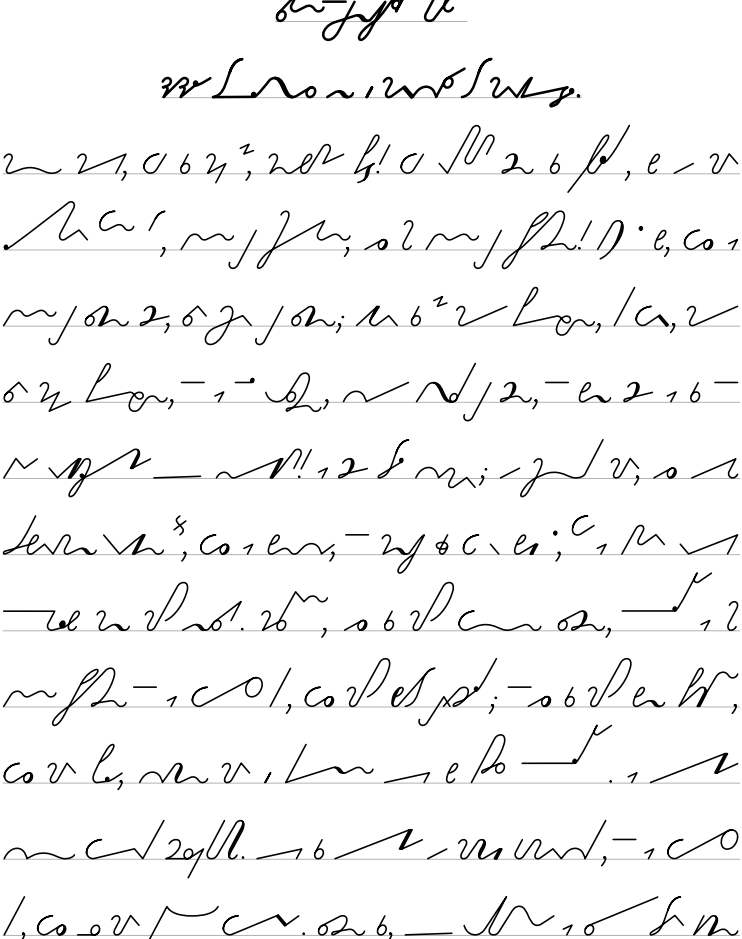


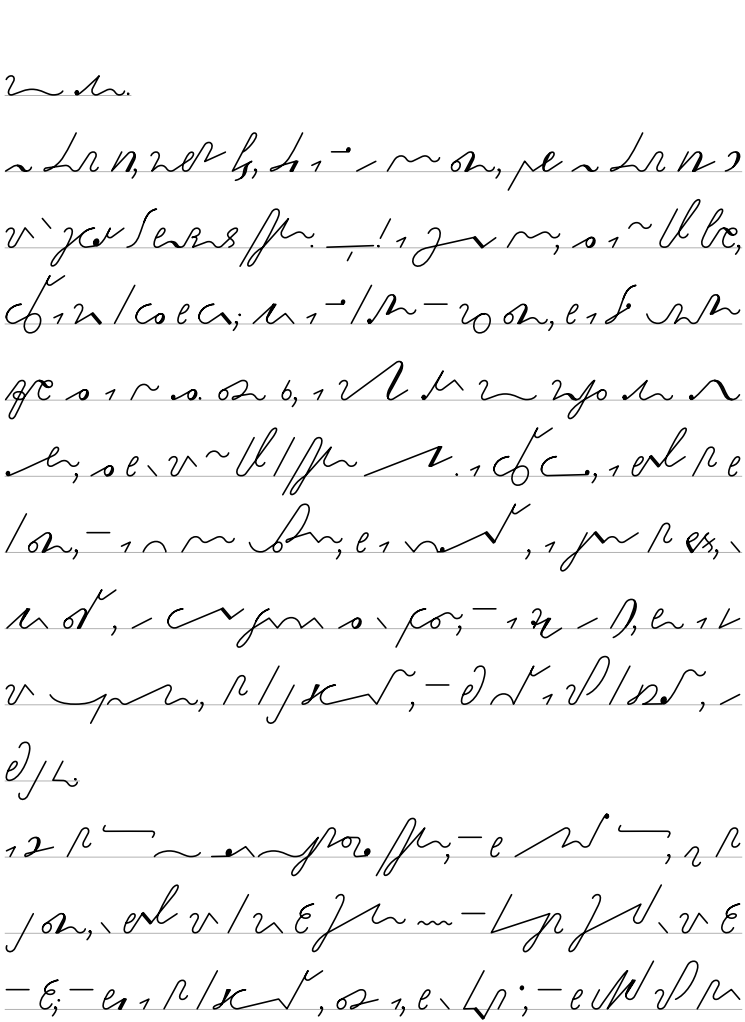


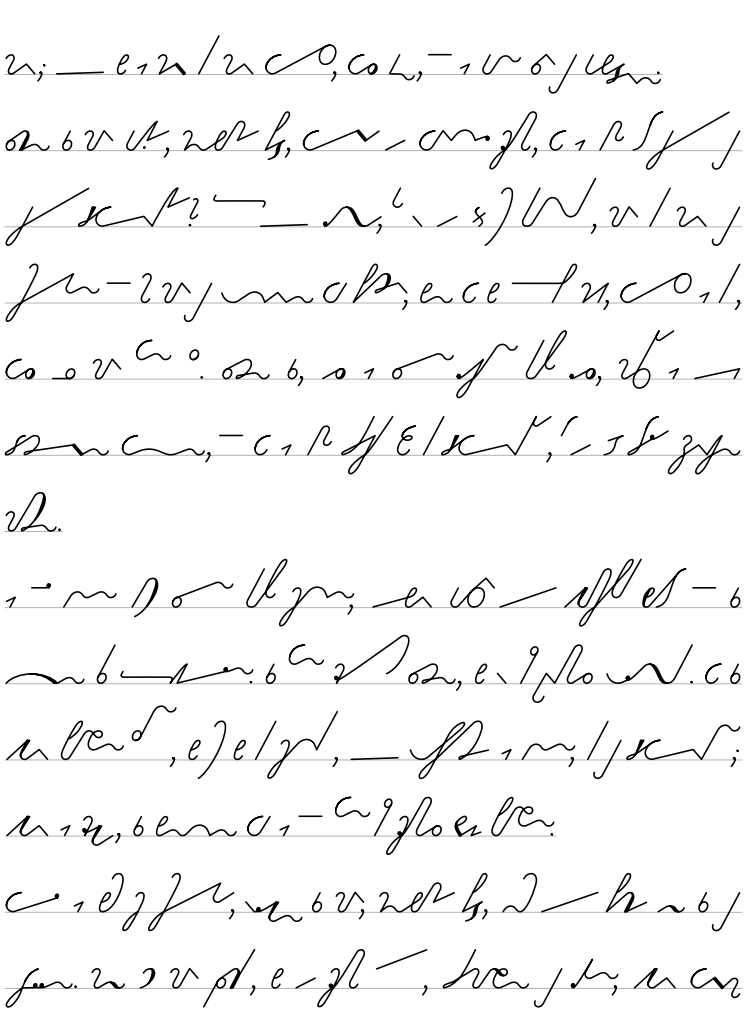


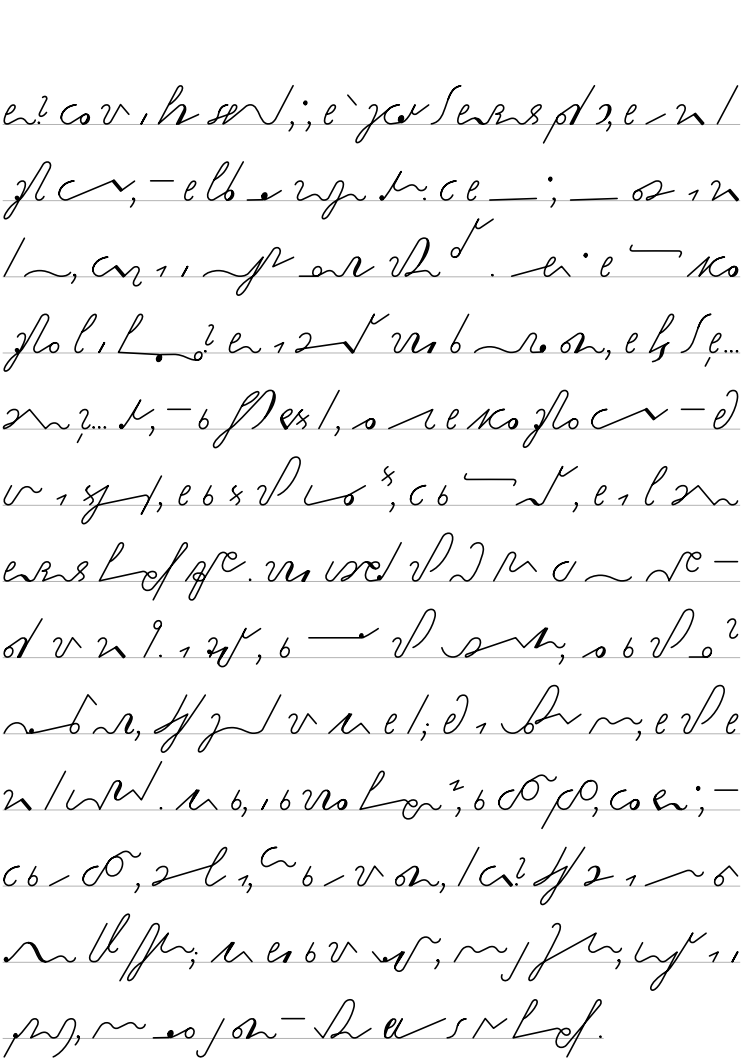


~ 21. 4 17..

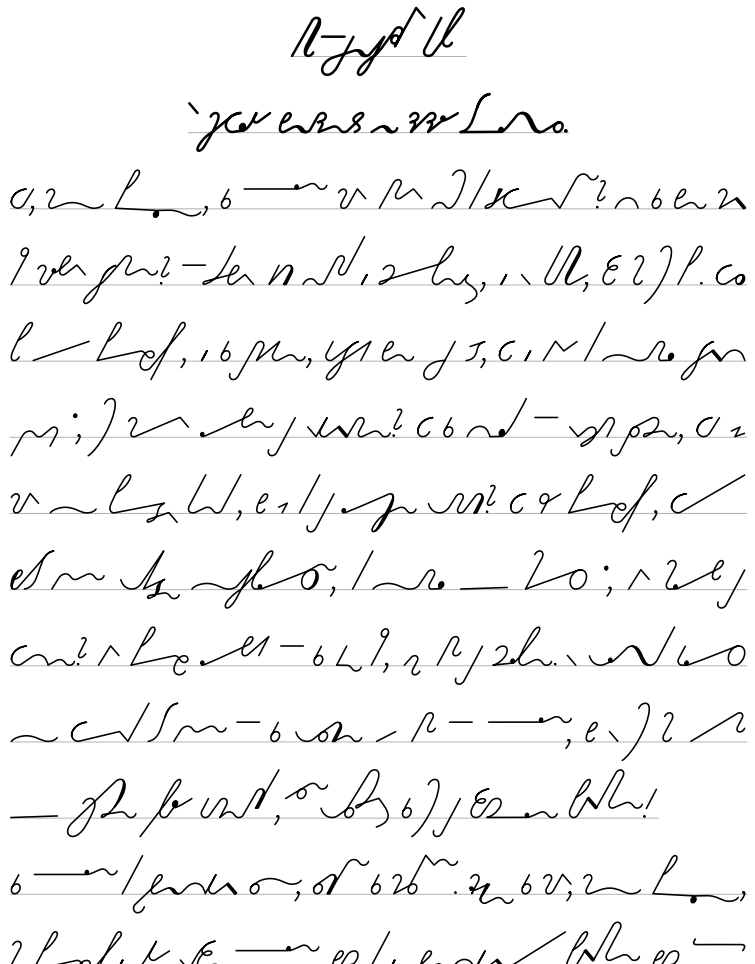


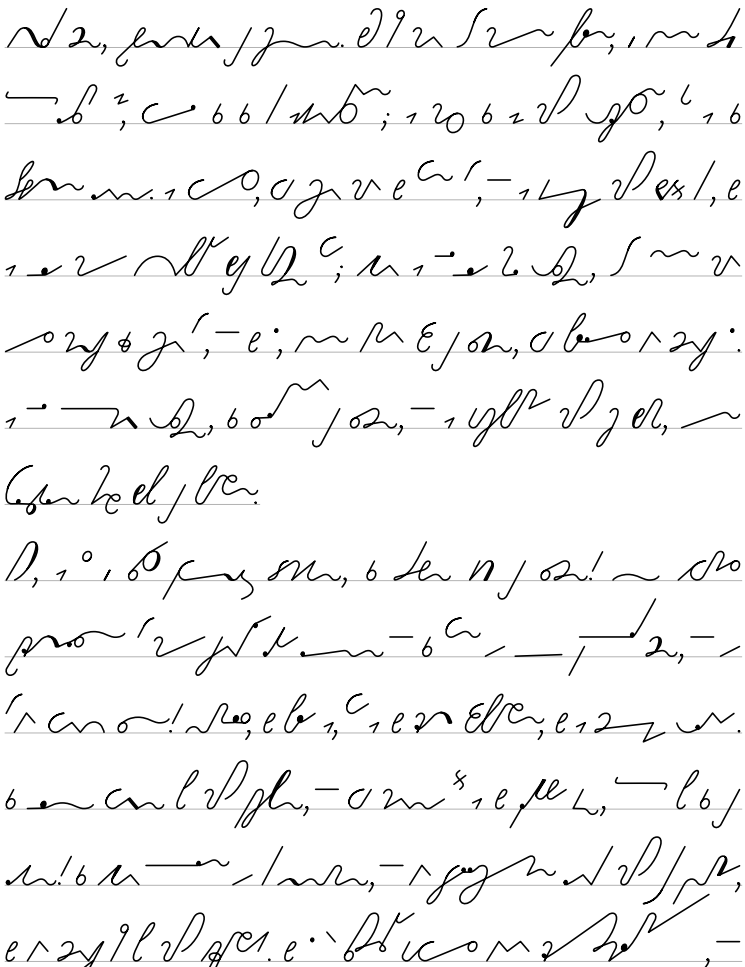


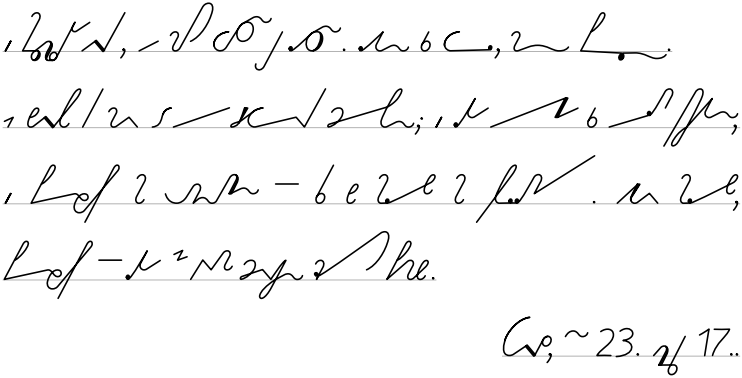


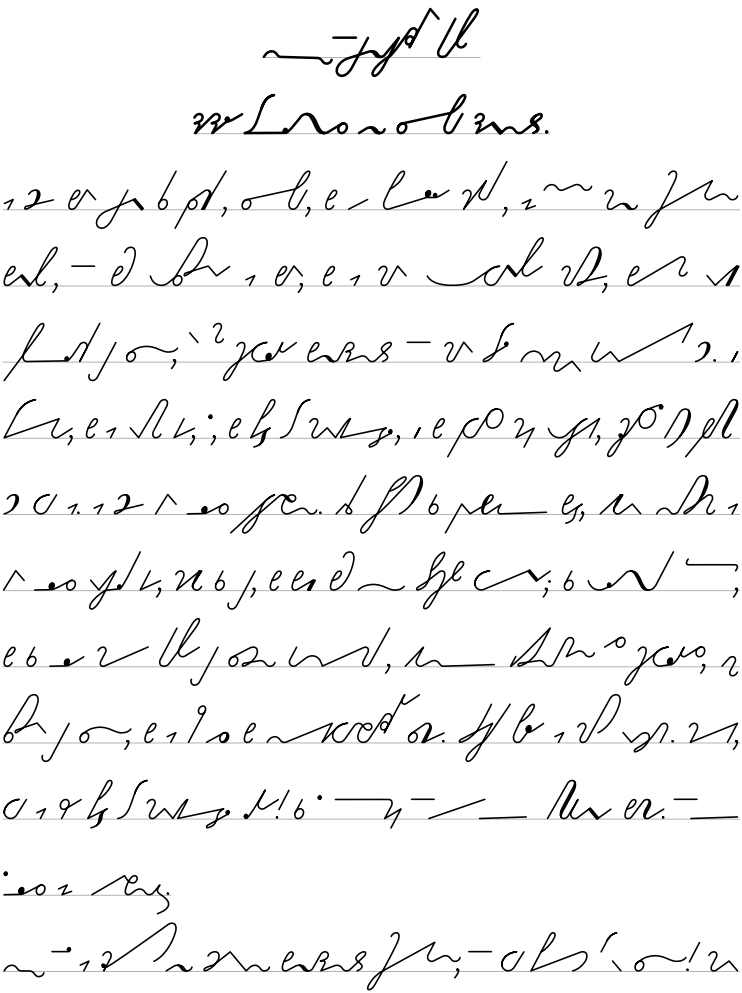


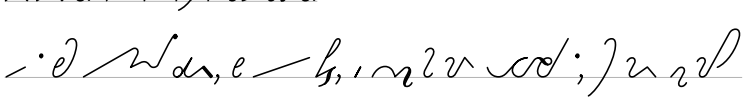
Cv, ~ 23. 6/ 17..

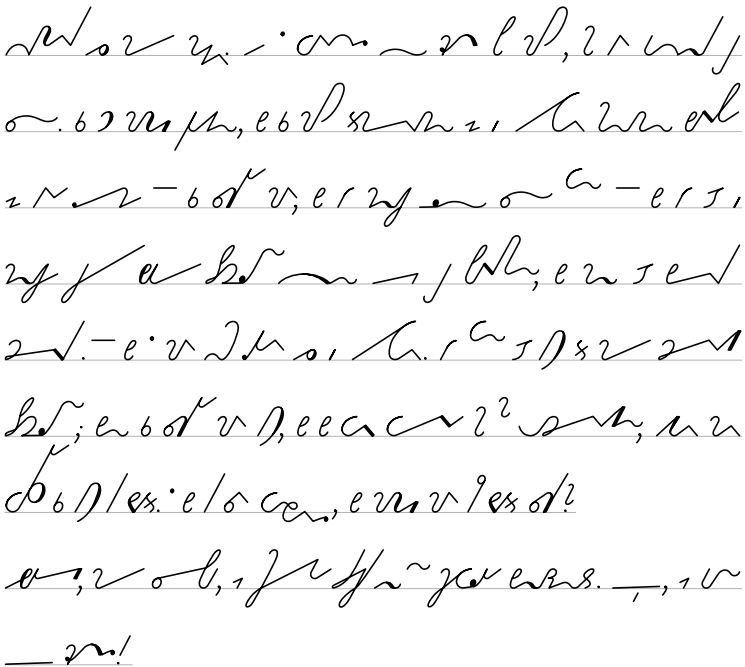




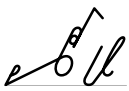


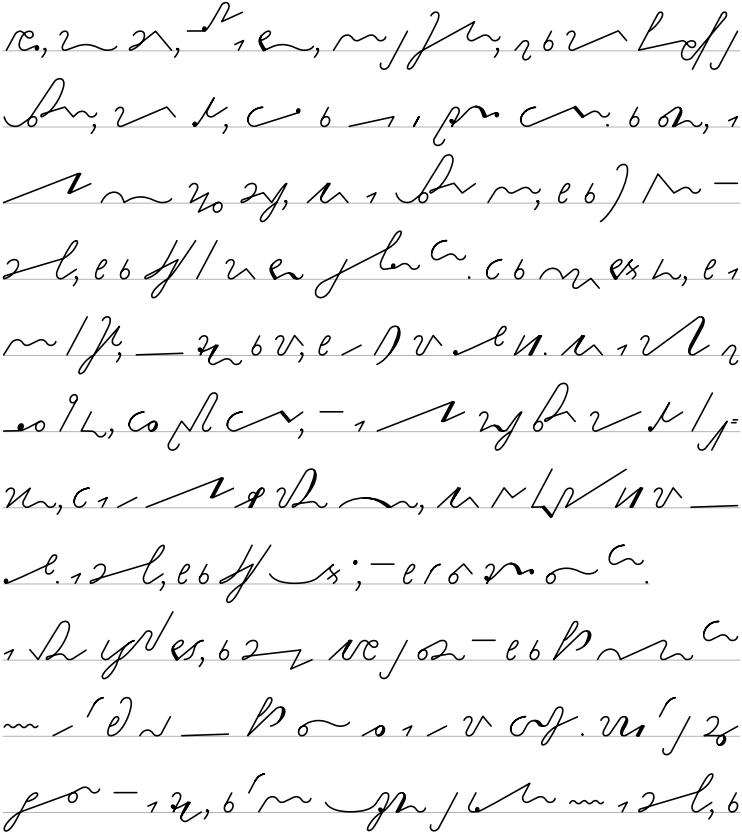


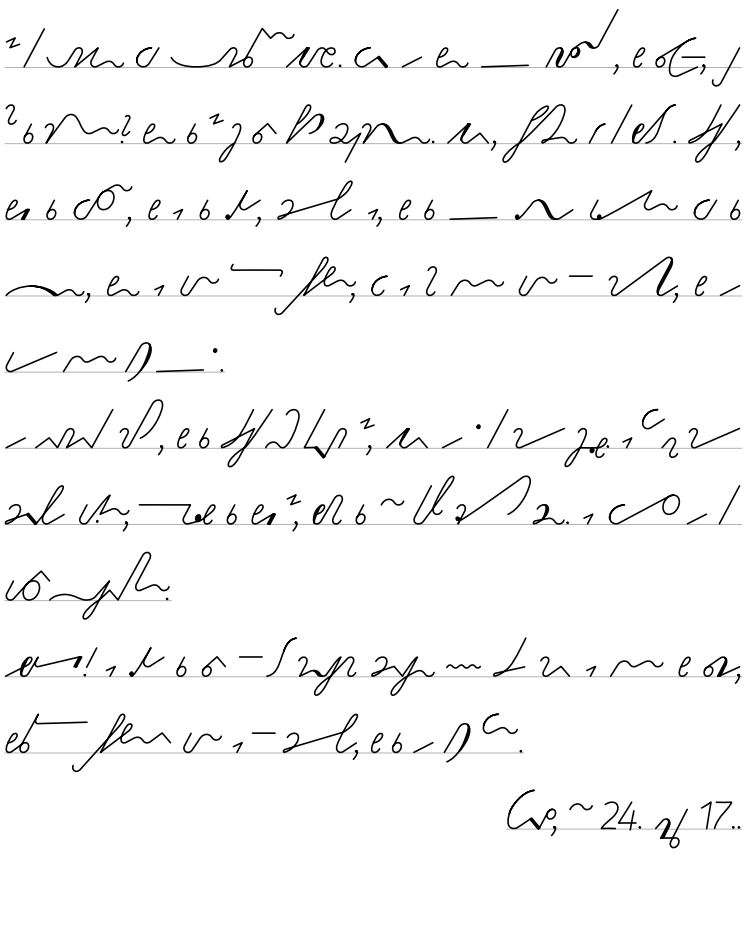


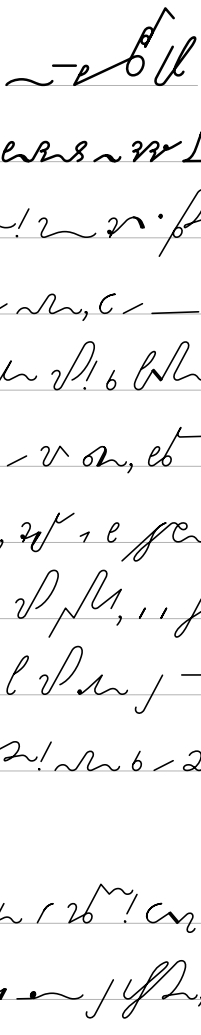


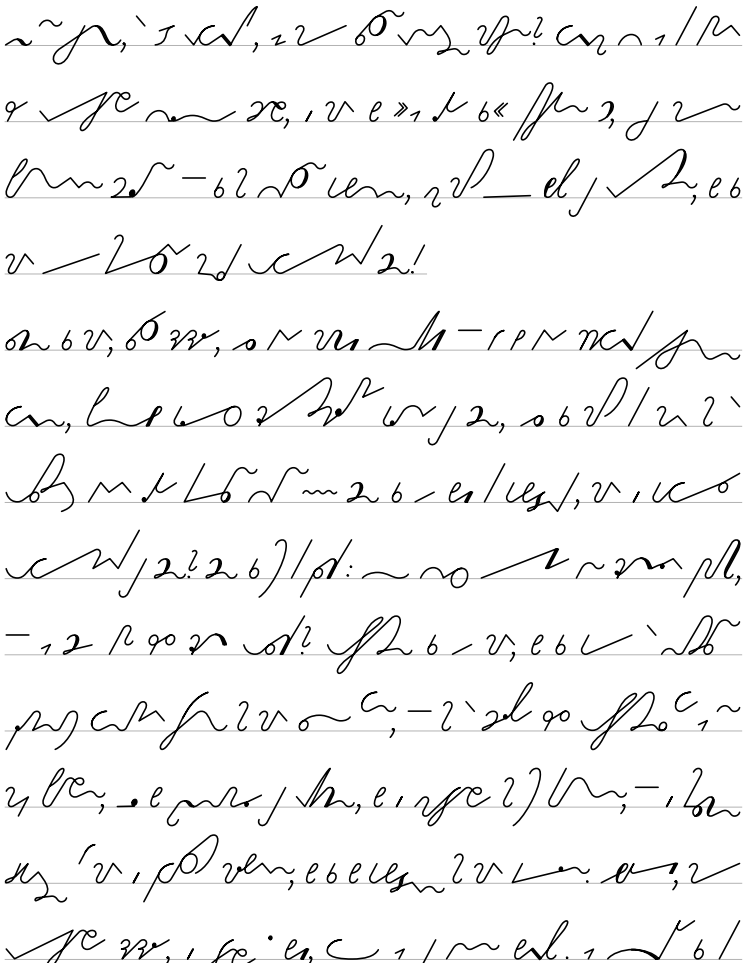
141

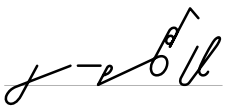


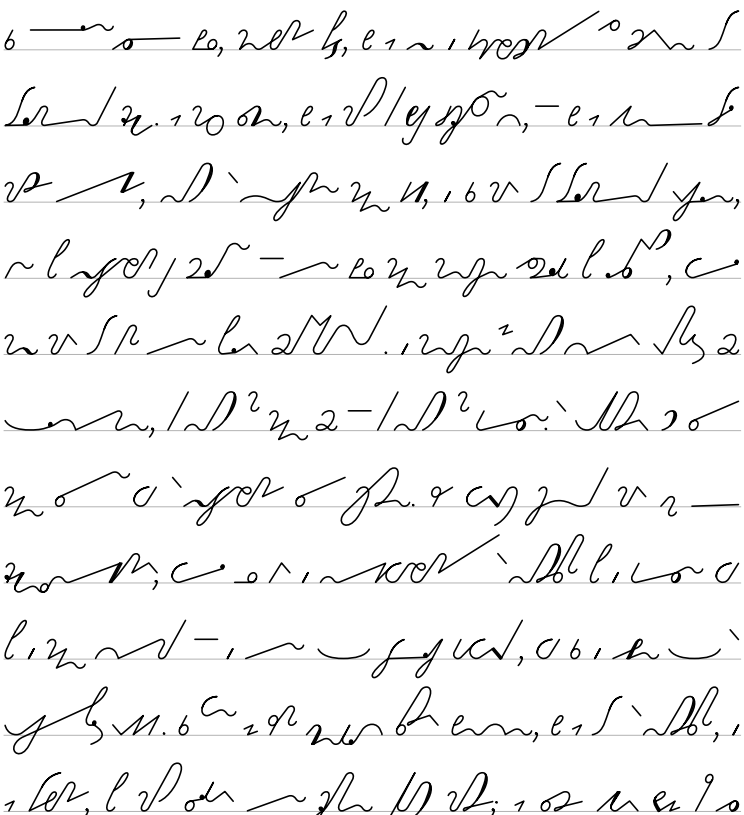


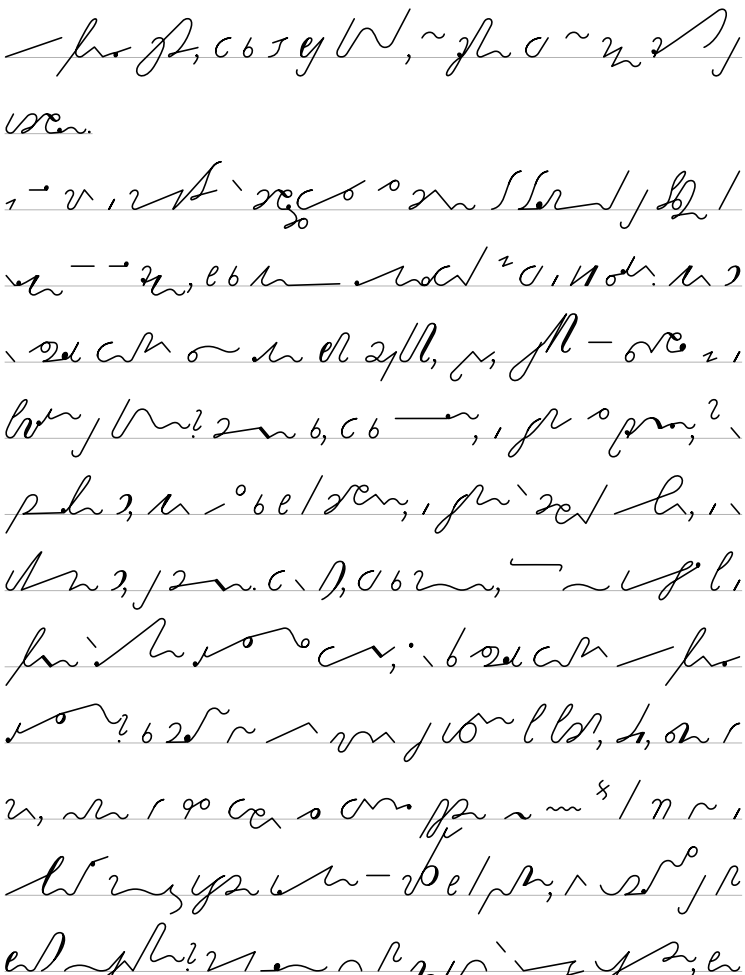


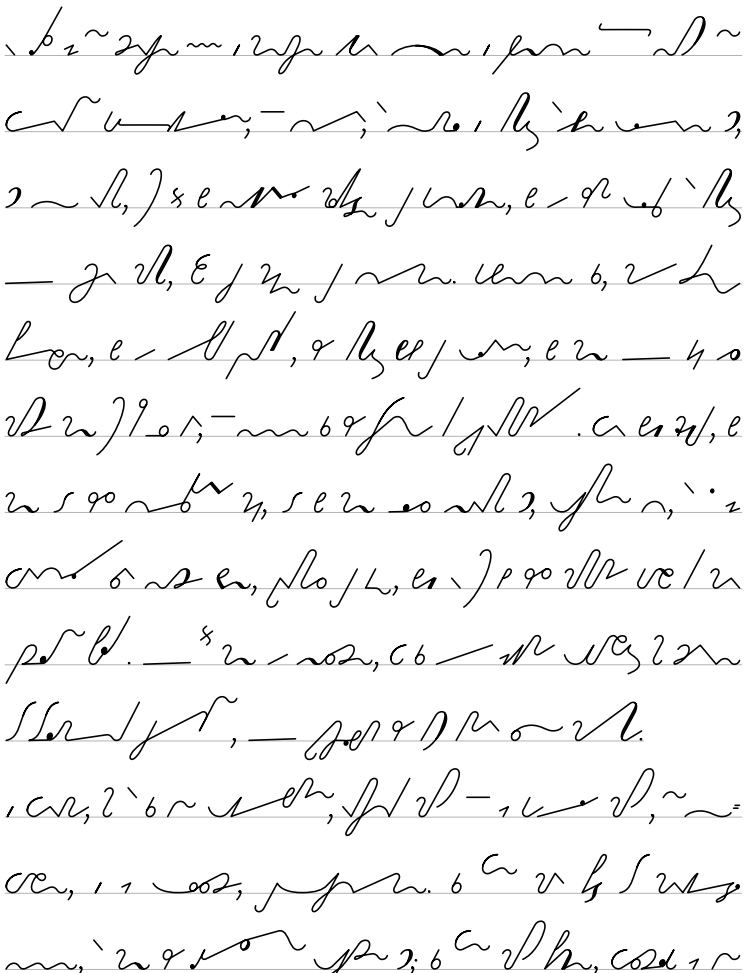


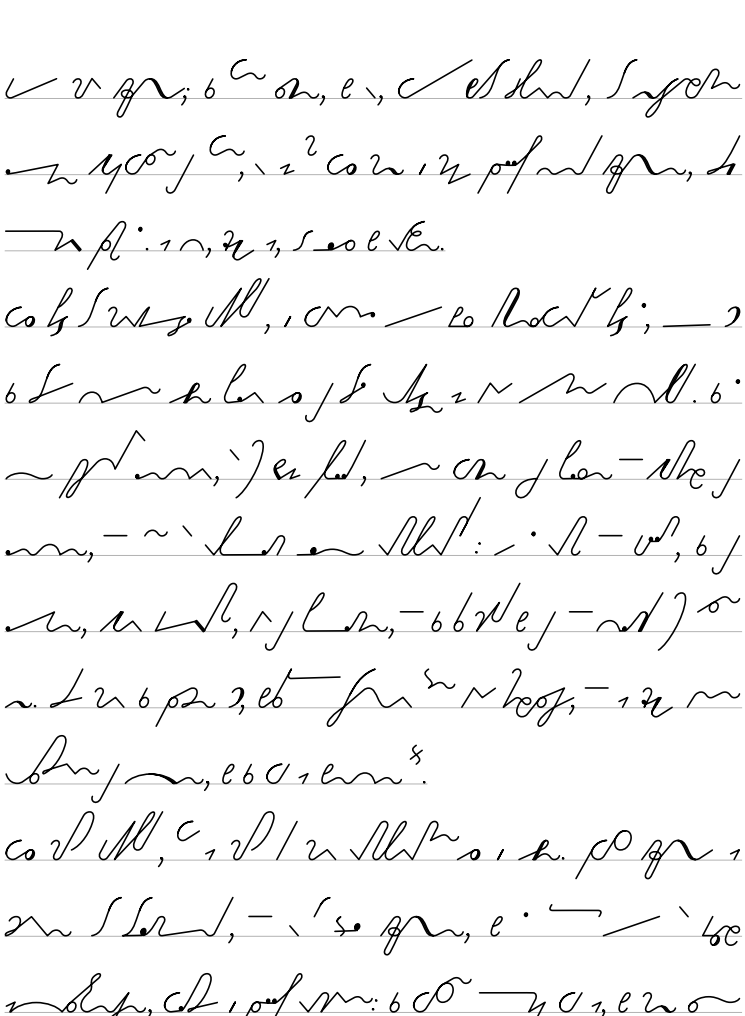


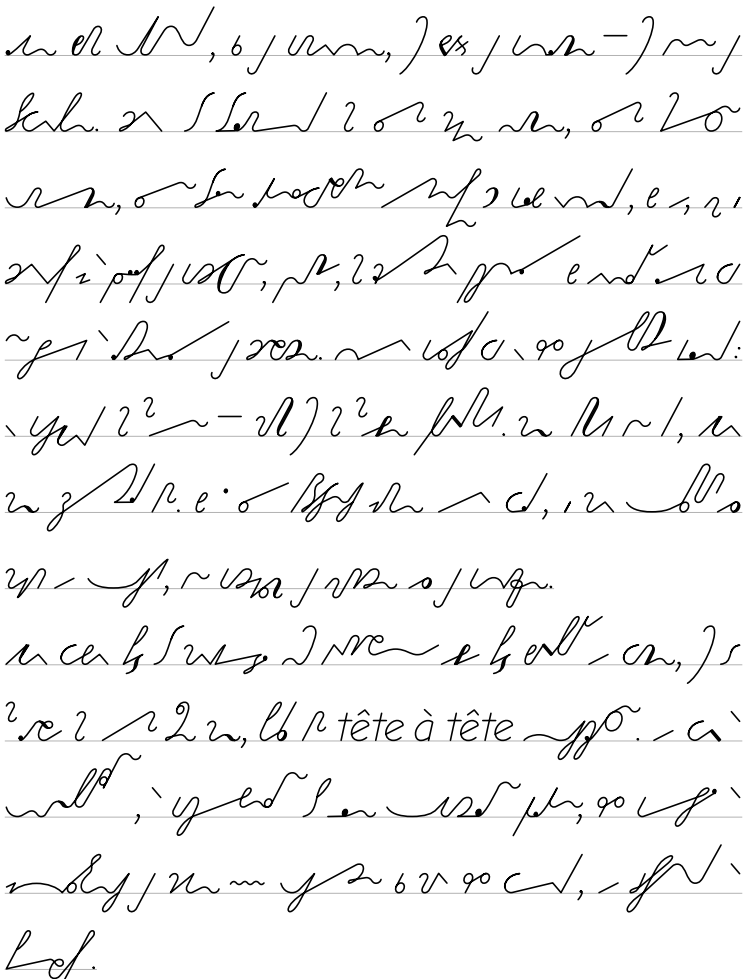




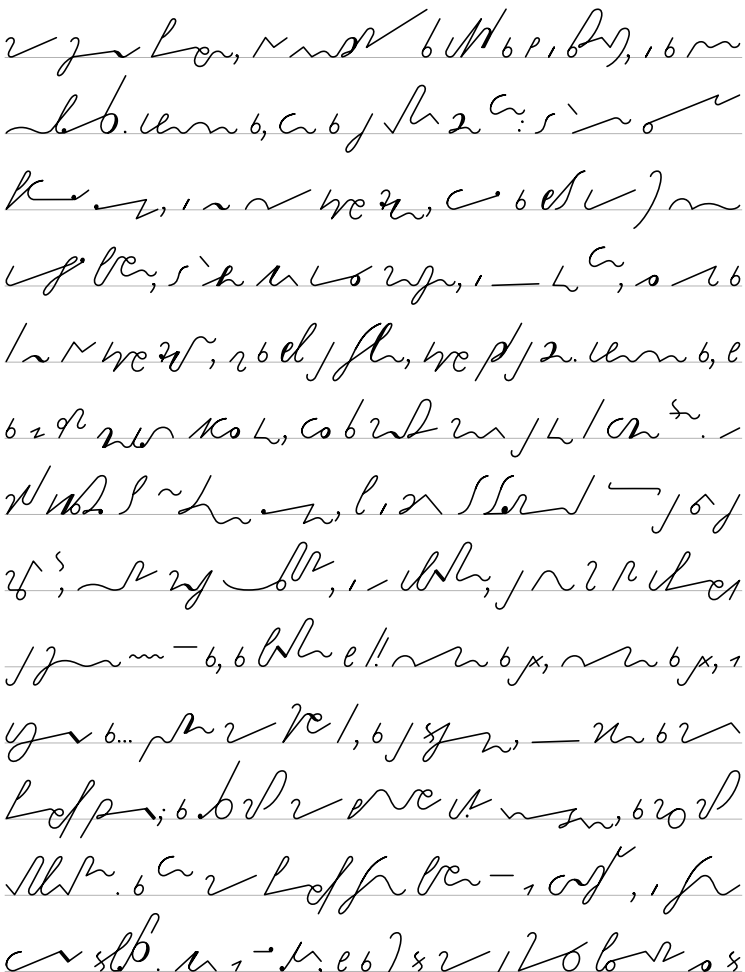


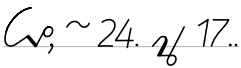


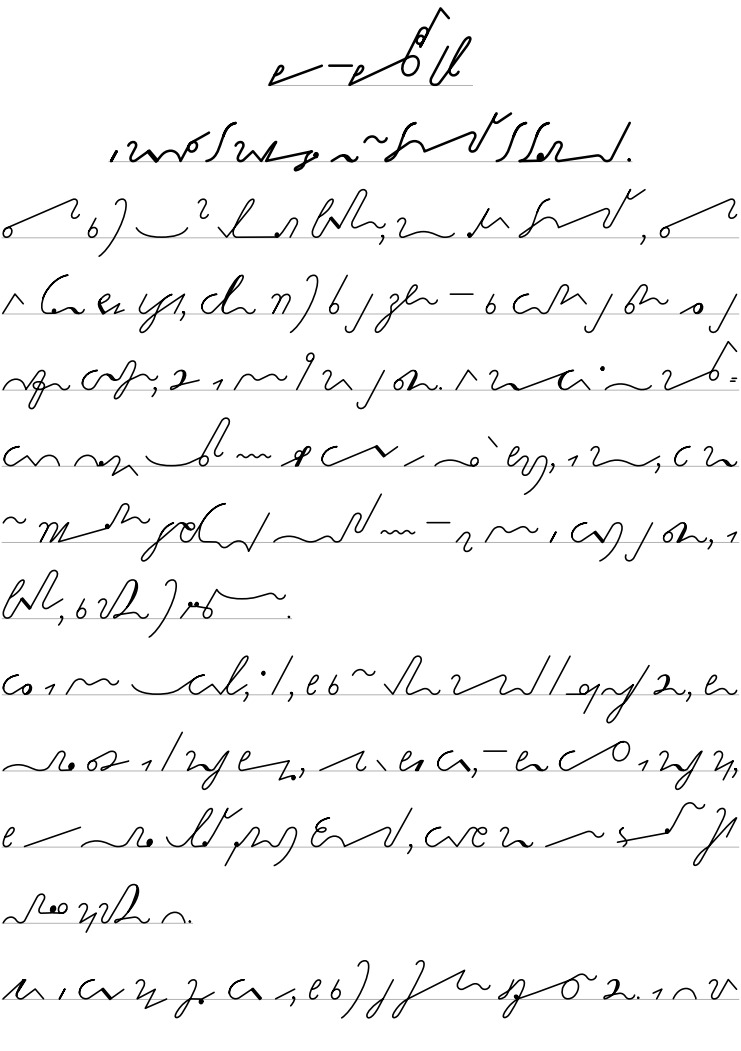


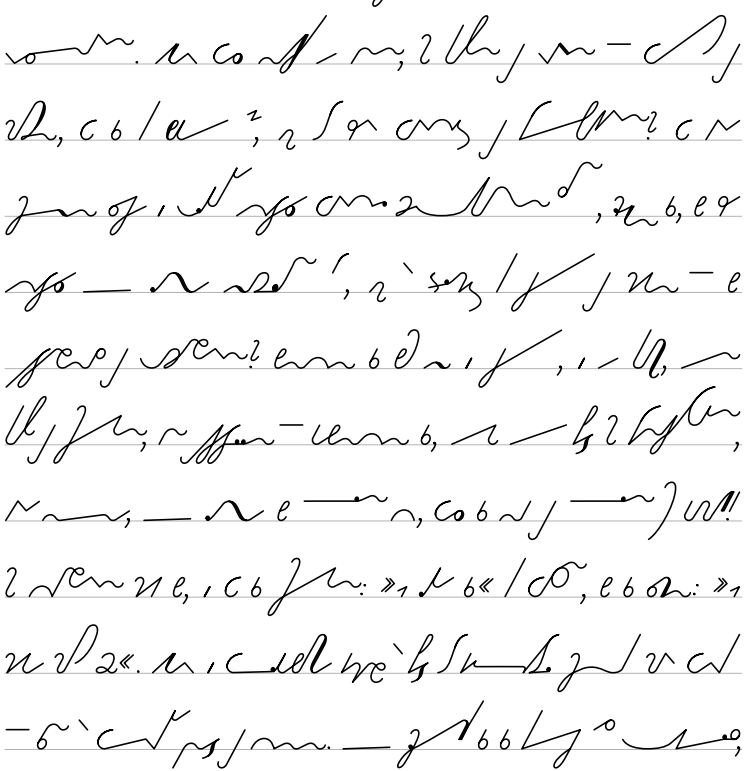


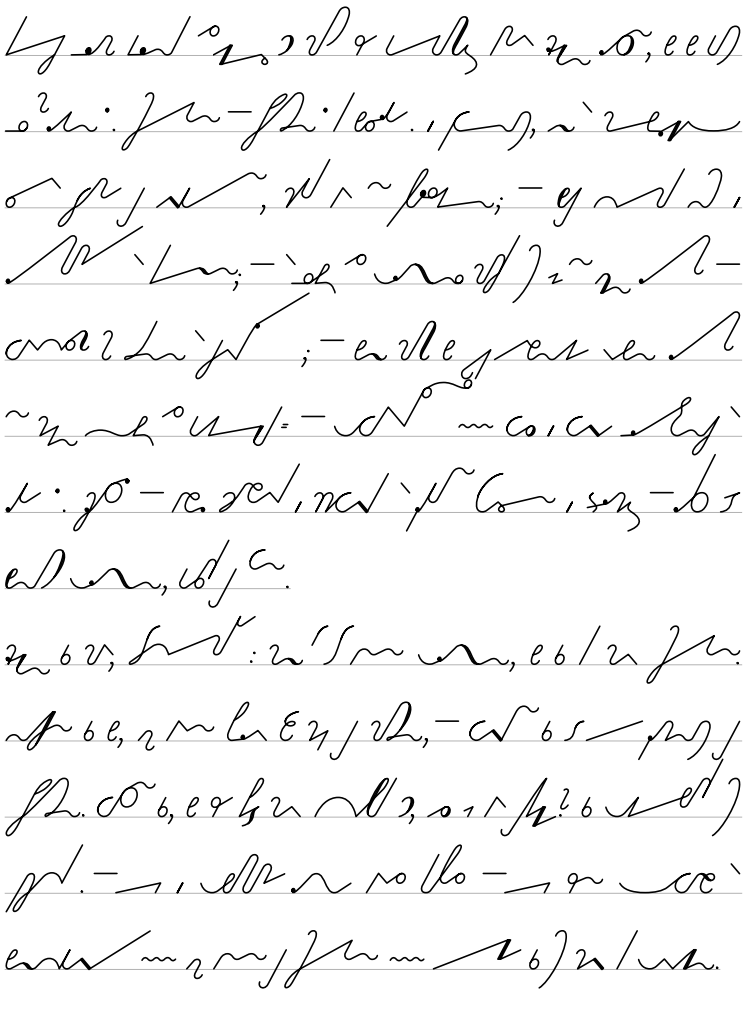
tête à tête

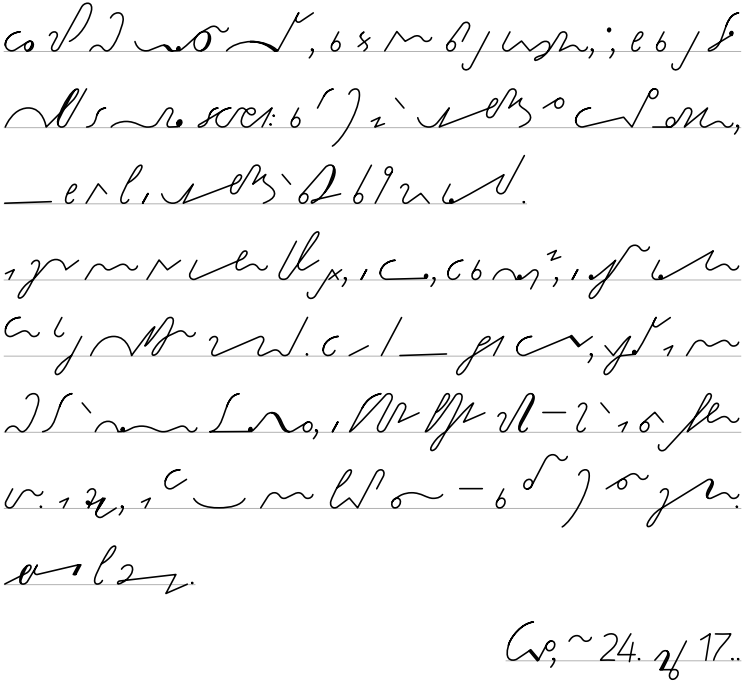


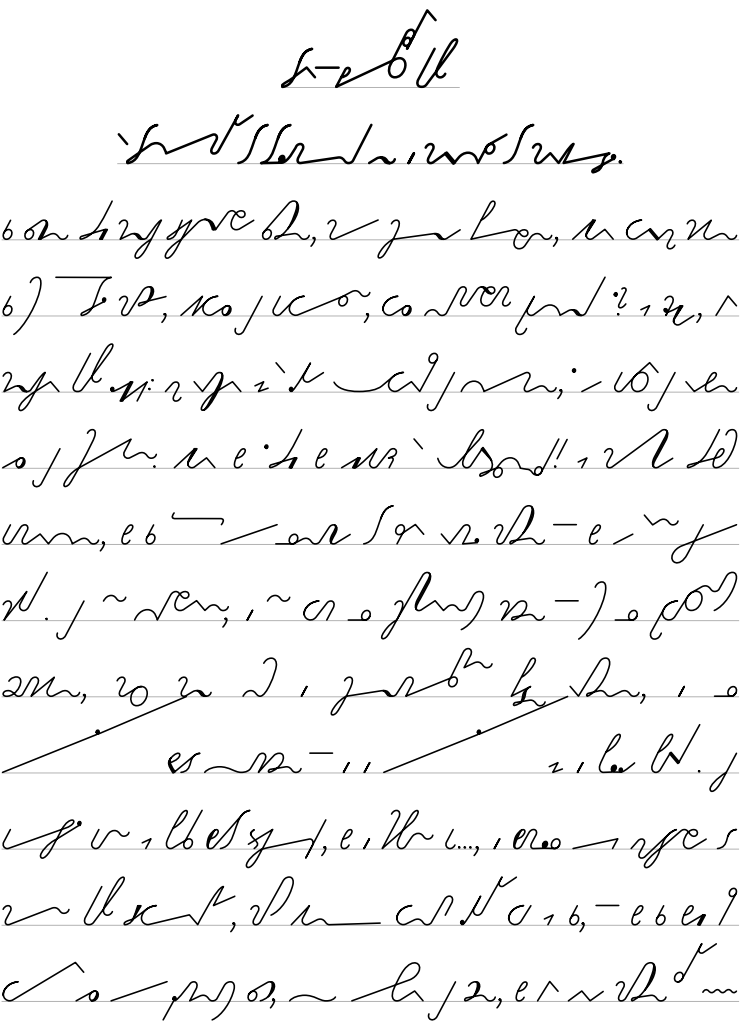


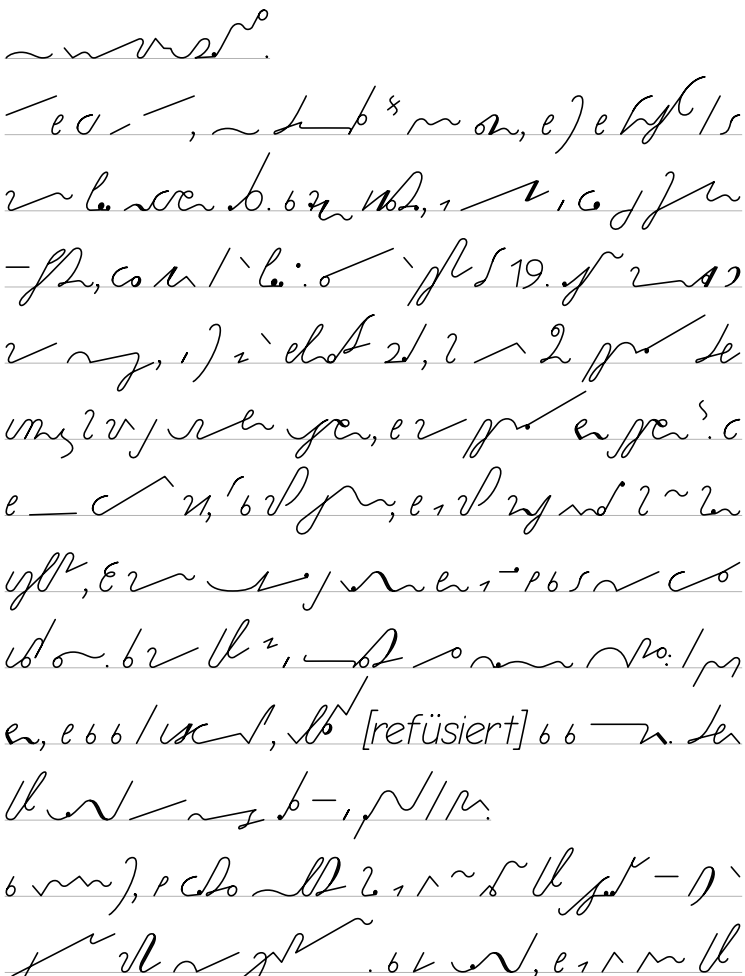


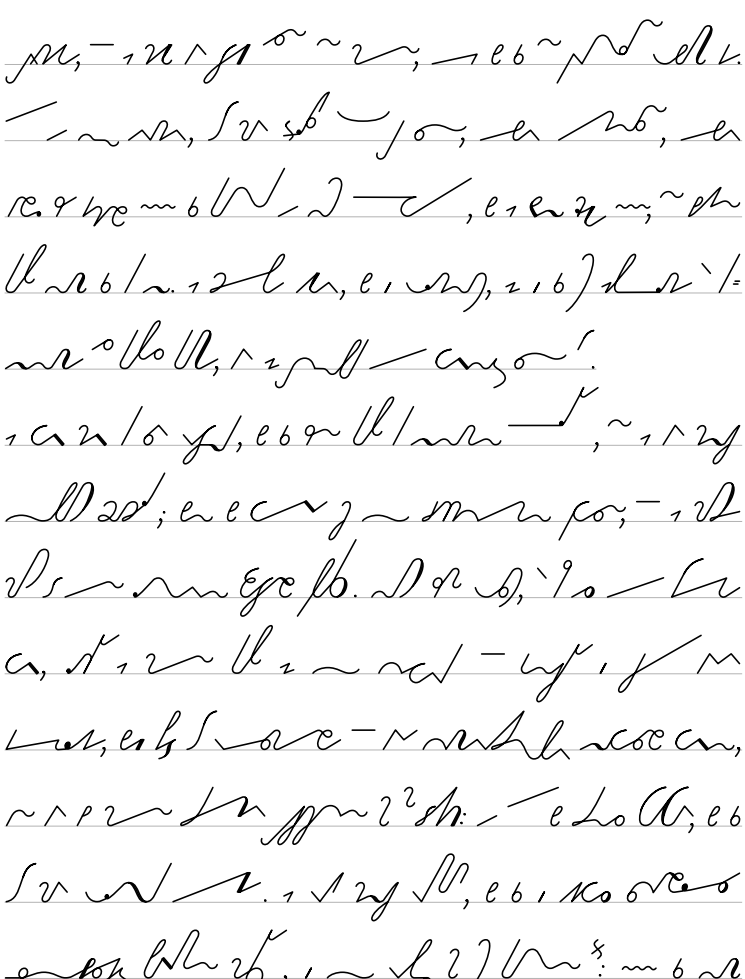


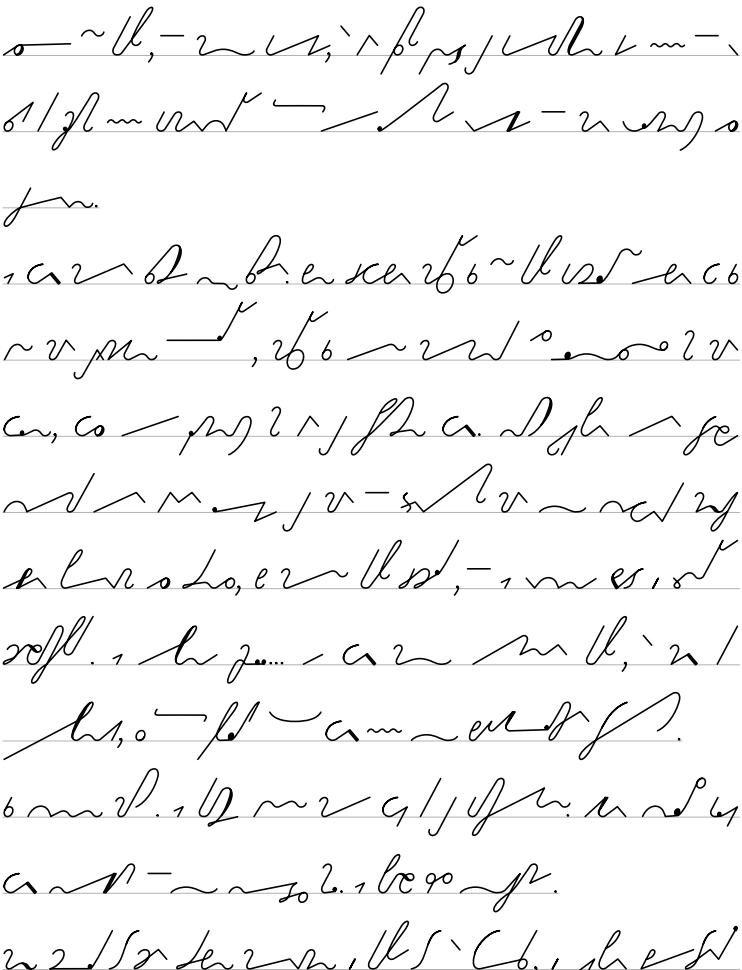


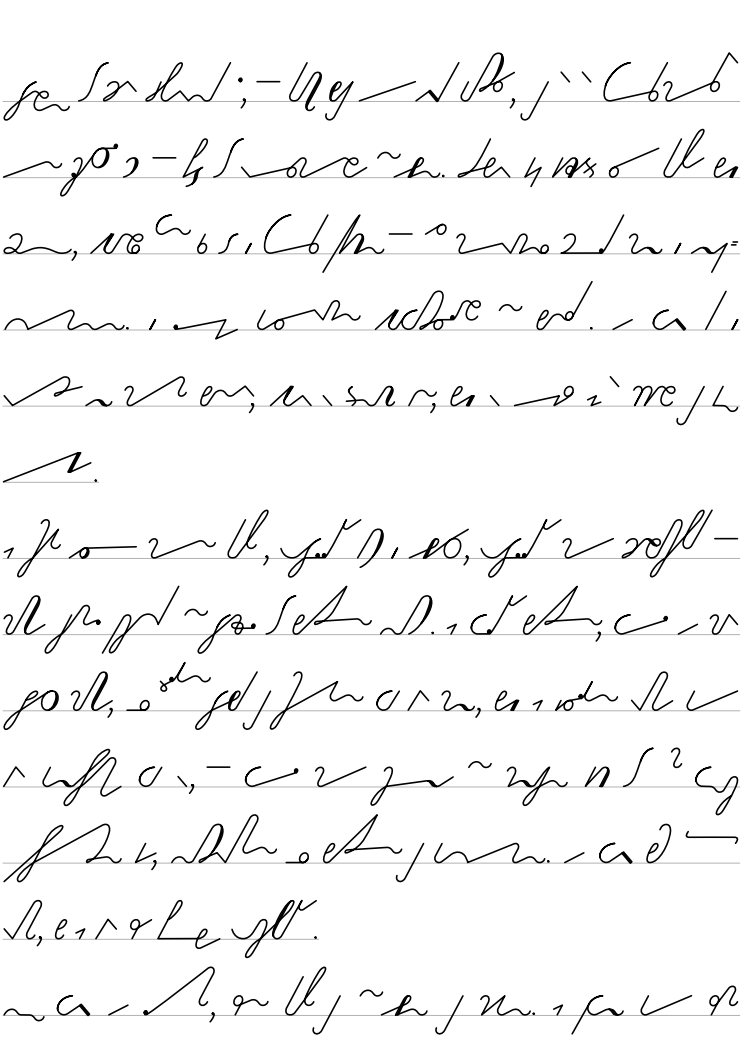


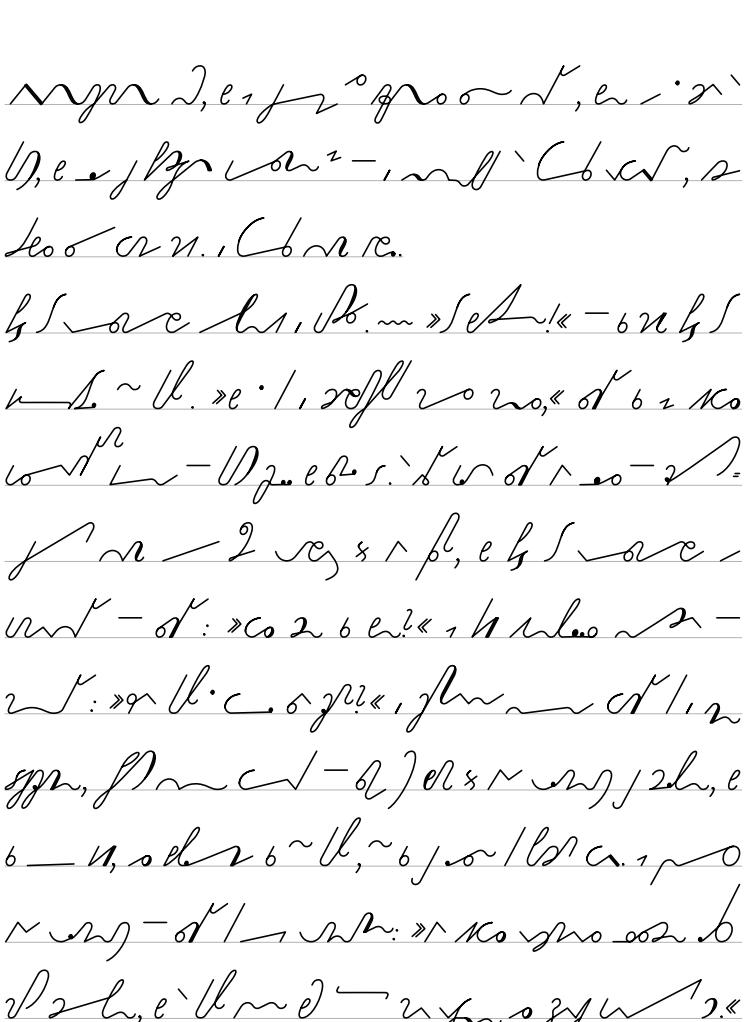


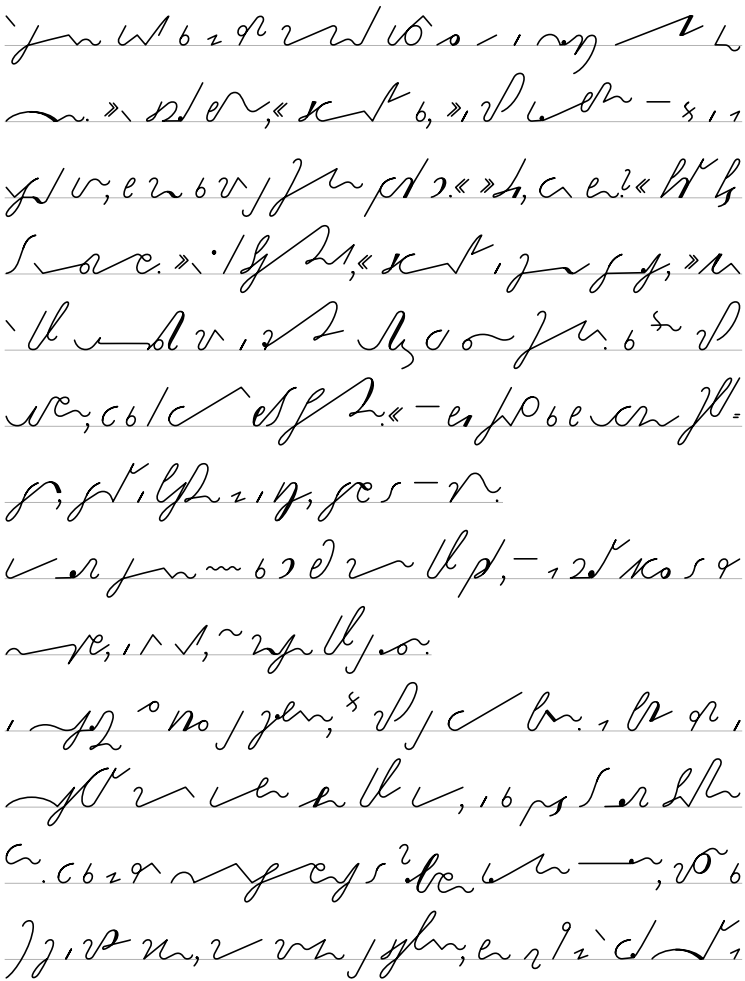


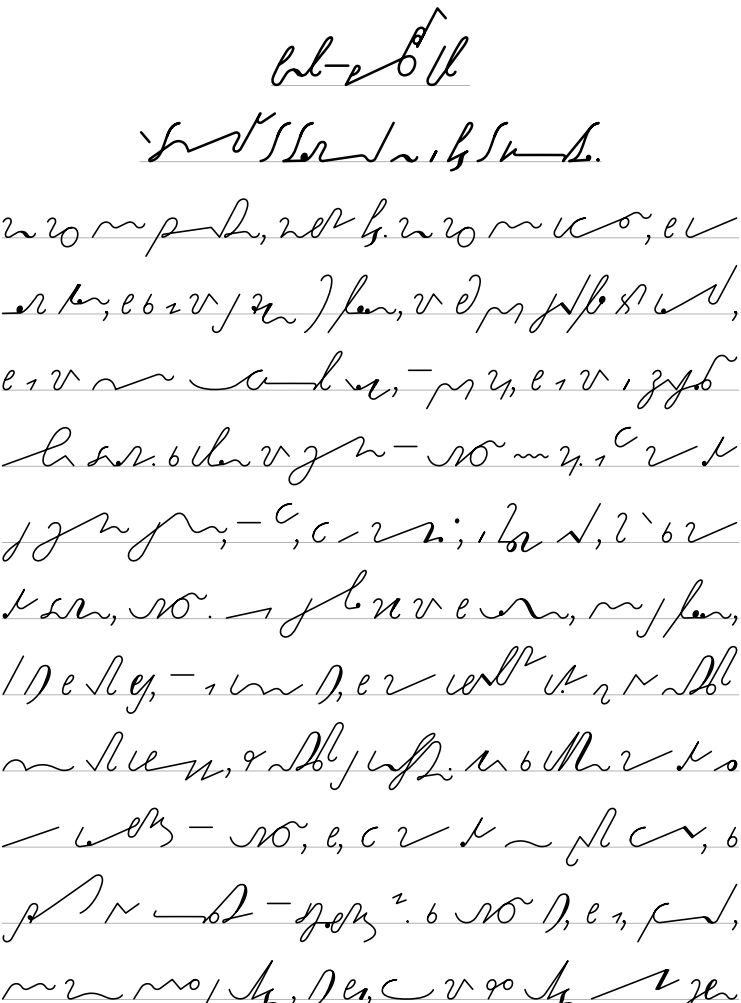


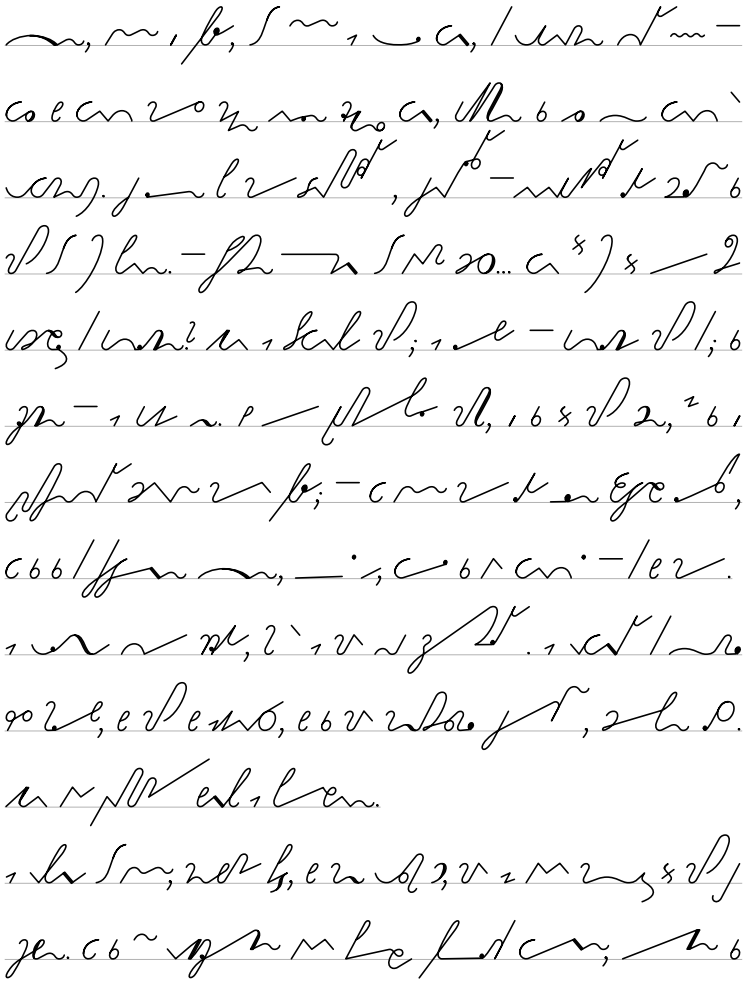


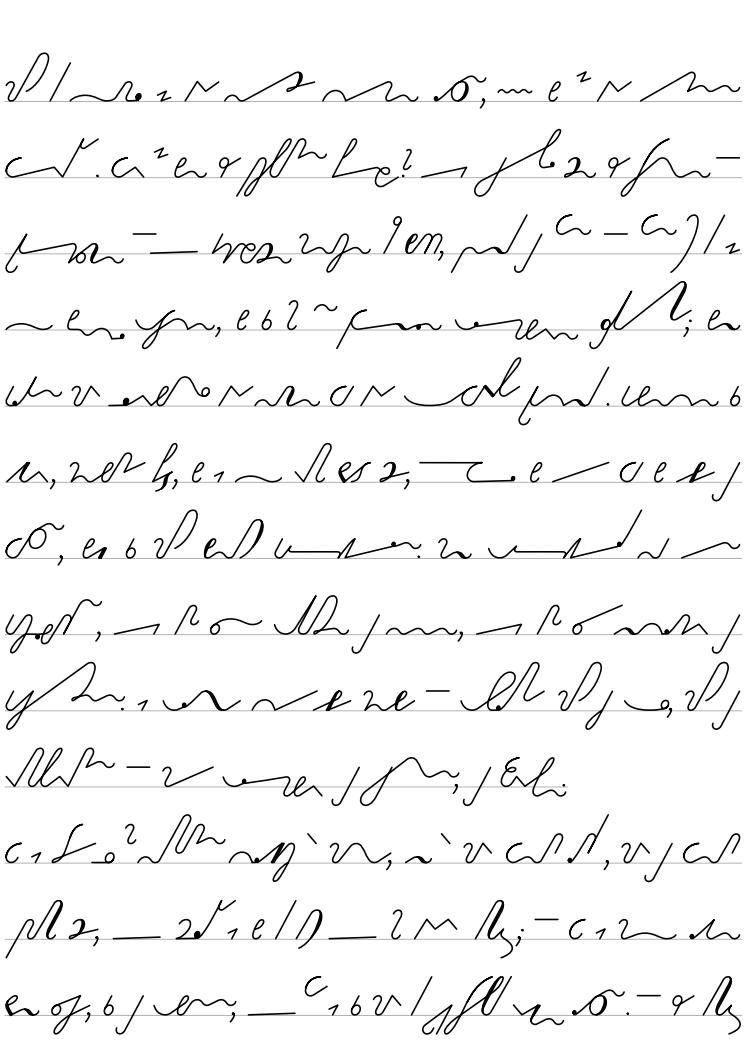


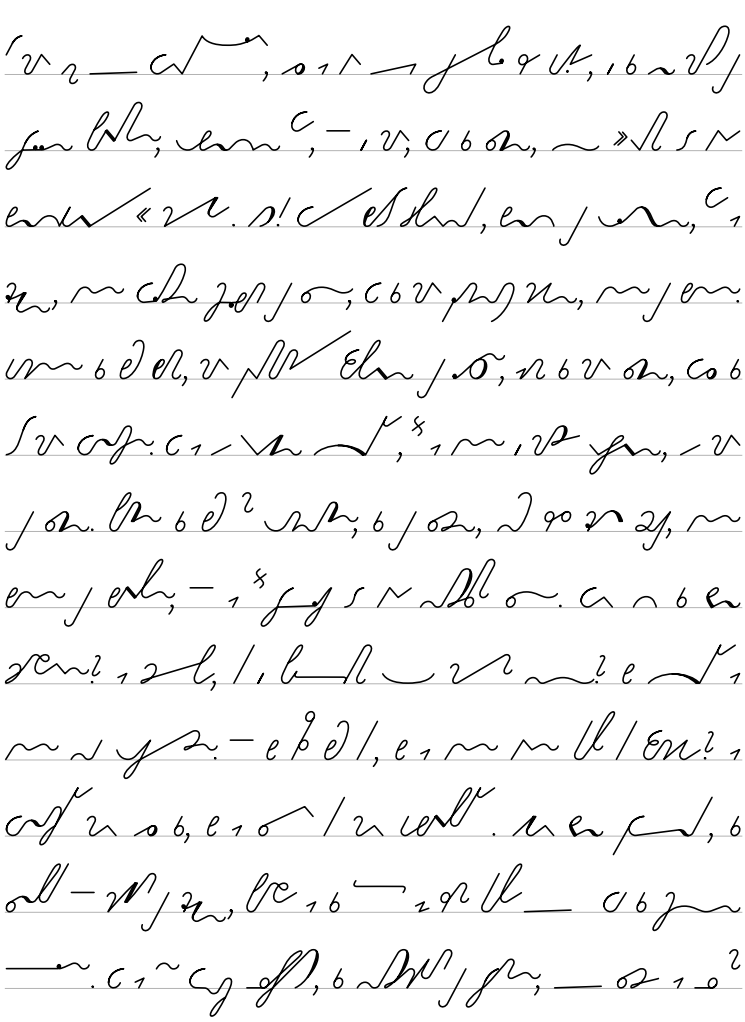


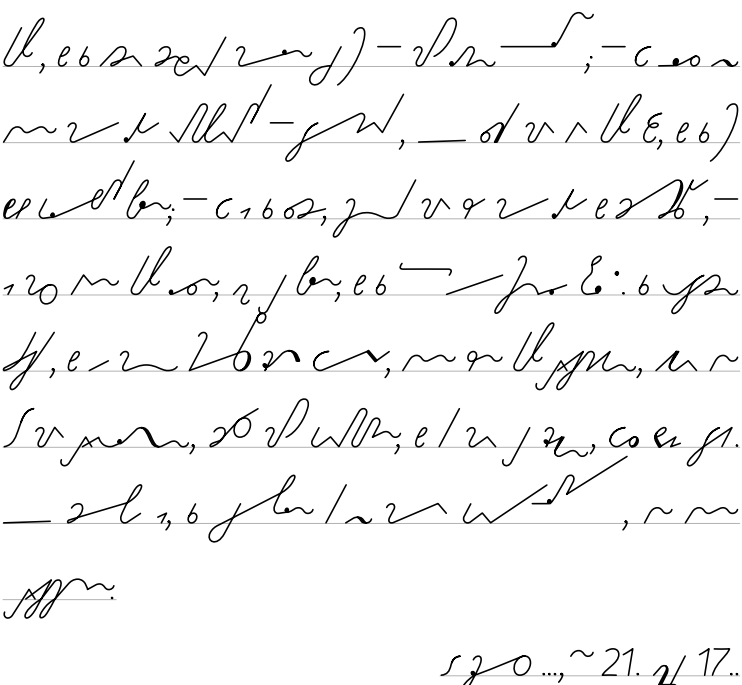


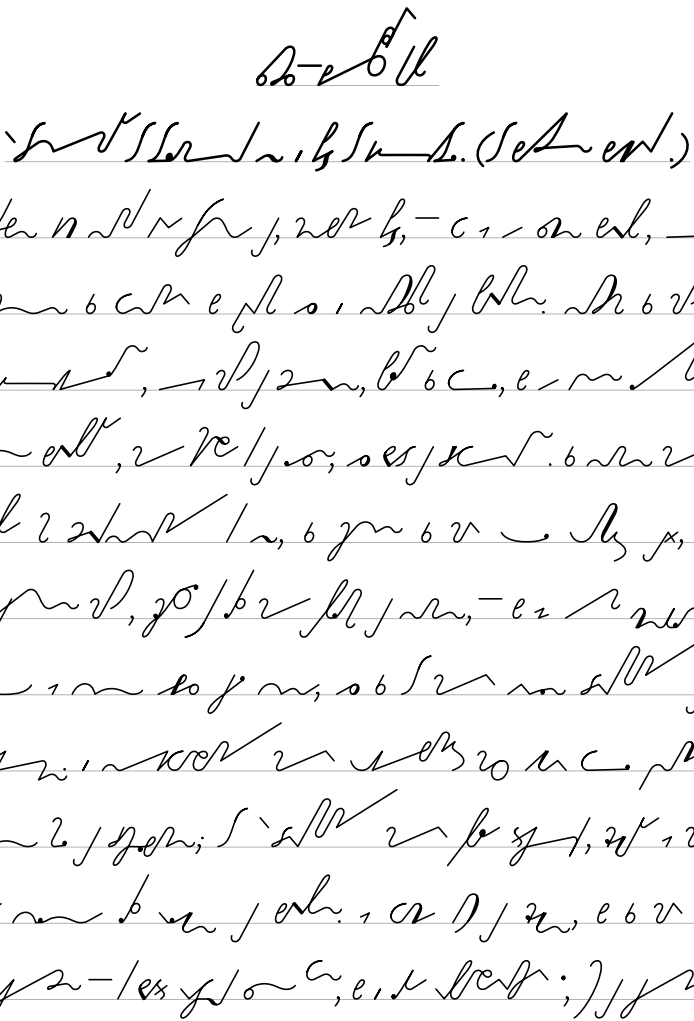


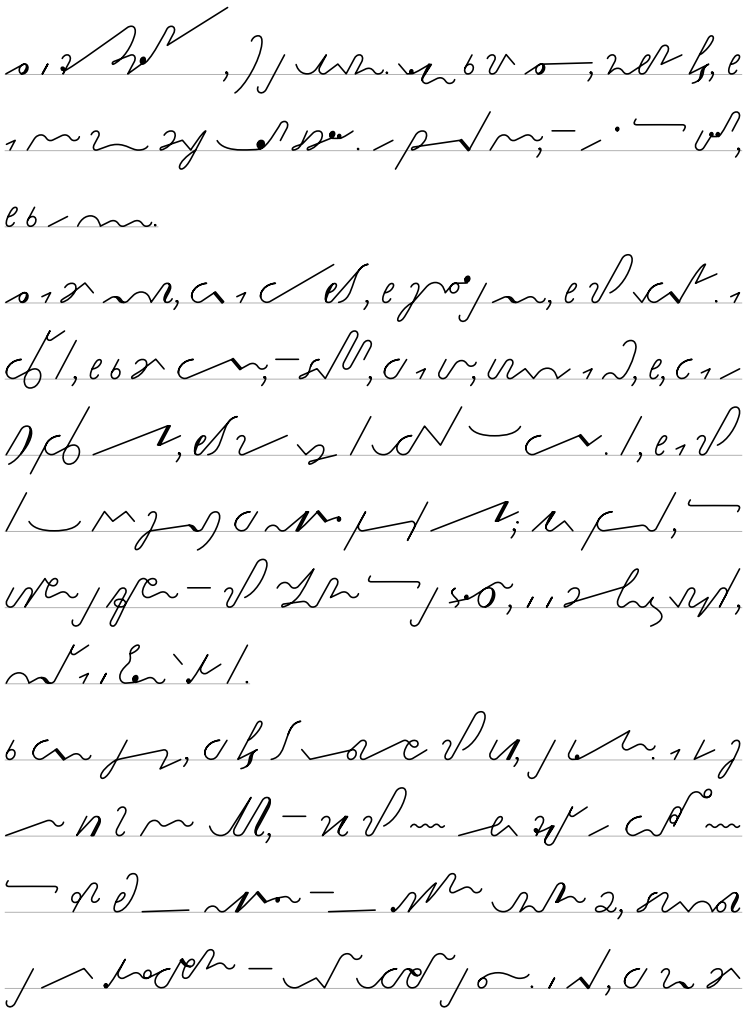


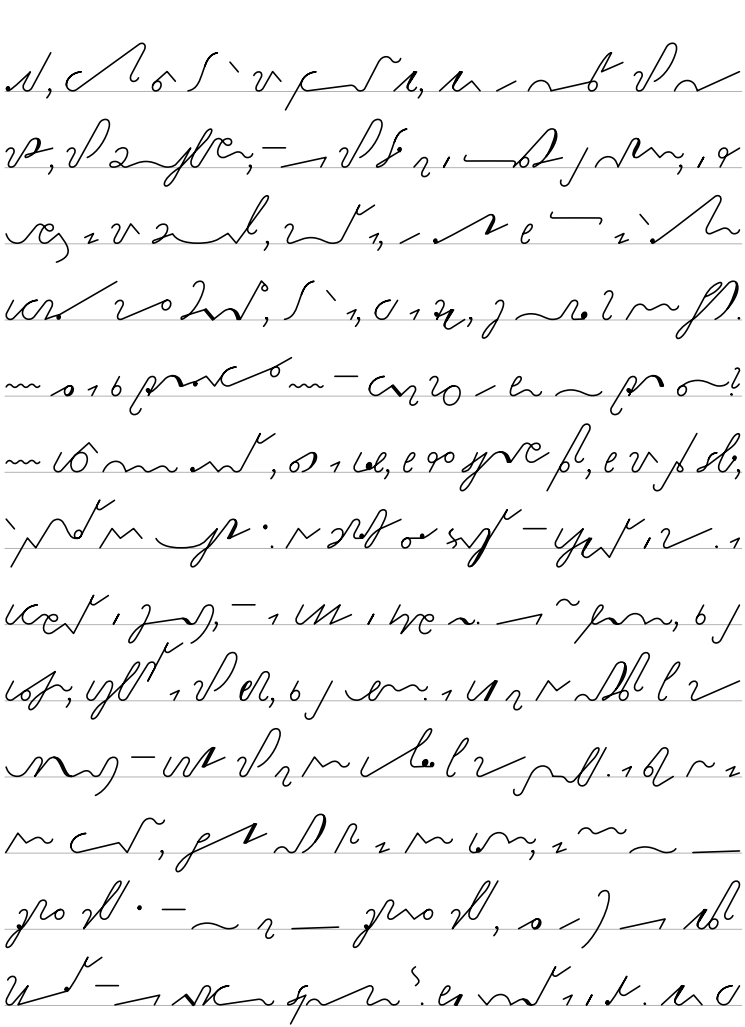


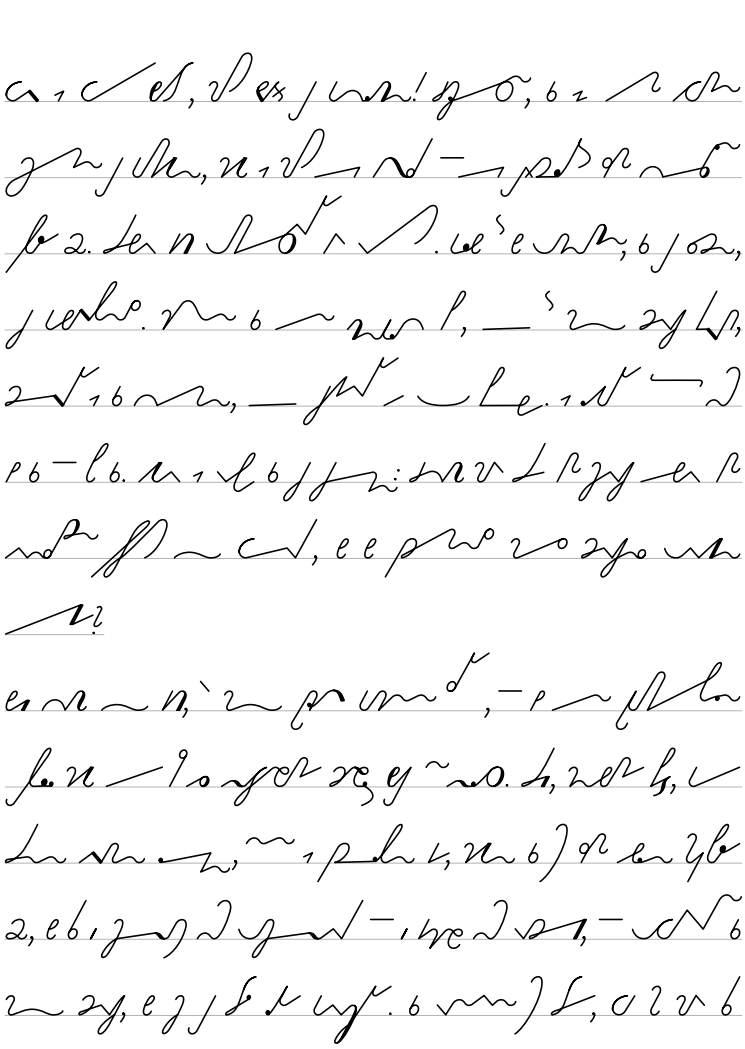


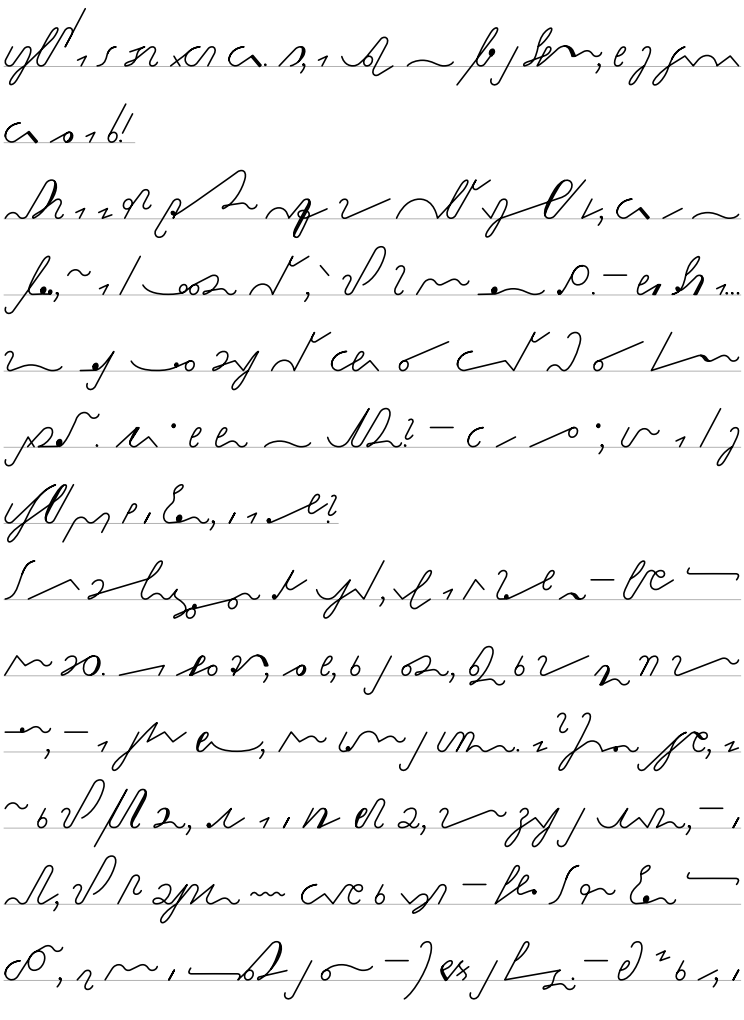


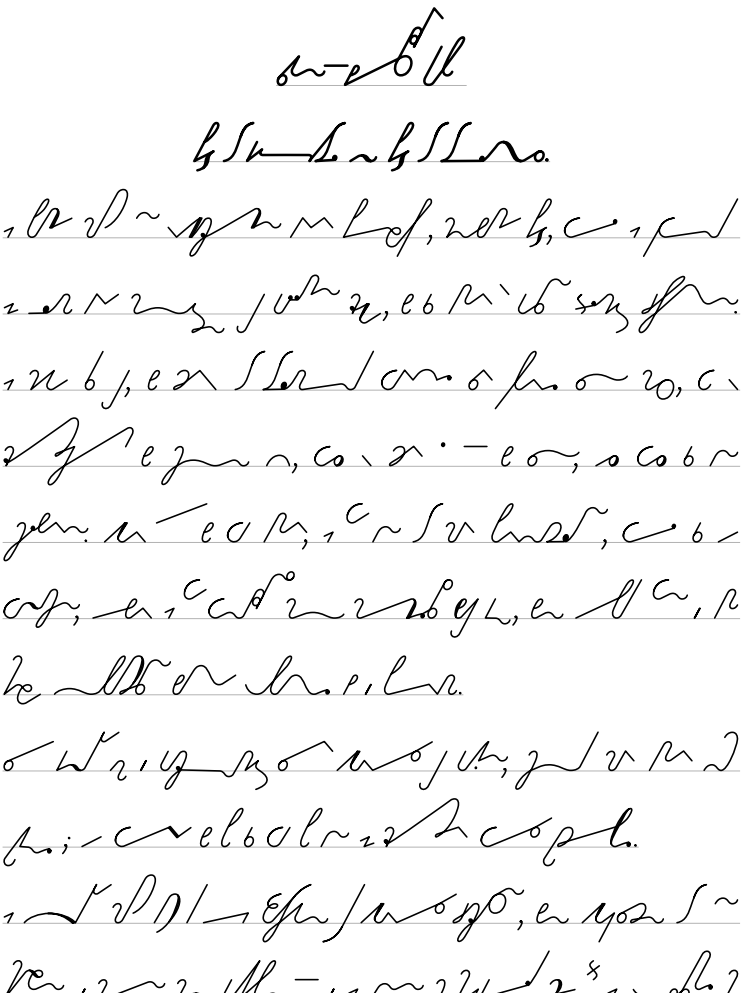


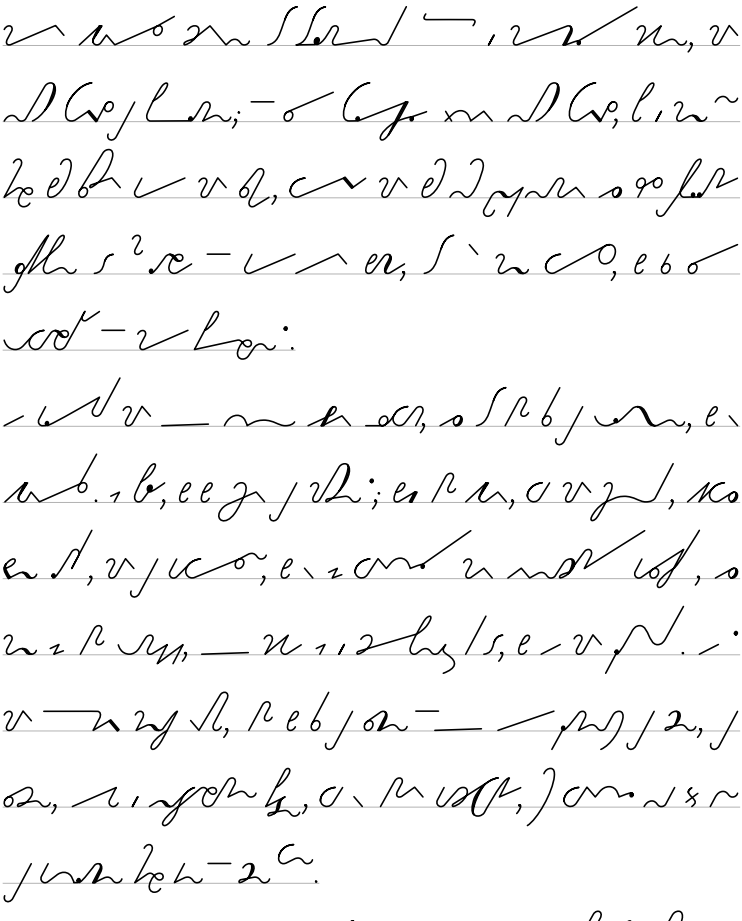


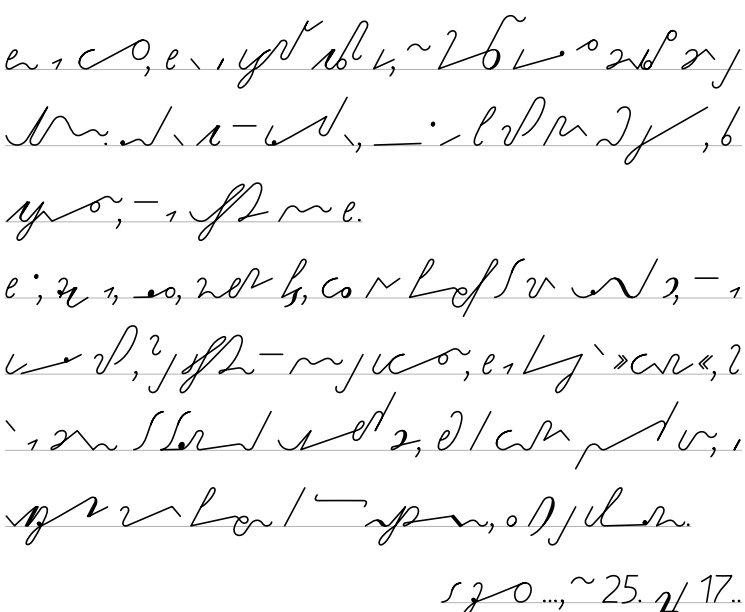


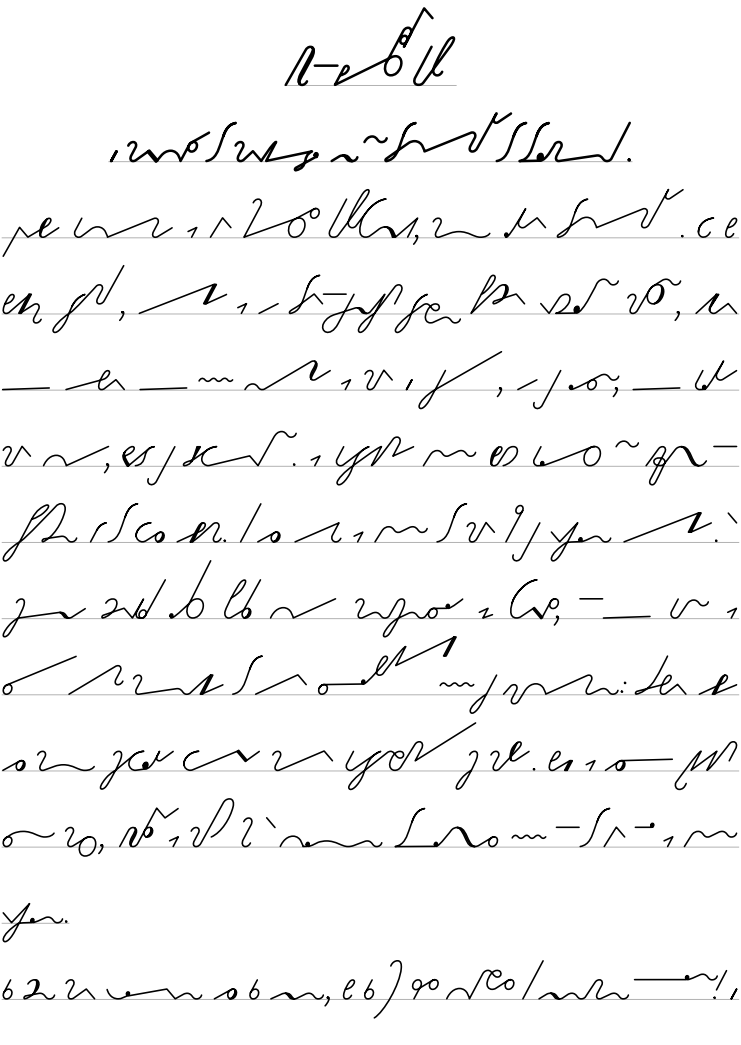


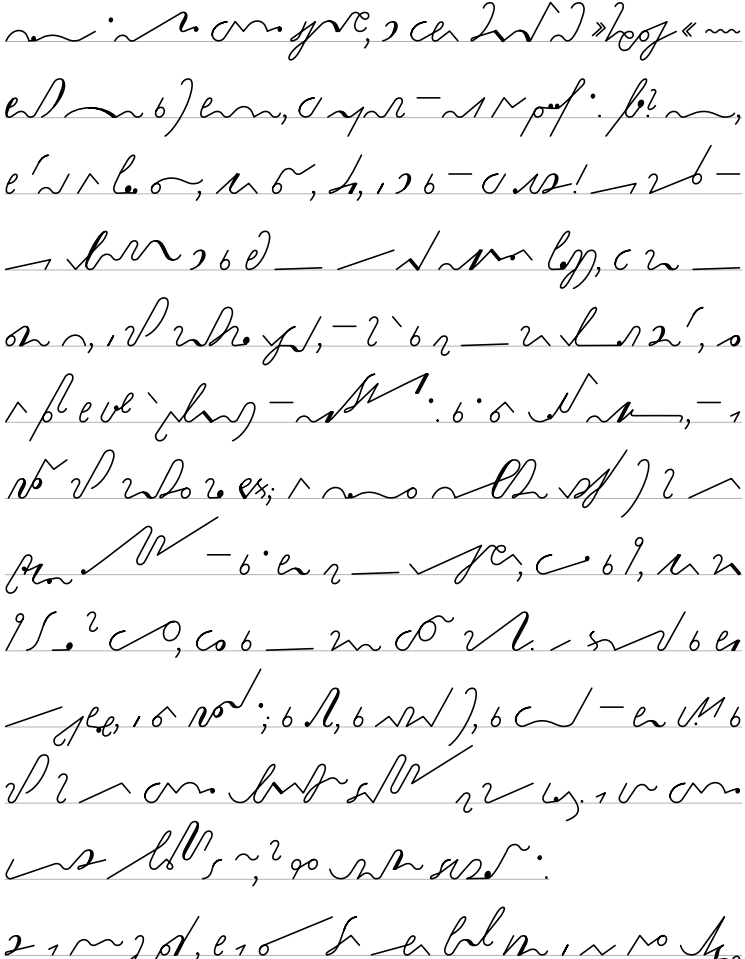


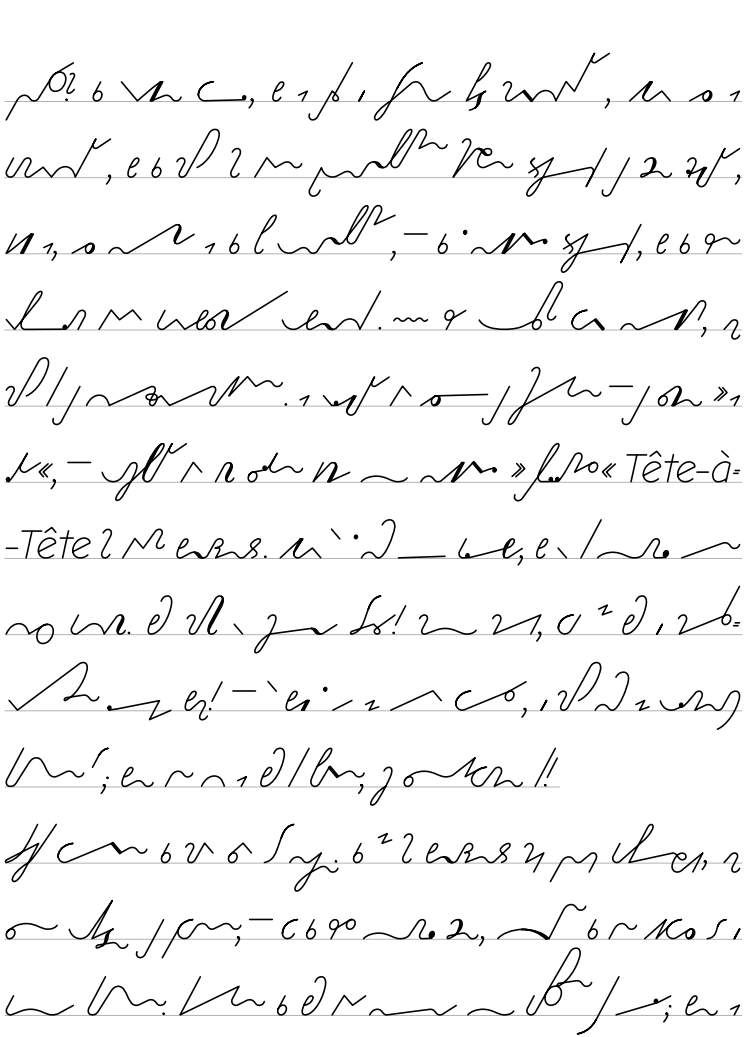




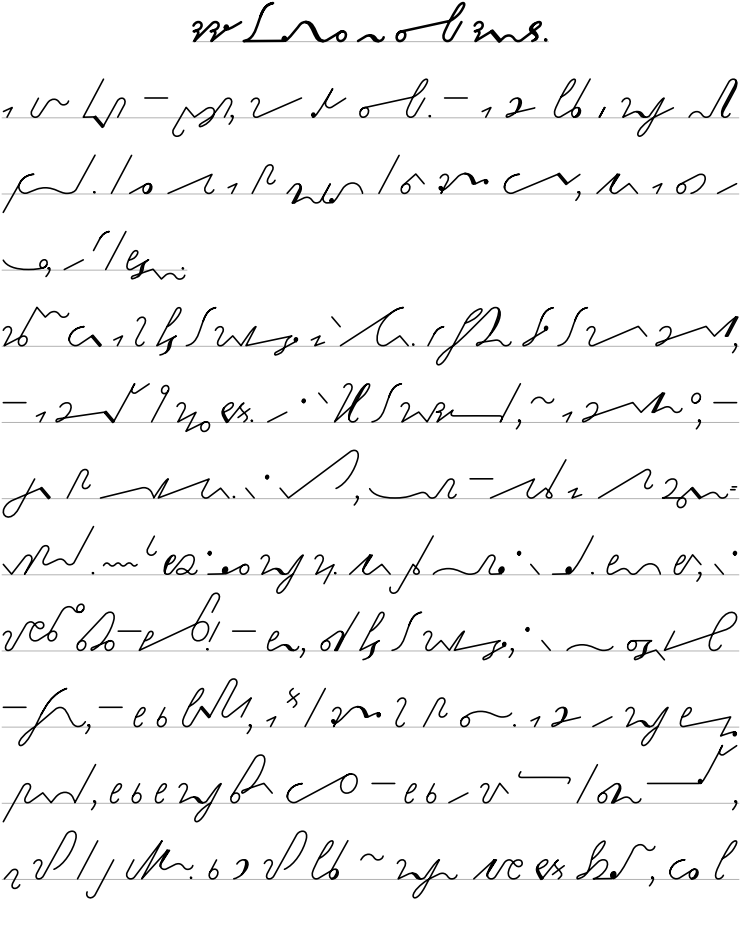


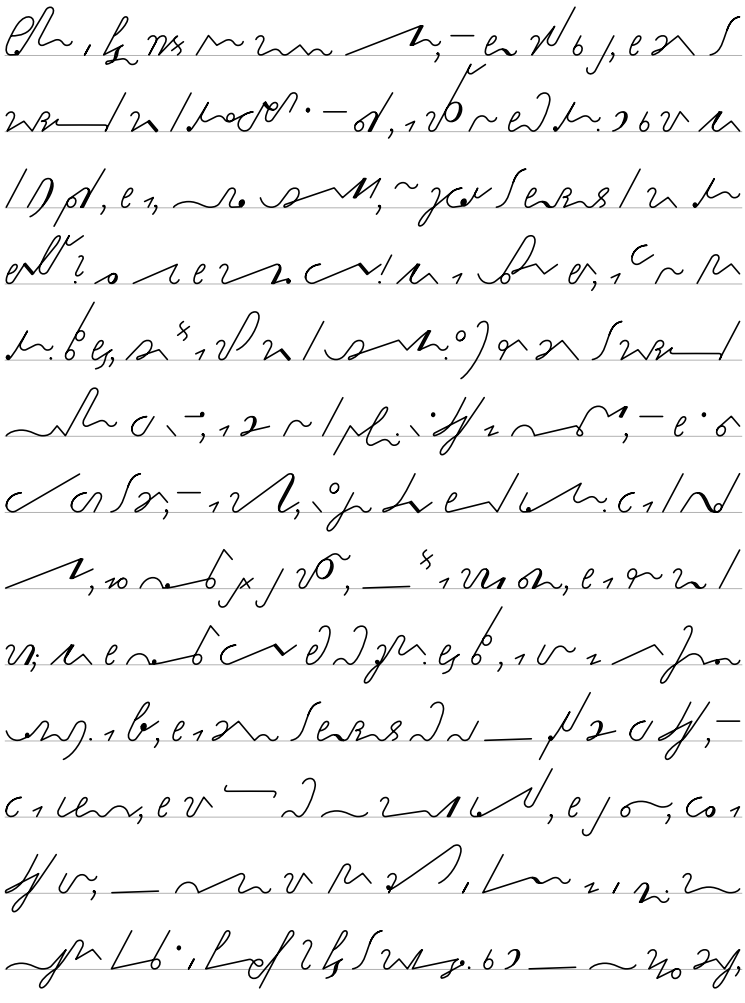


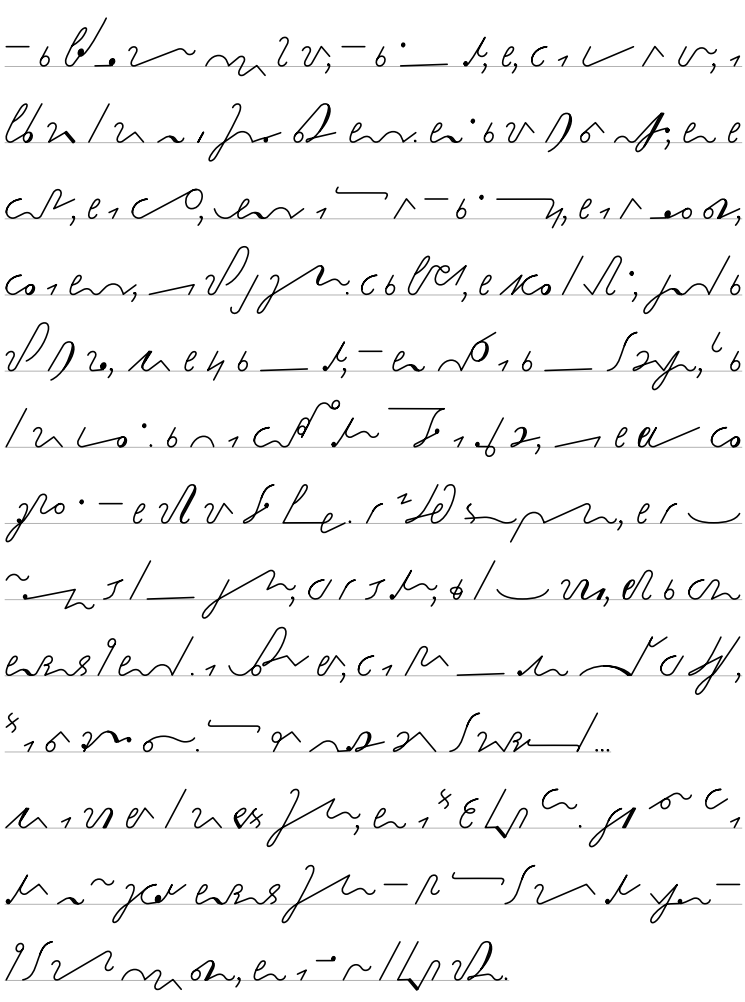


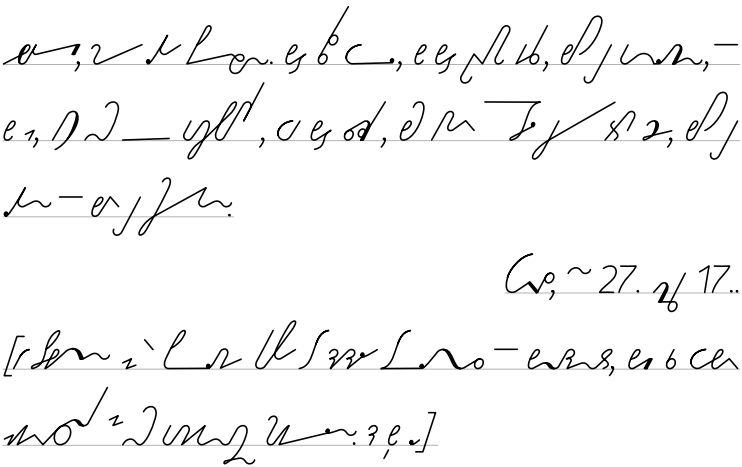


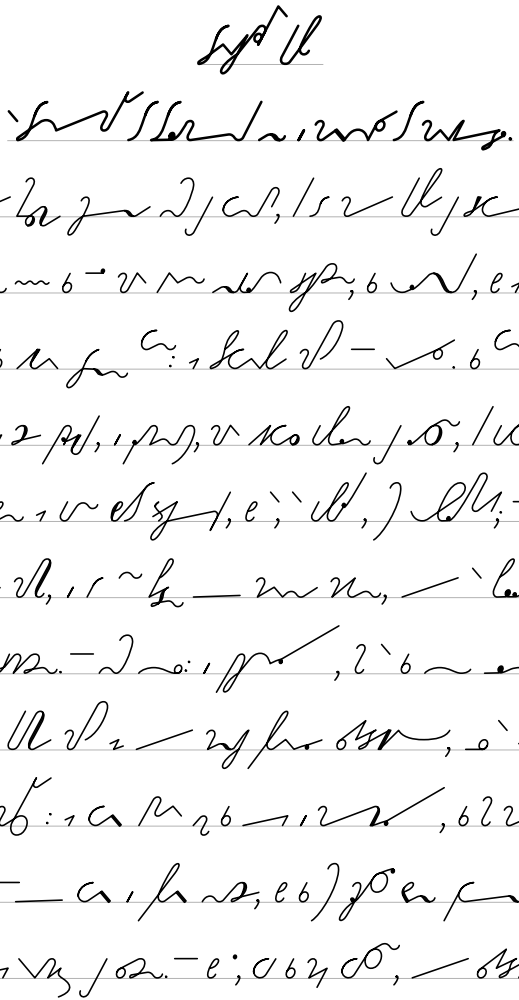
Tête-à-
-Tête

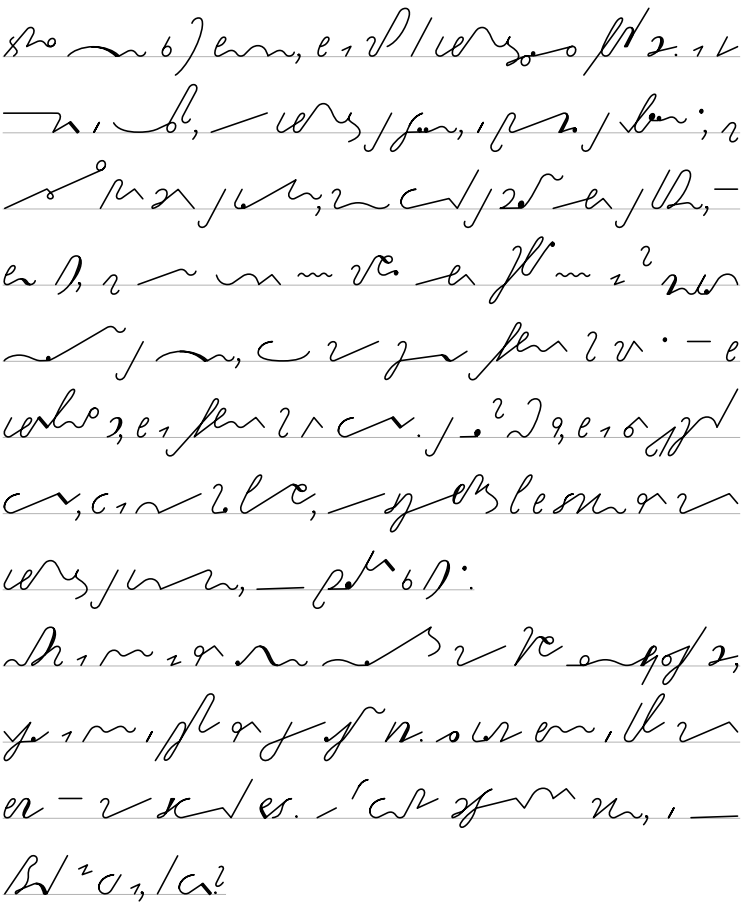


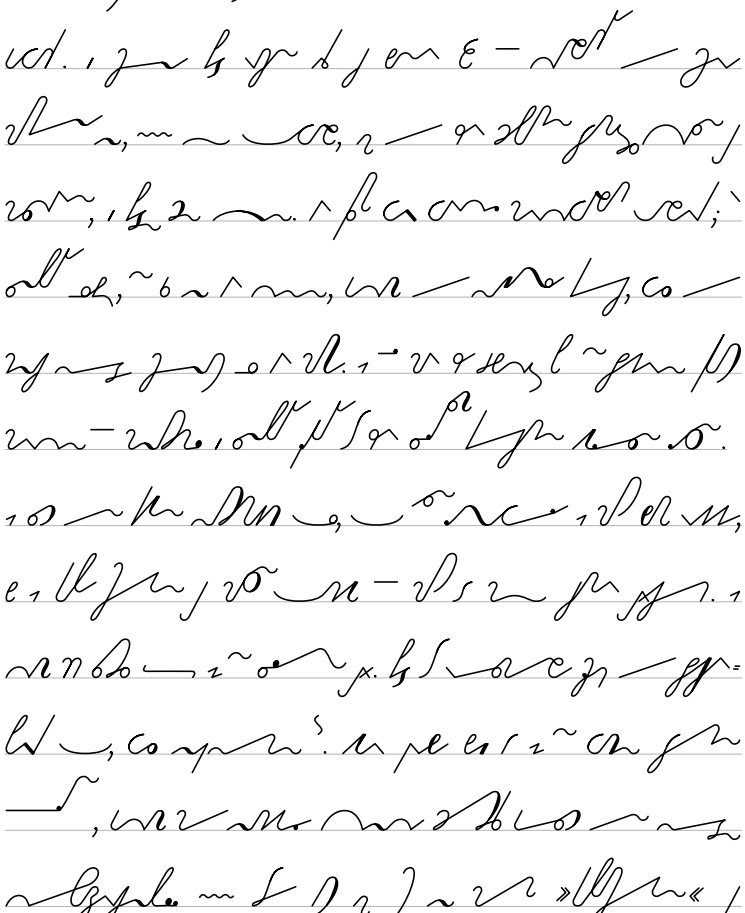


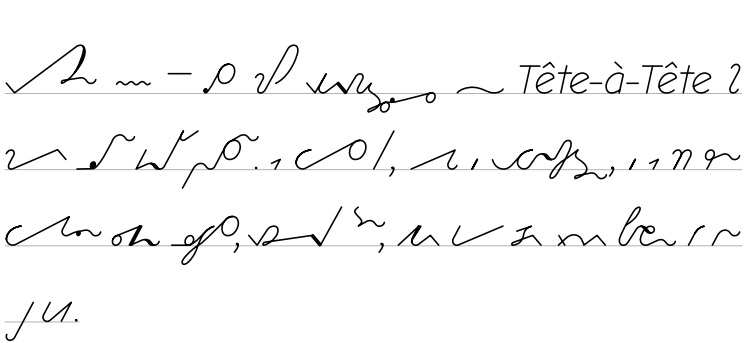




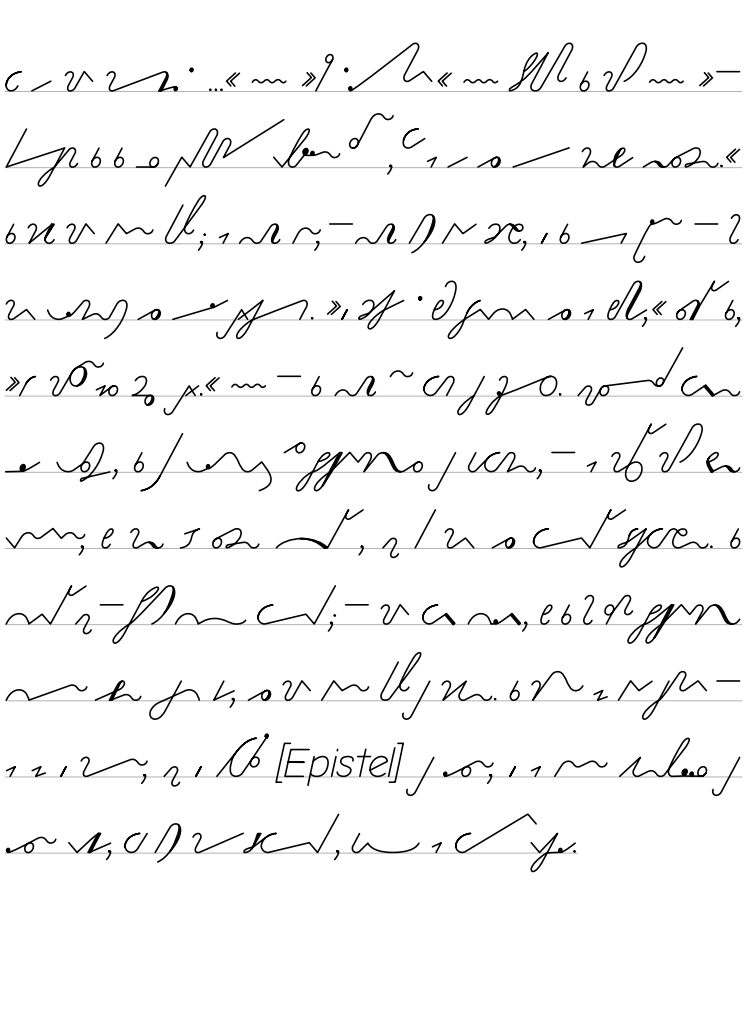


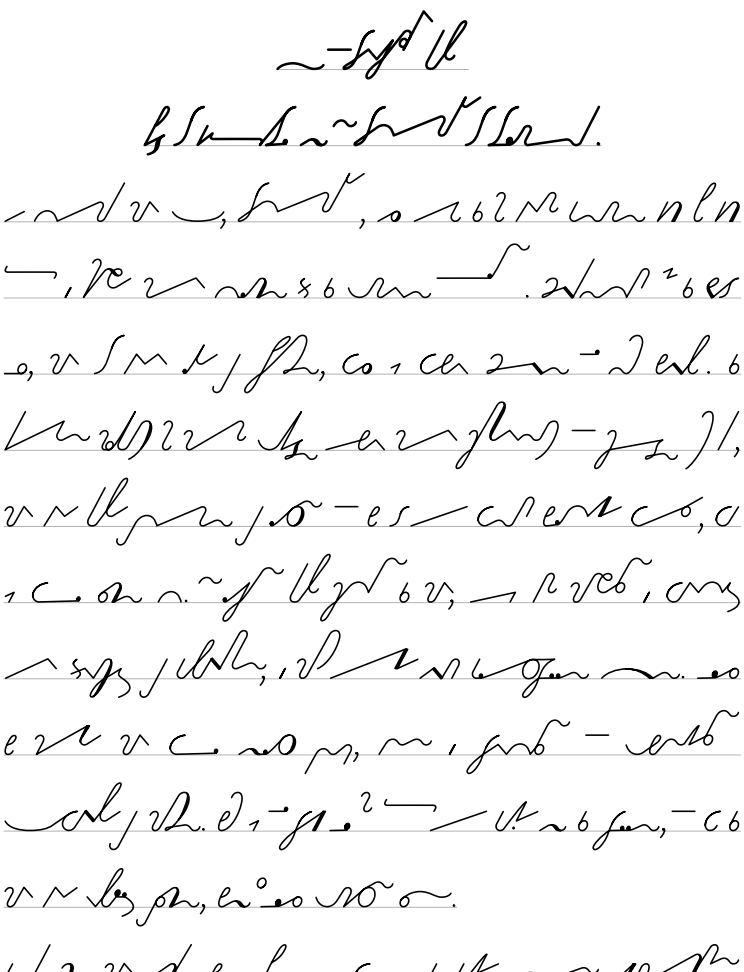


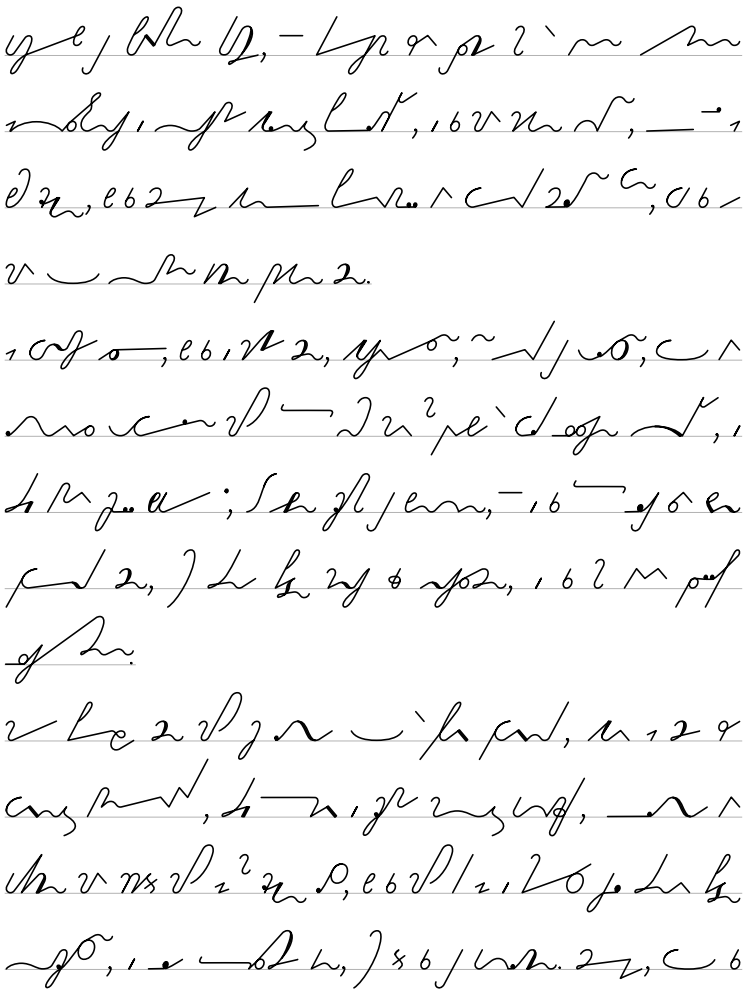


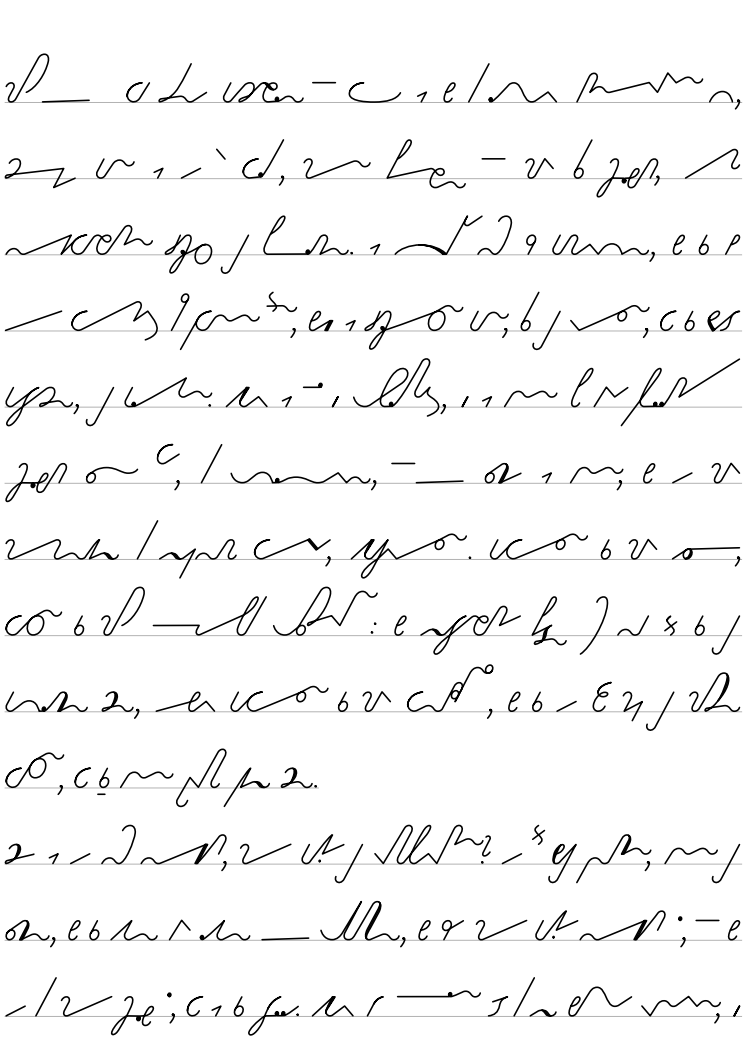


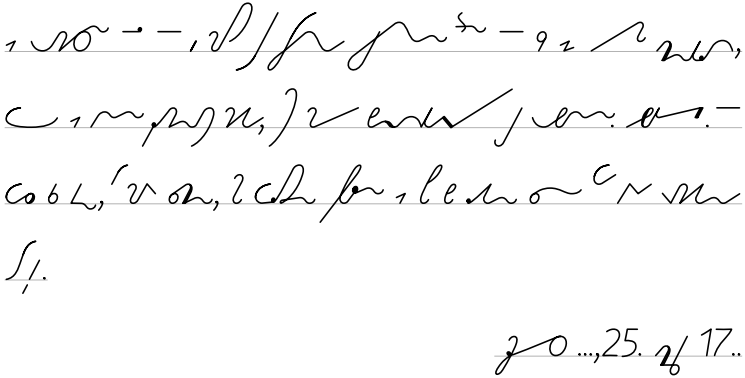
Tête-à-Tête



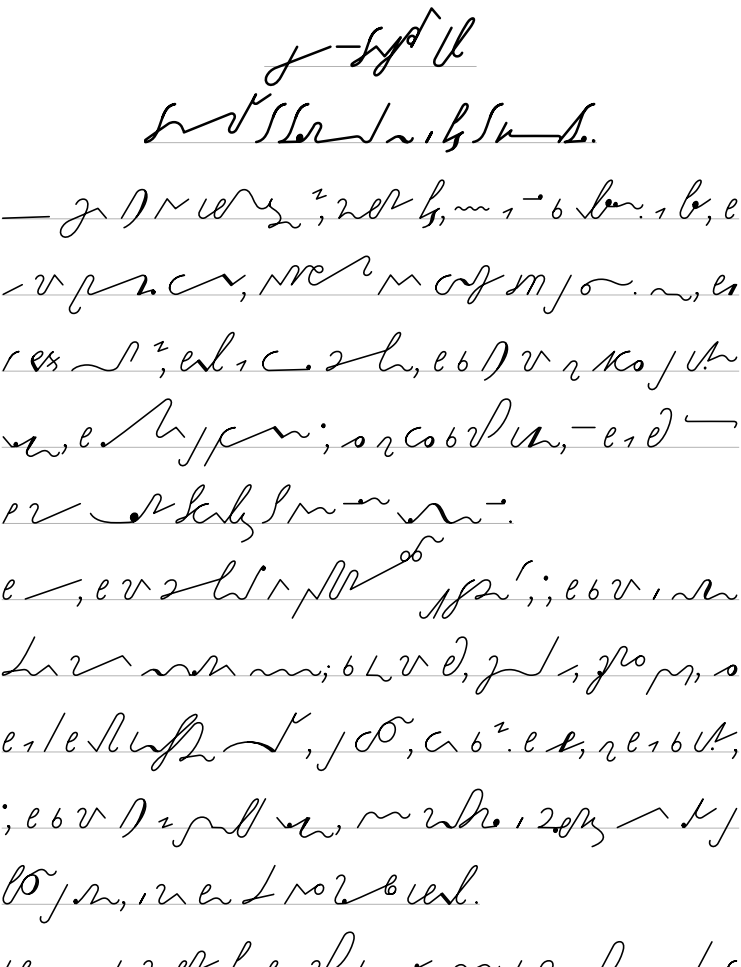


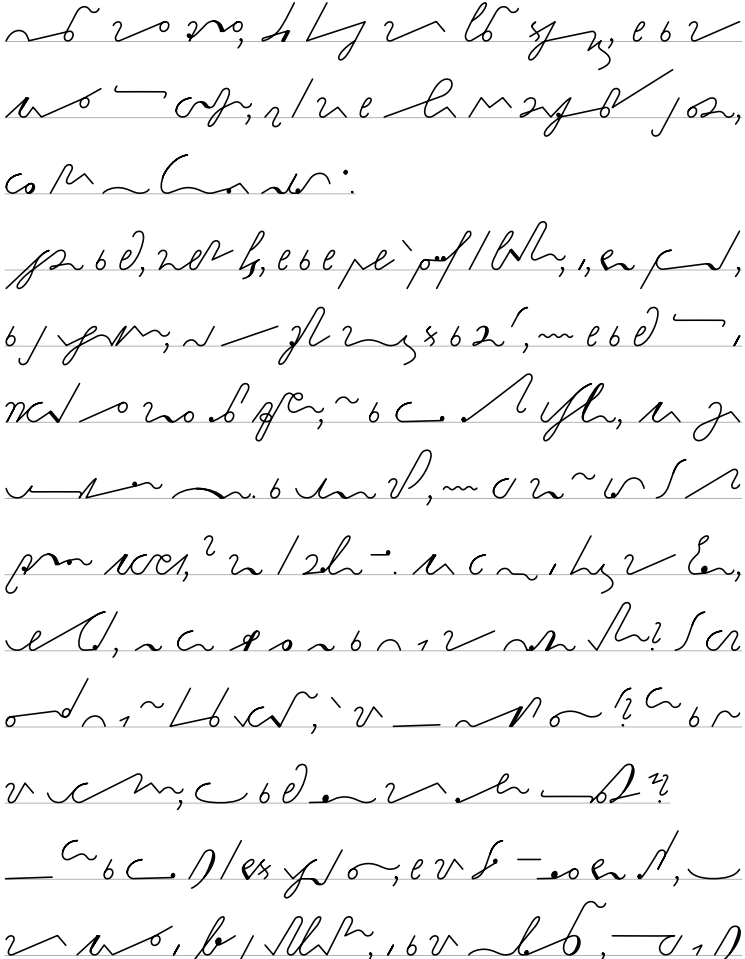


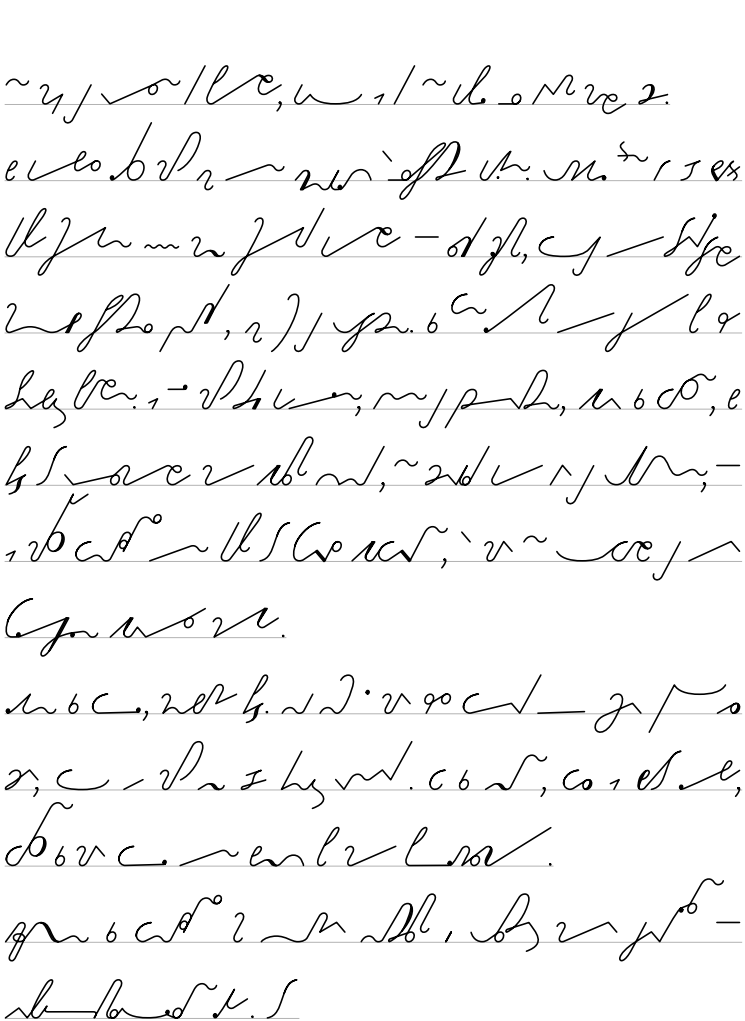




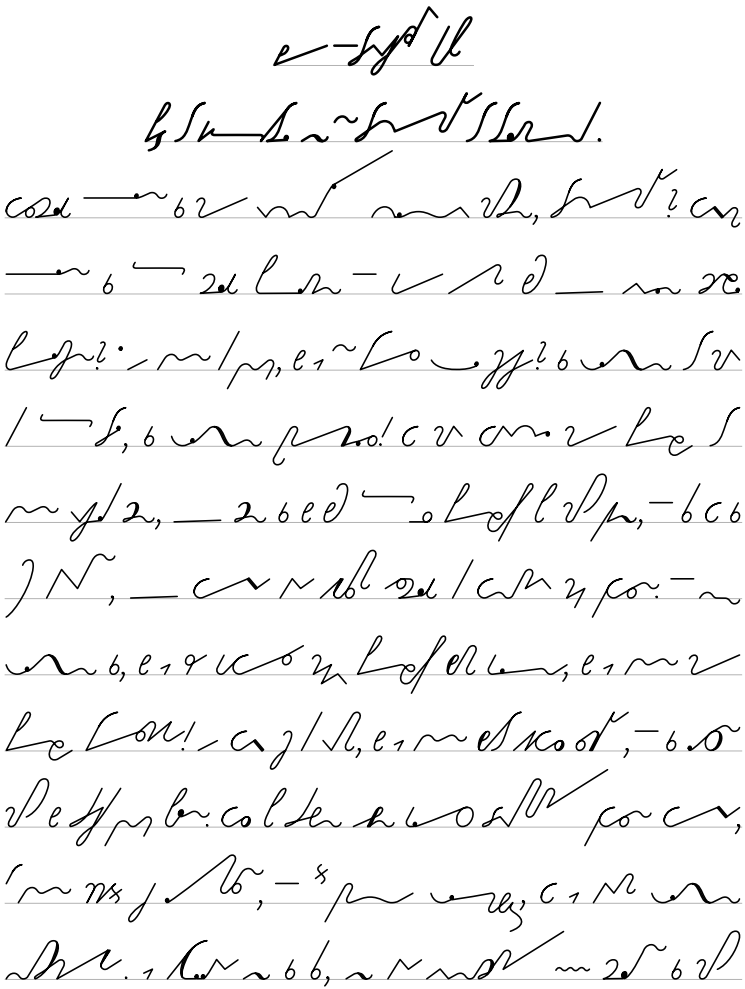
Jo ..., 25. 4/ 17..

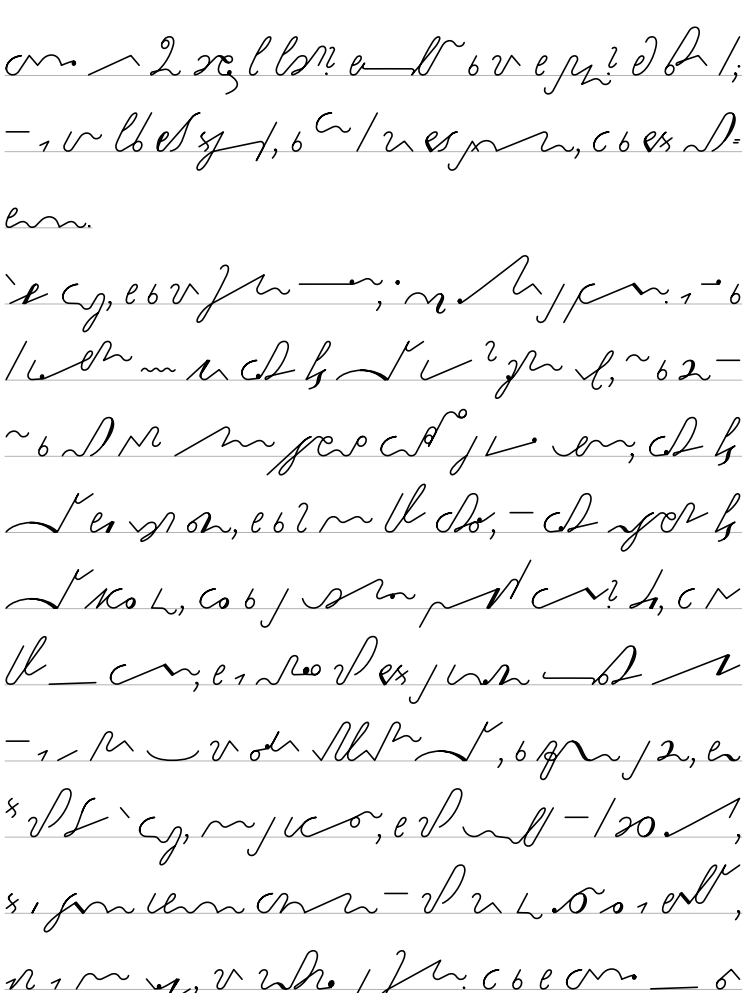


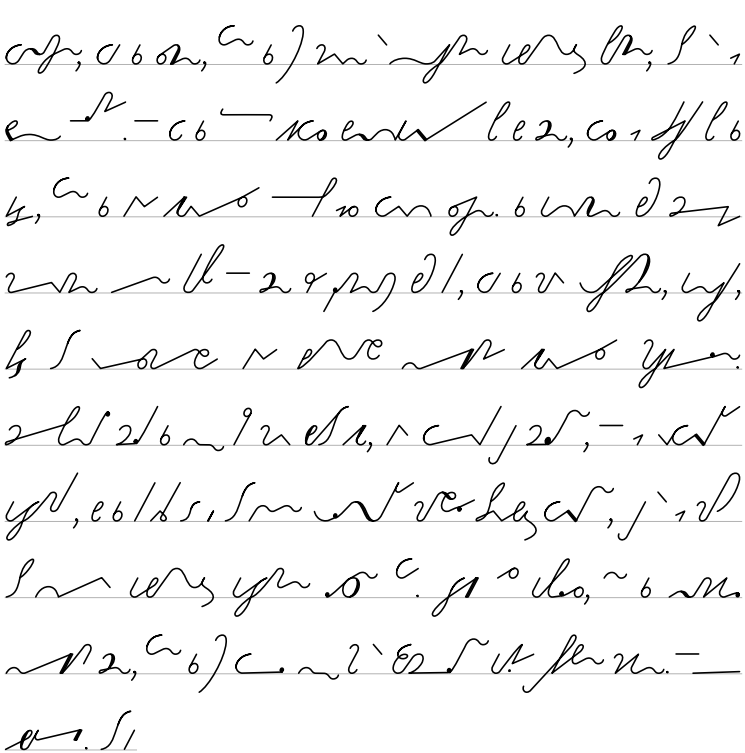


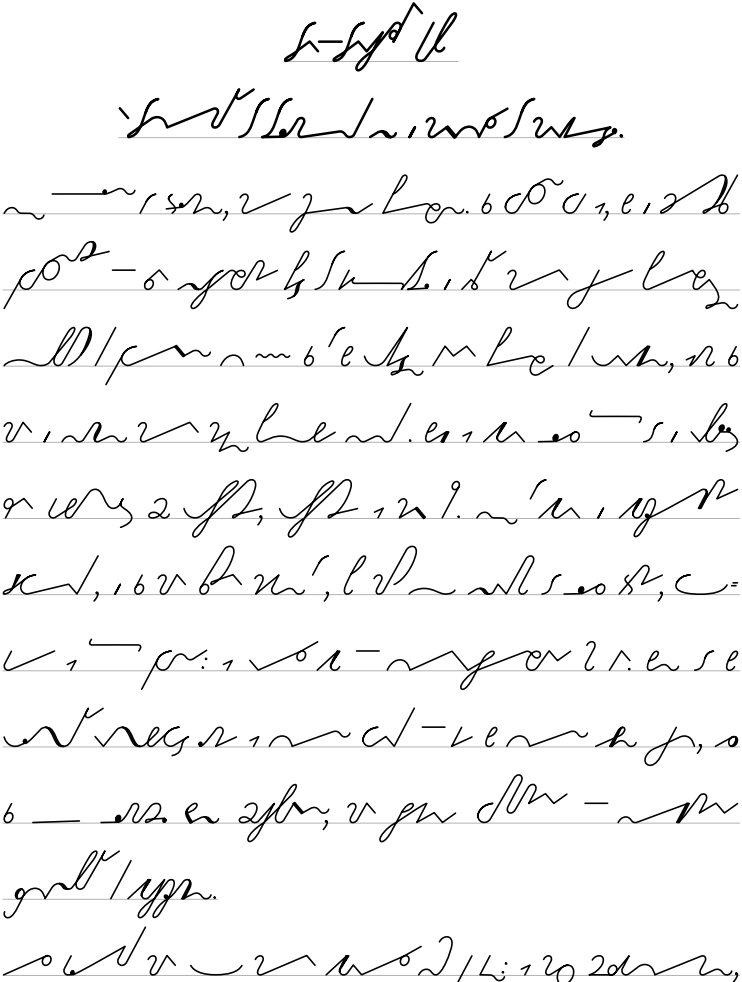


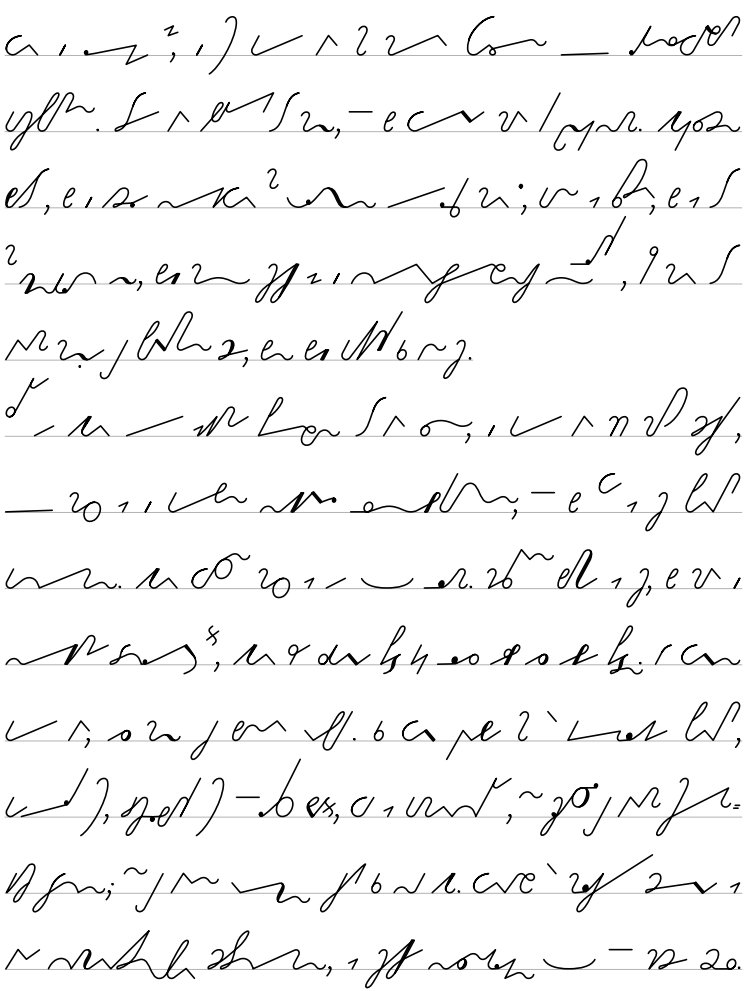
20..., 26. 06. 17..

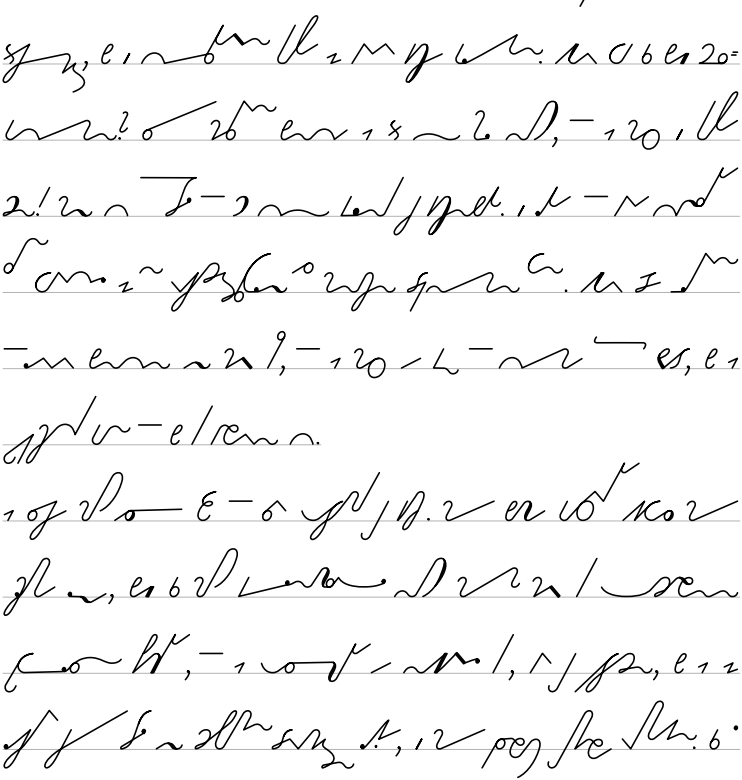


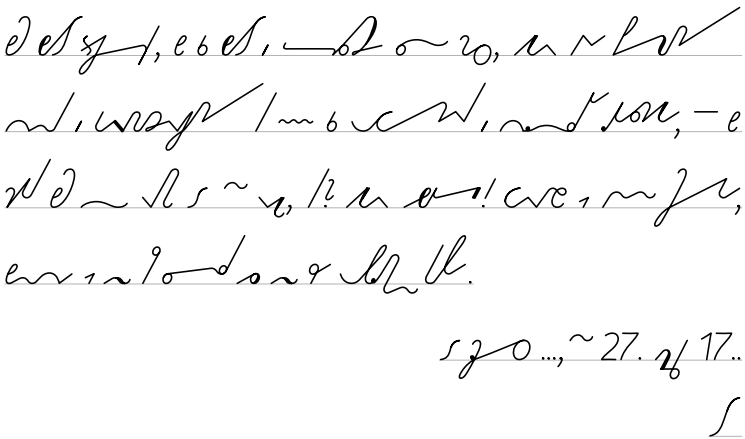


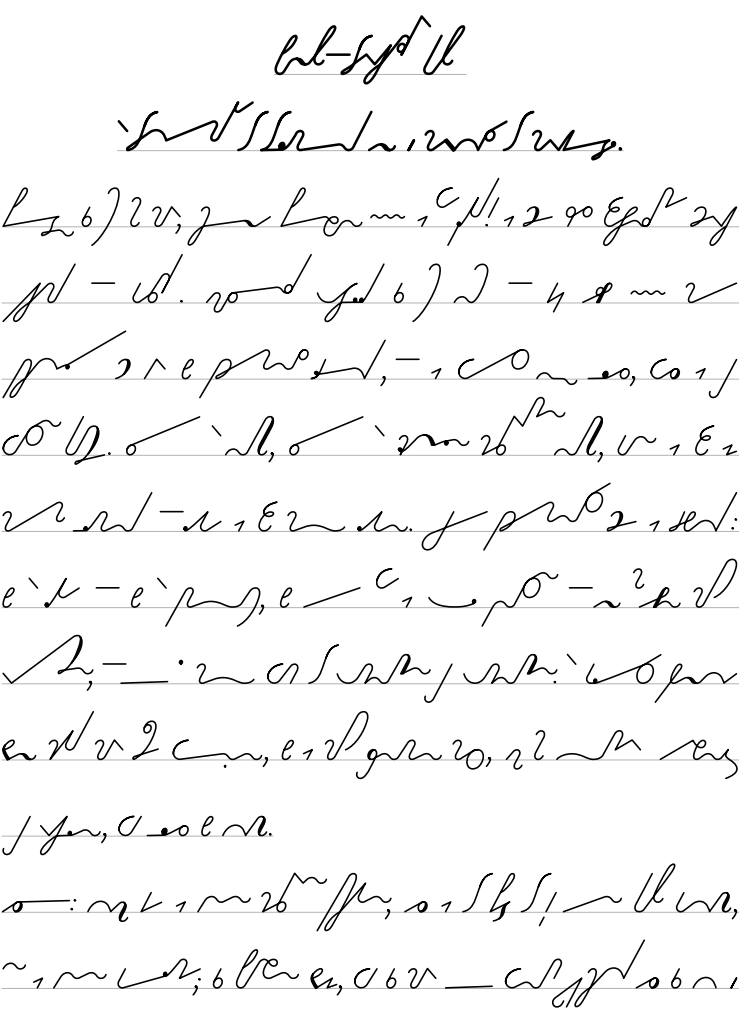


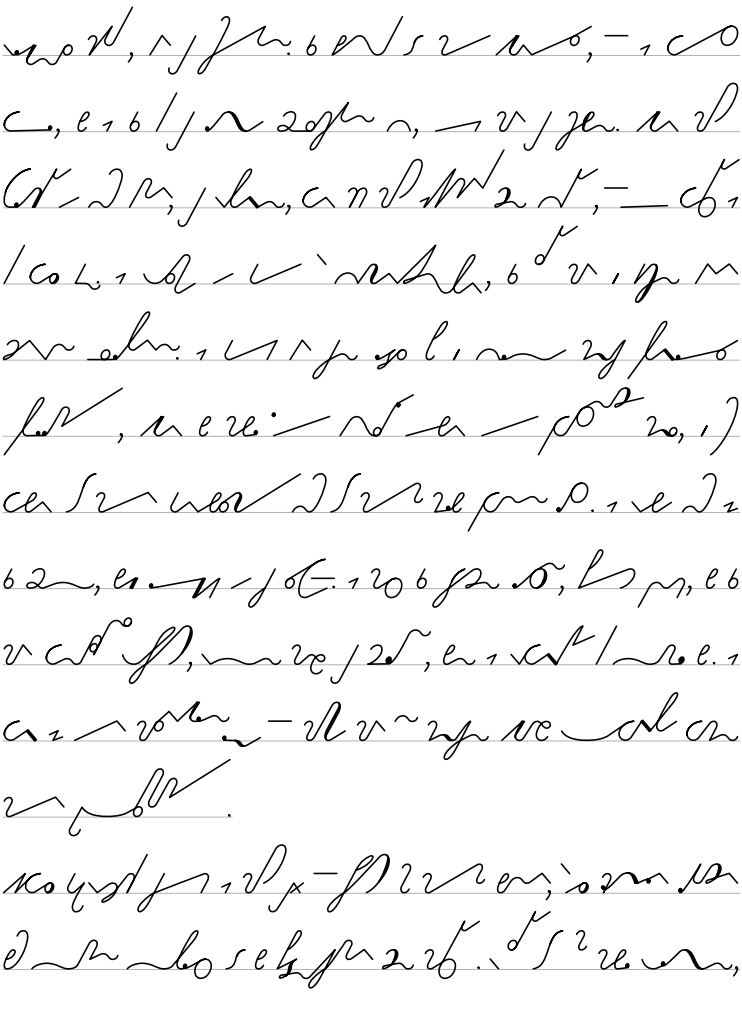


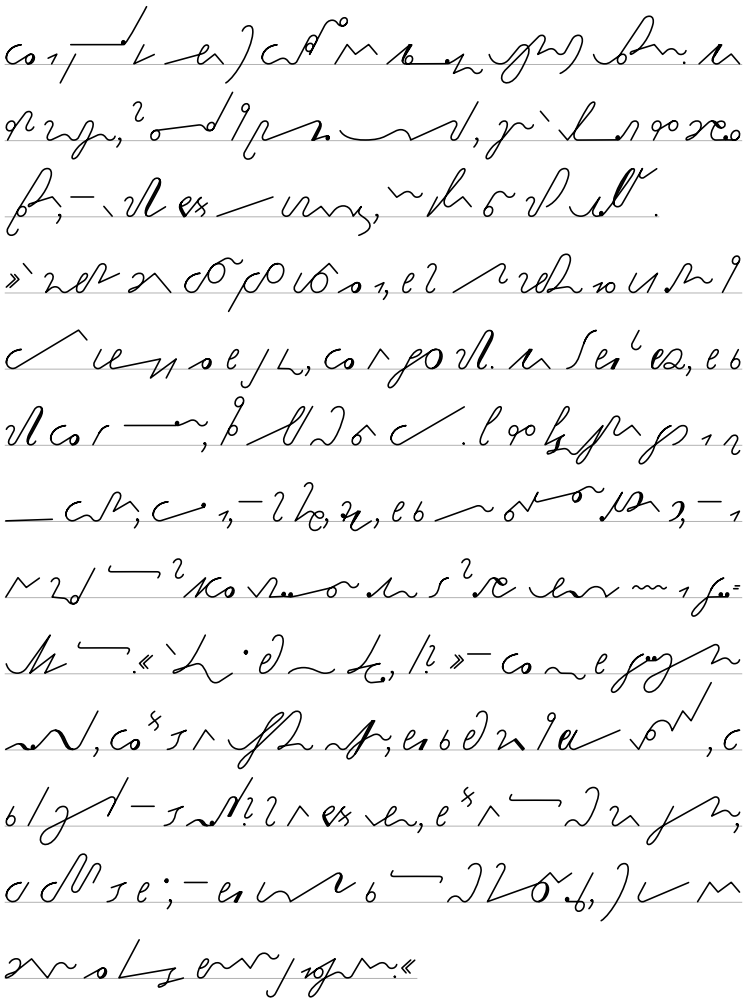


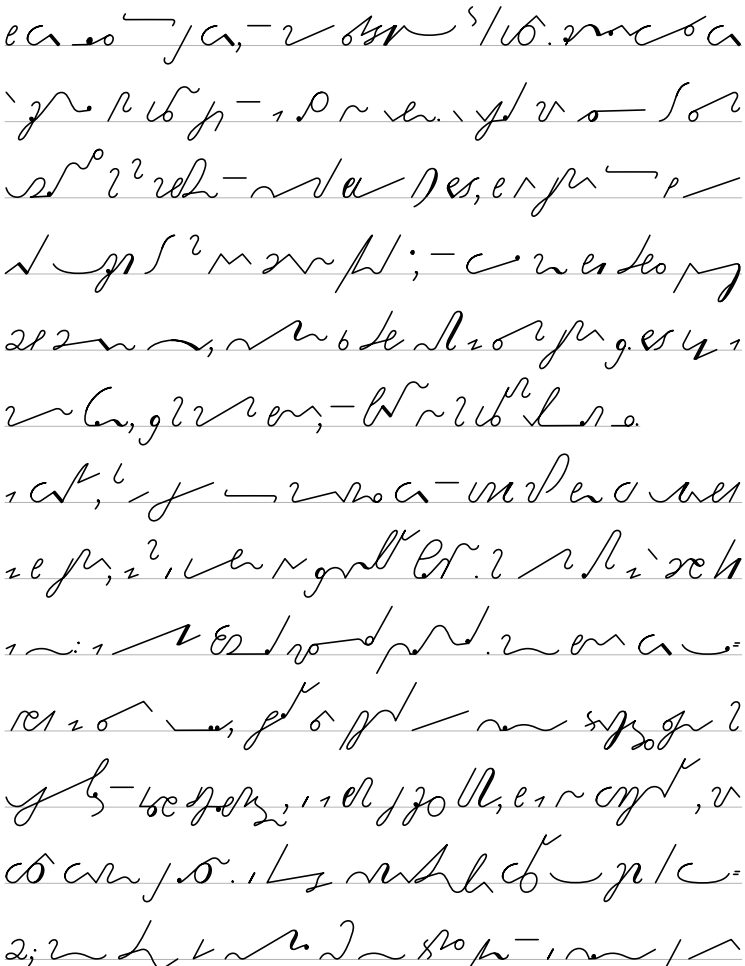


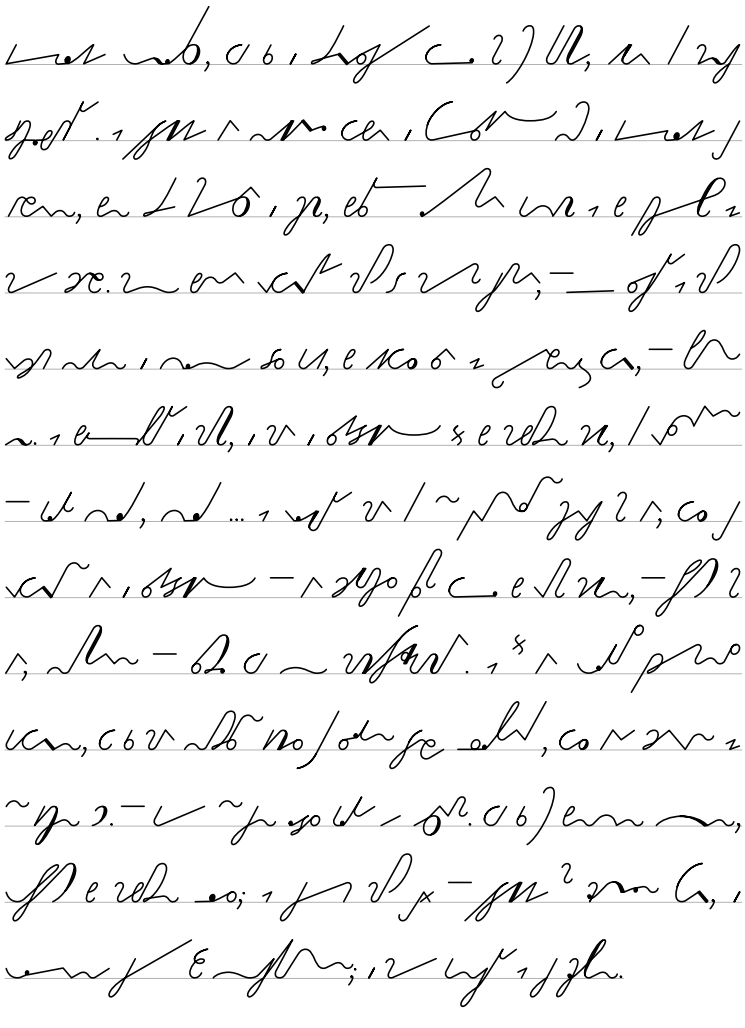


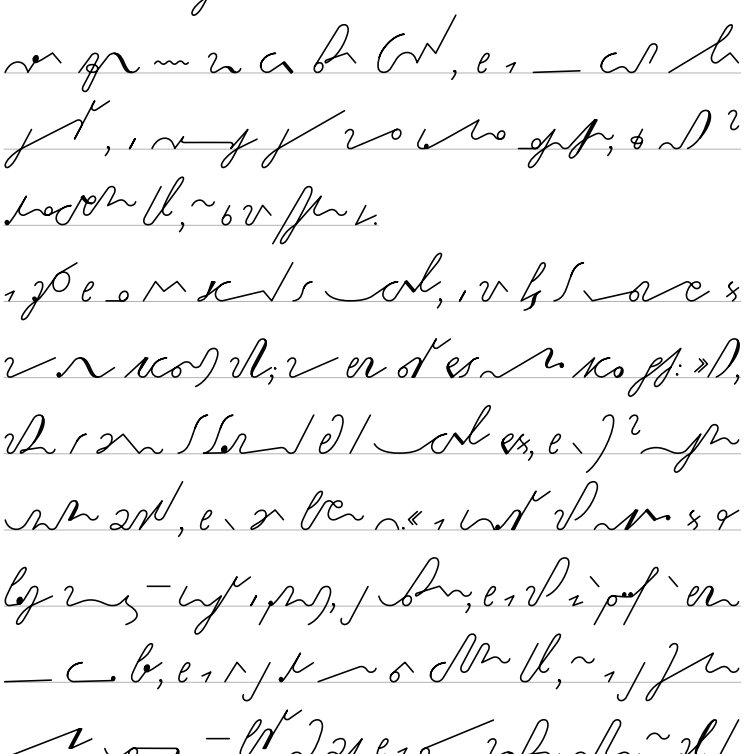


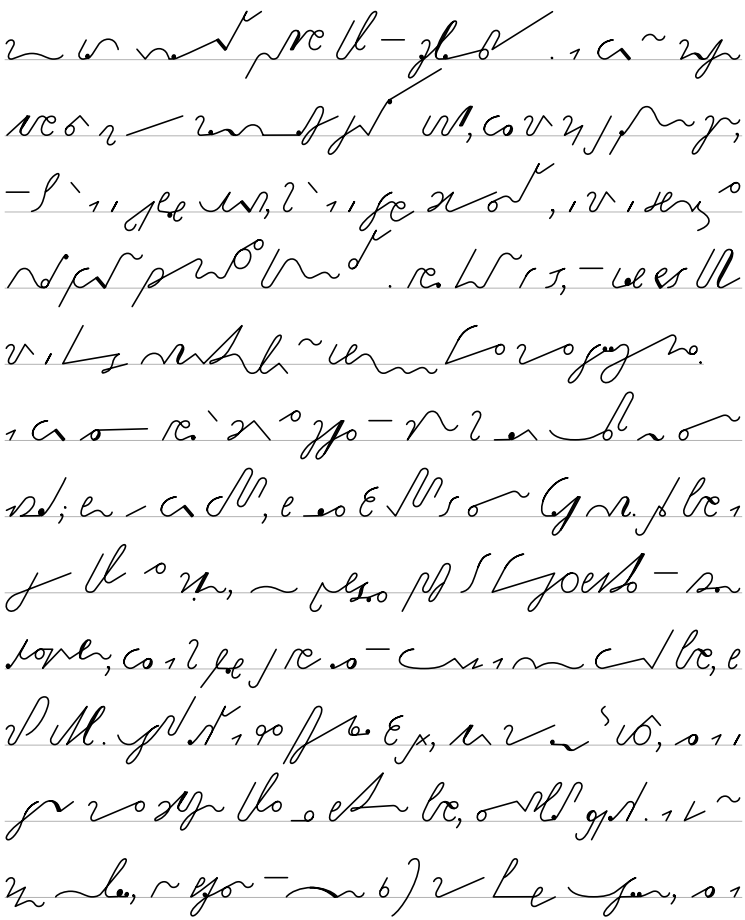


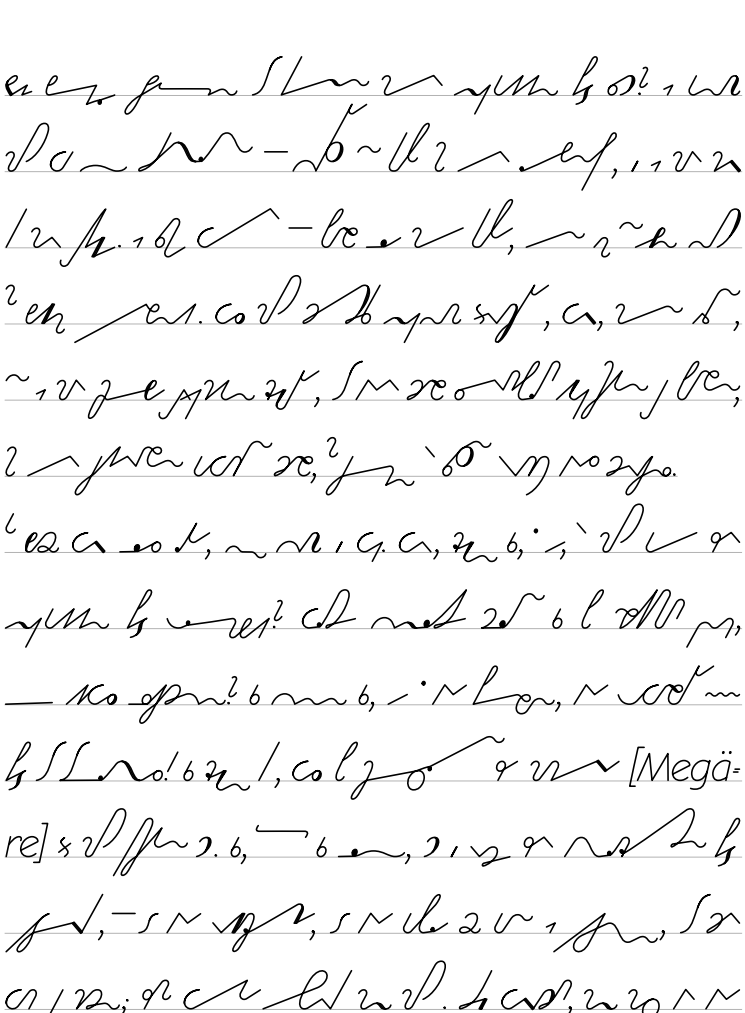


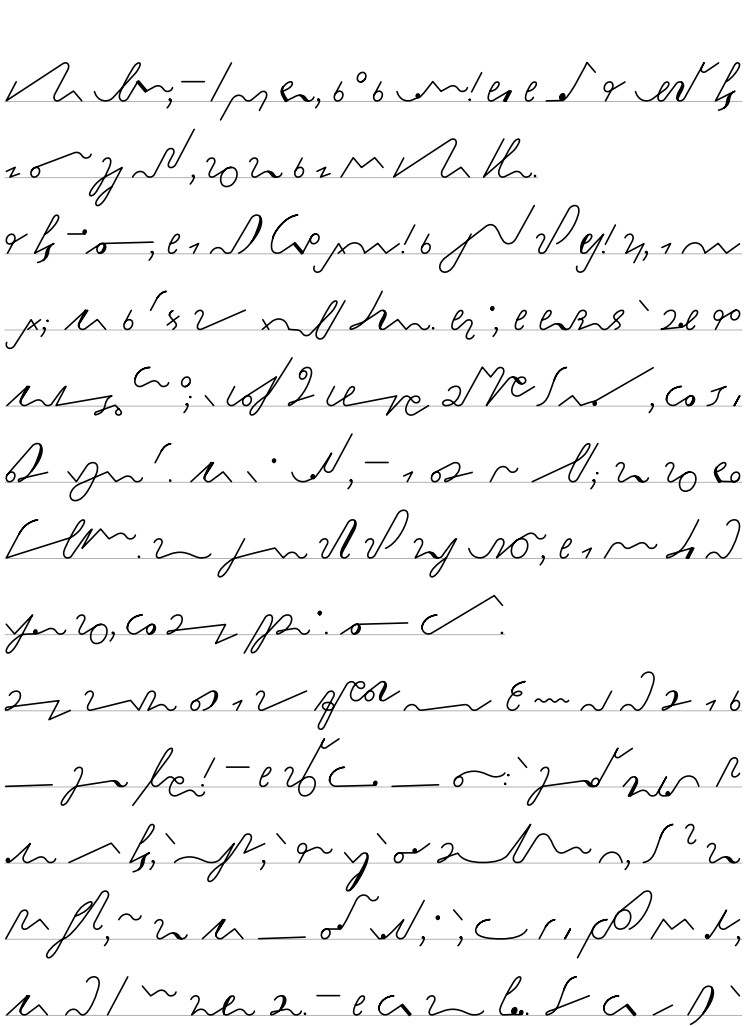


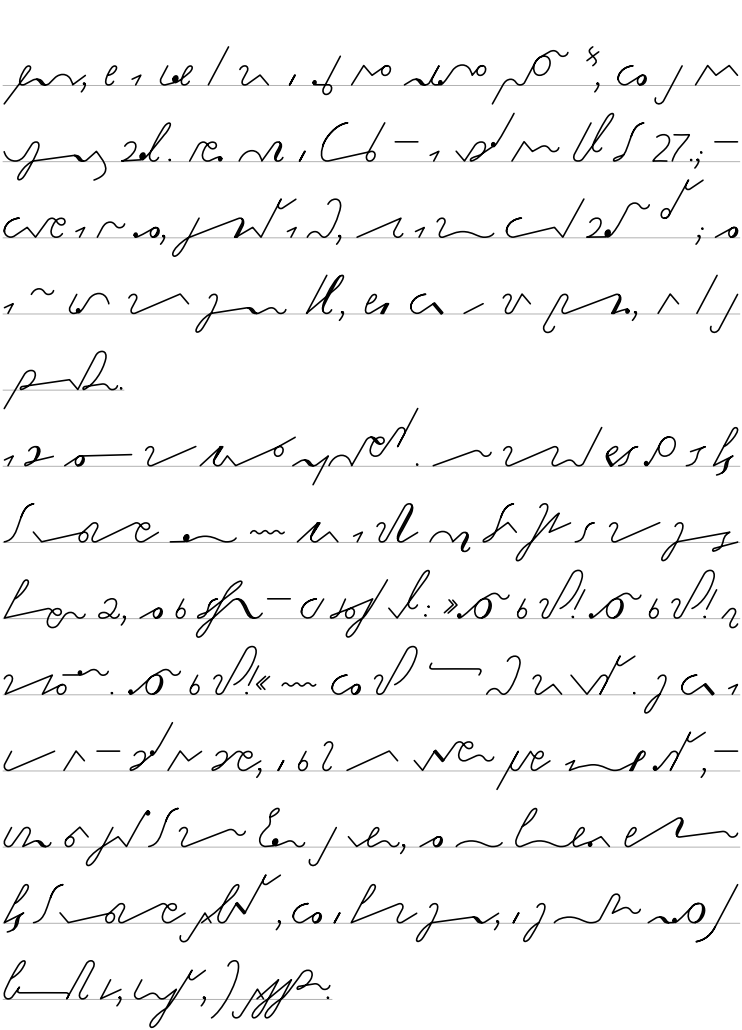


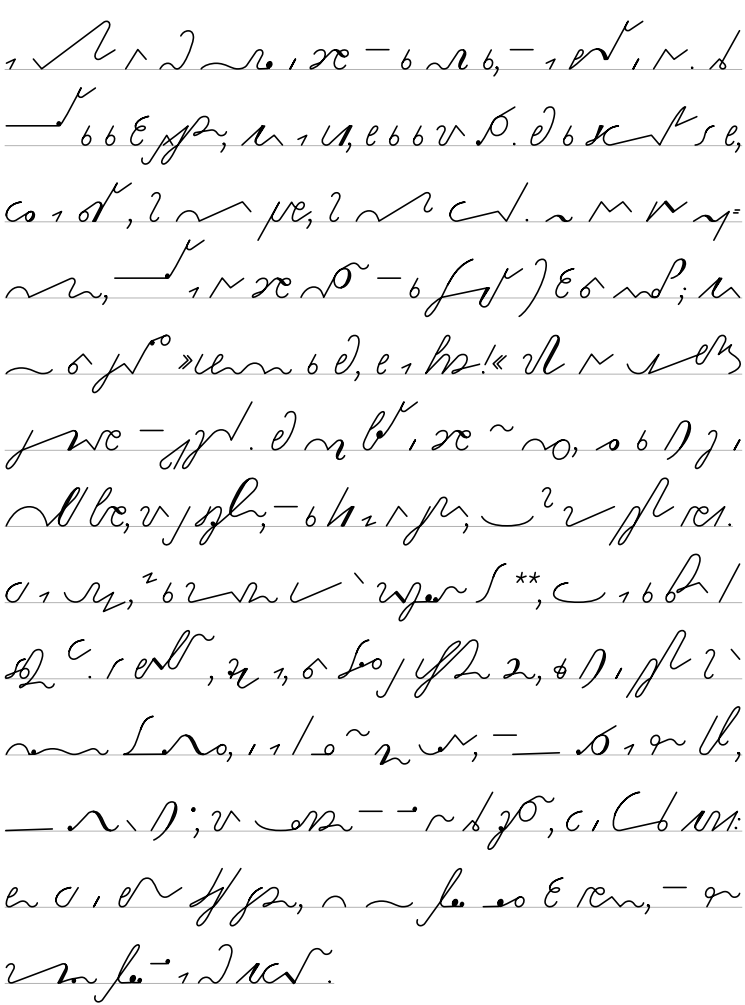


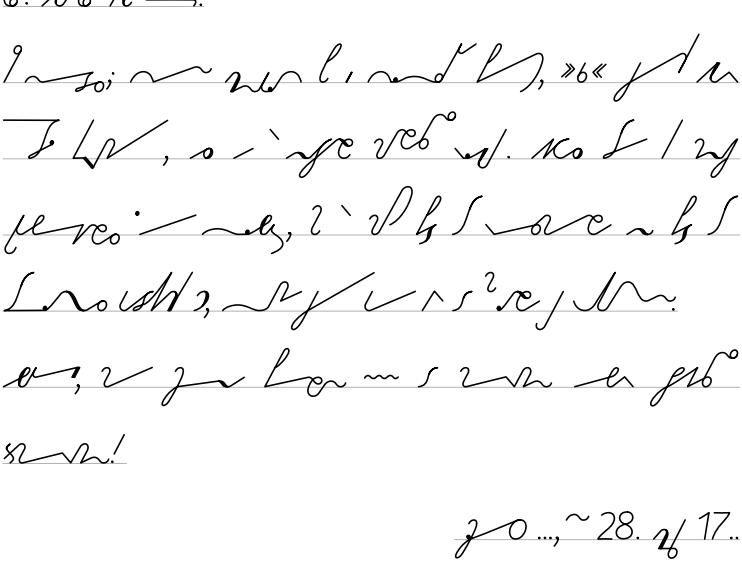


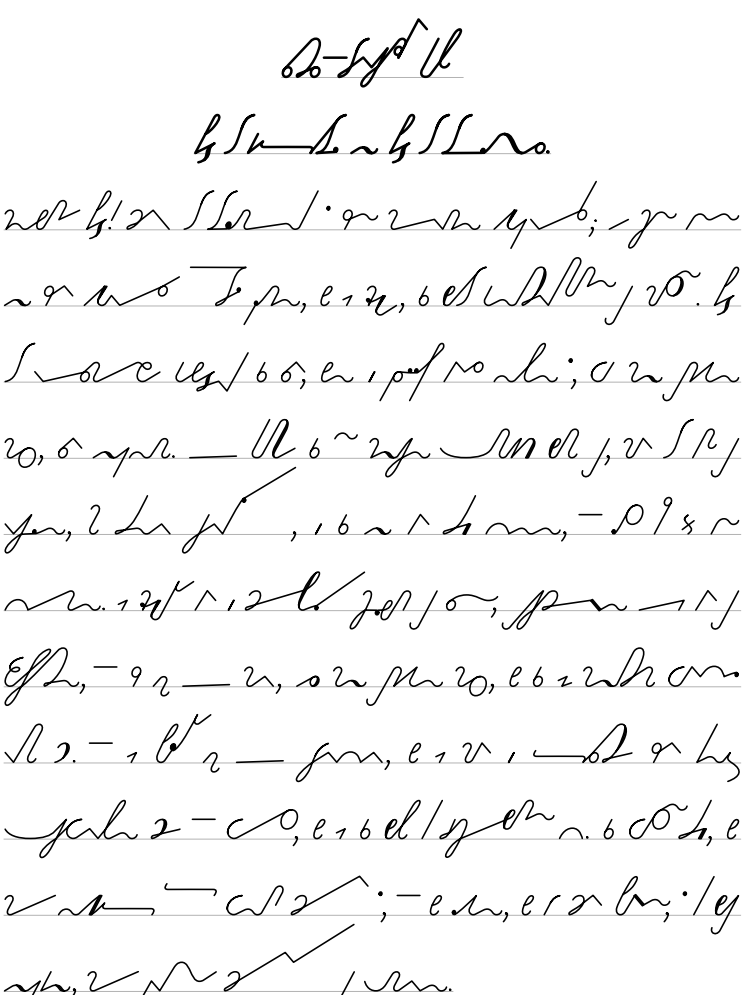












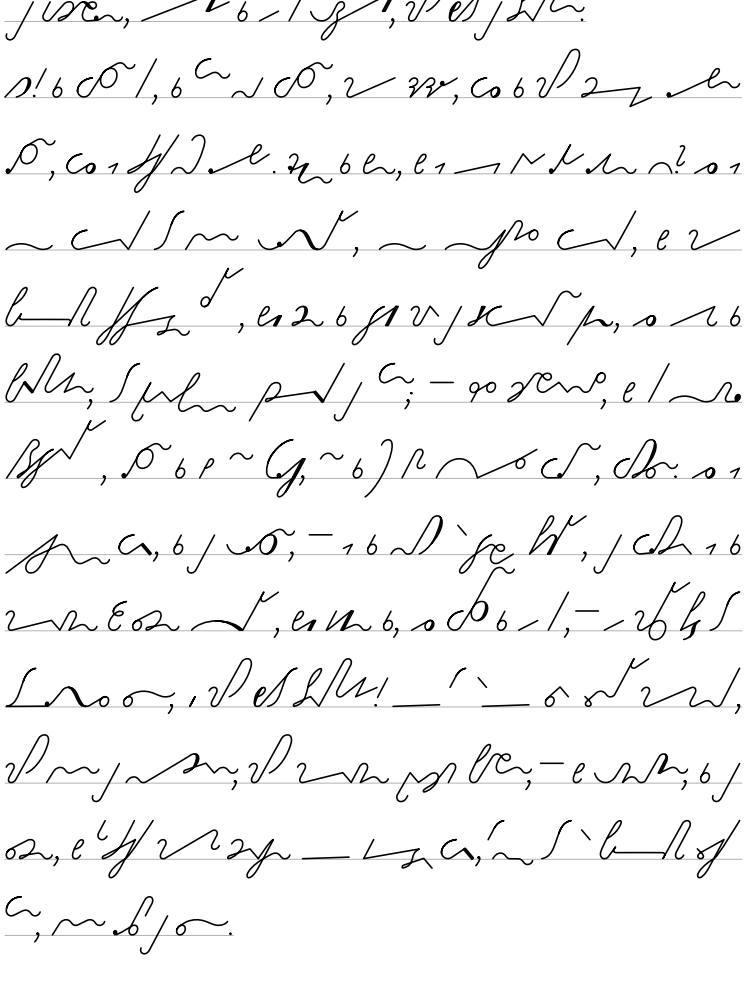
Chapter Seven

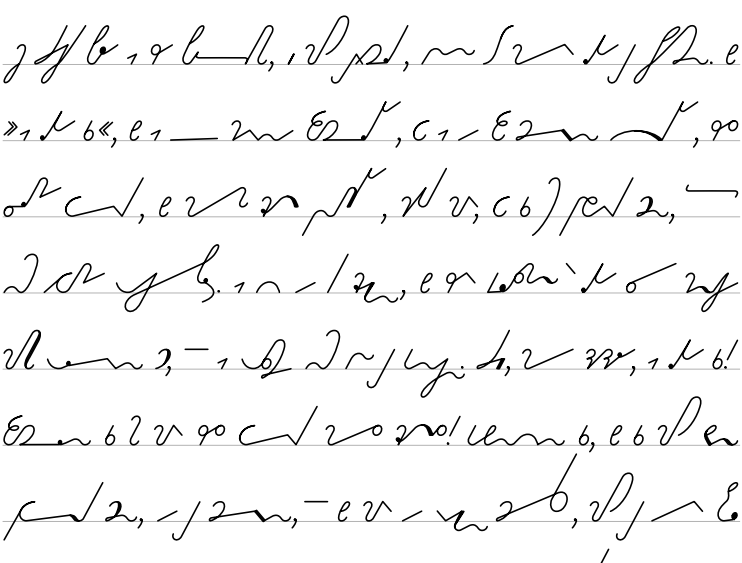
Governance and Law

The city council, a body of twenty-four members elected from the wards, met every Tuesday evening in the chamber above the market hall. Its powers were considerable: it levied taxes, regulated trade, maintained the streets, and appointed the officers who enforced its ordinances. The mayor presided over its meetings but could vote only to break a tie.

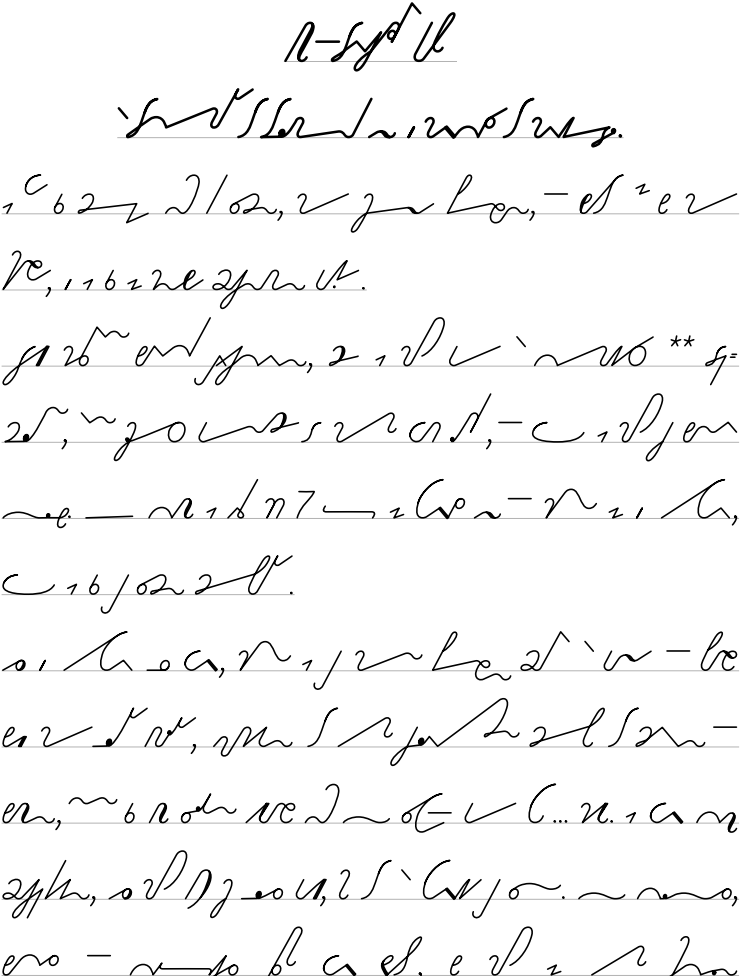
Disputes between citizens were heard in the court of the bailiff, who sat with a jury drawn by lot from the freeholders. Cases of theft, assault, and breach of contract were common; cases of treason were rare. The bailiff's court also recorded deeds and mortgages, and its clerk kept the only reliable register of property in the city.

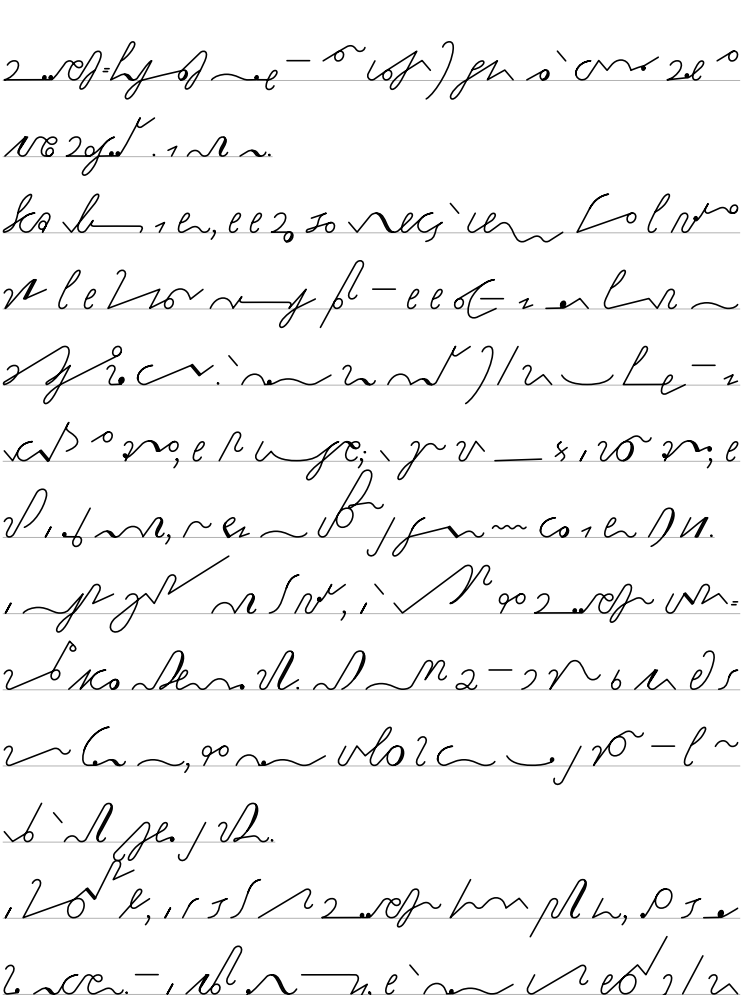
Appeals from the bailiff's court went to the county court, which sat four times a year. Beyond that lay the royal courts, to which only the wealthy could afford to carry a case. The fees were set by statute, but the statute was old and the fees had risen with the cost of parchment and ink.

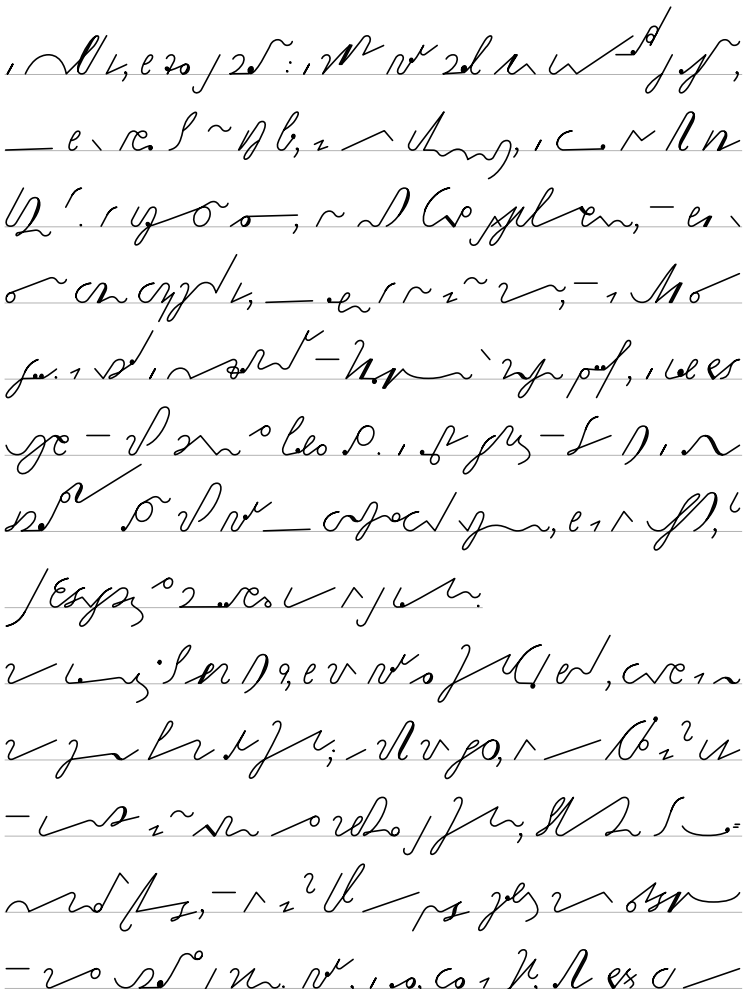


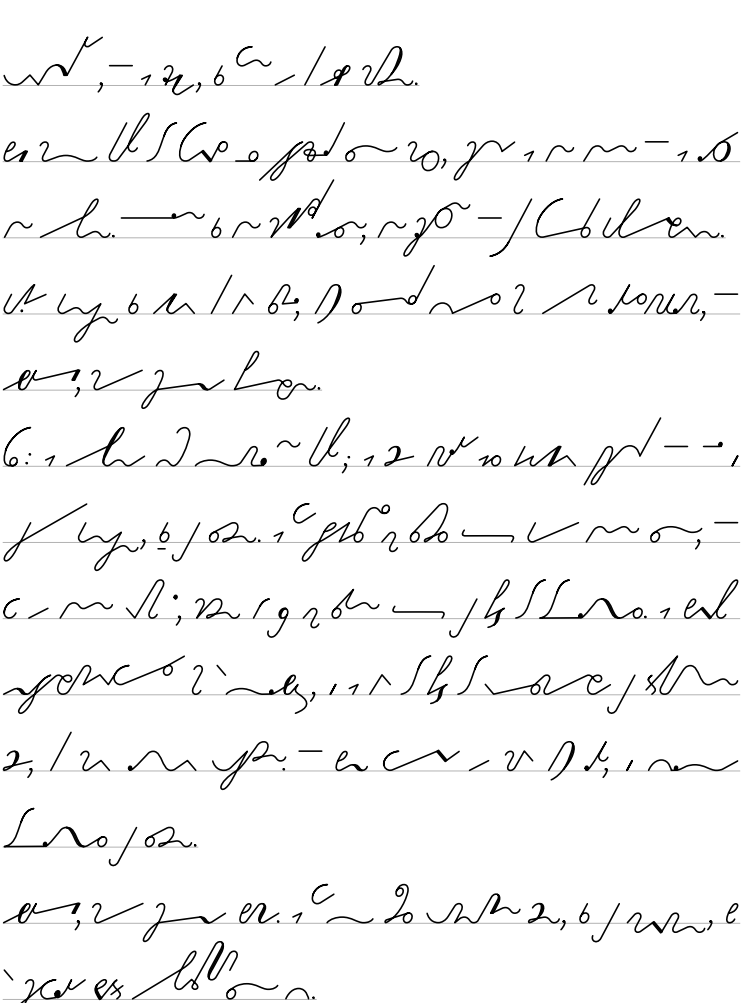


29. 17..

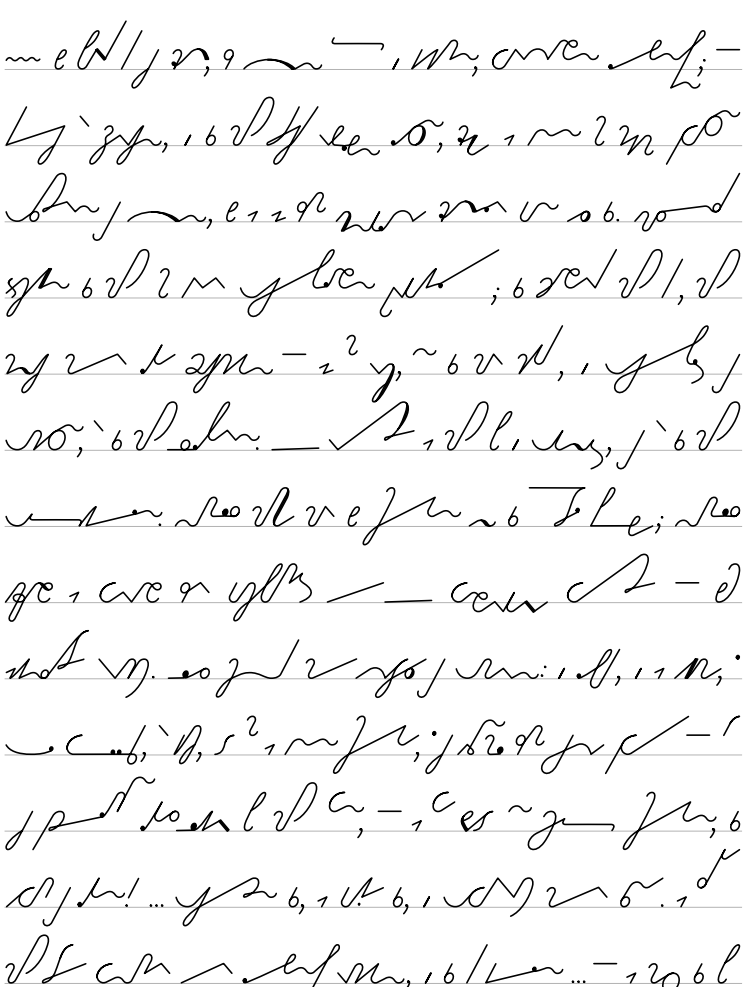


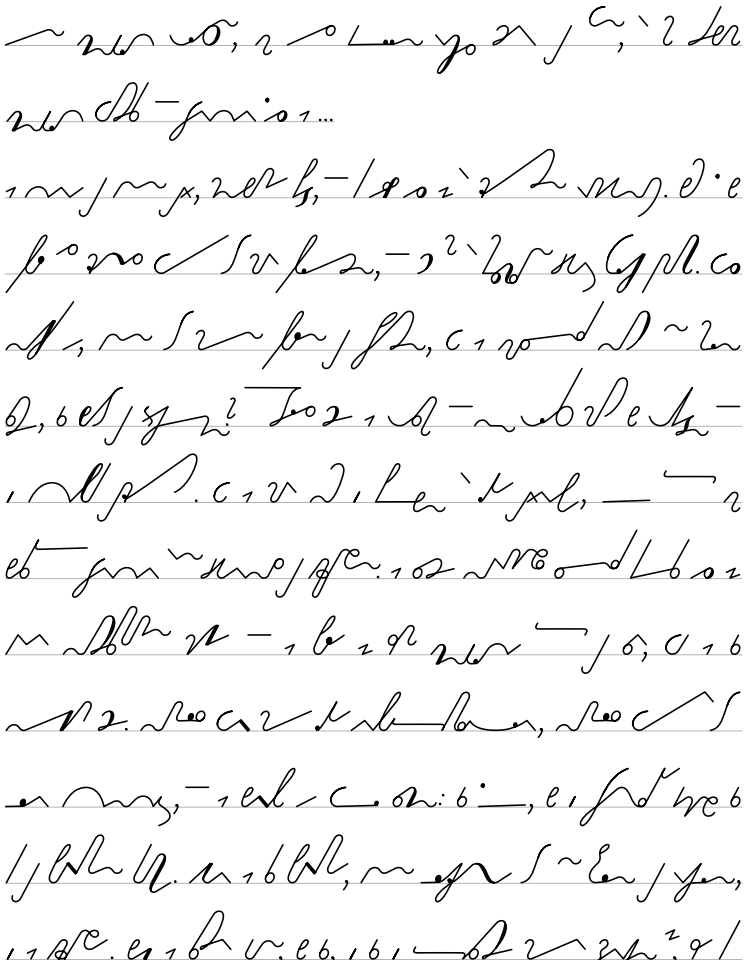


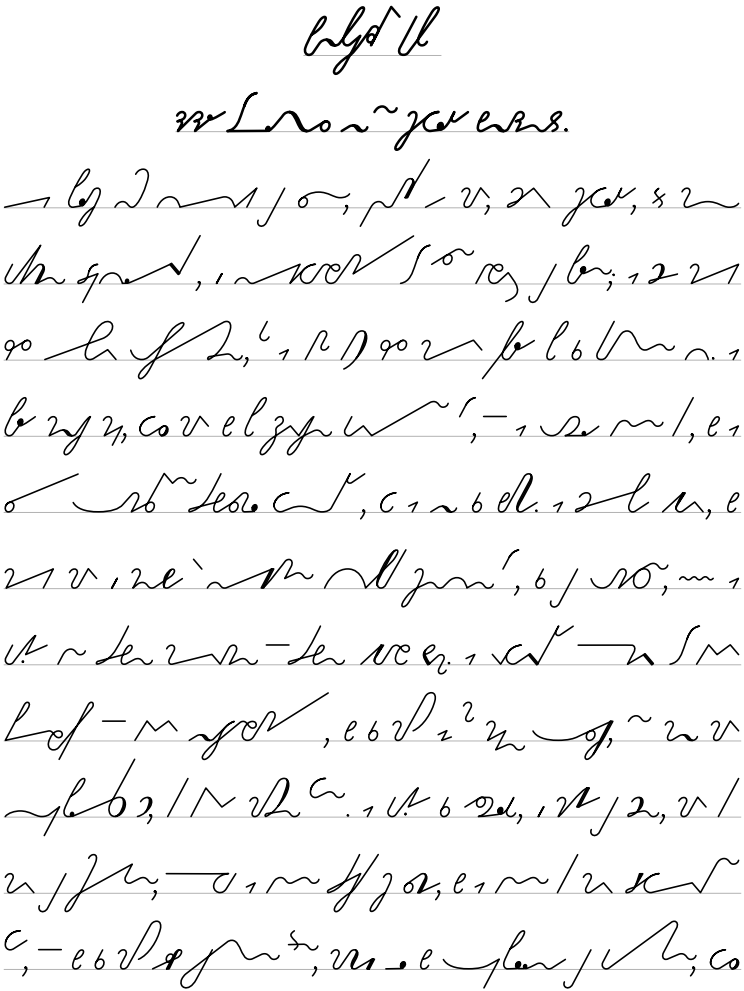


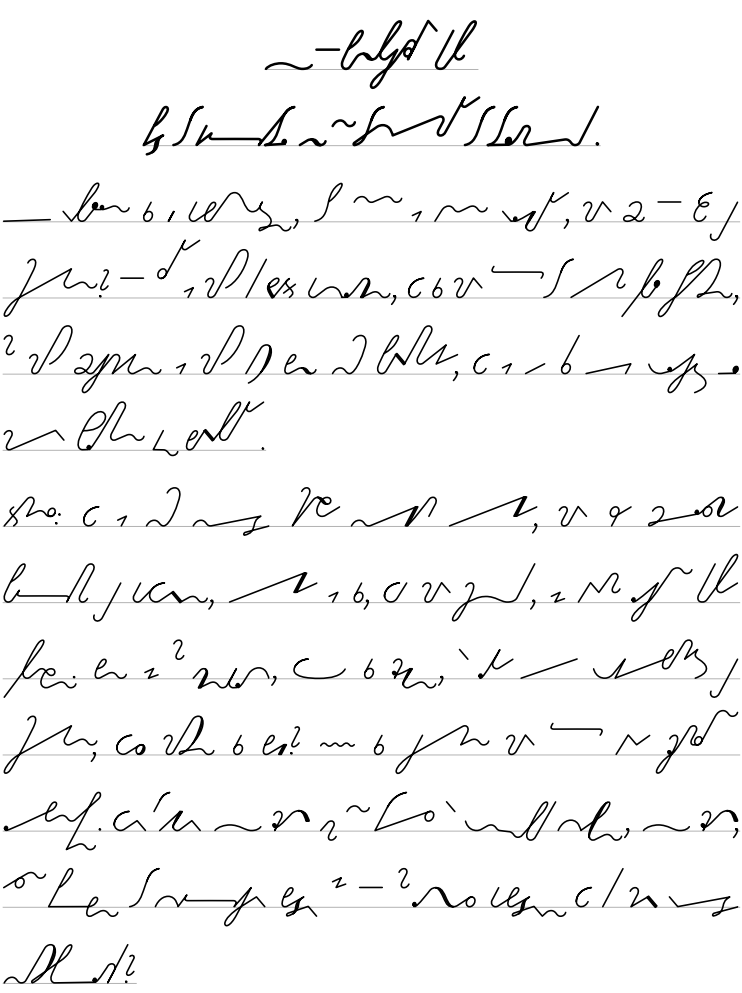


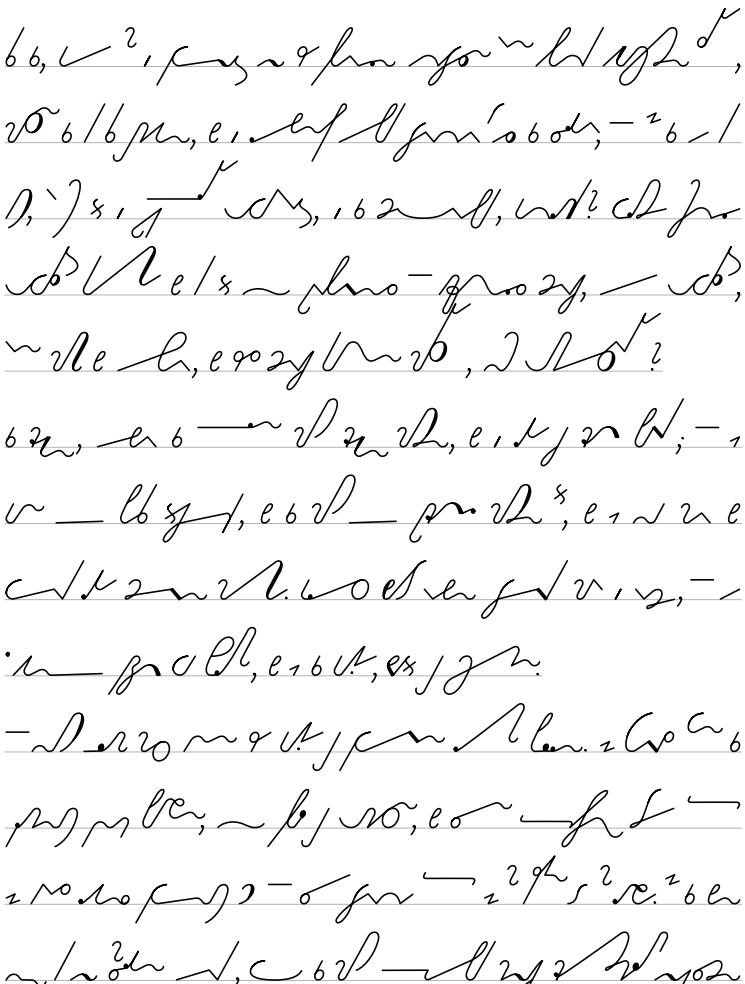
C..., ~30. 4/6 17..

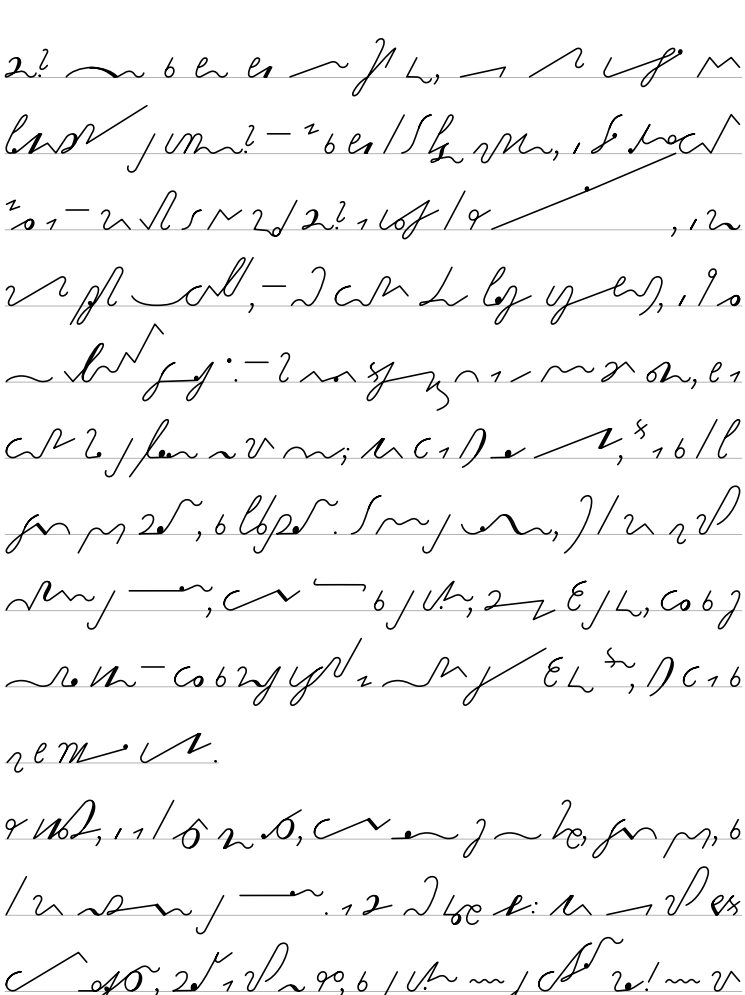


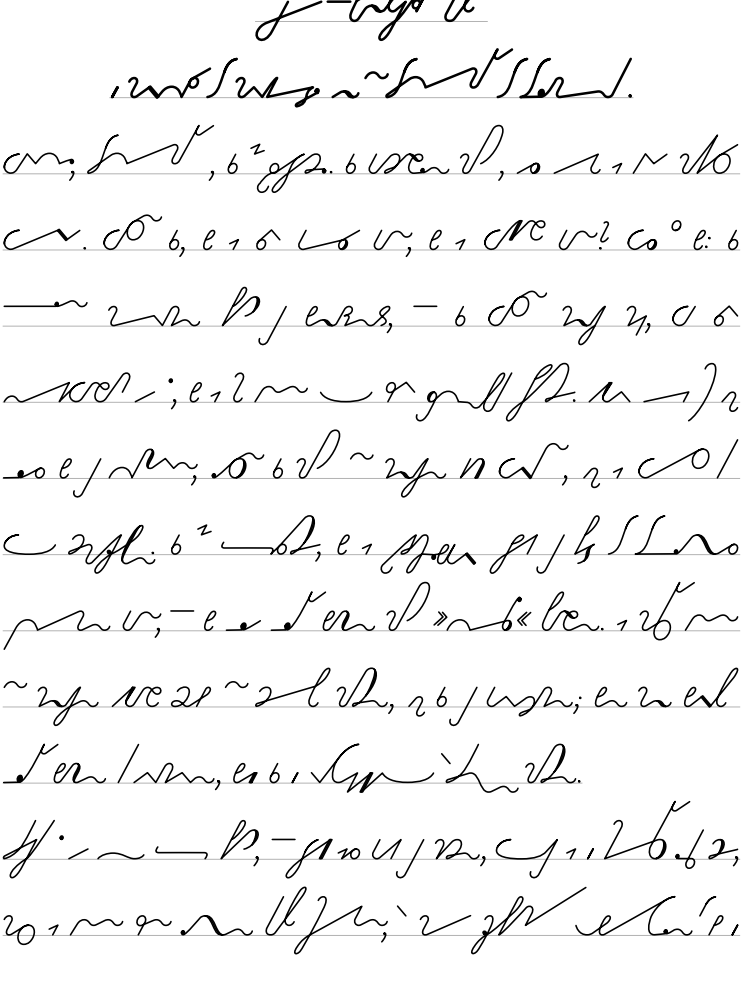


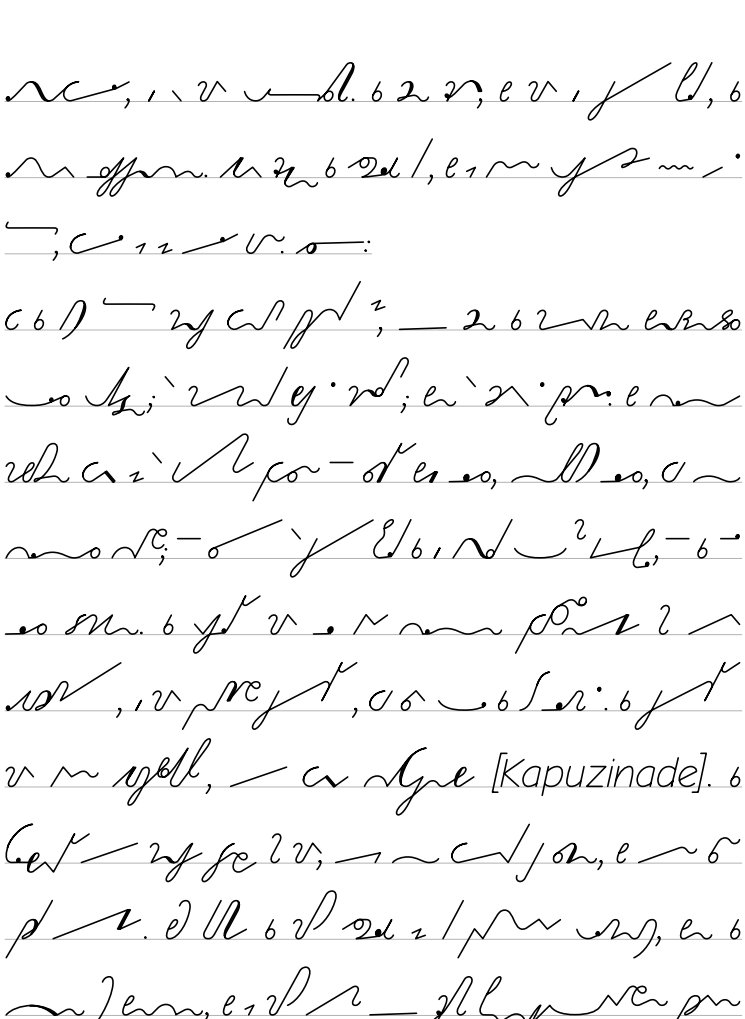




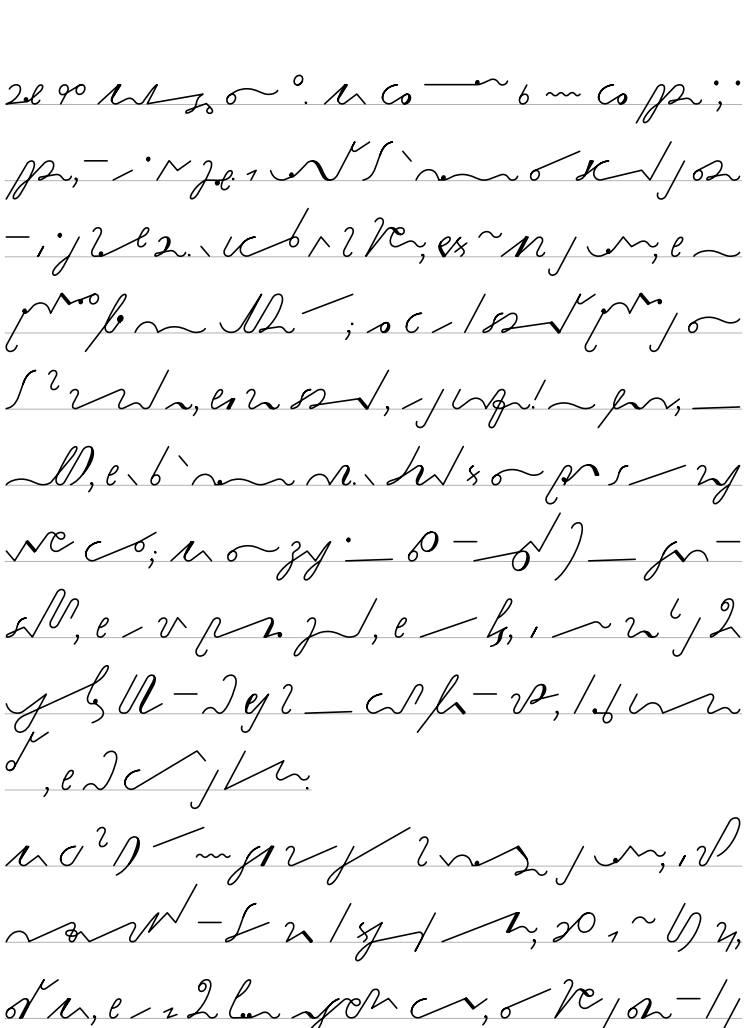


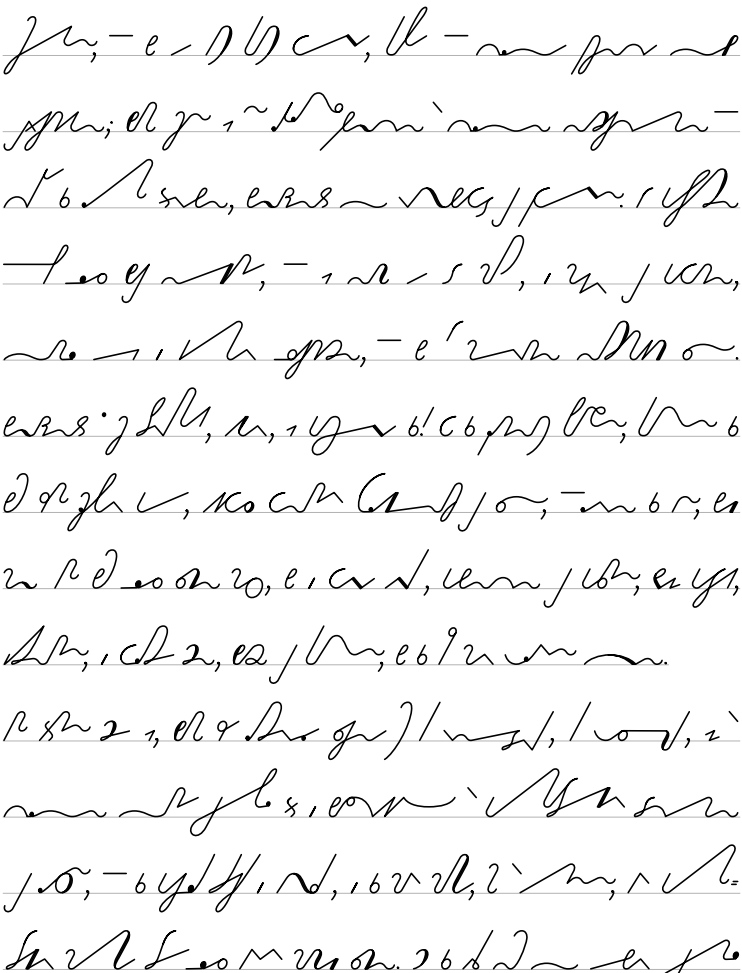


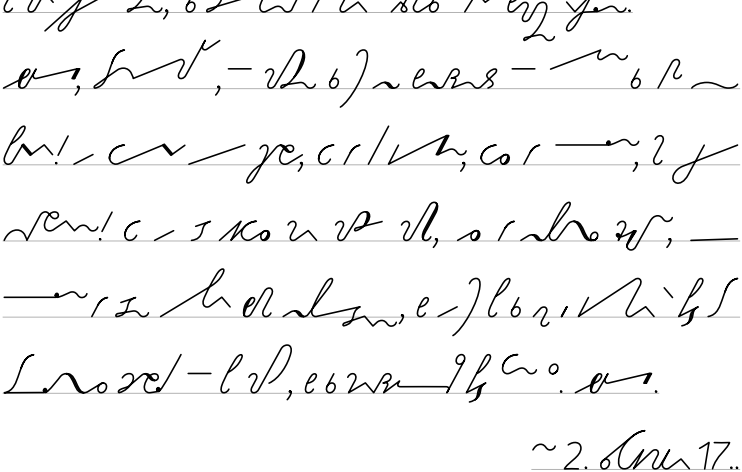


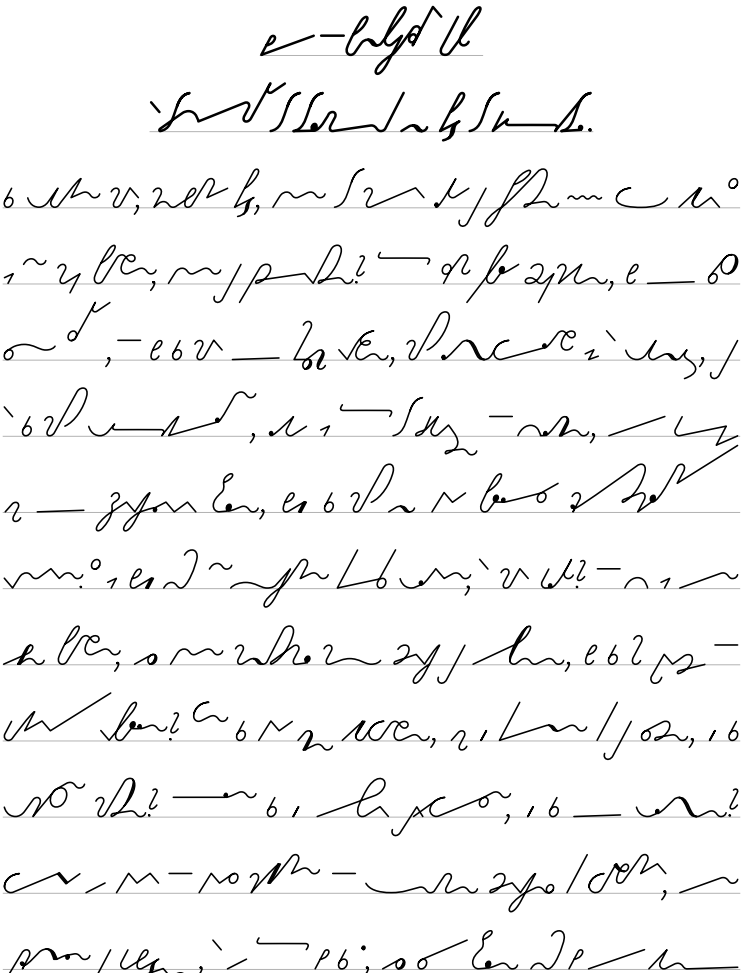


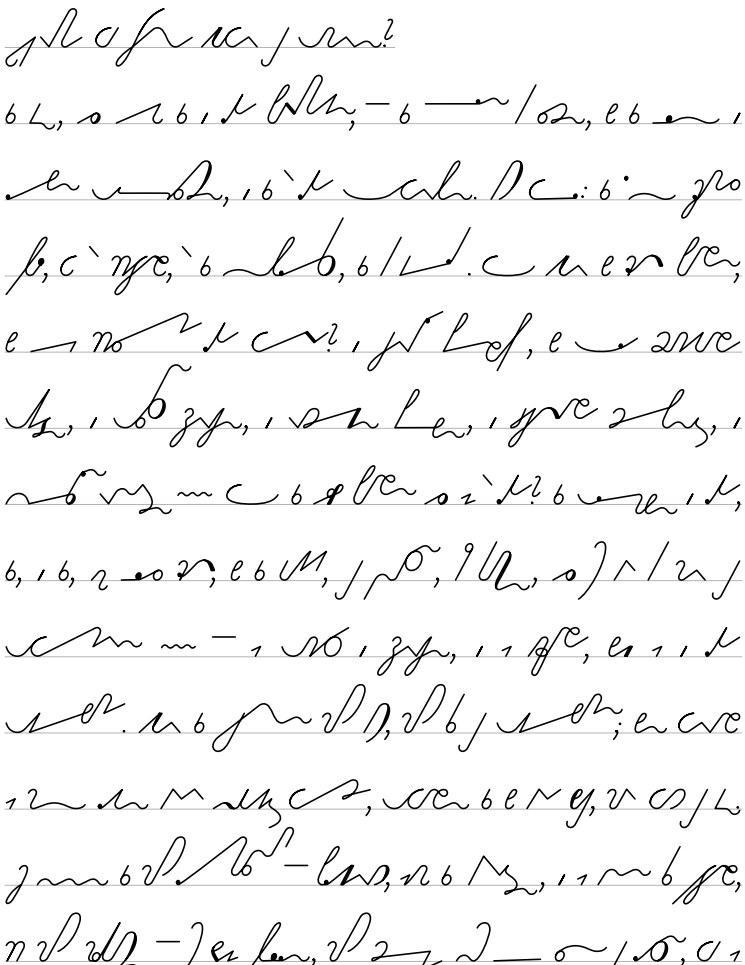
[Kapuzinade]

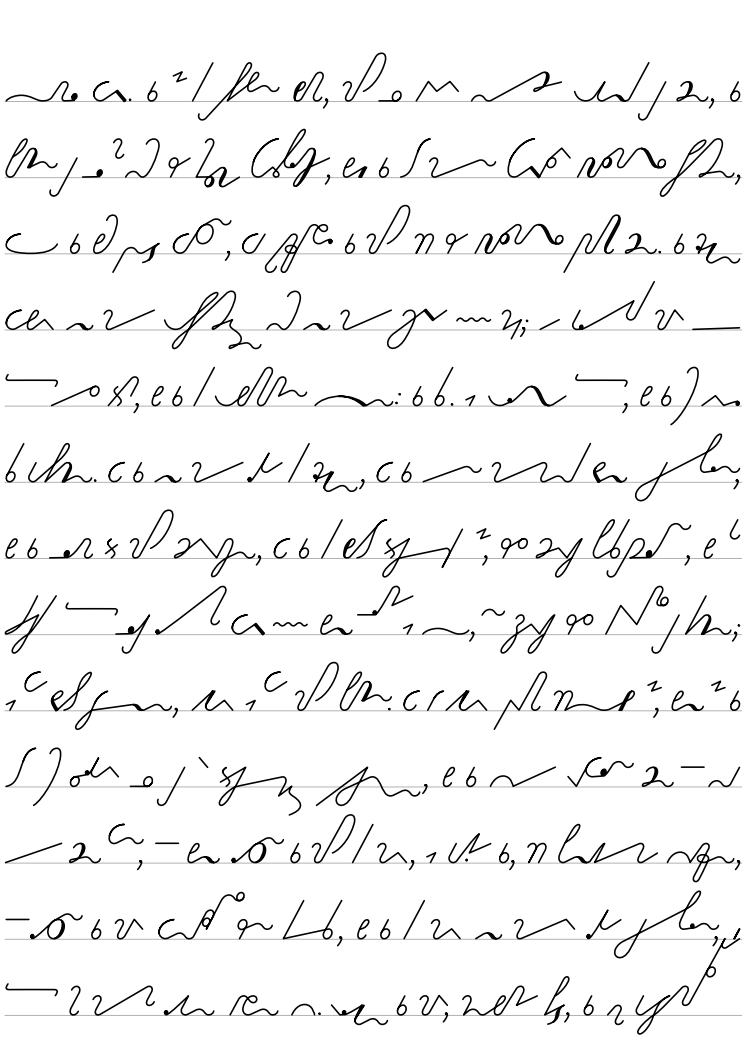


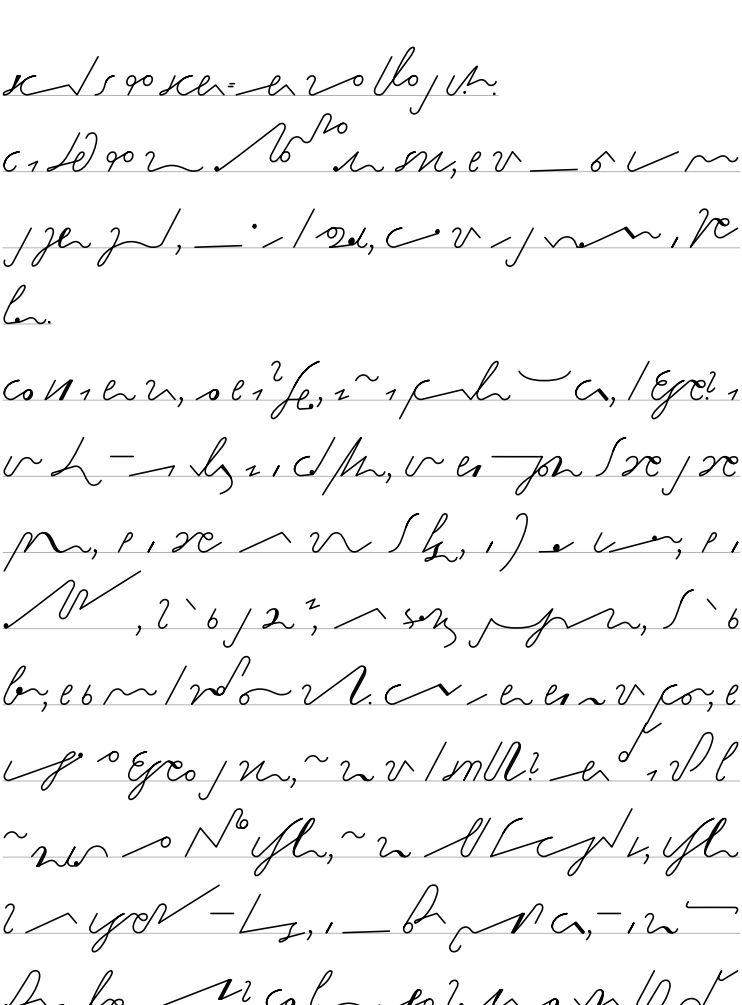


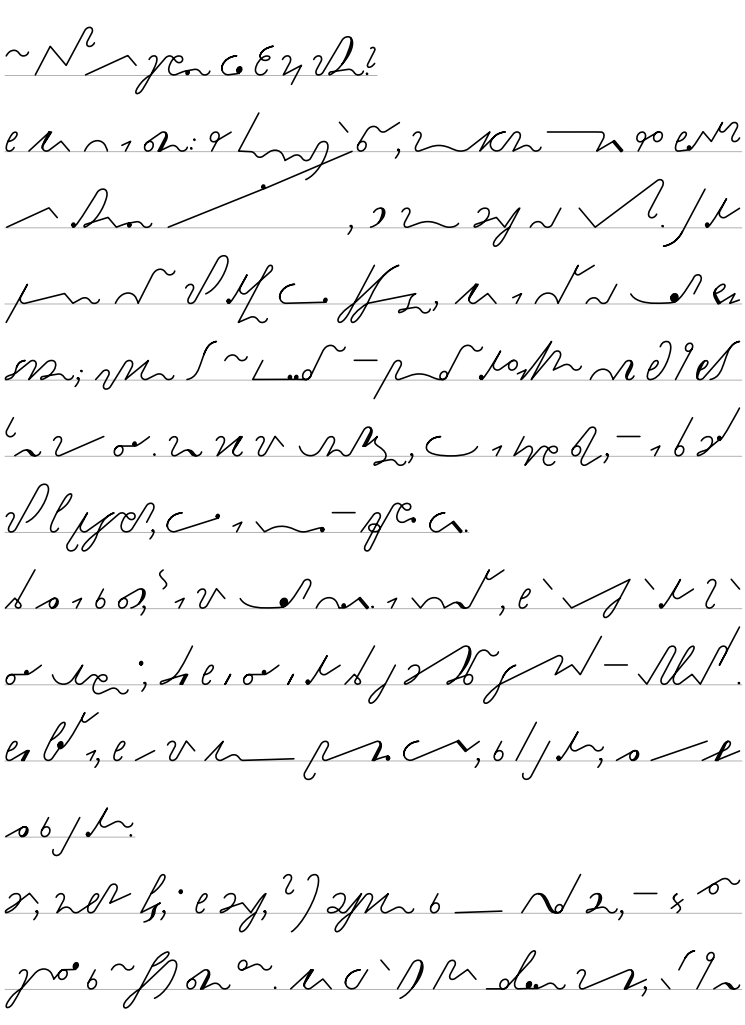


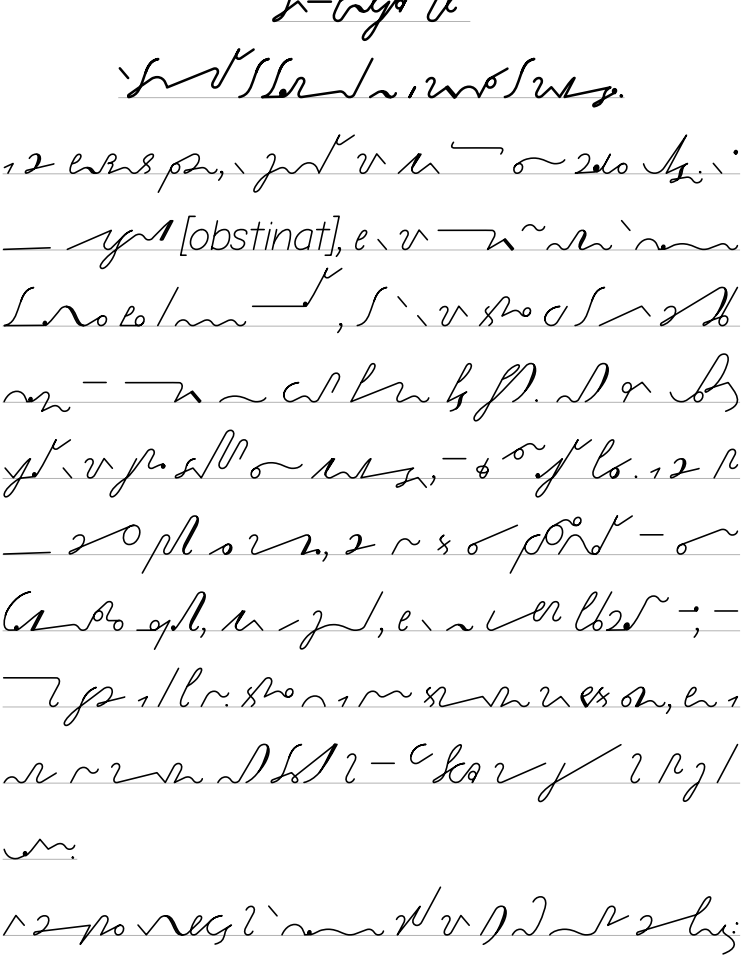




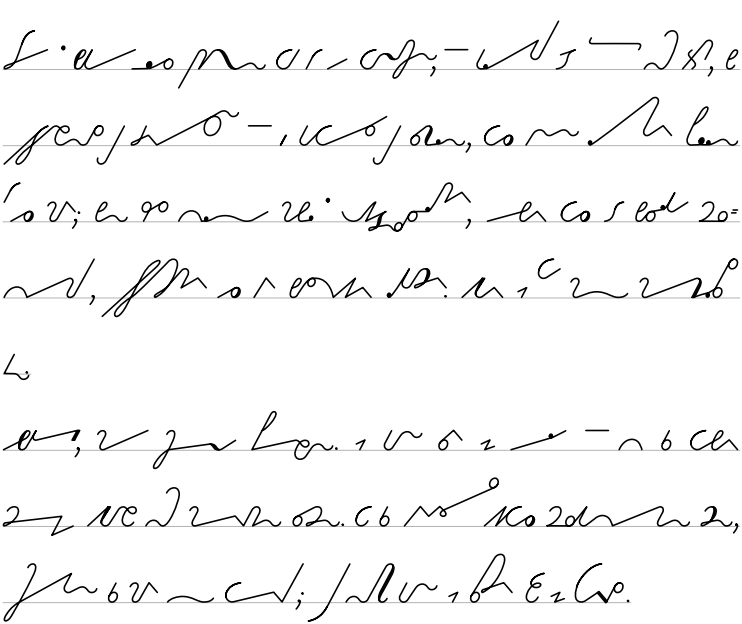


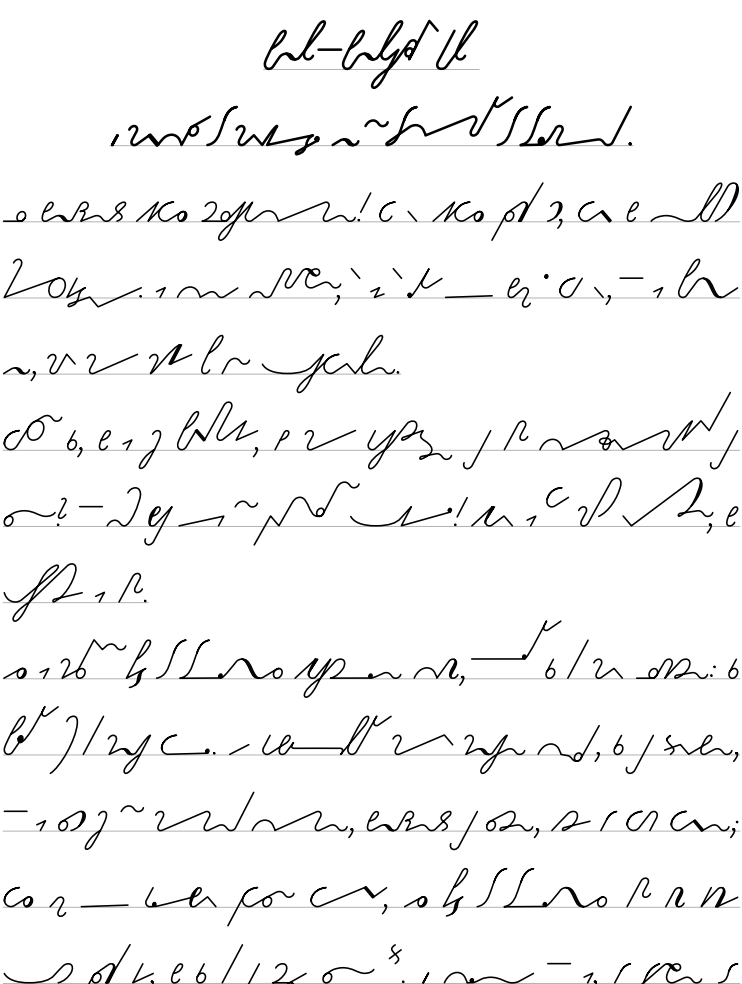


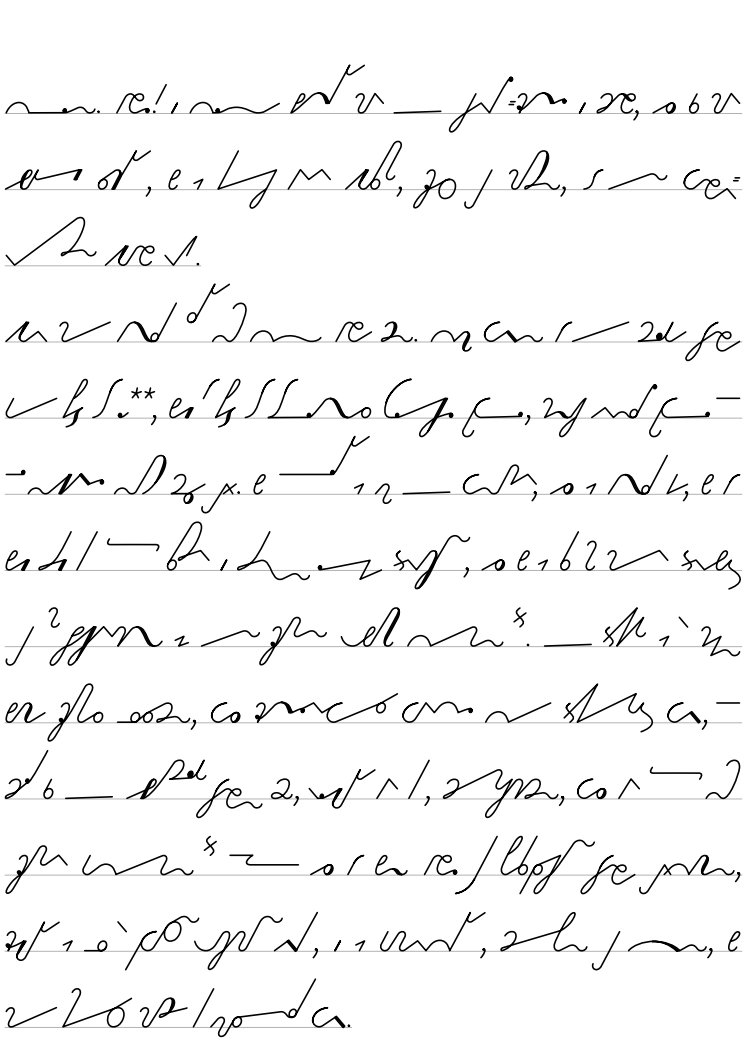


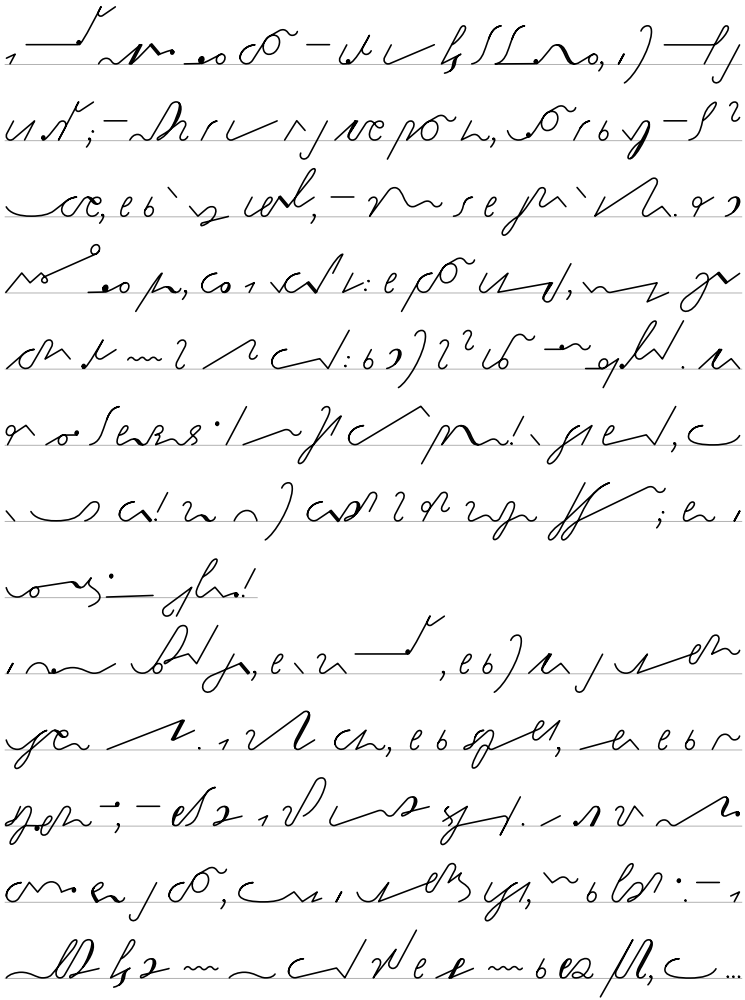


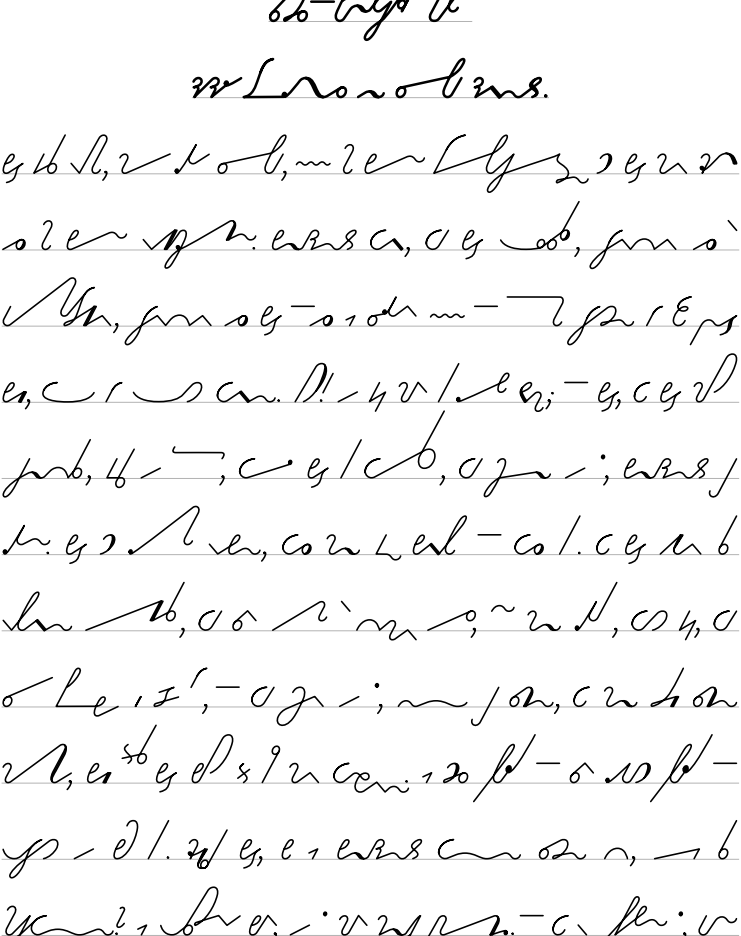
[obstinat],

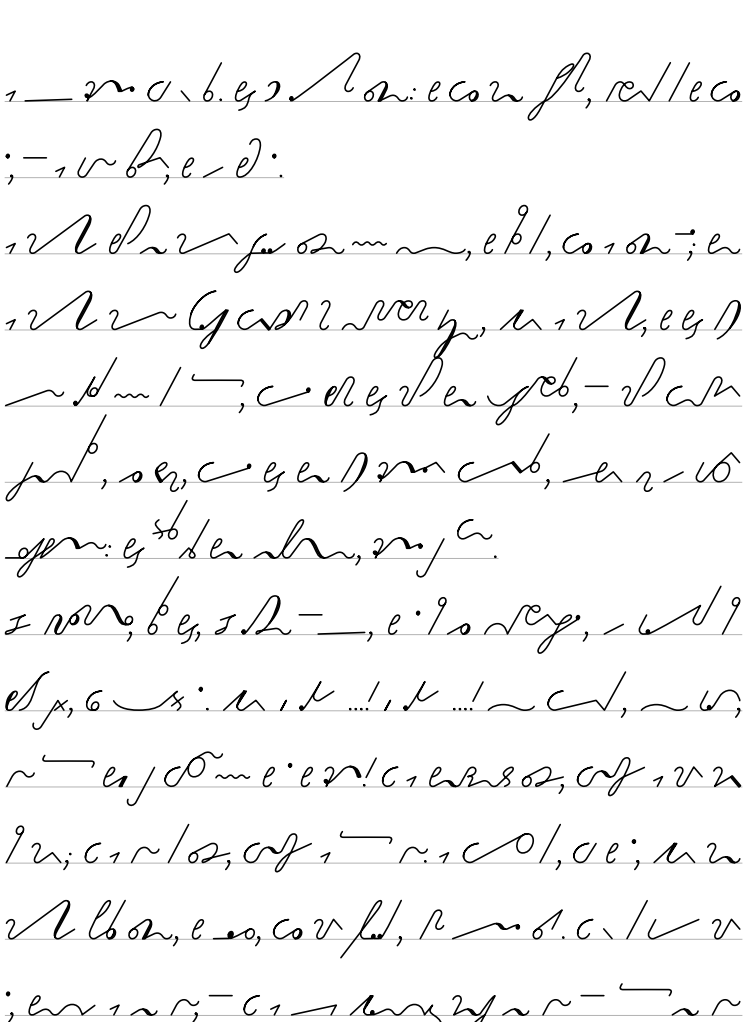


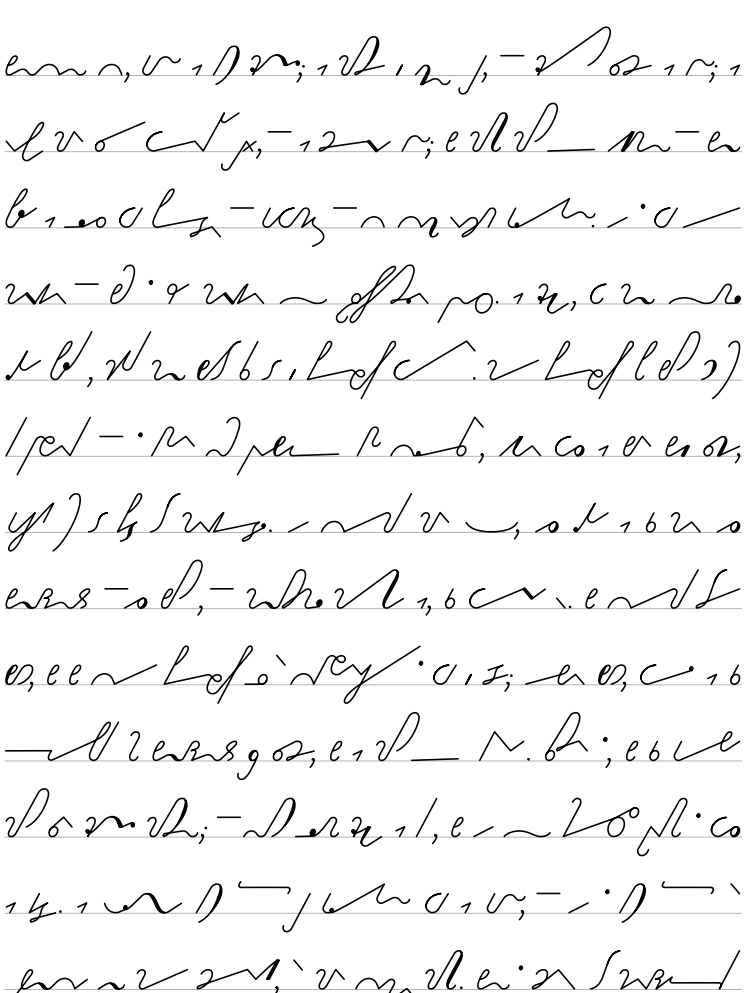












—, a n v d, – , f b n / e n, c o ' e n . v c n !! e – ; r o b , 2 d n 2 / .

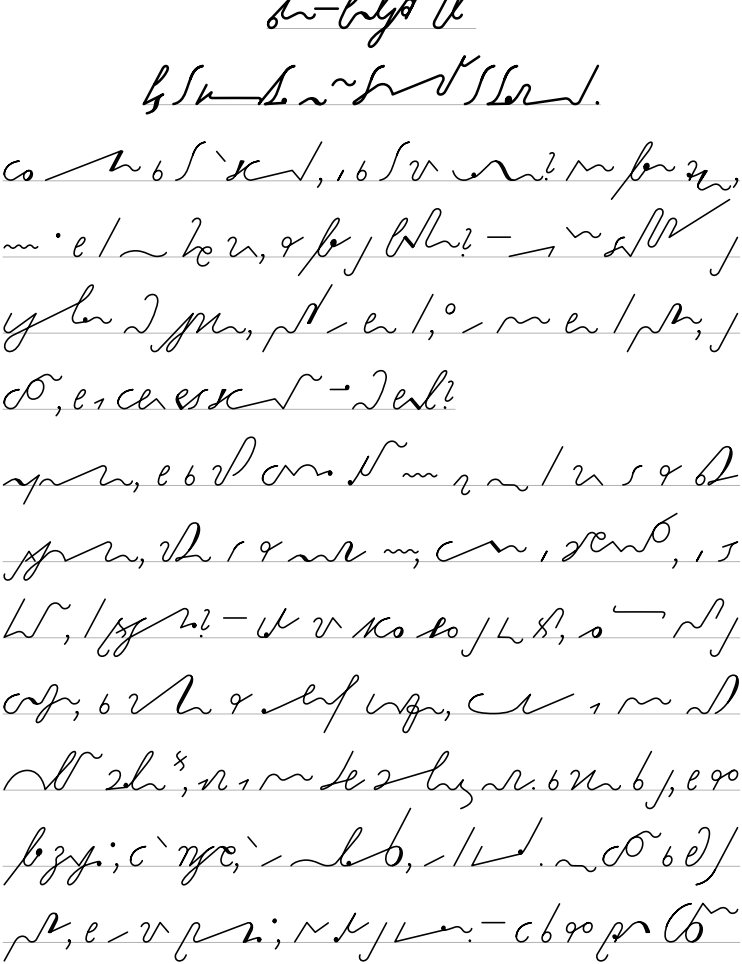
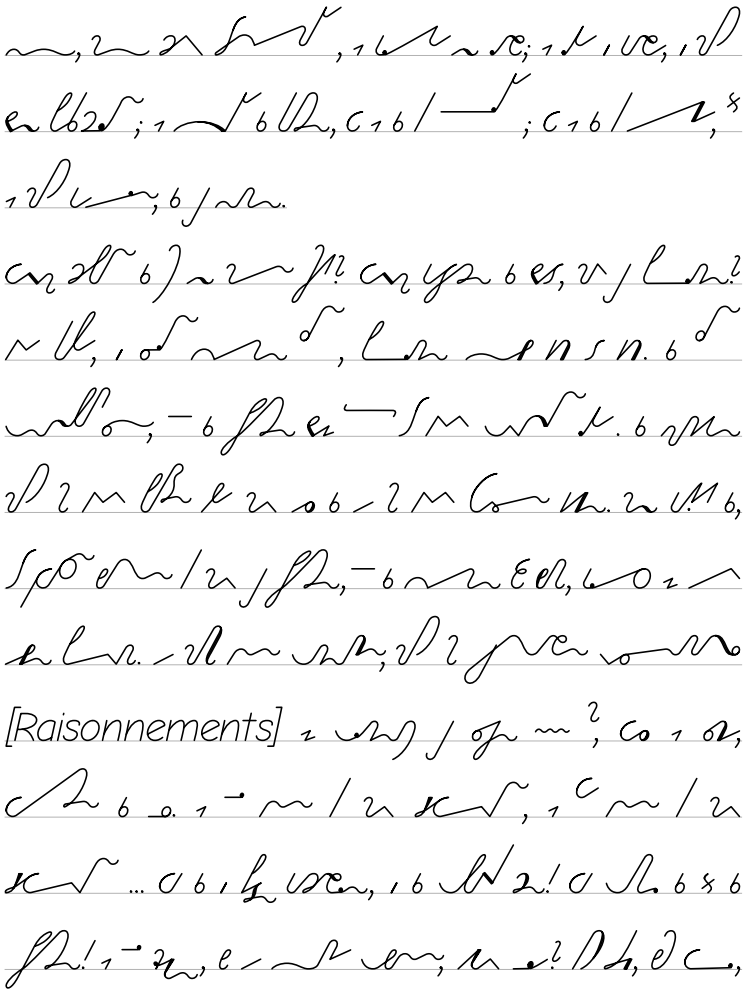
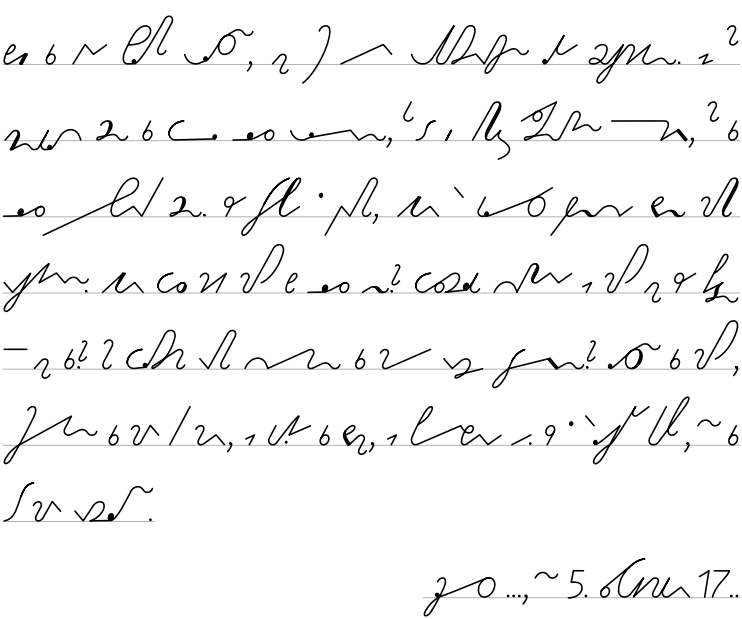
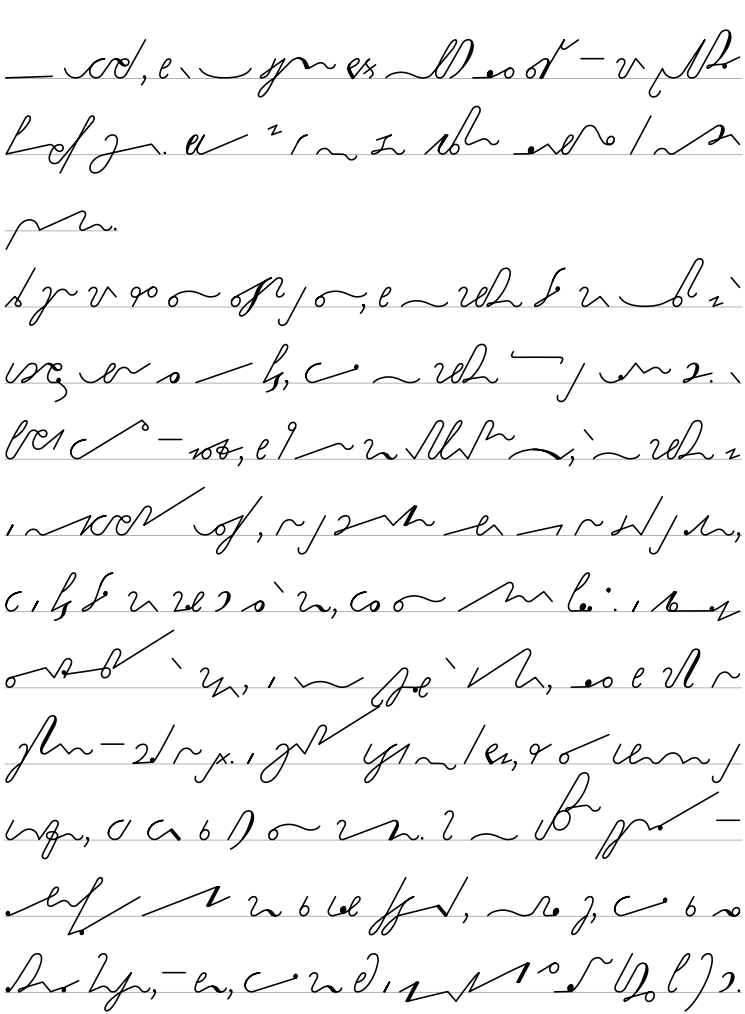
C v ; ~ 4. b n n 17 ..

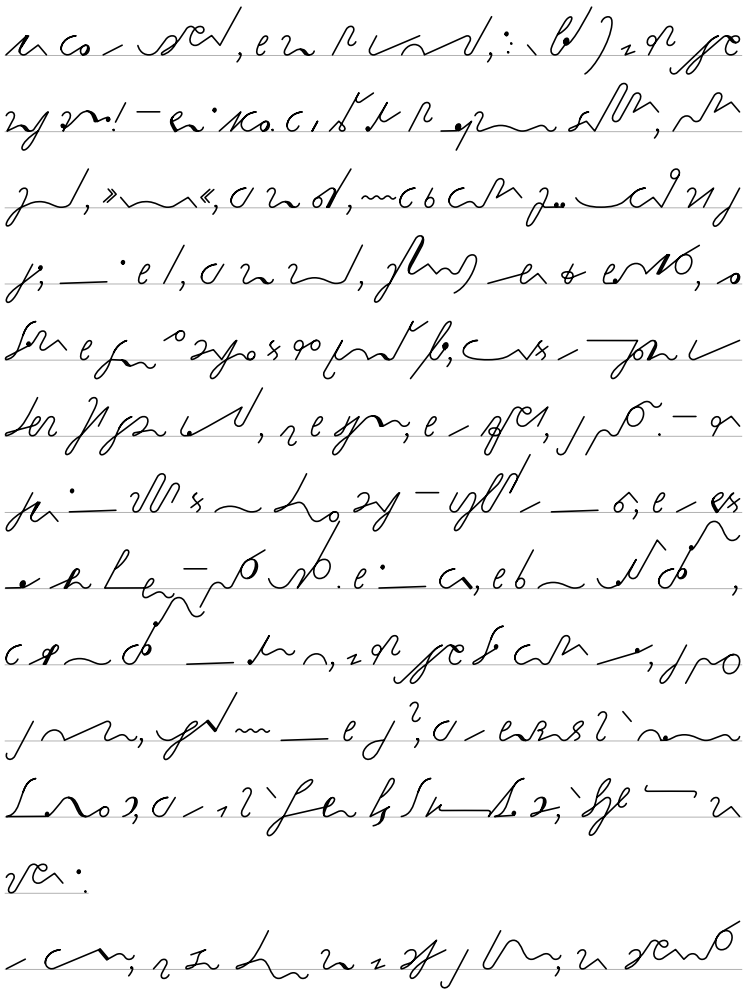


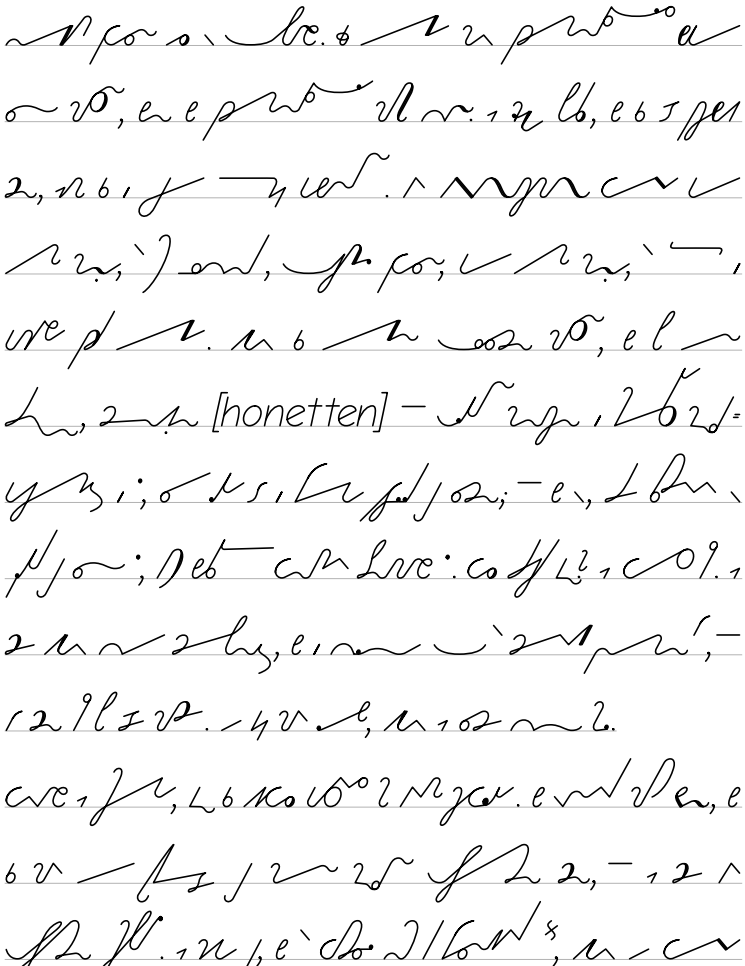


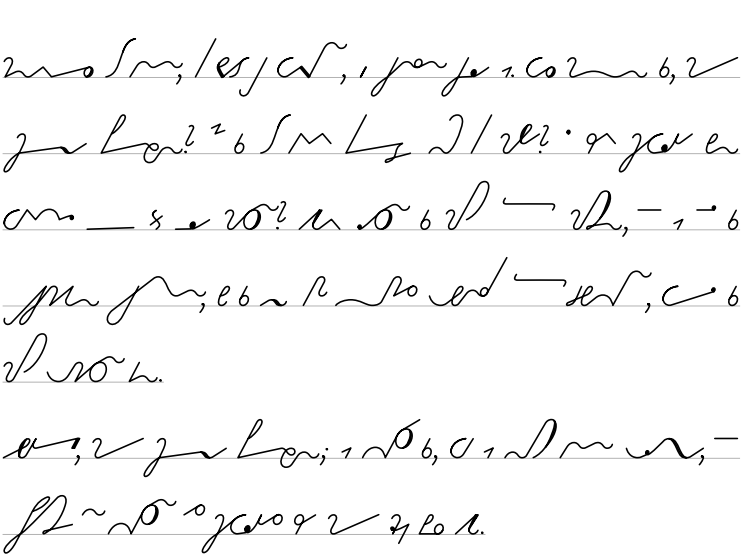
[Raisonnements]



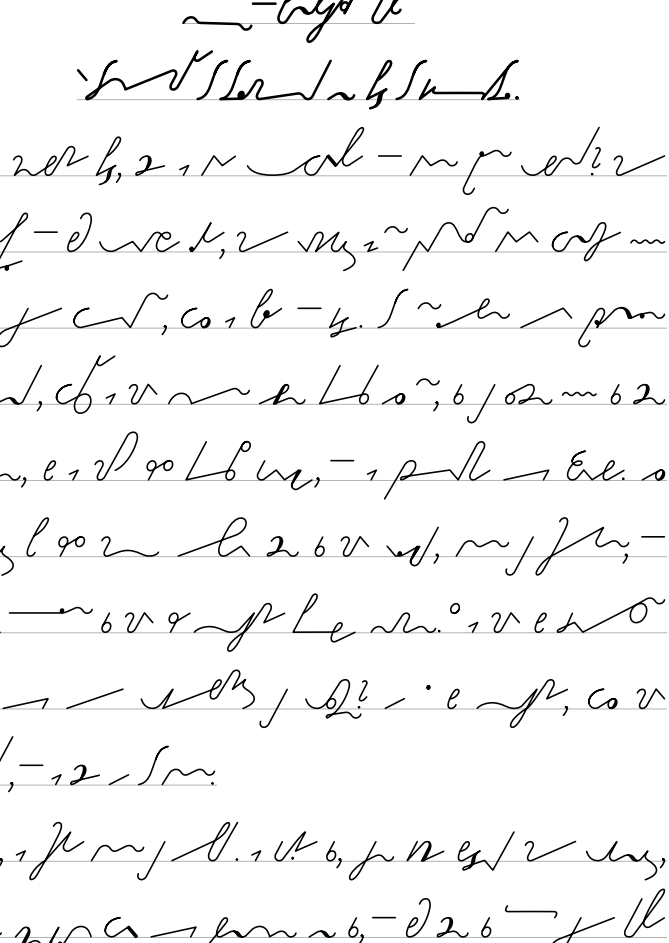


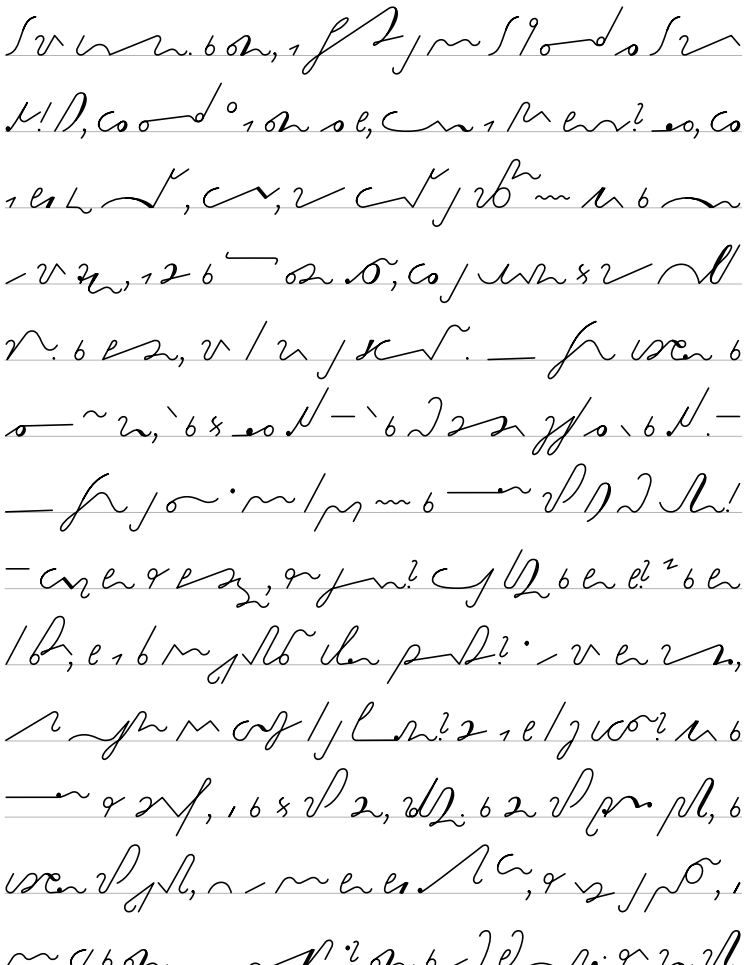


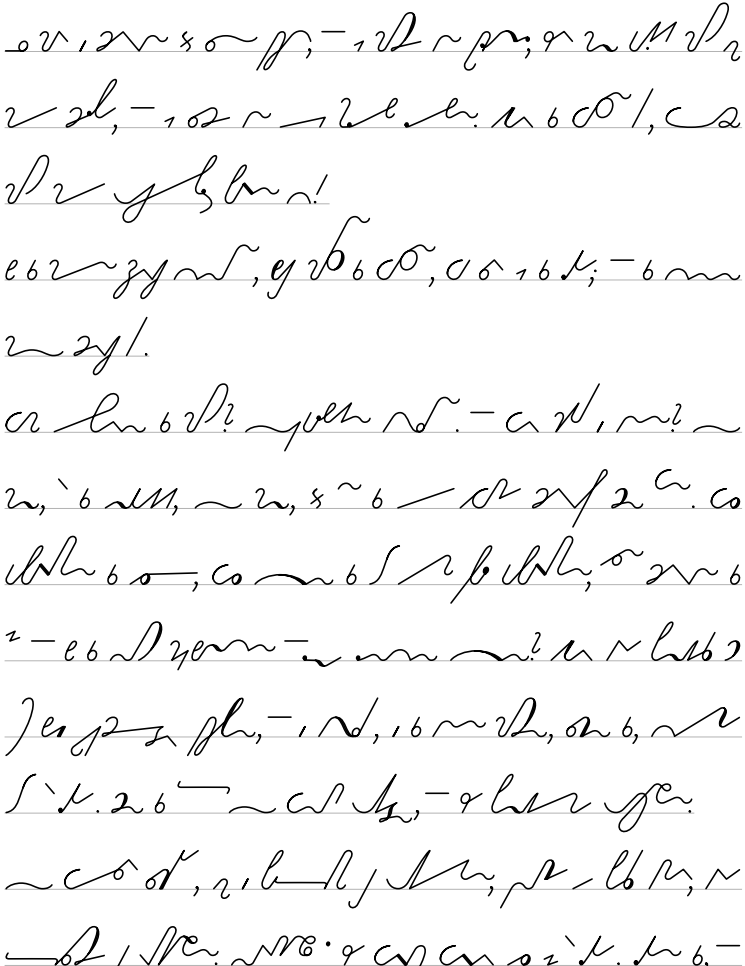


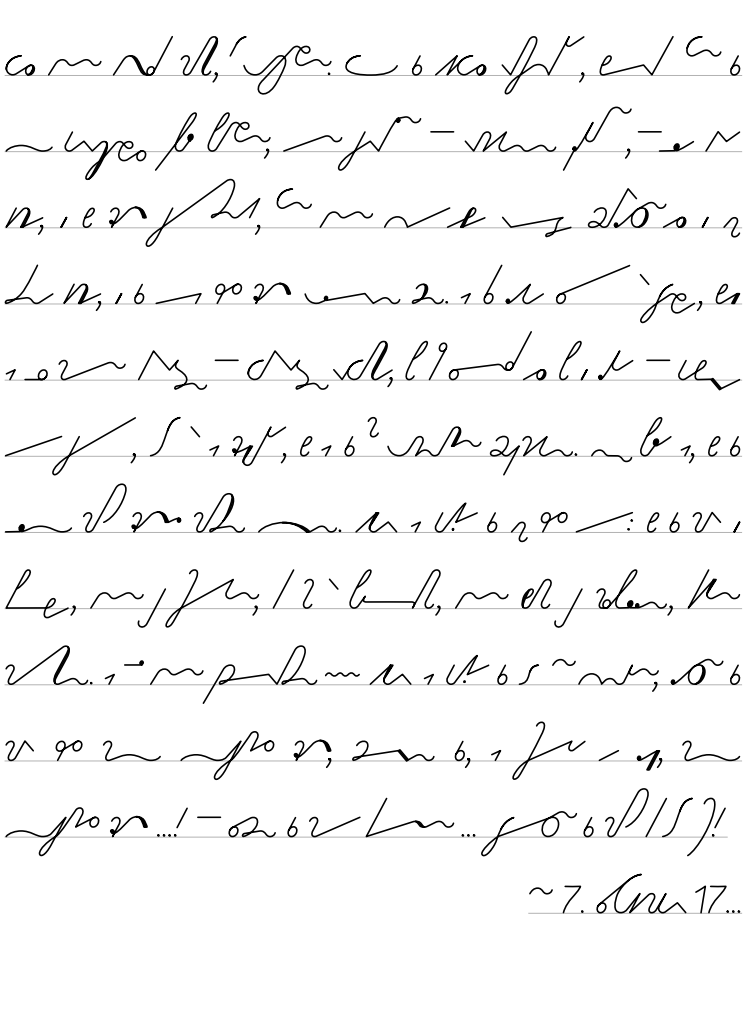


...,~ 5. 6 17...

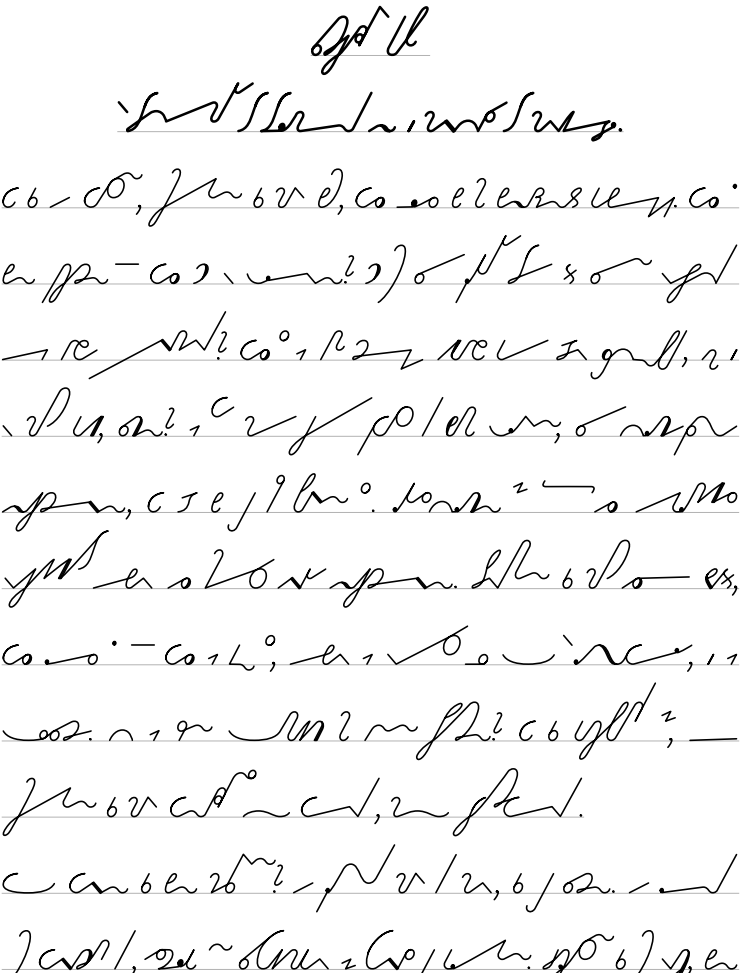


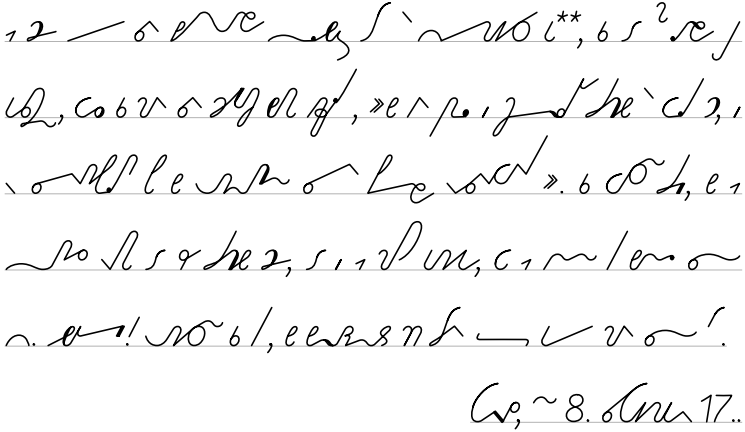


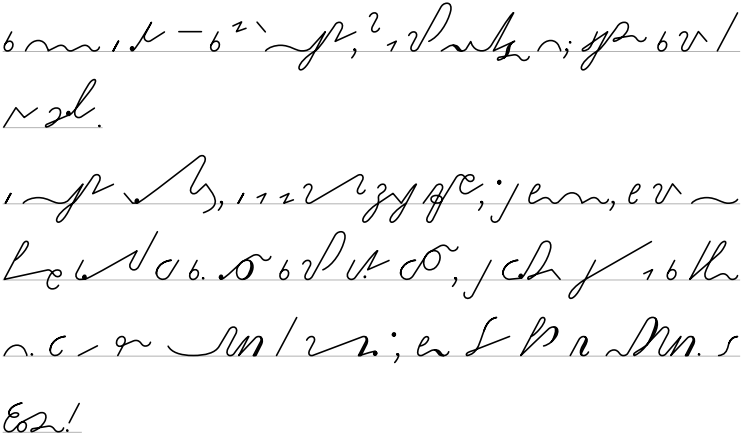




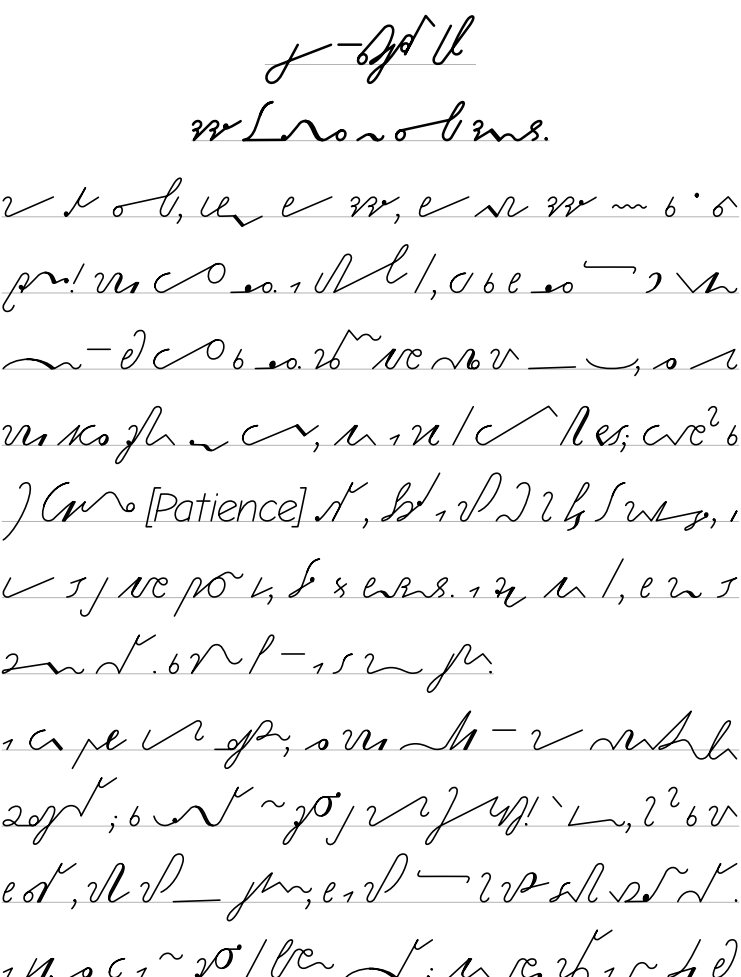
~7. Dez 17...

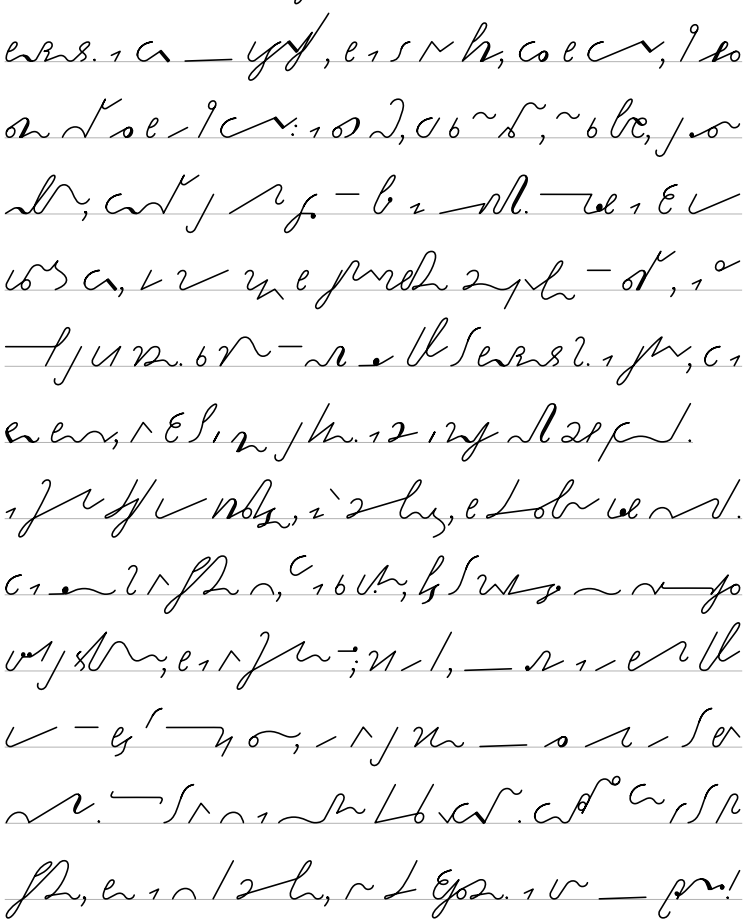


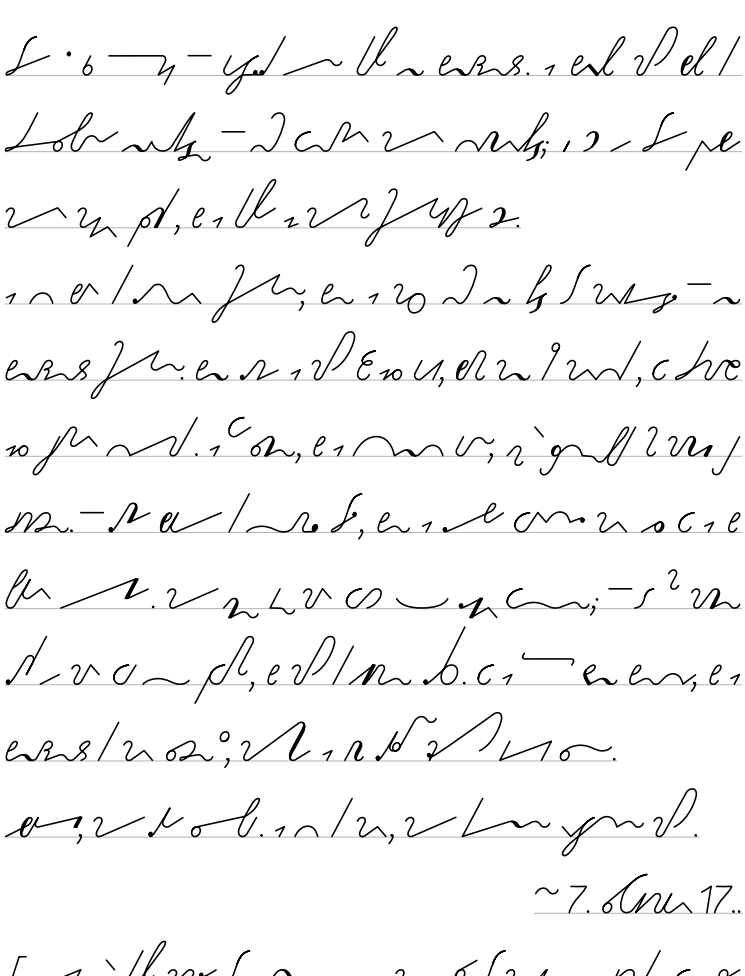


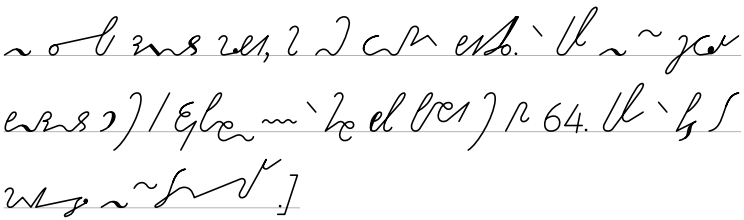


~ 8. Juni 17..



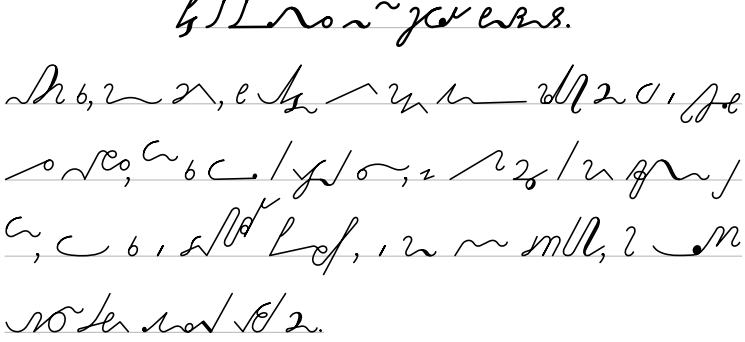


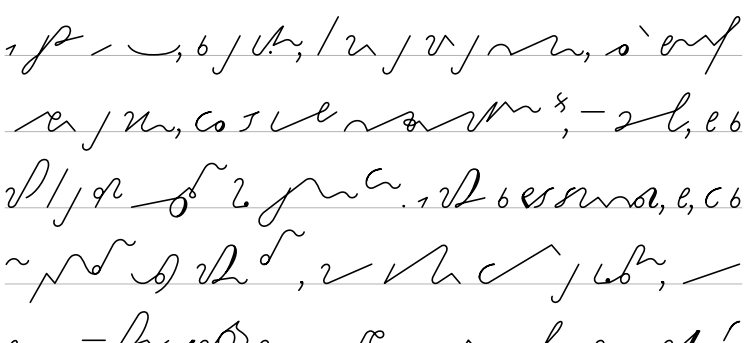


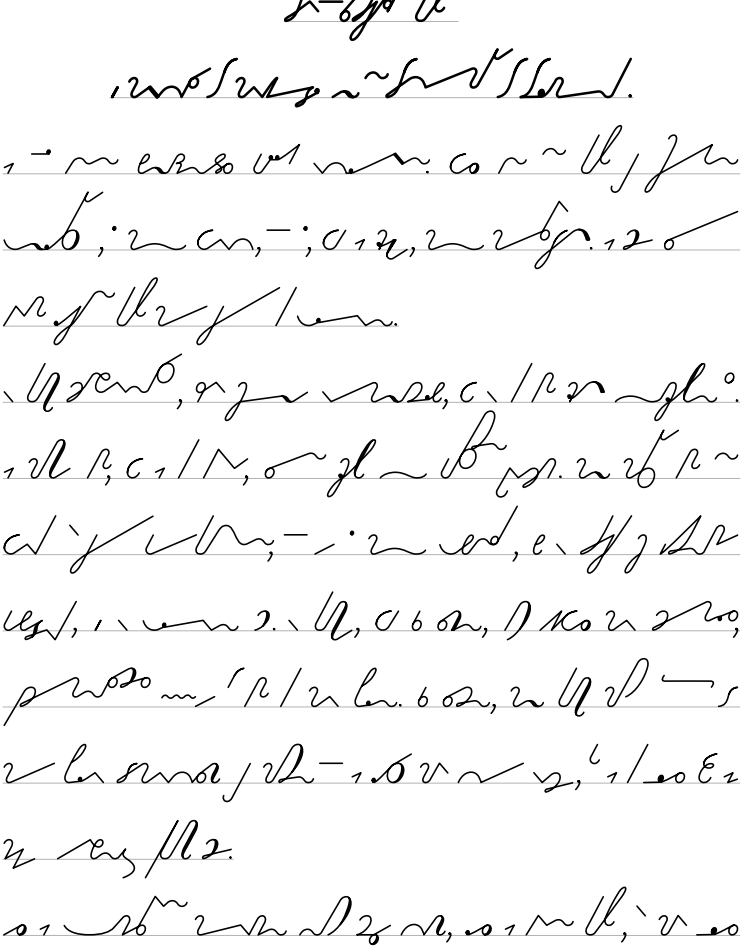


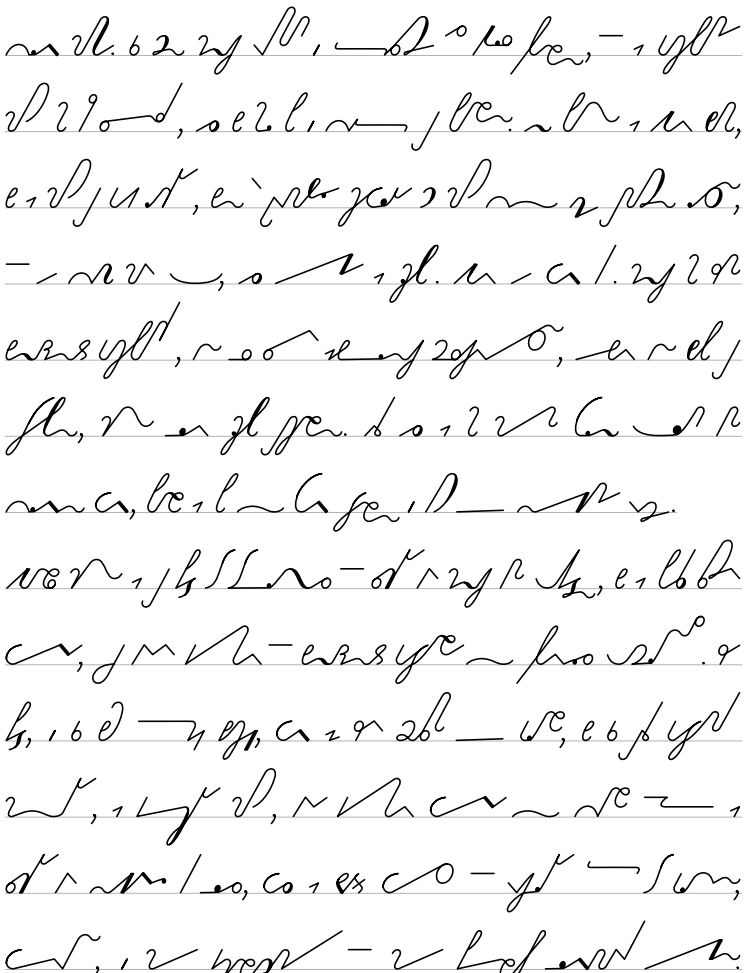
Chapter Seven

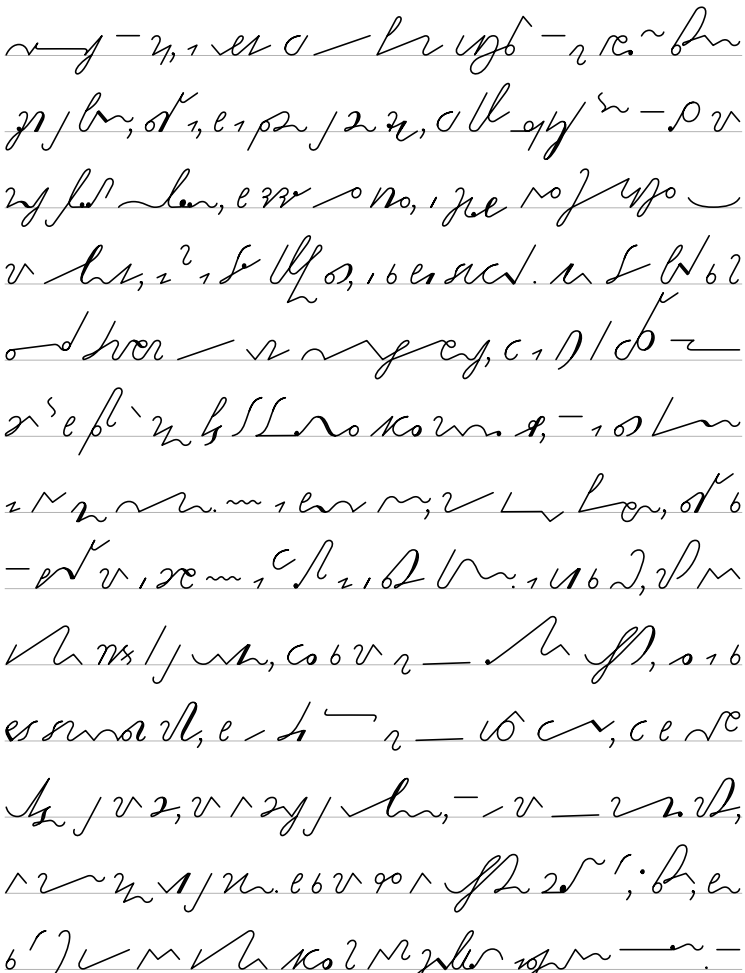
Of Journeys.

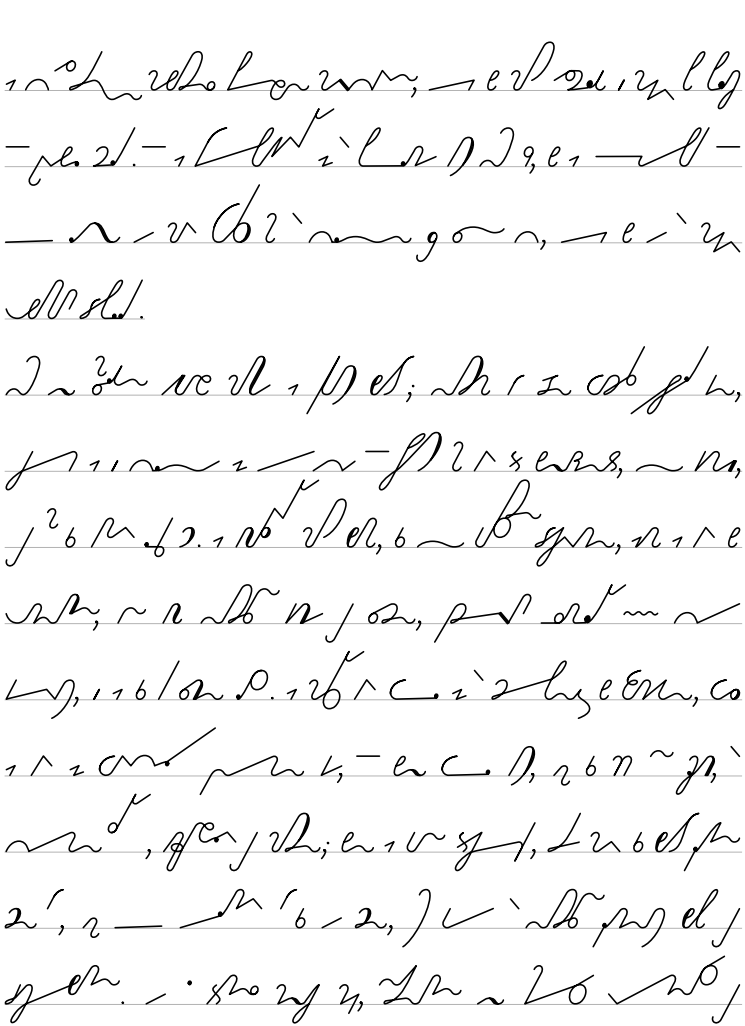


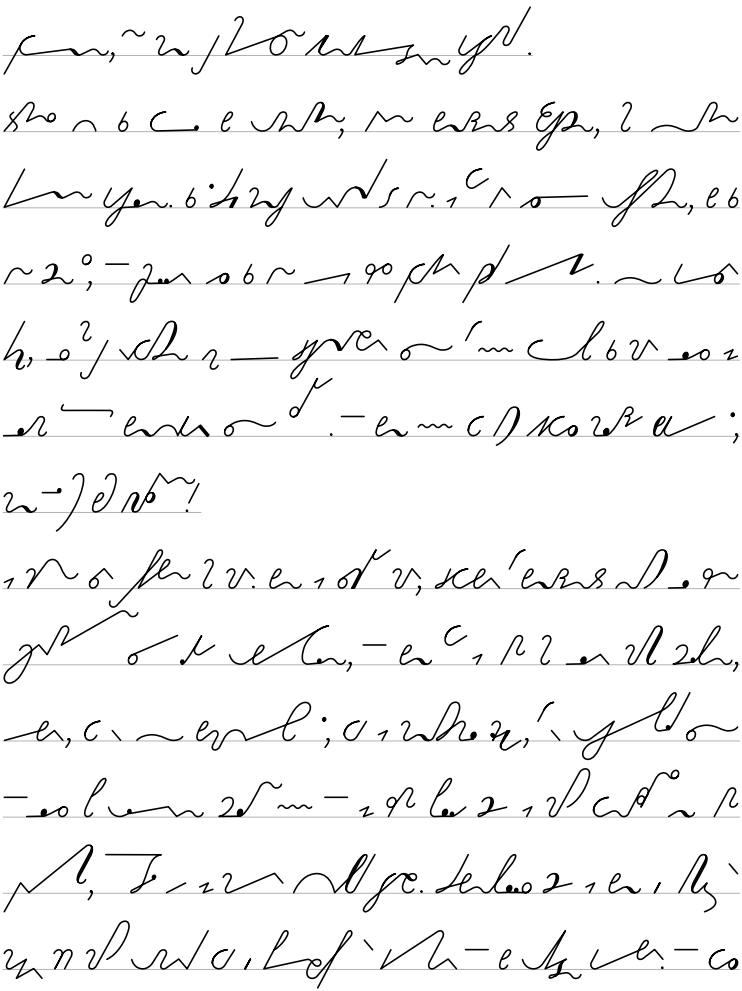


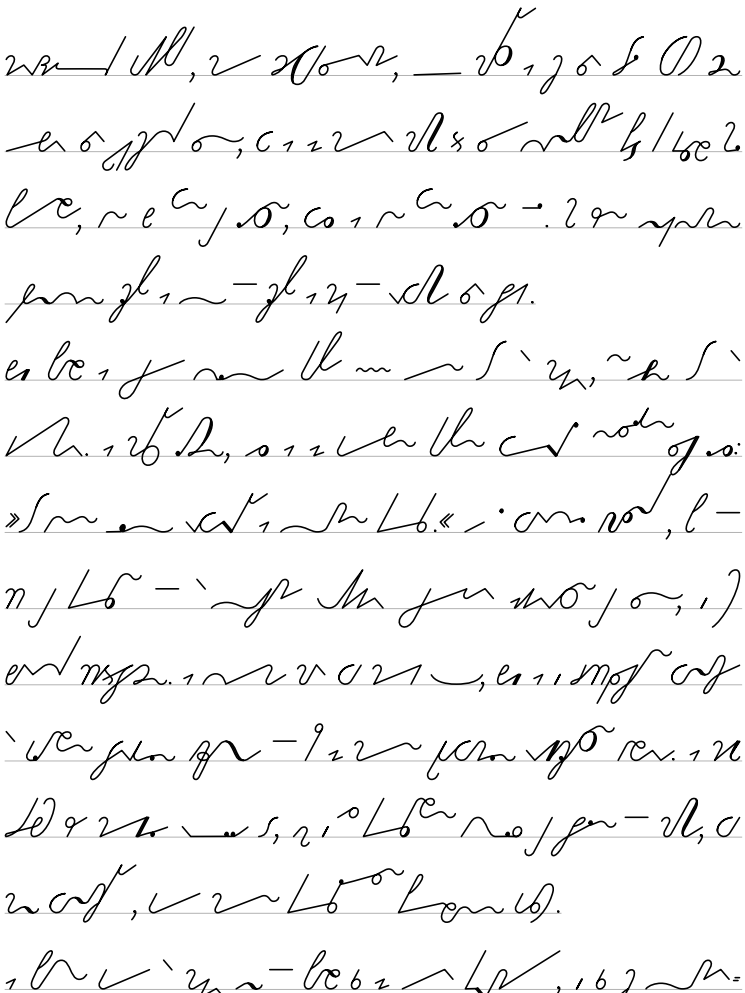


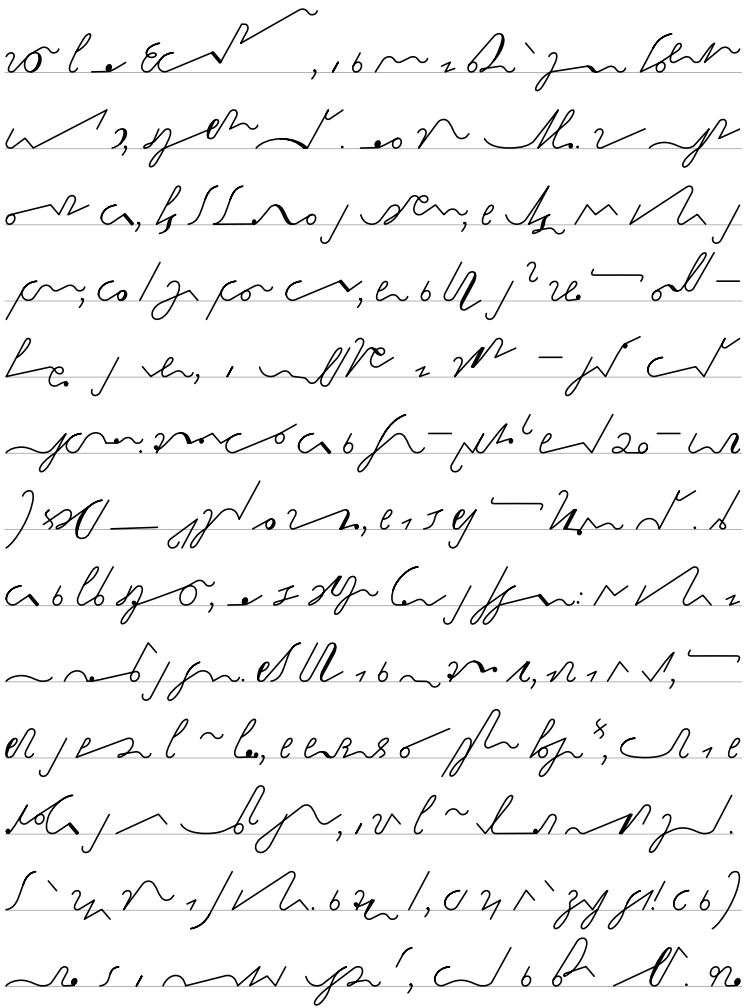


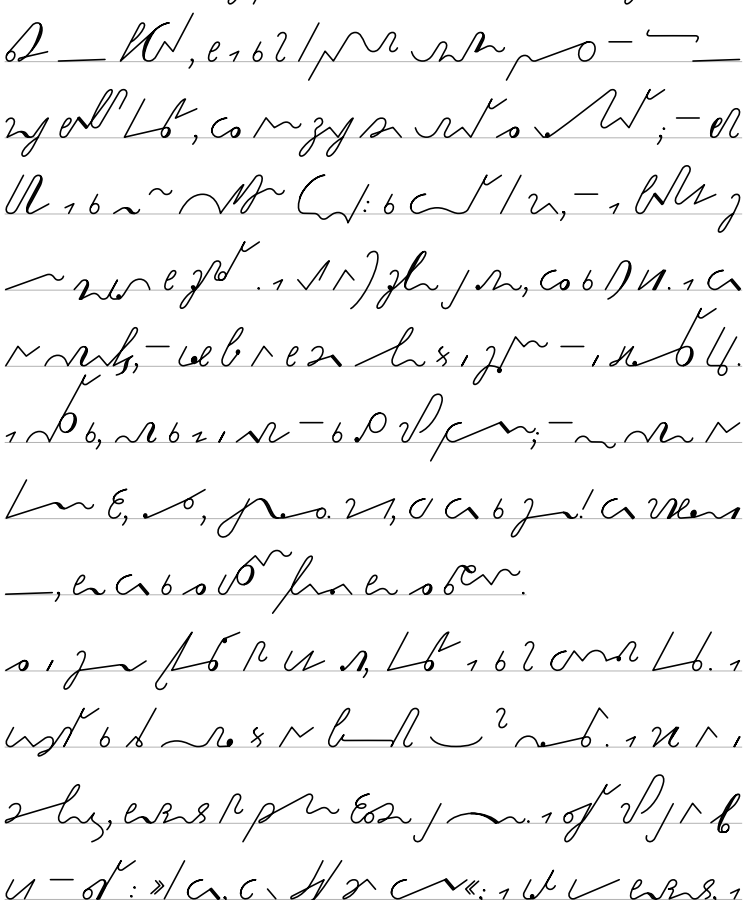


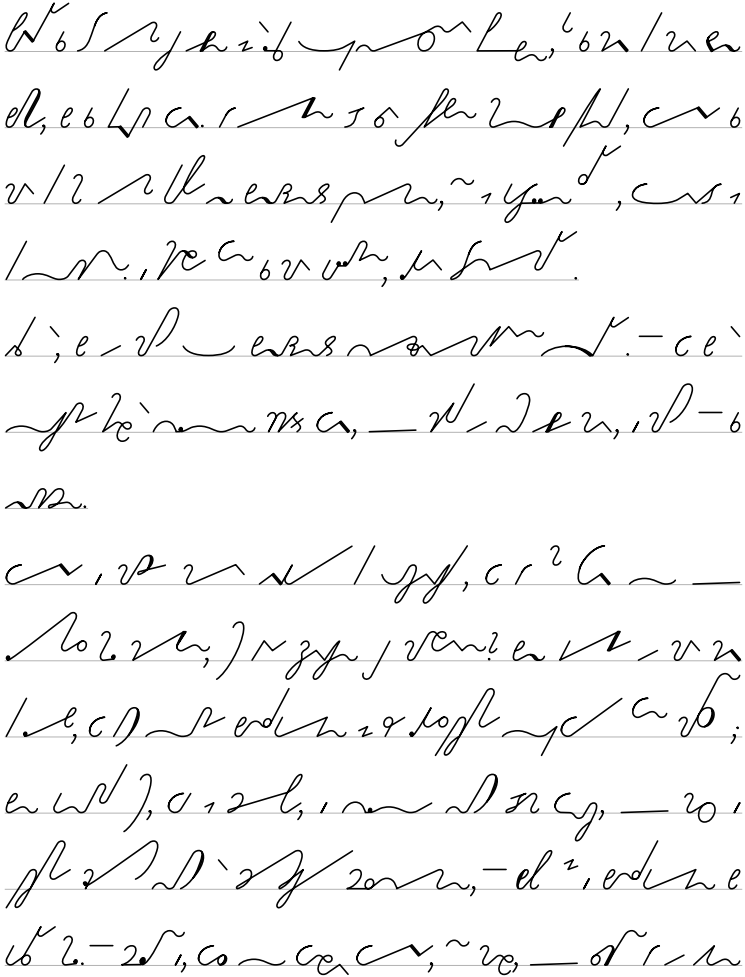


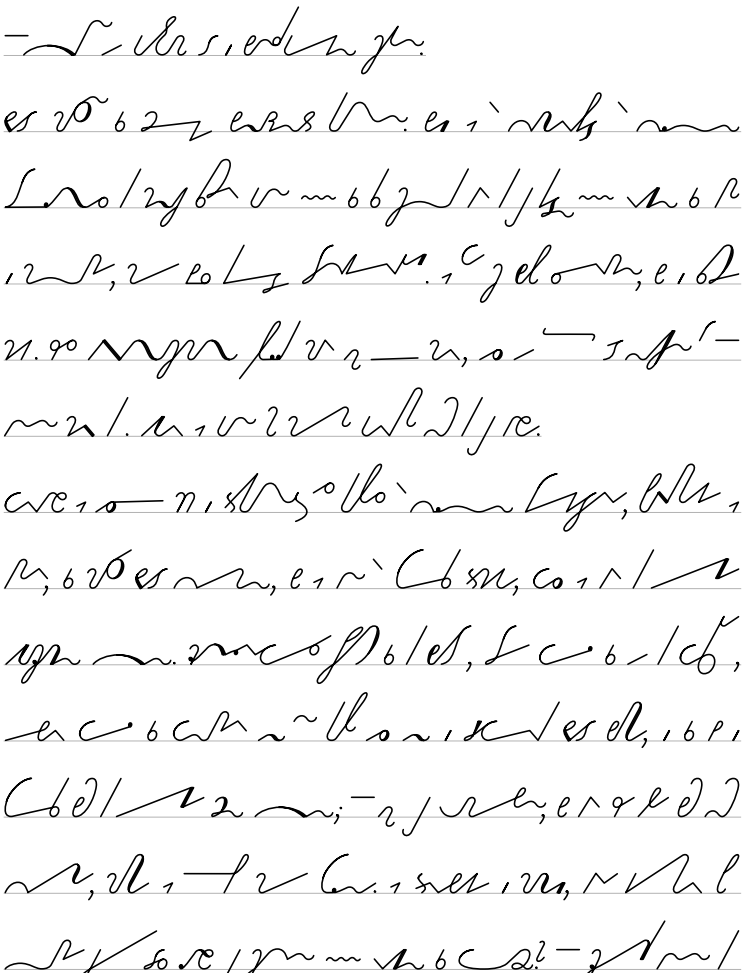


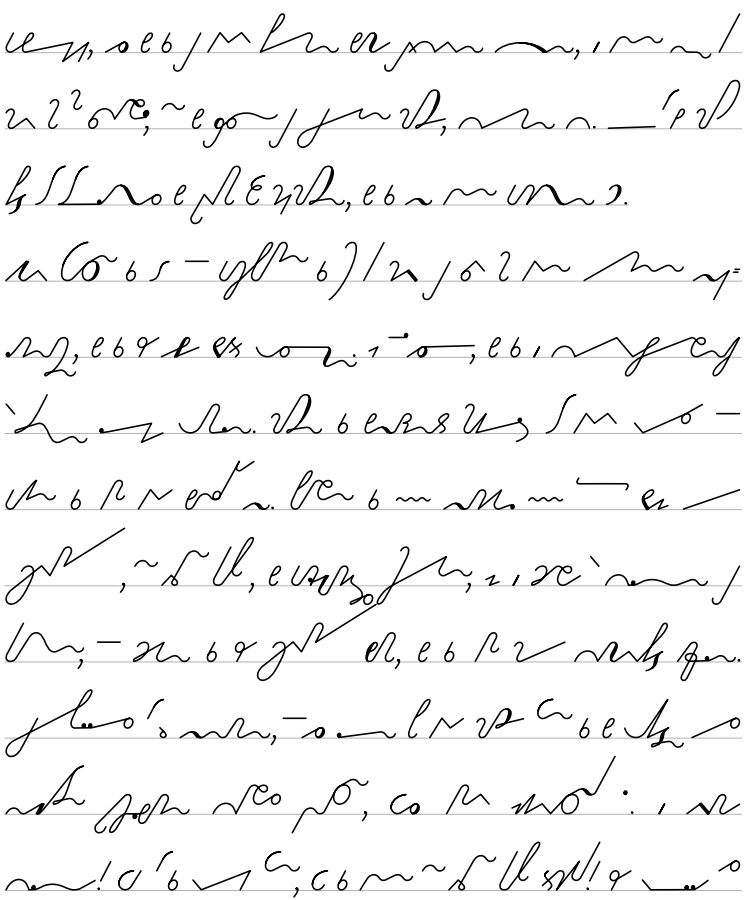


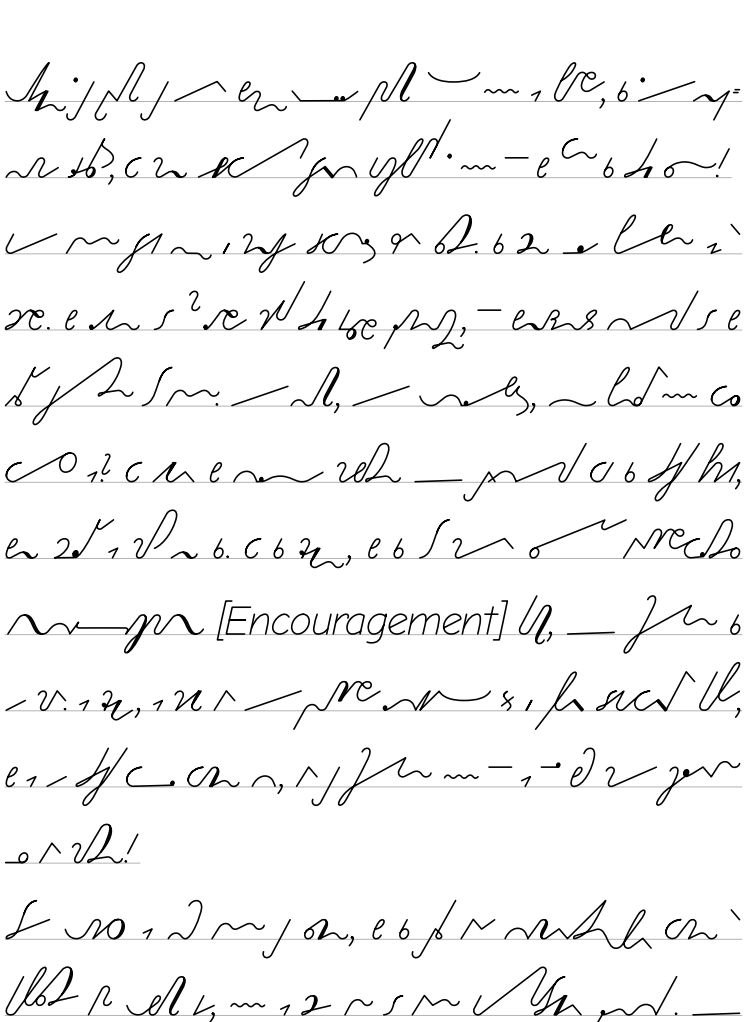




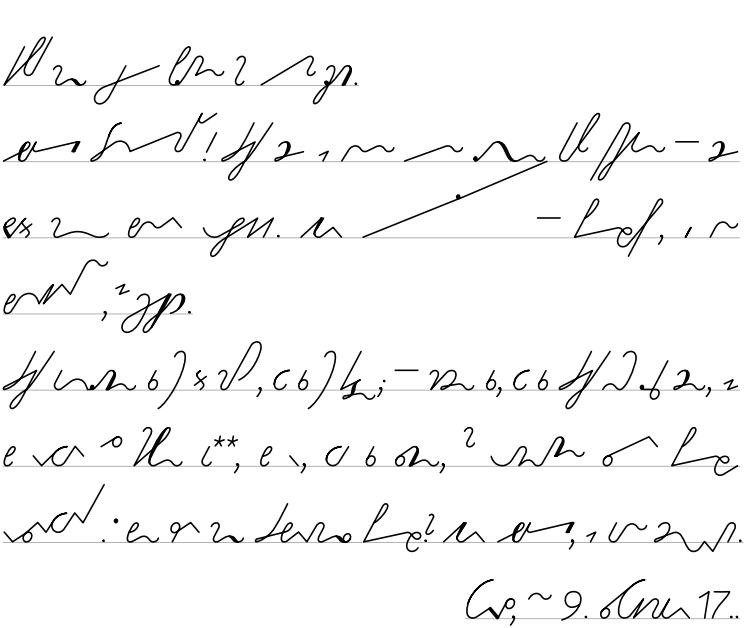


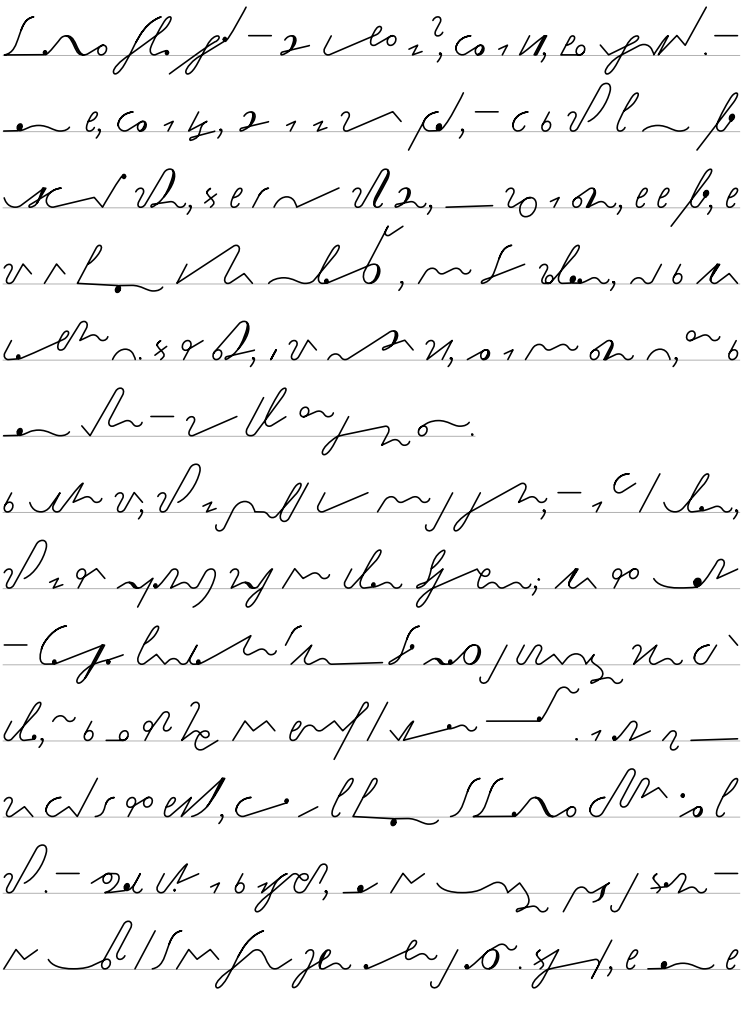


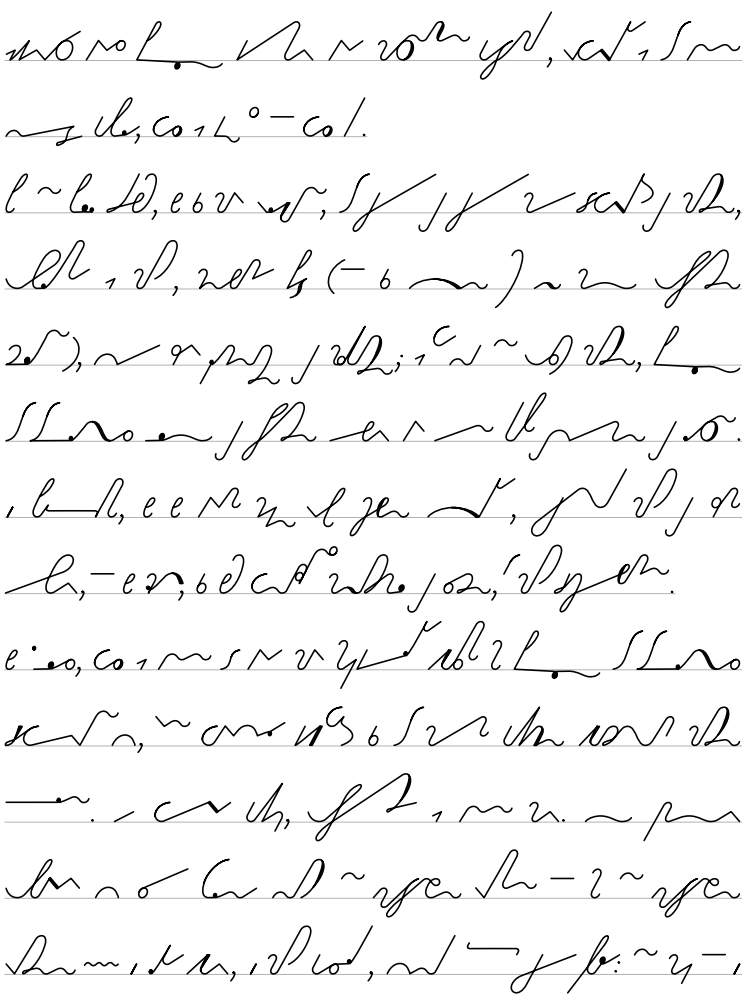


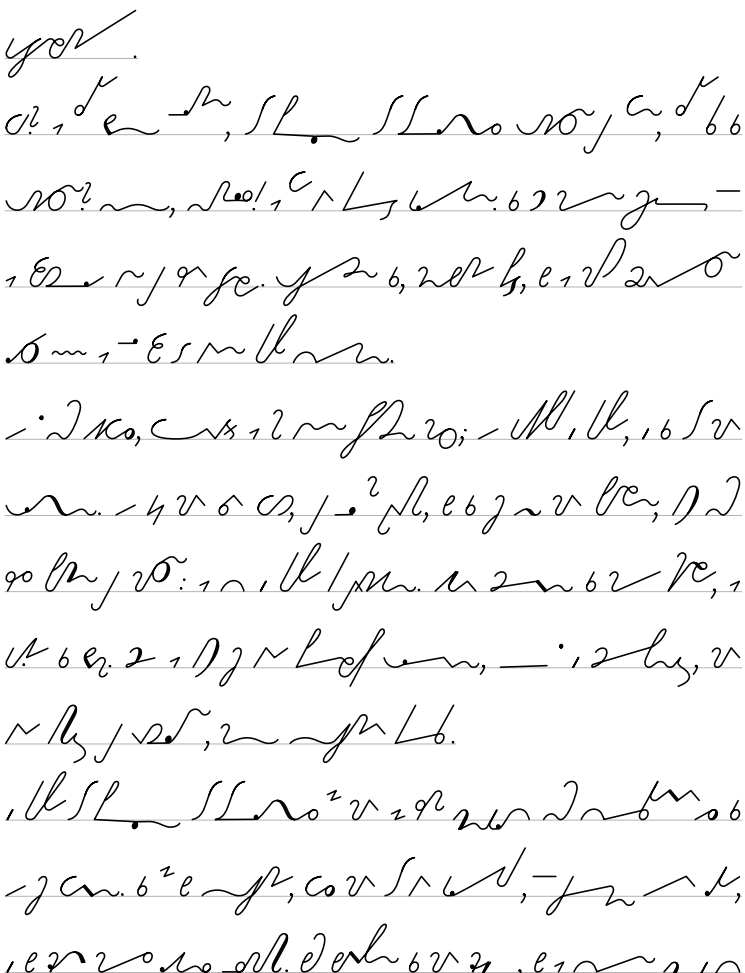


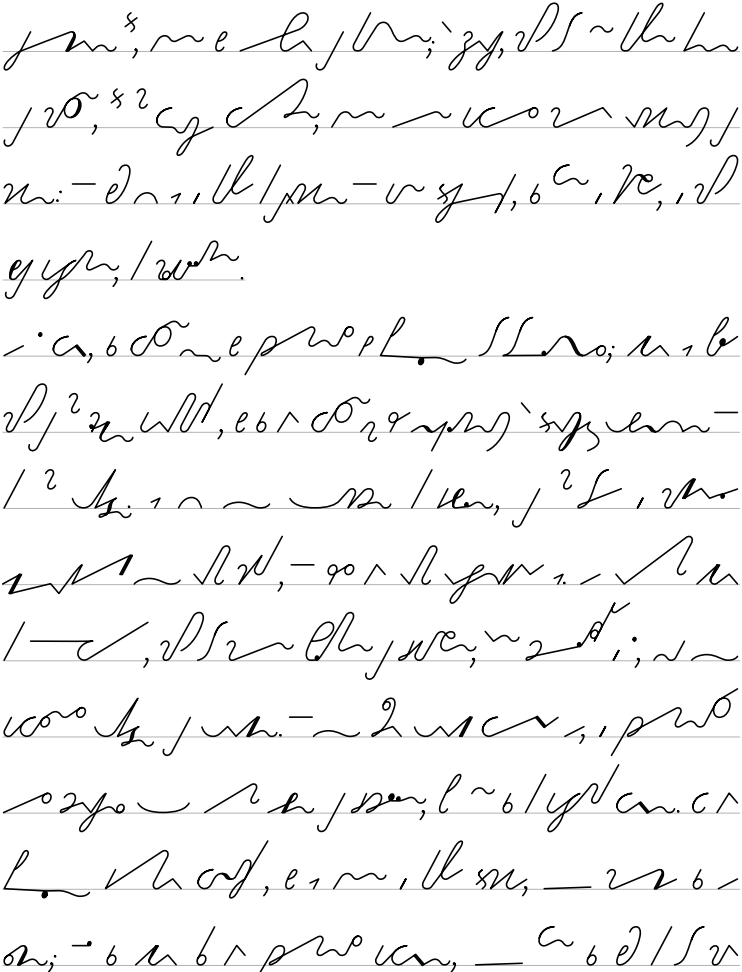
[Encouragement]

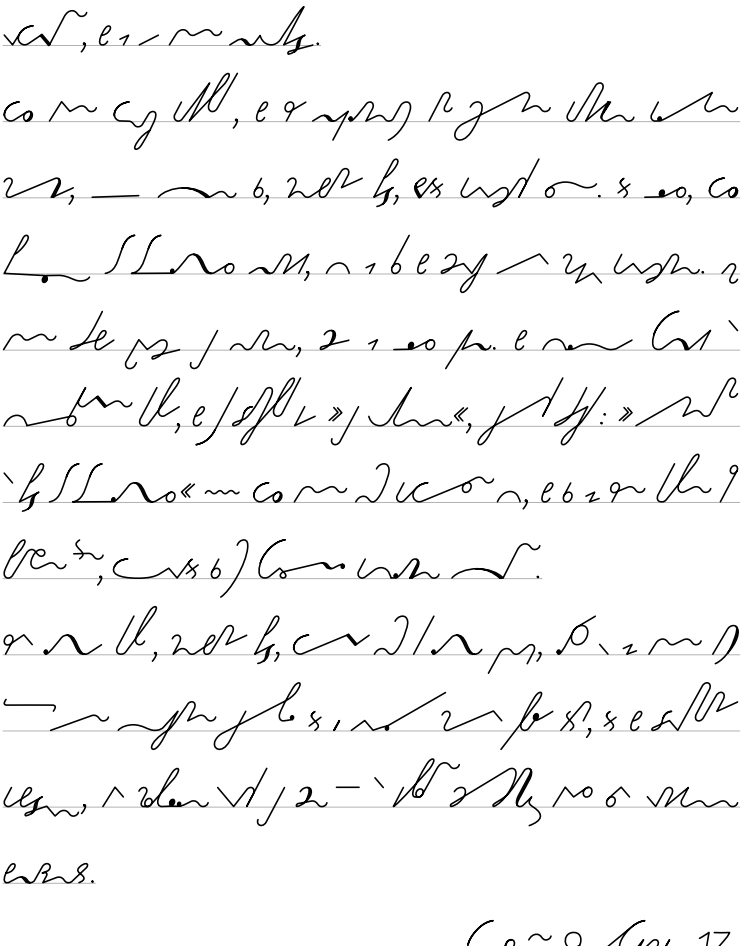


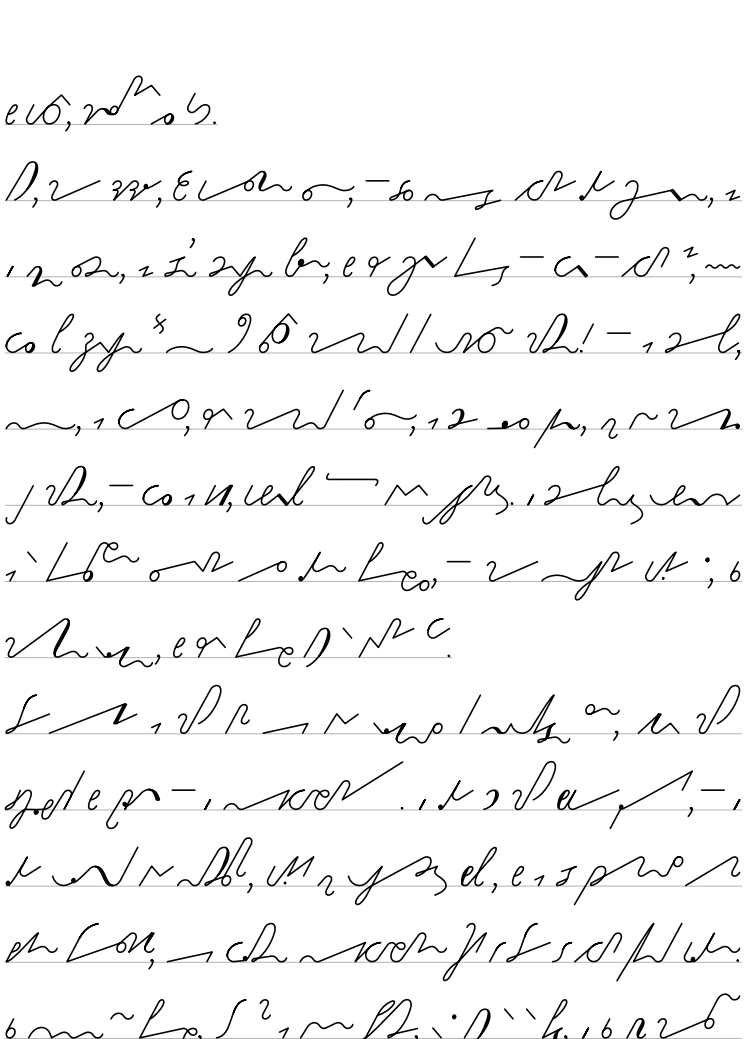


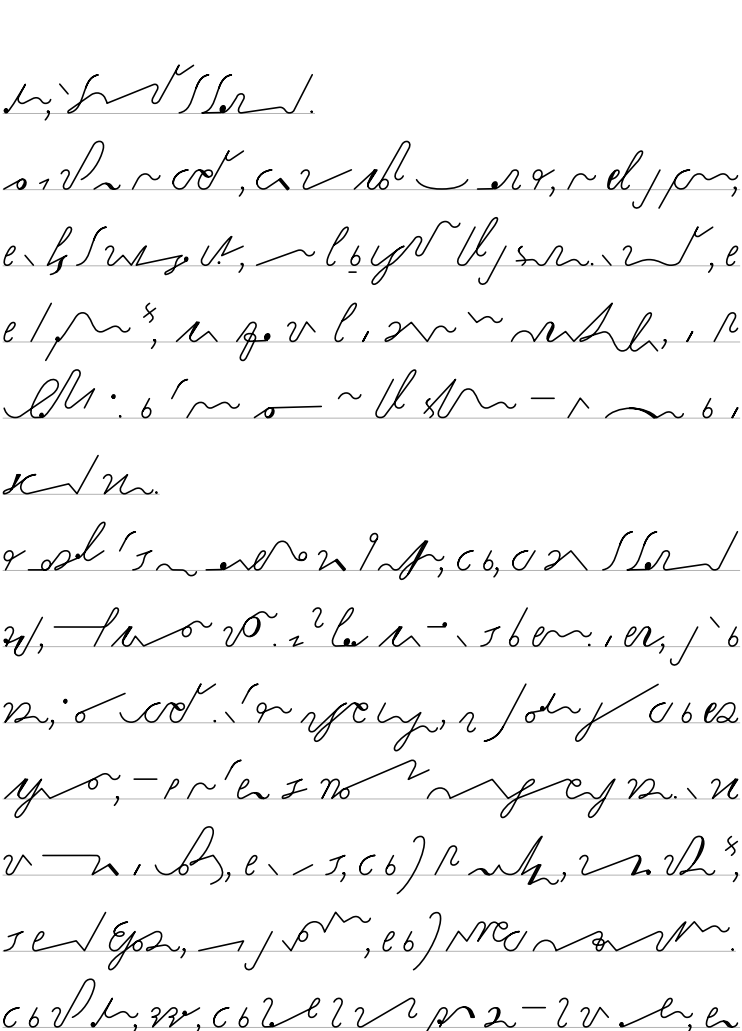


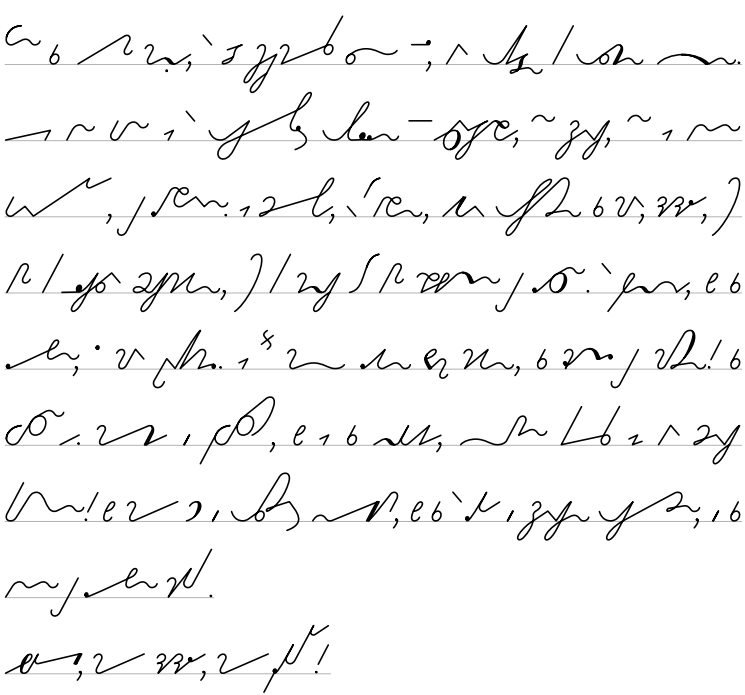




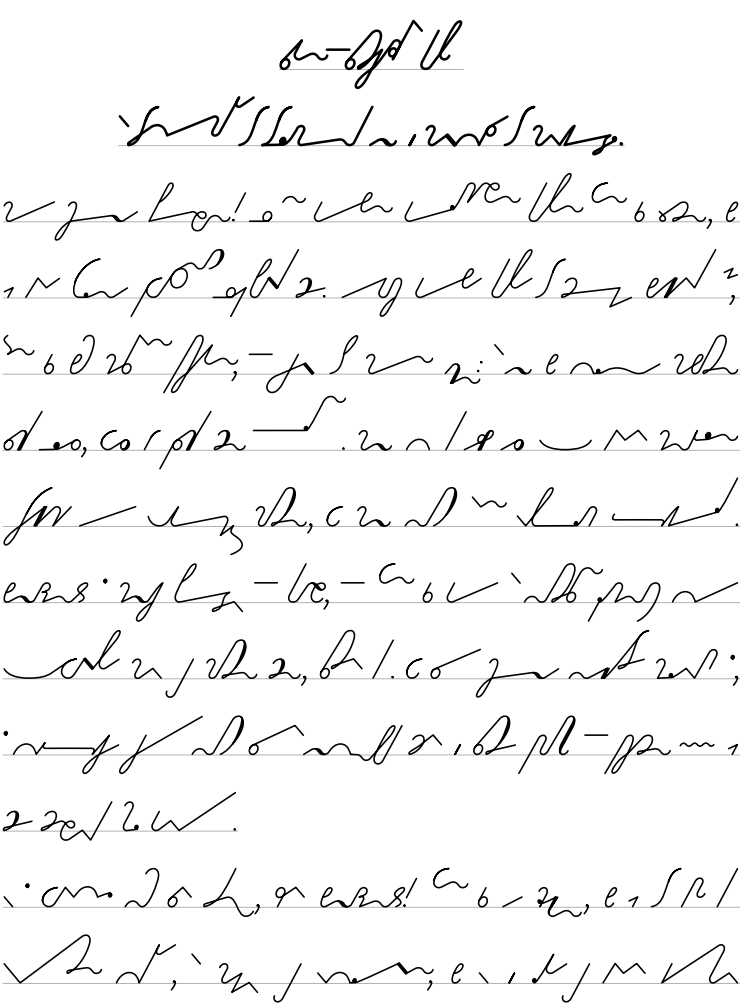


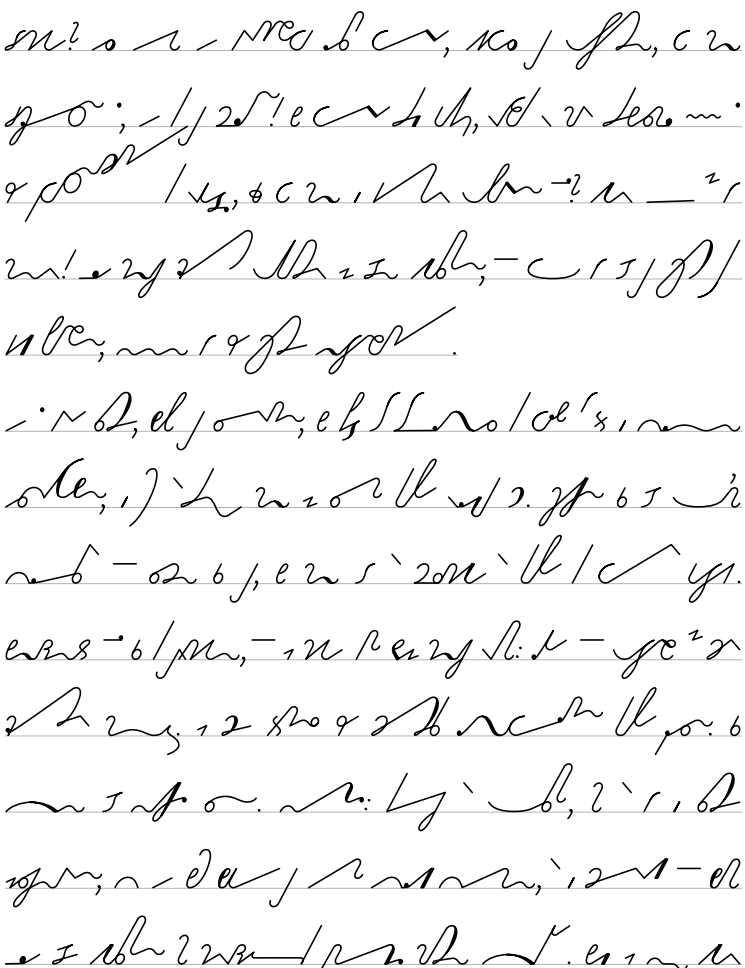


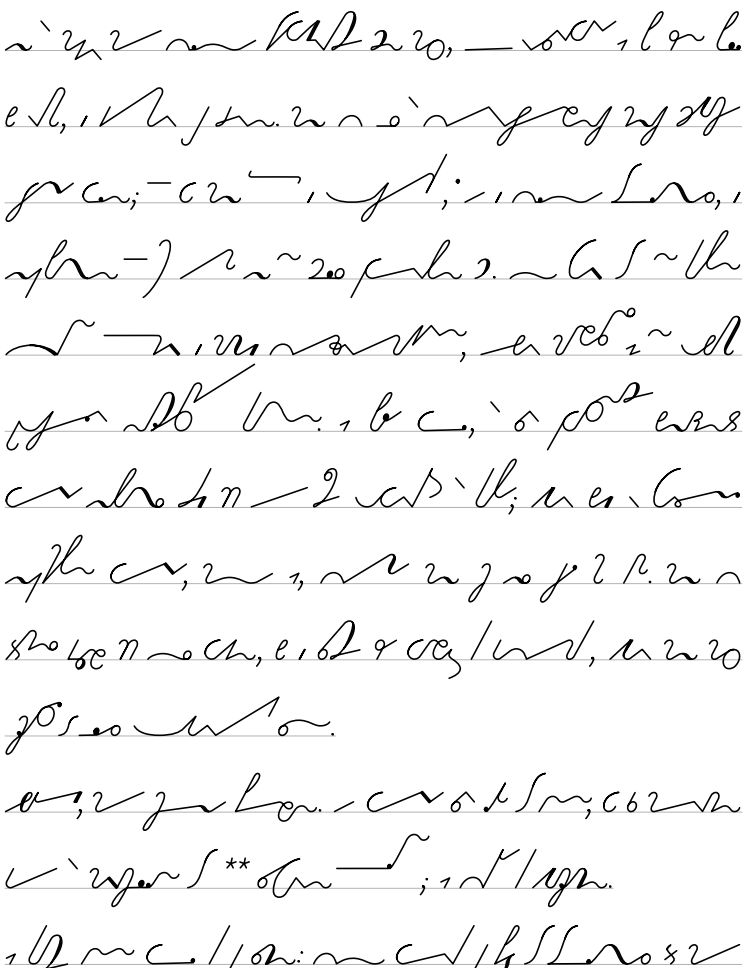


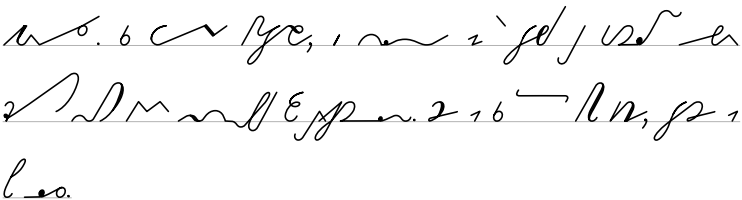


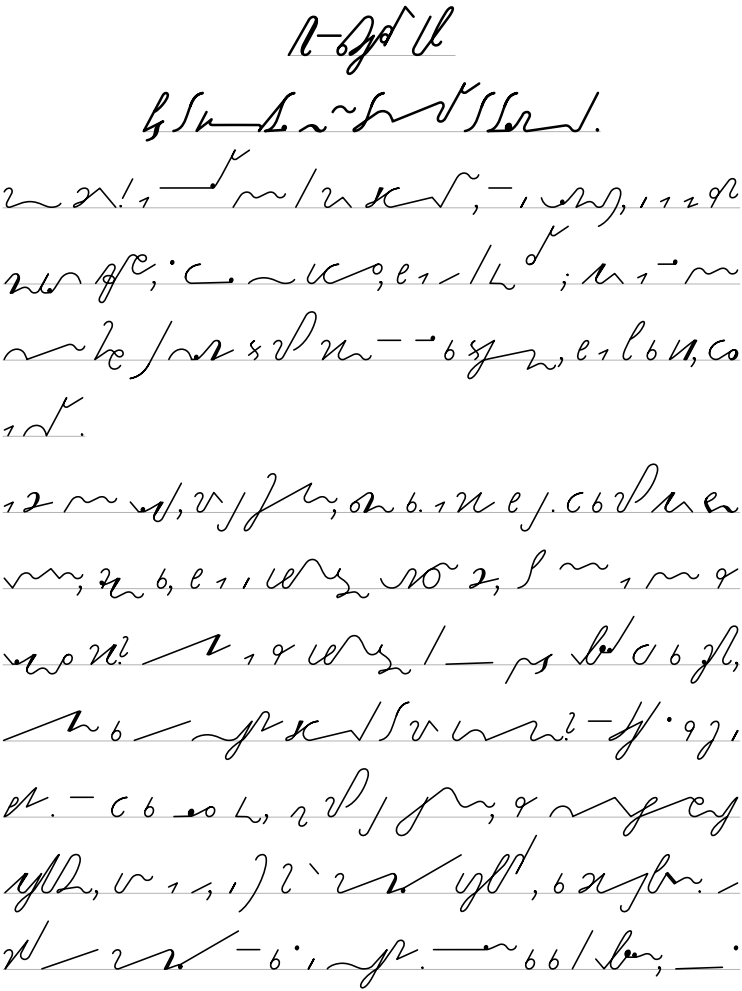
~9. Mai 17..

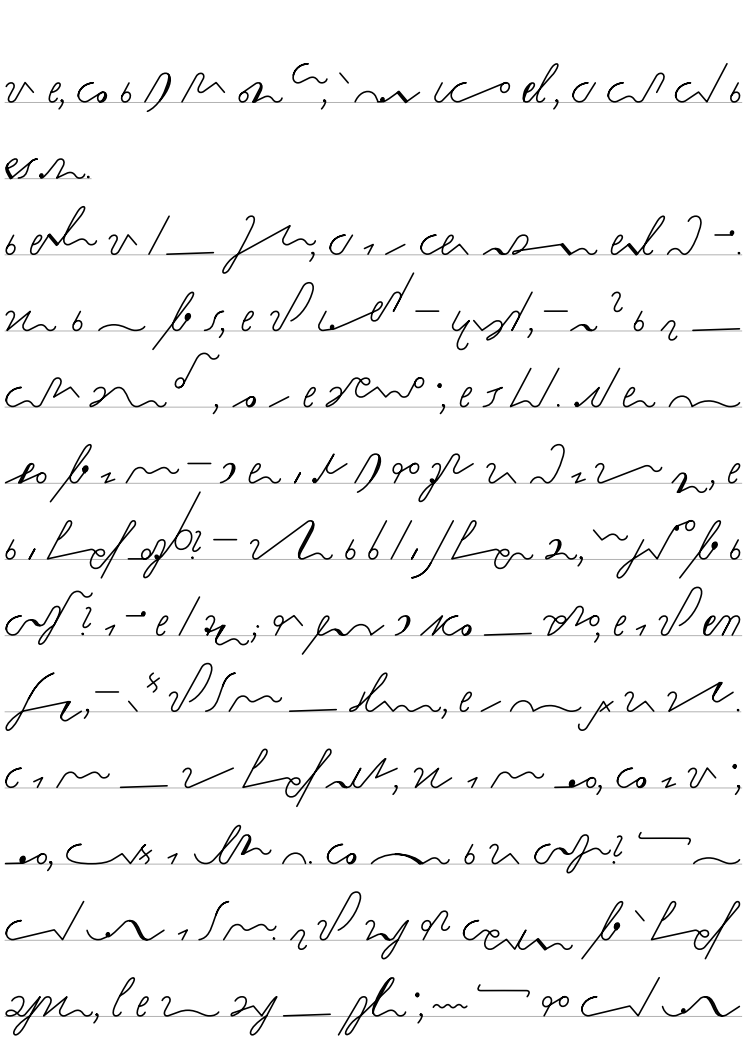


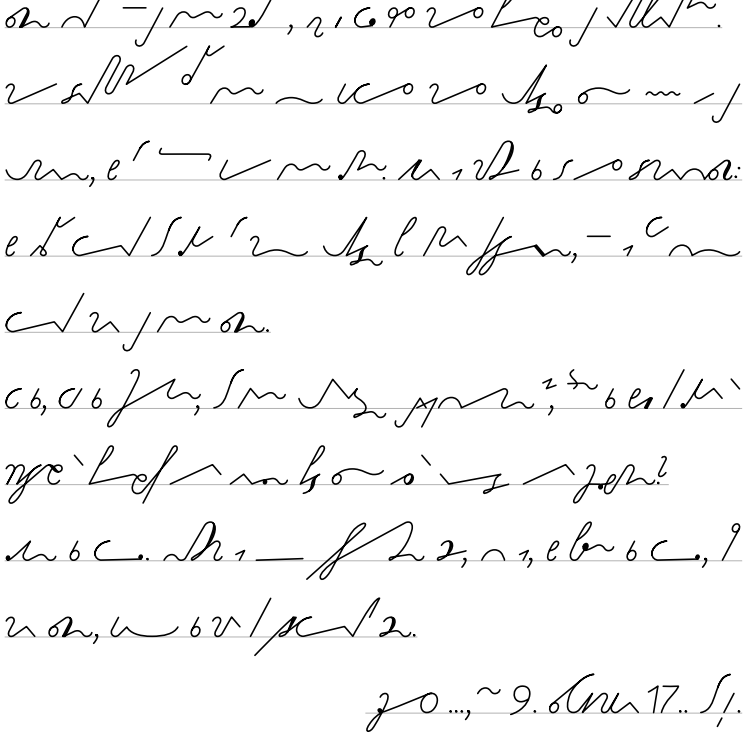


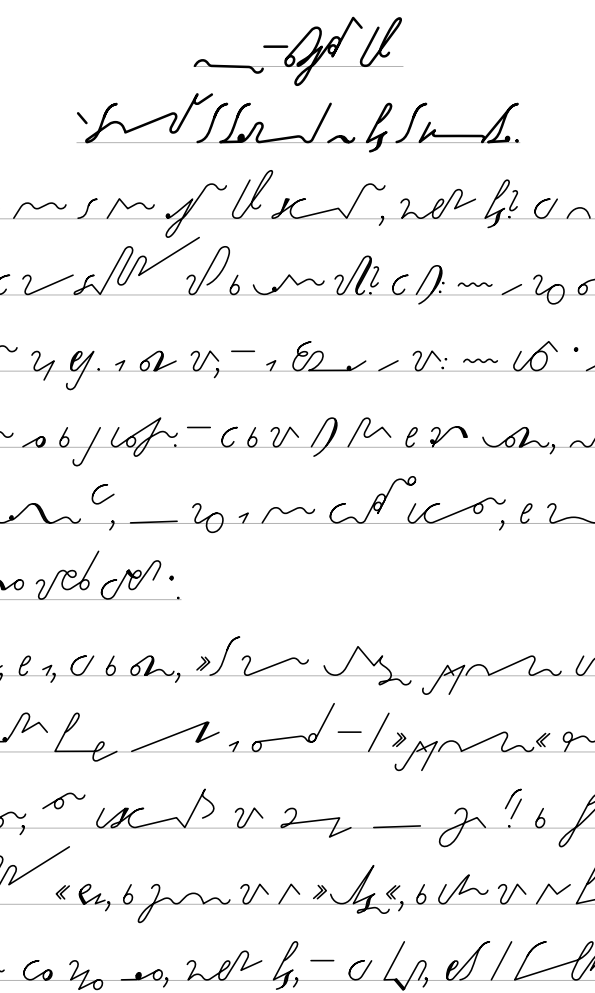


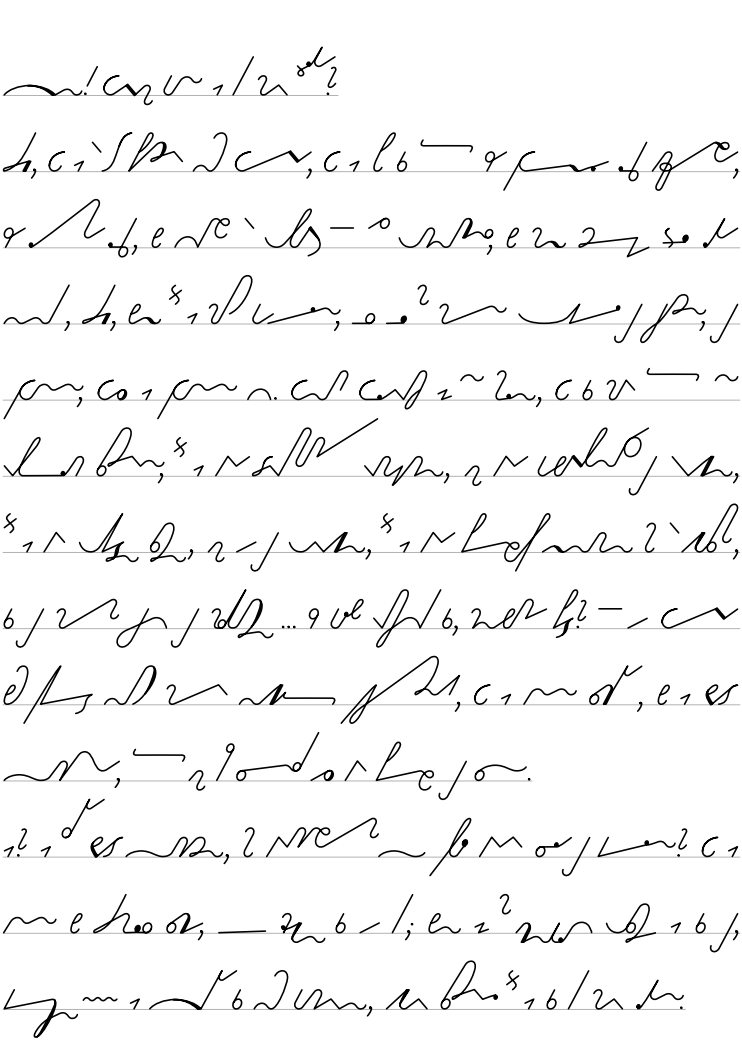


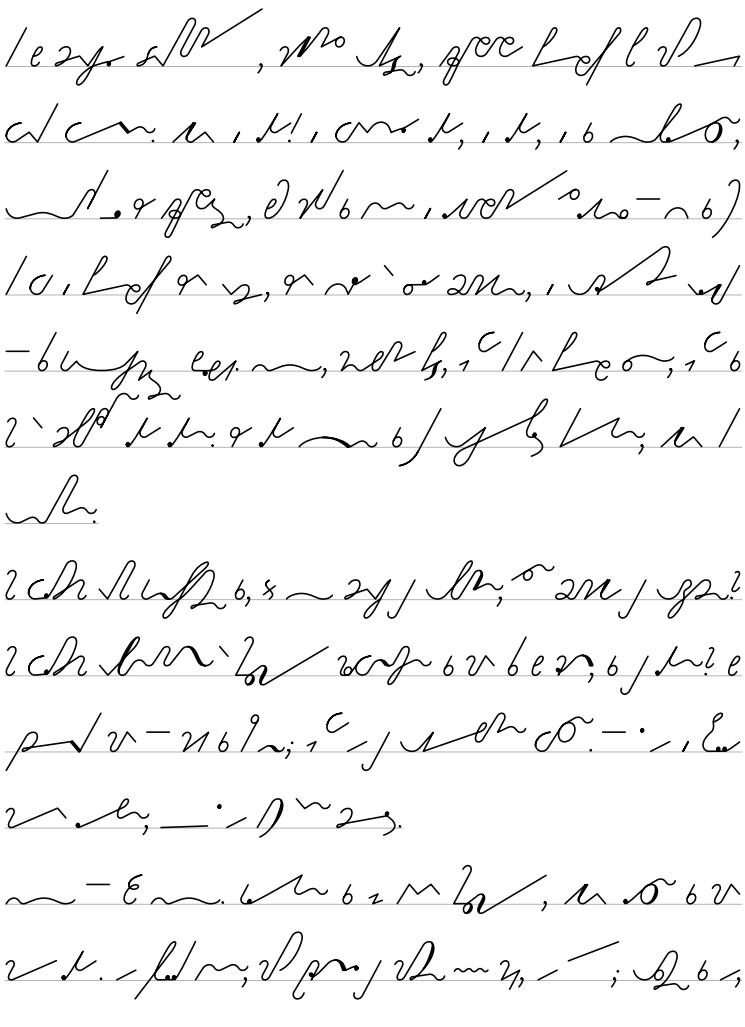


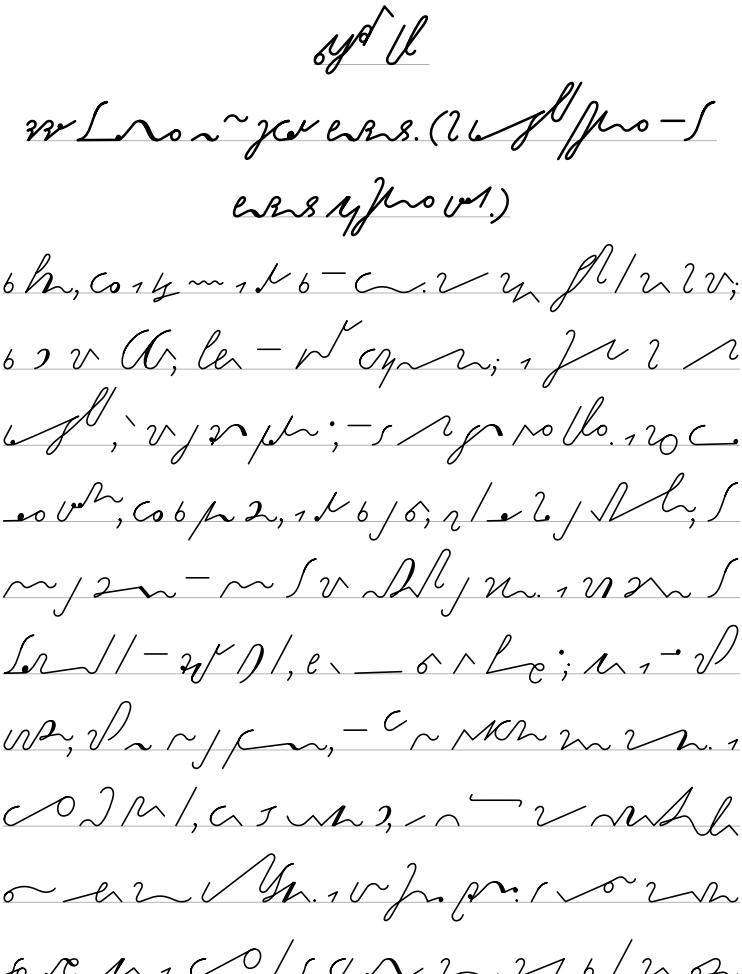


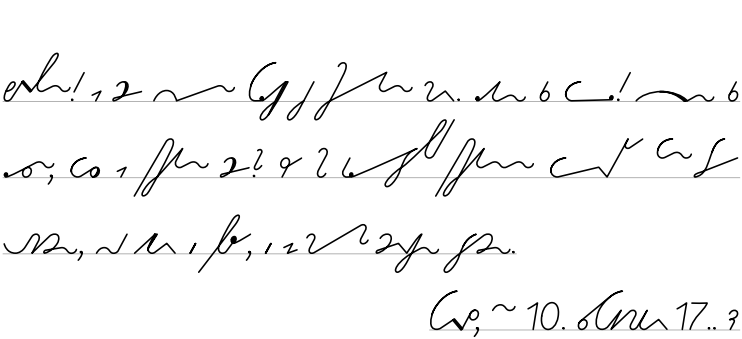


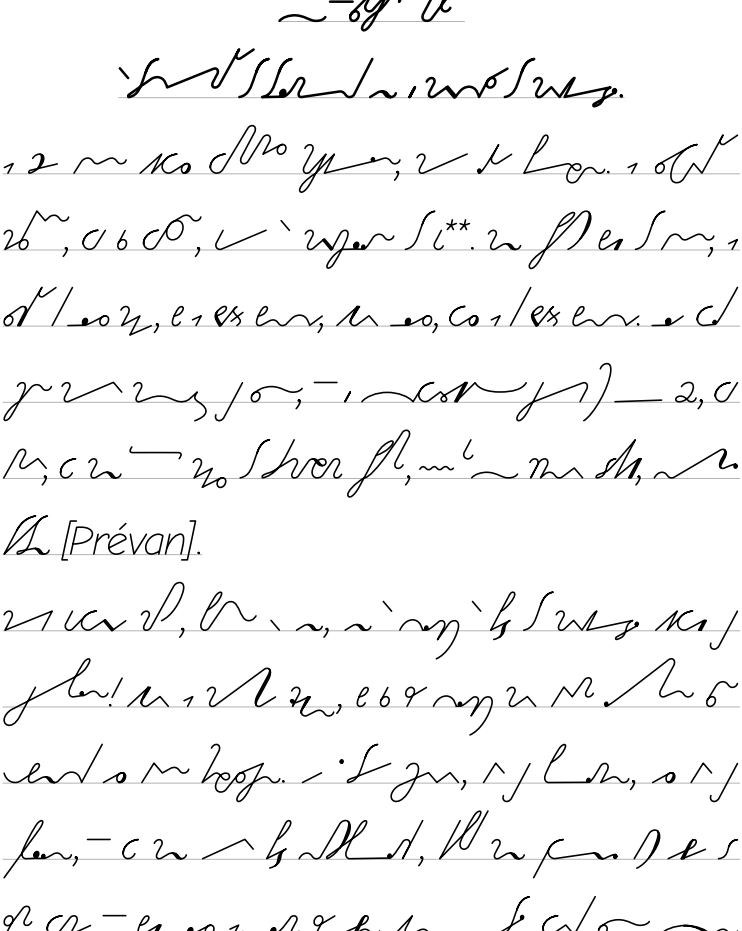


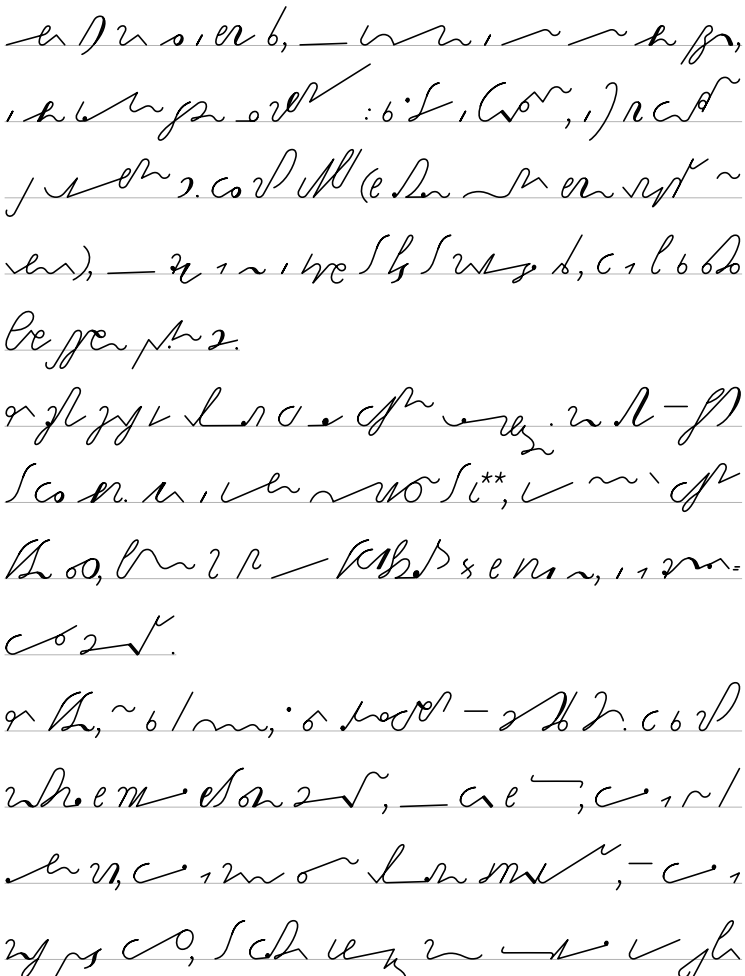


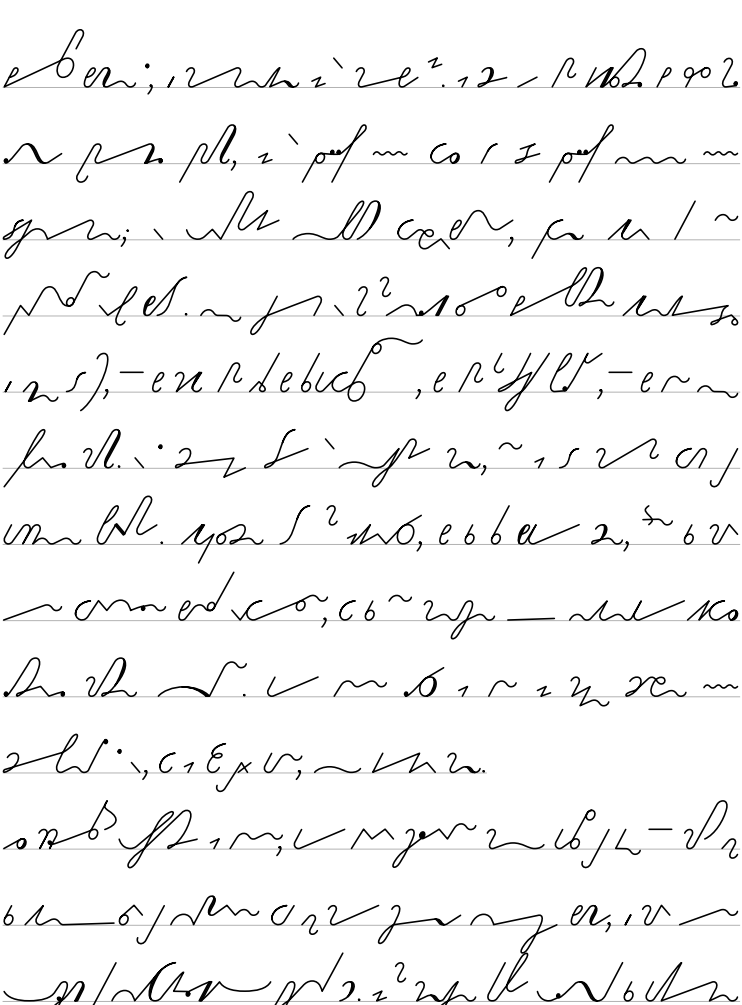


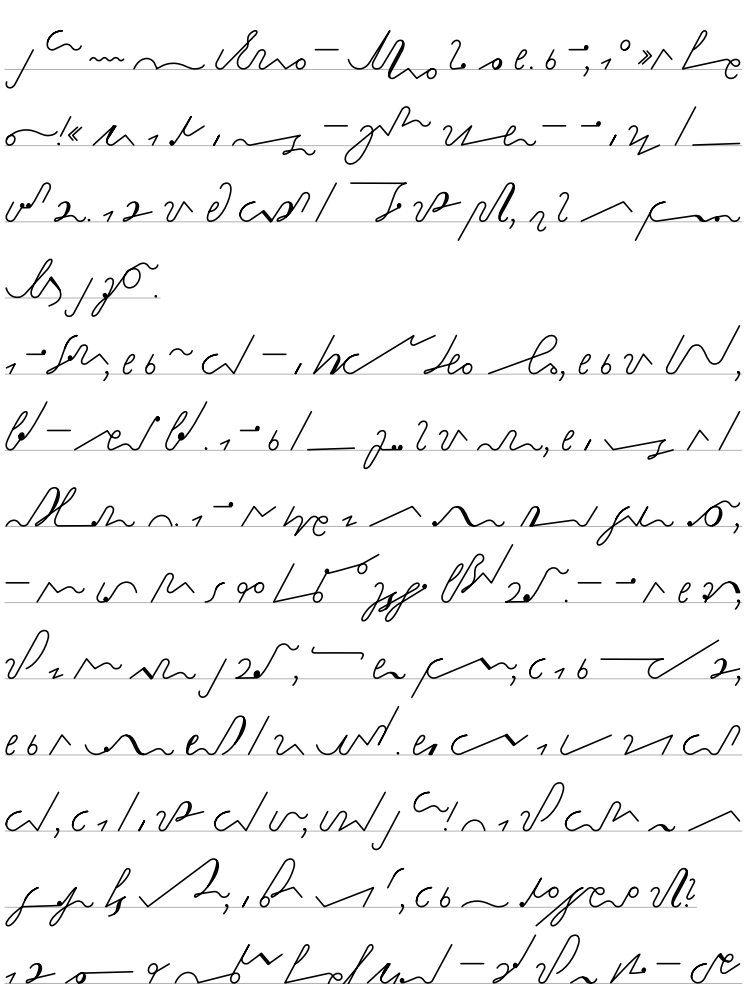


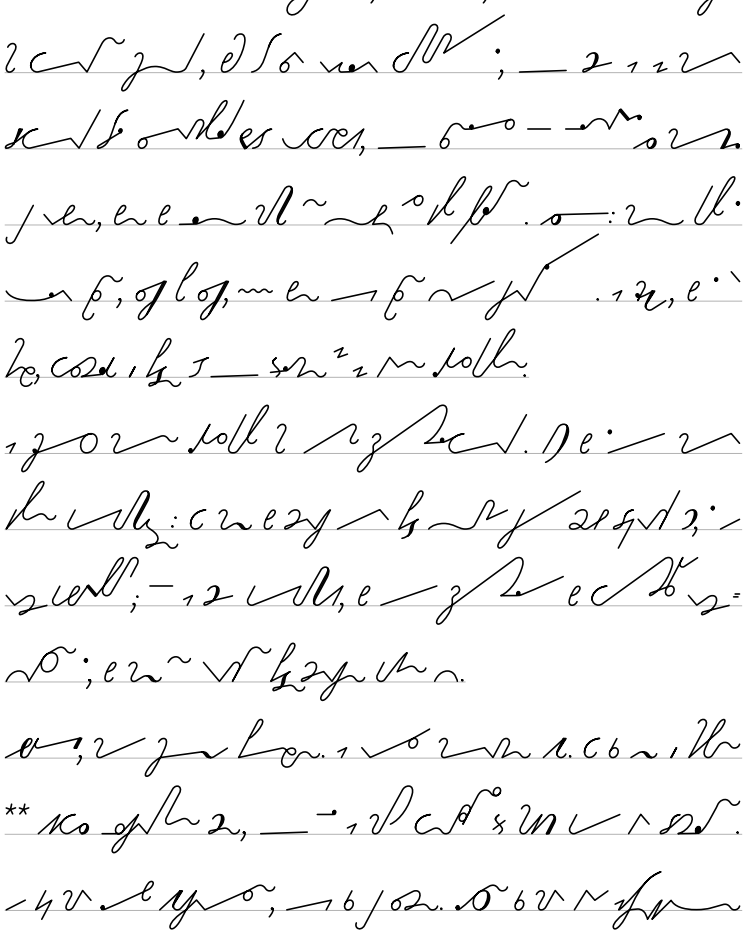


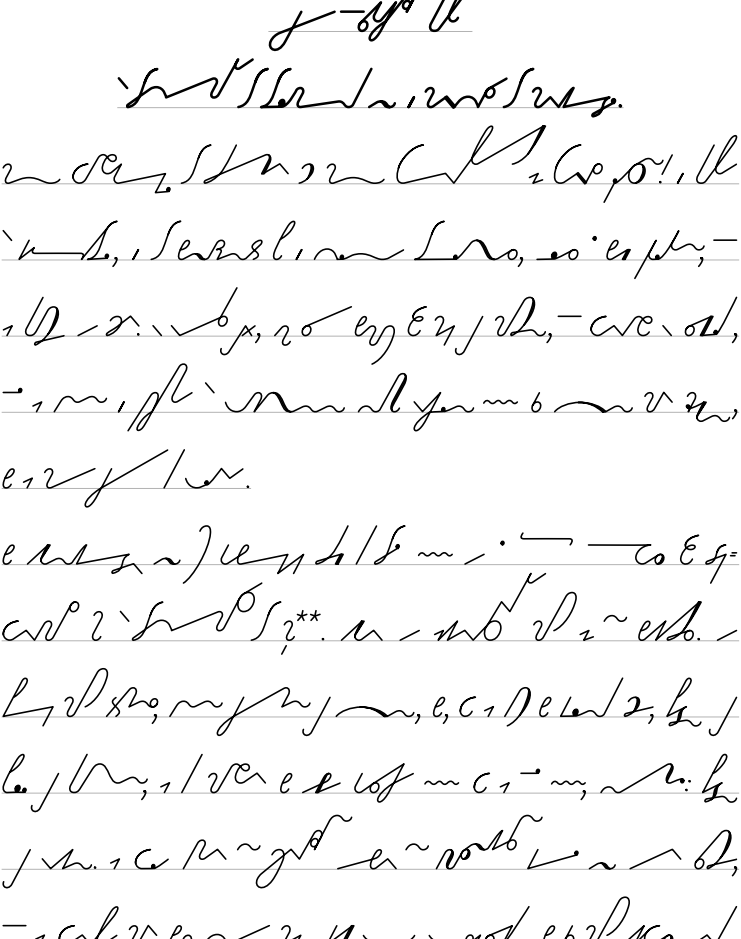


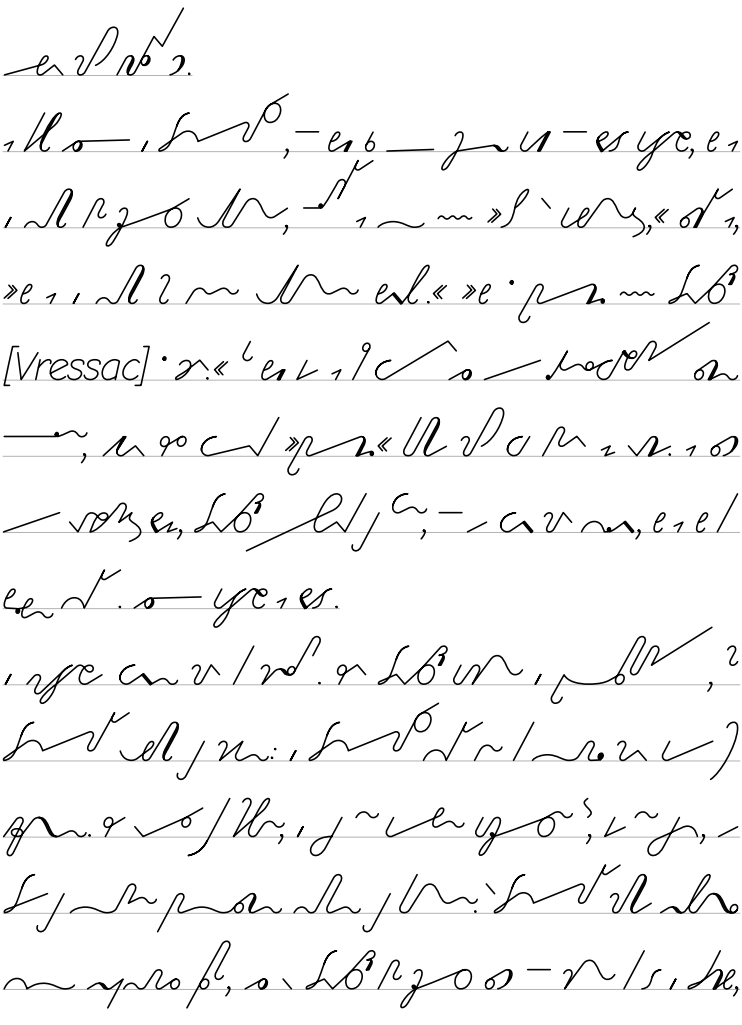


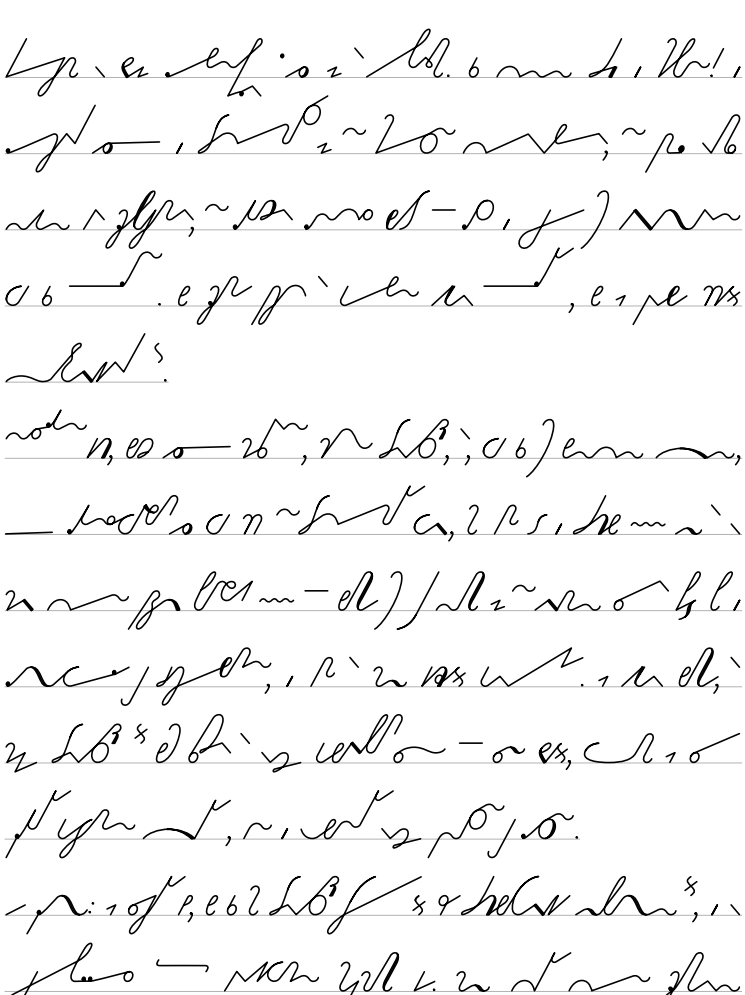


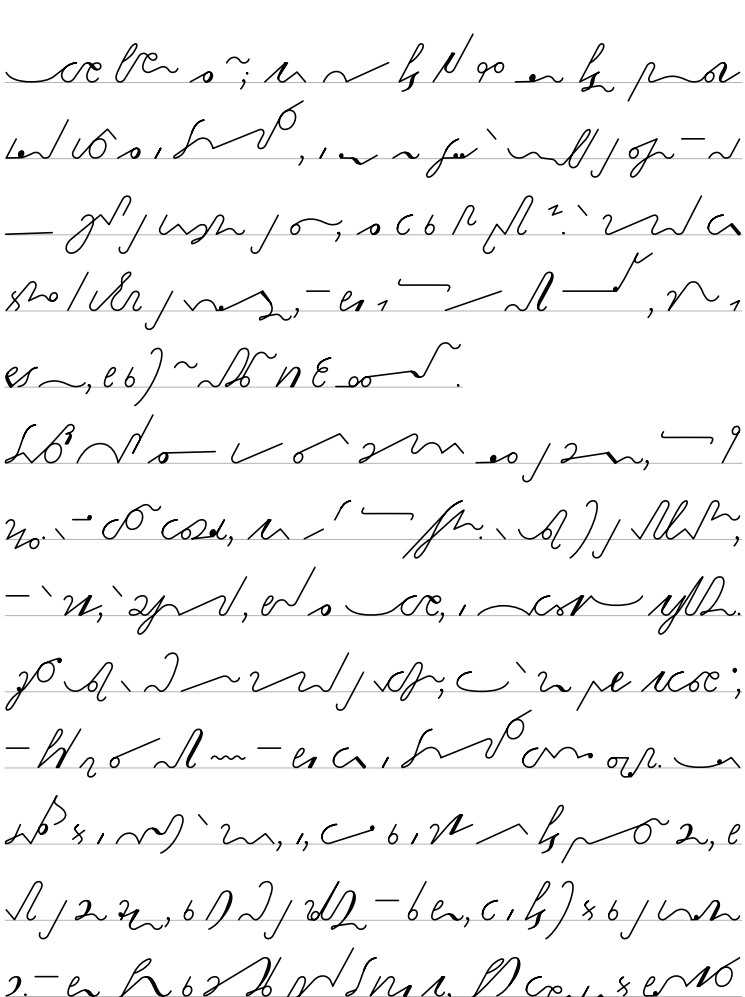


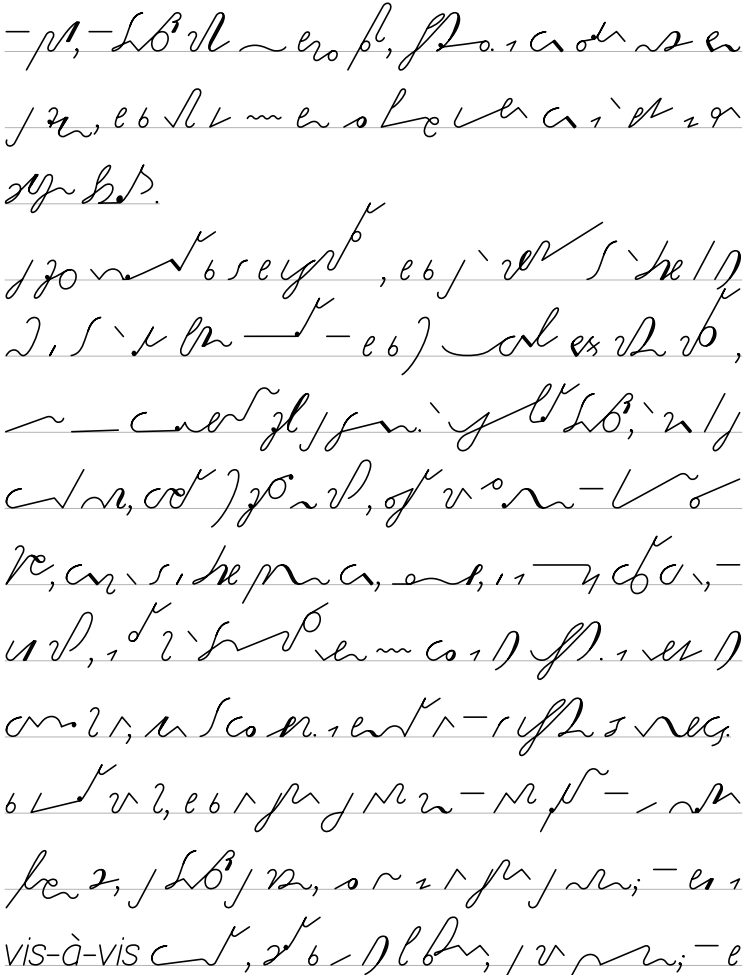




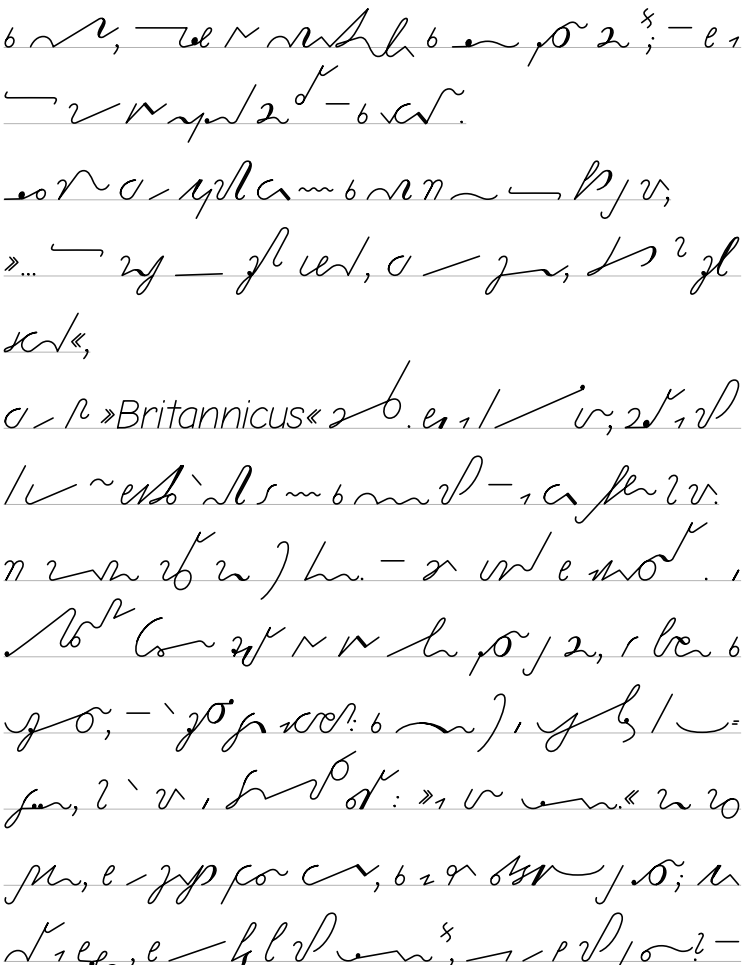


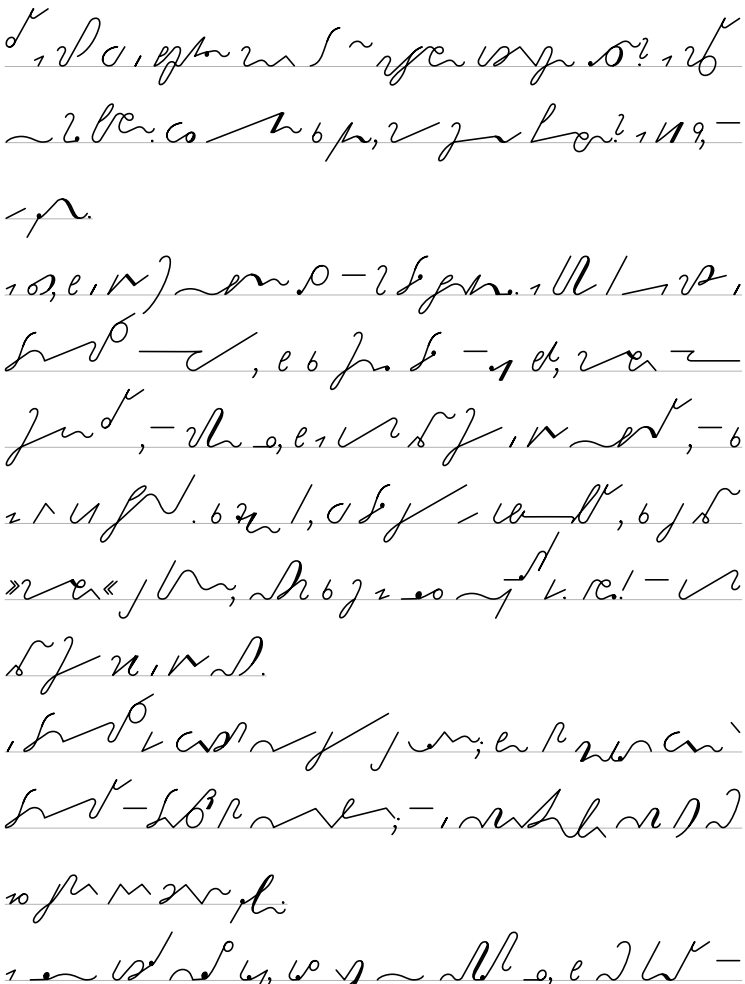


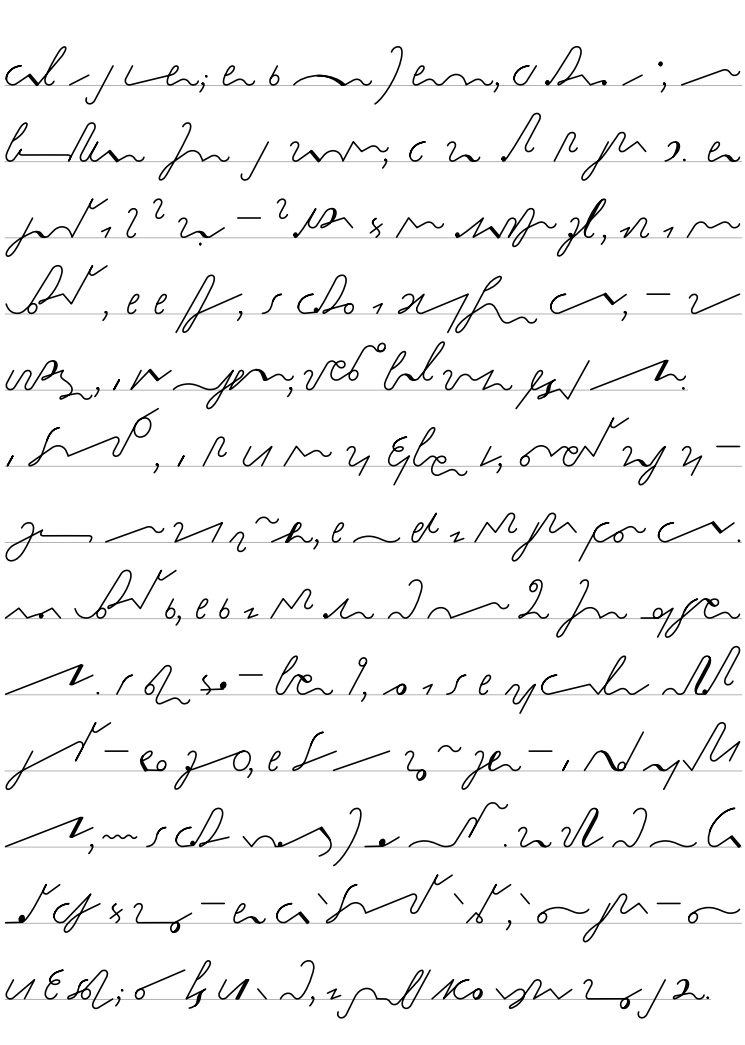


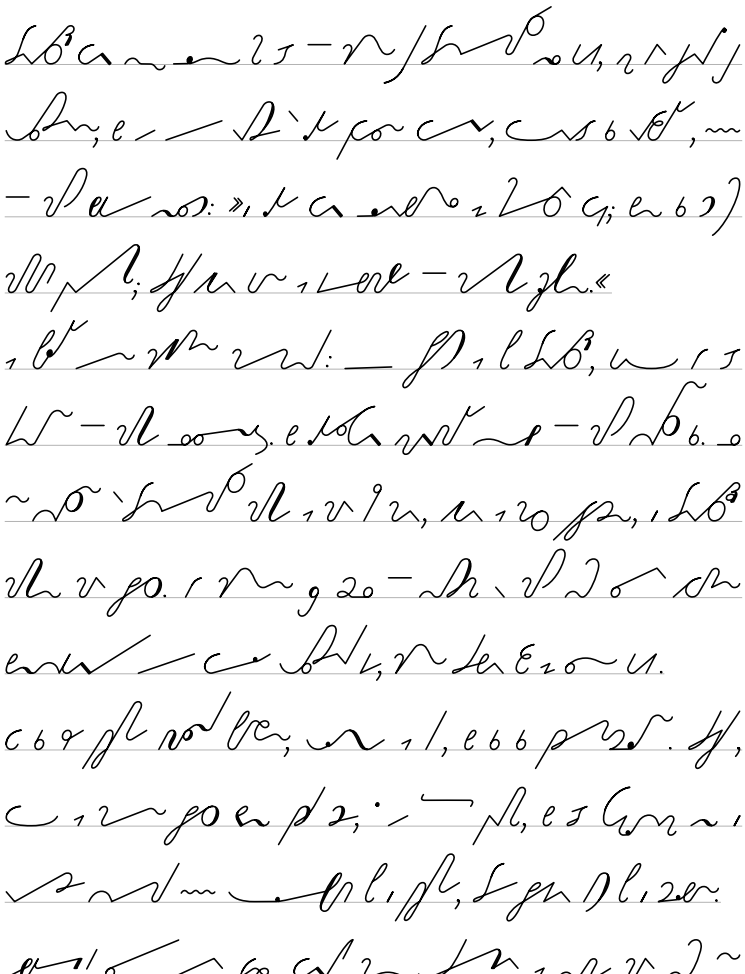


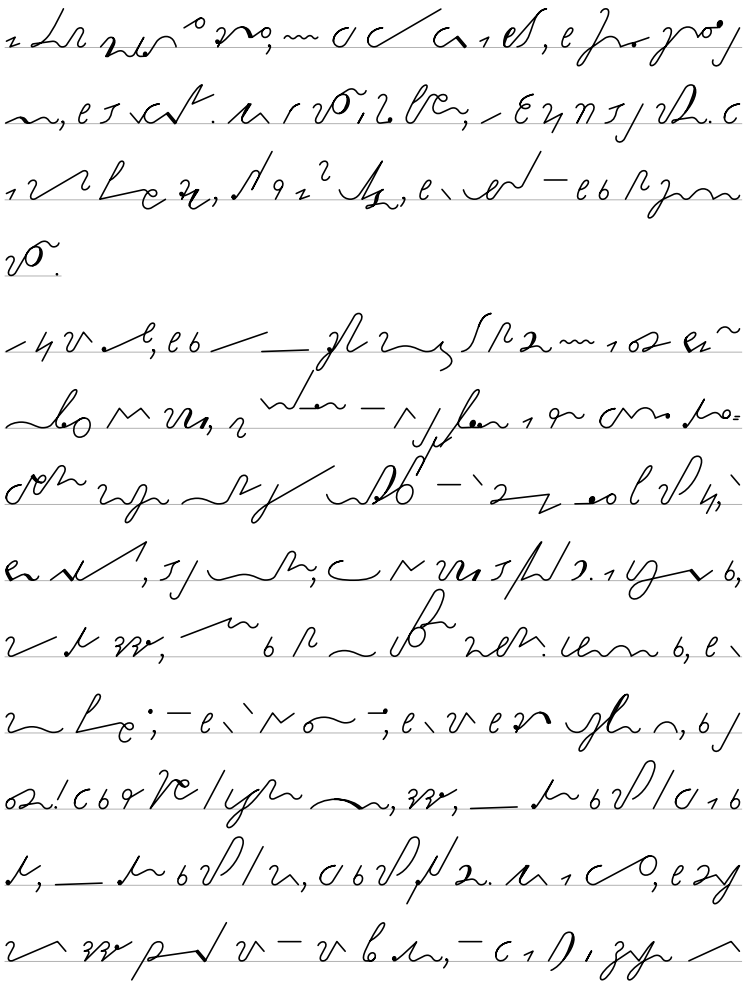
vis-à-vis

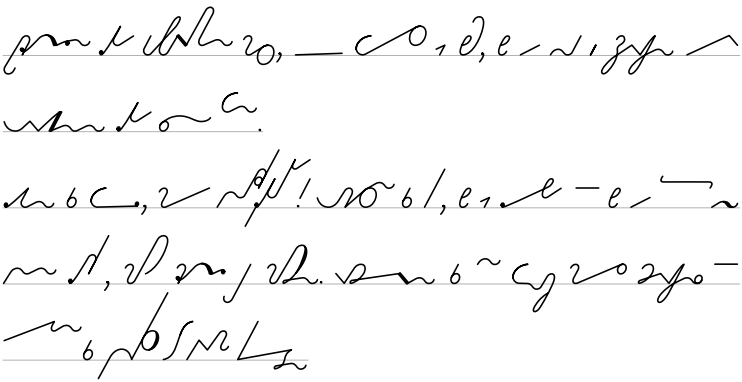






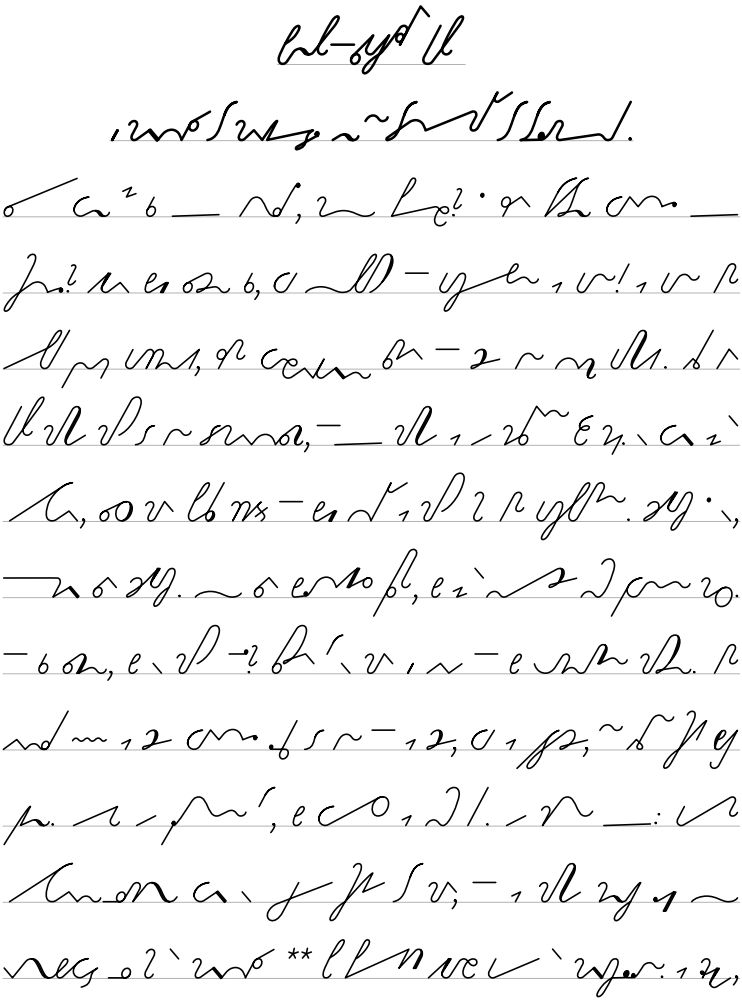


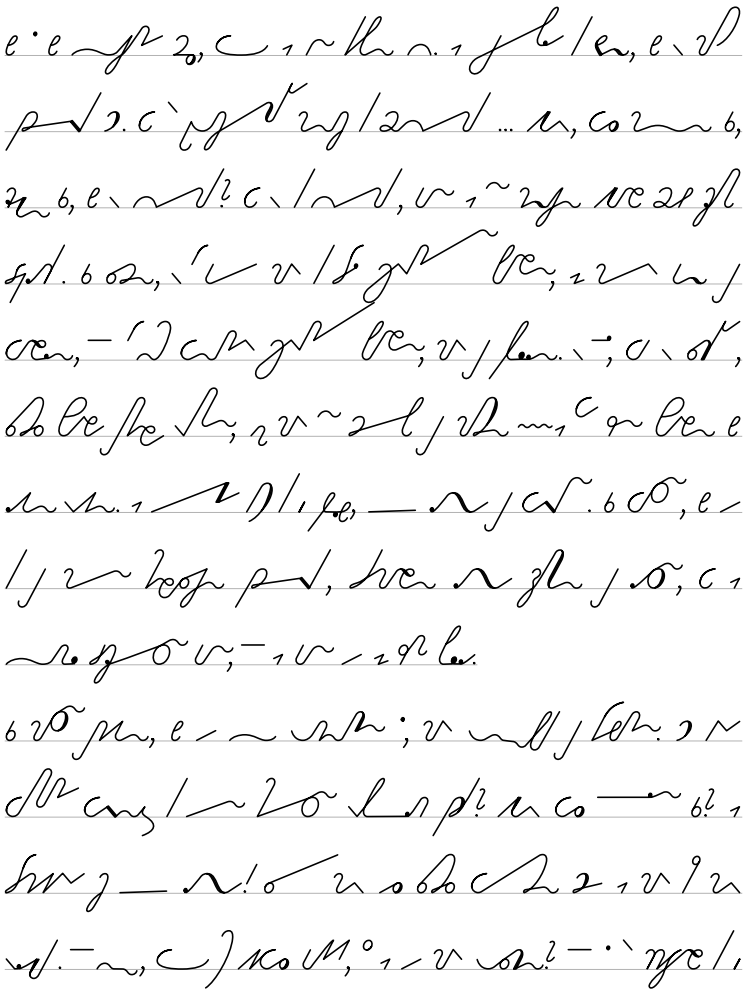


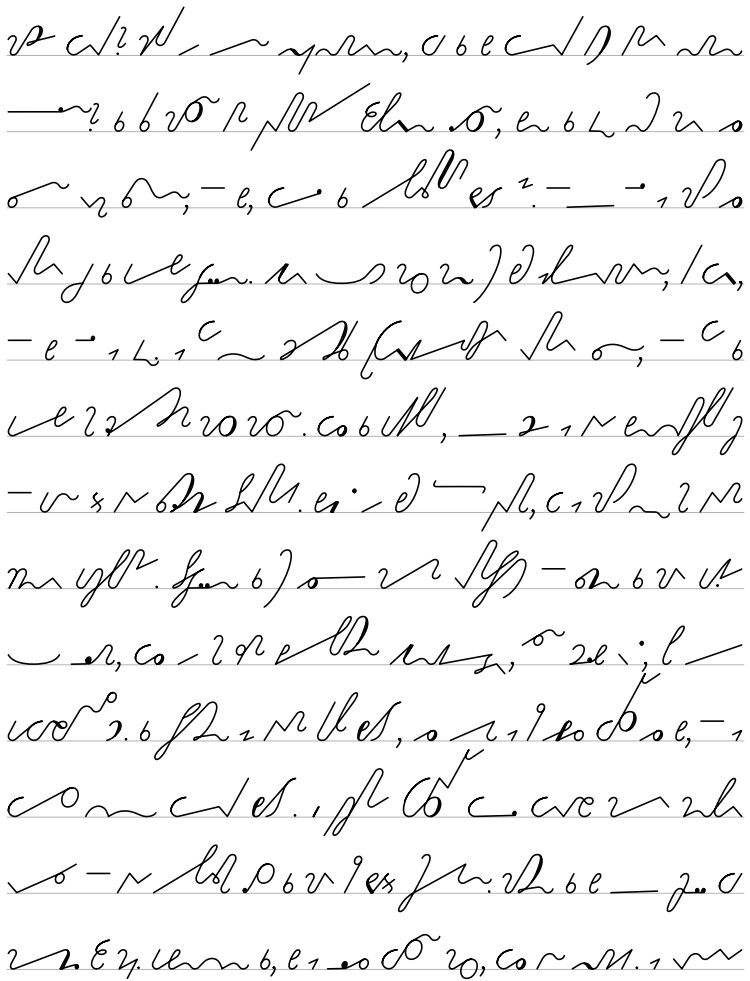


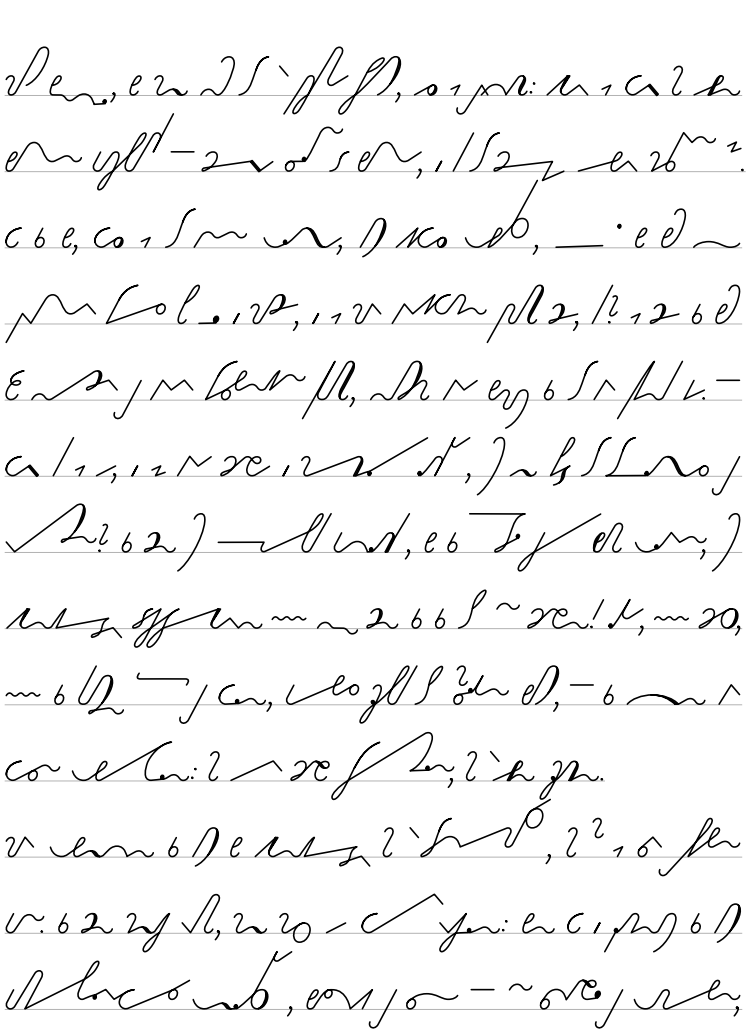
...

...., n 24. ... 17..





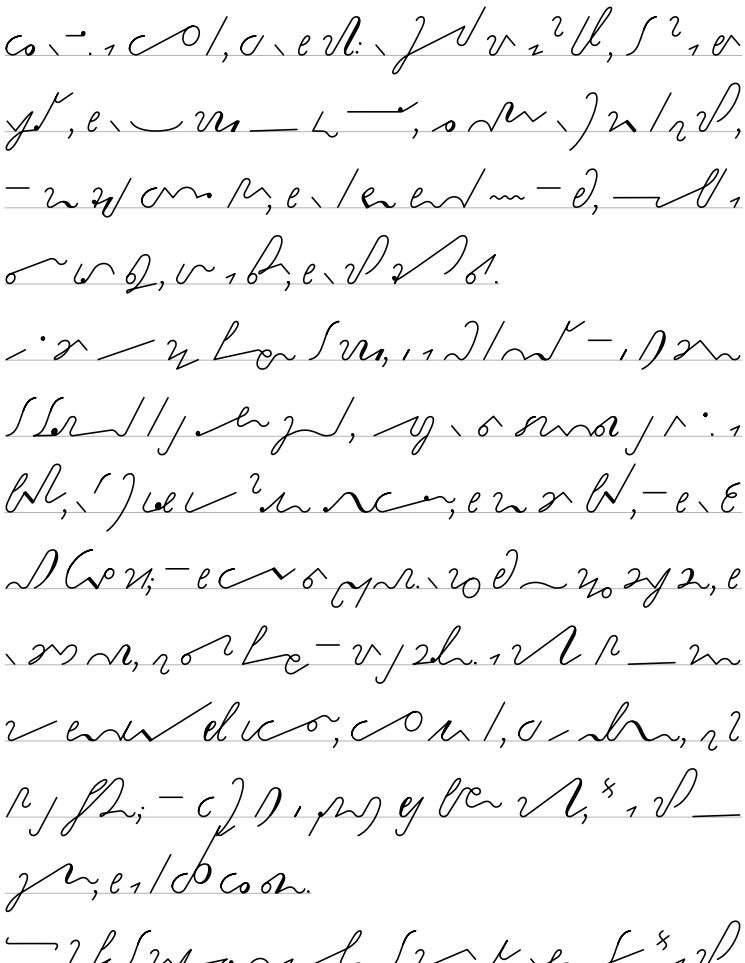


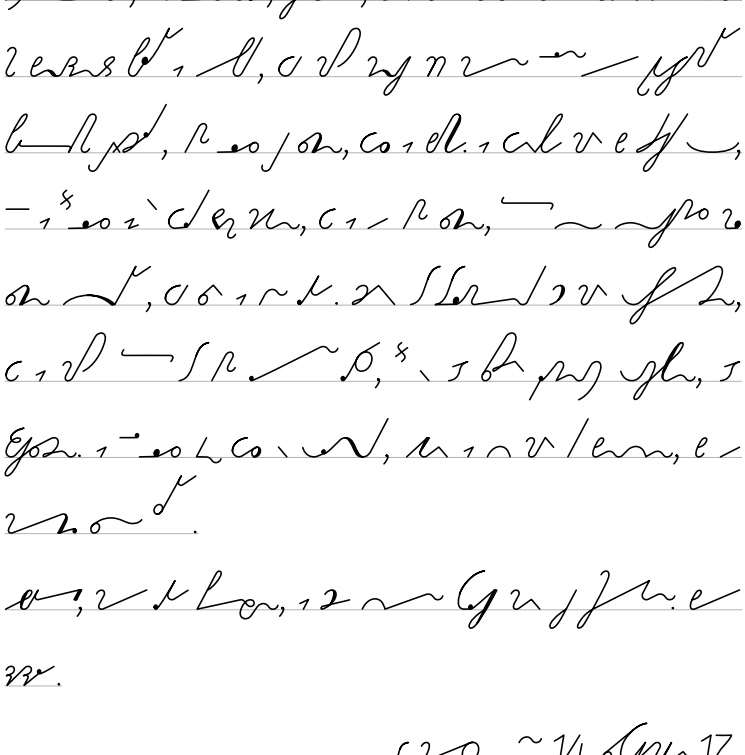


Appendix: Selected Correspondence

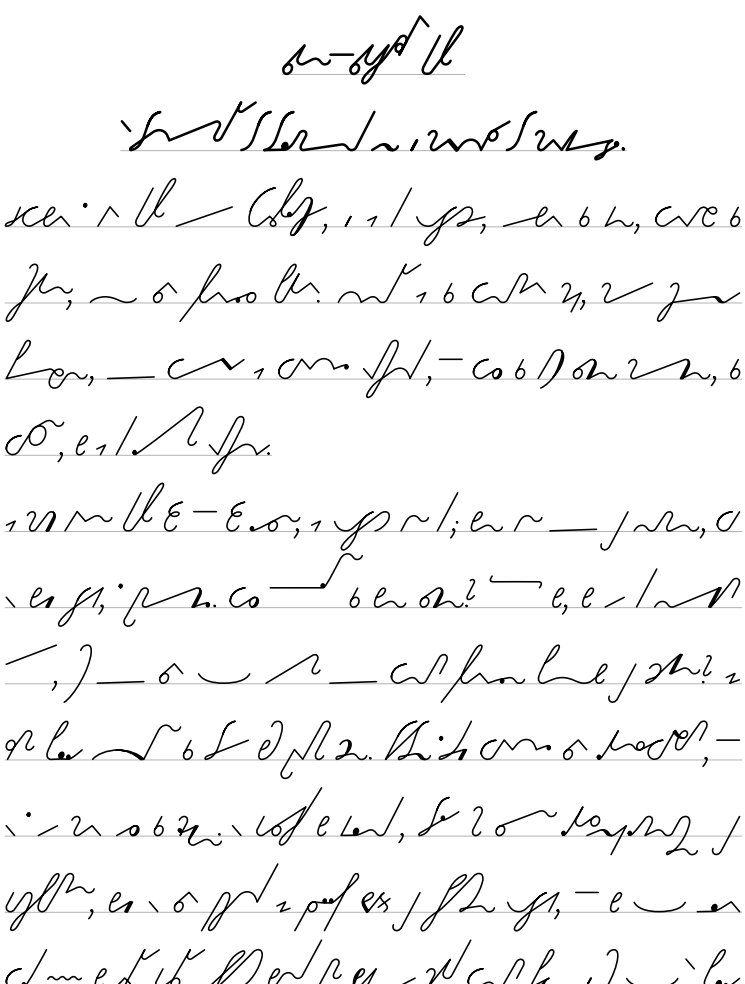
(A letter from Mr. Hollis to Mr. Pemberton, dated 14 March 1760, concerning the proposed subscription for the new edition of Milton.)

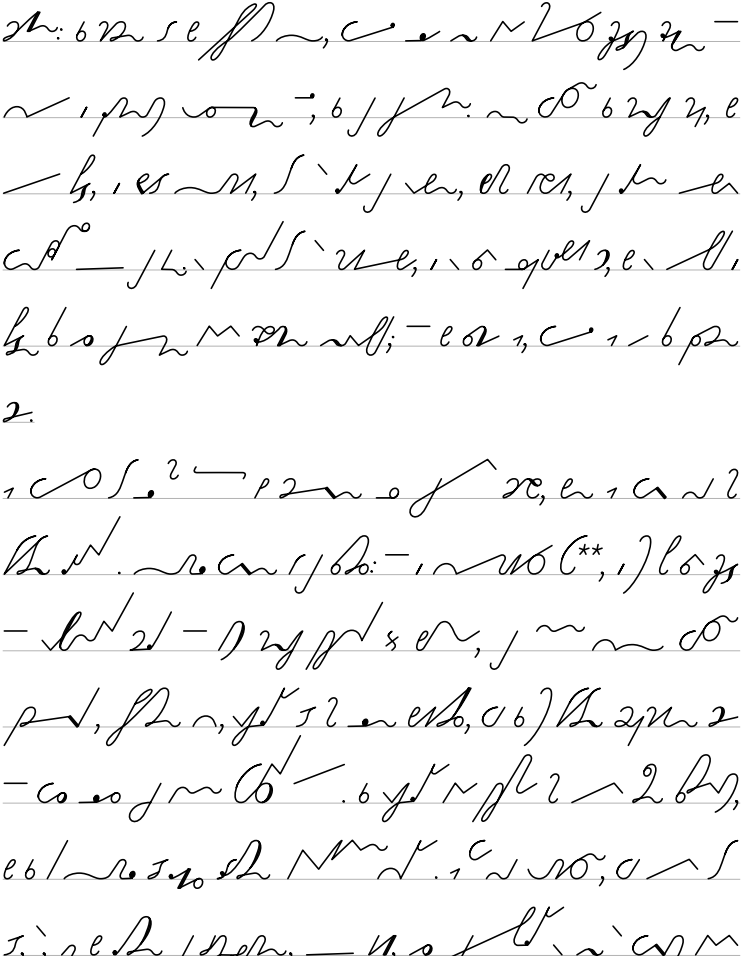
... I have received your letter of the 9th inst. and am glad to find that the subscription is likely to succeed. I shall be at the Bedford Coffee-house on Tuesday next, and will endeavour to meet Mr. Millar there, that we may settle the number of copies to be printed; I am of opinion that five hundred will be sufficient. I have also spoken to Mr. Baskerville, who undertakes the printing, and he will begin as soon as the paper is ready. I am, Sir, your most obedient servant, T. Hollis.

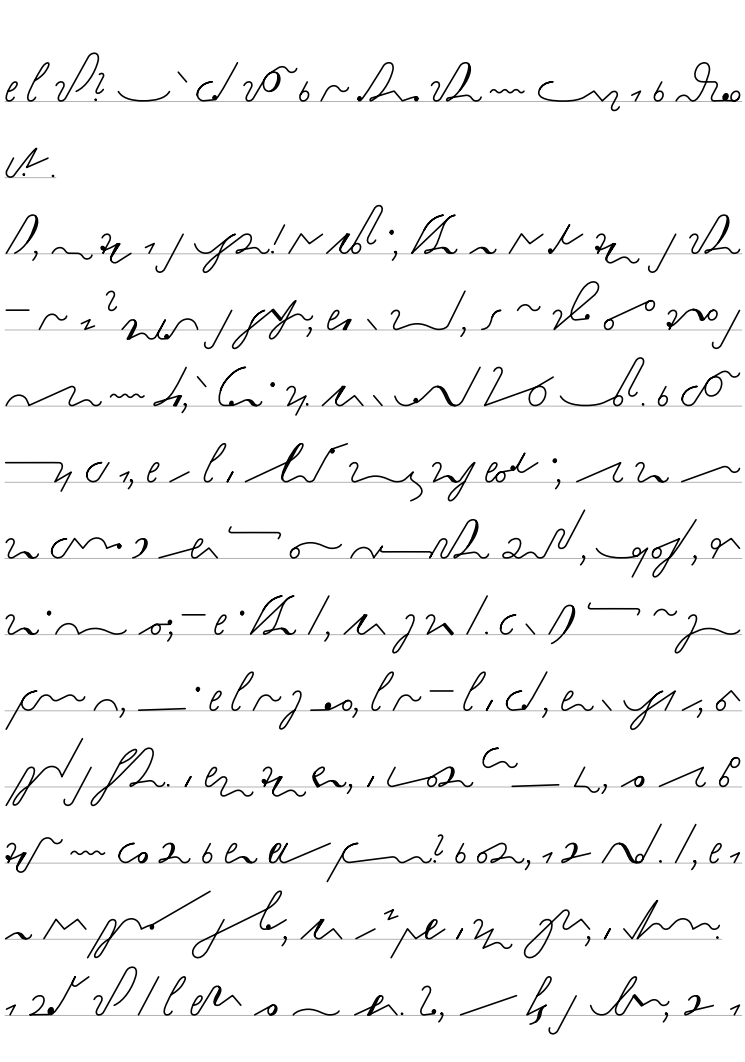


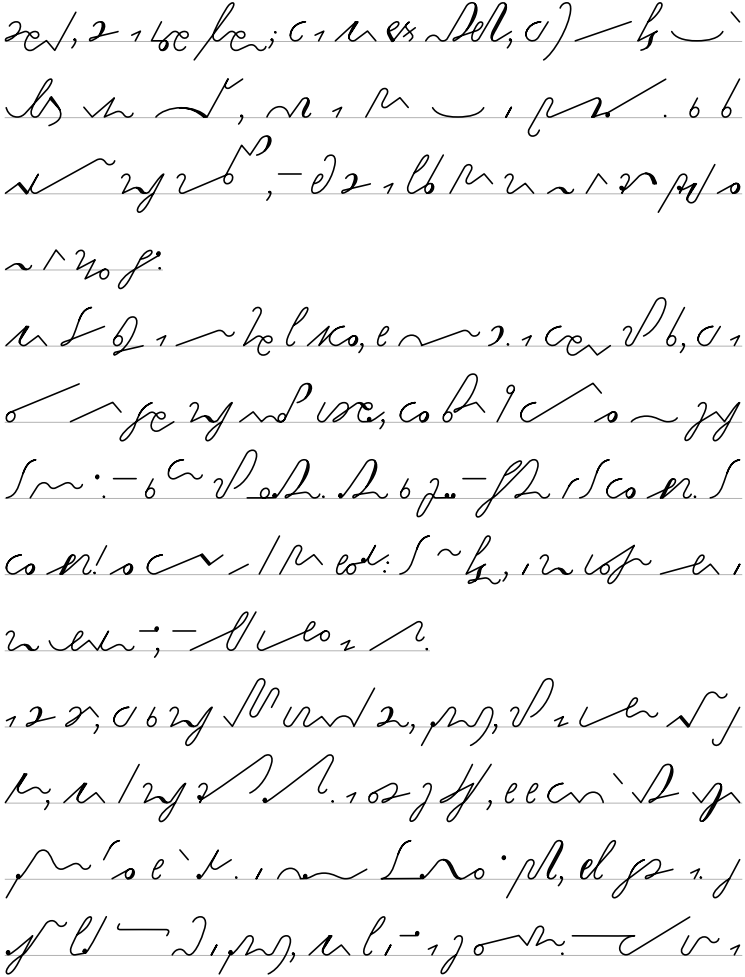


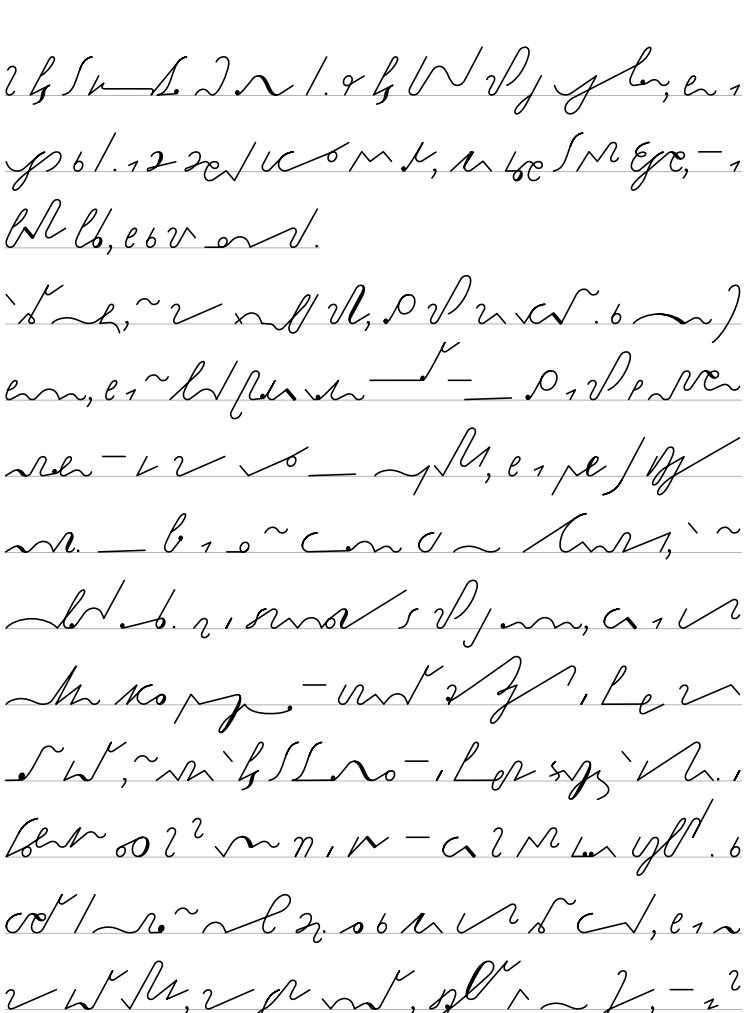
...,~ 14. ... 17..

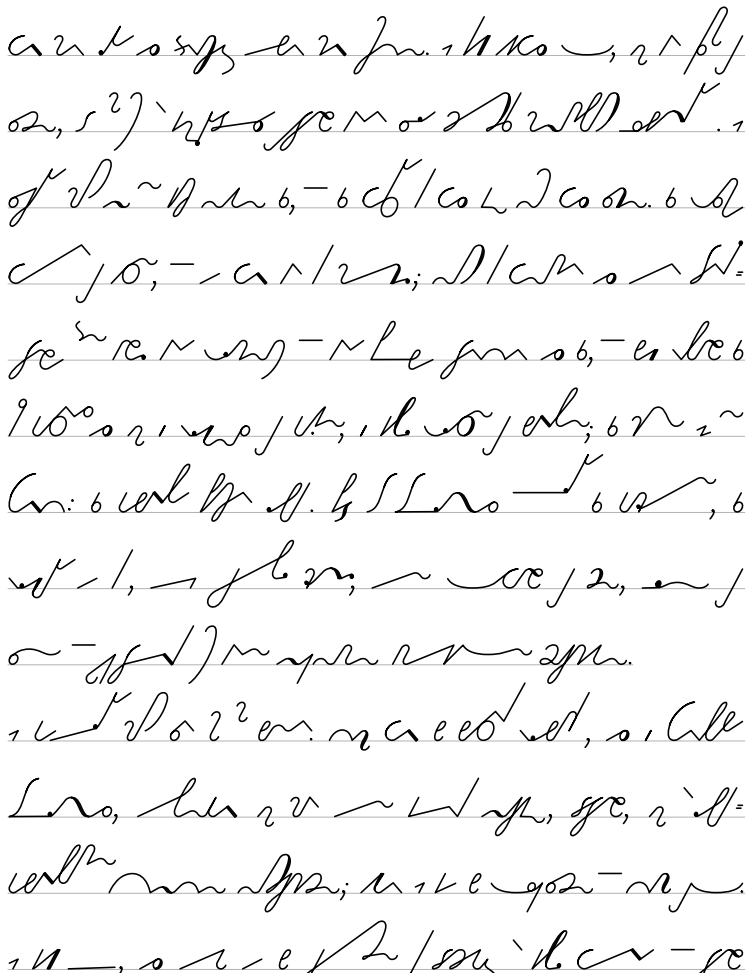


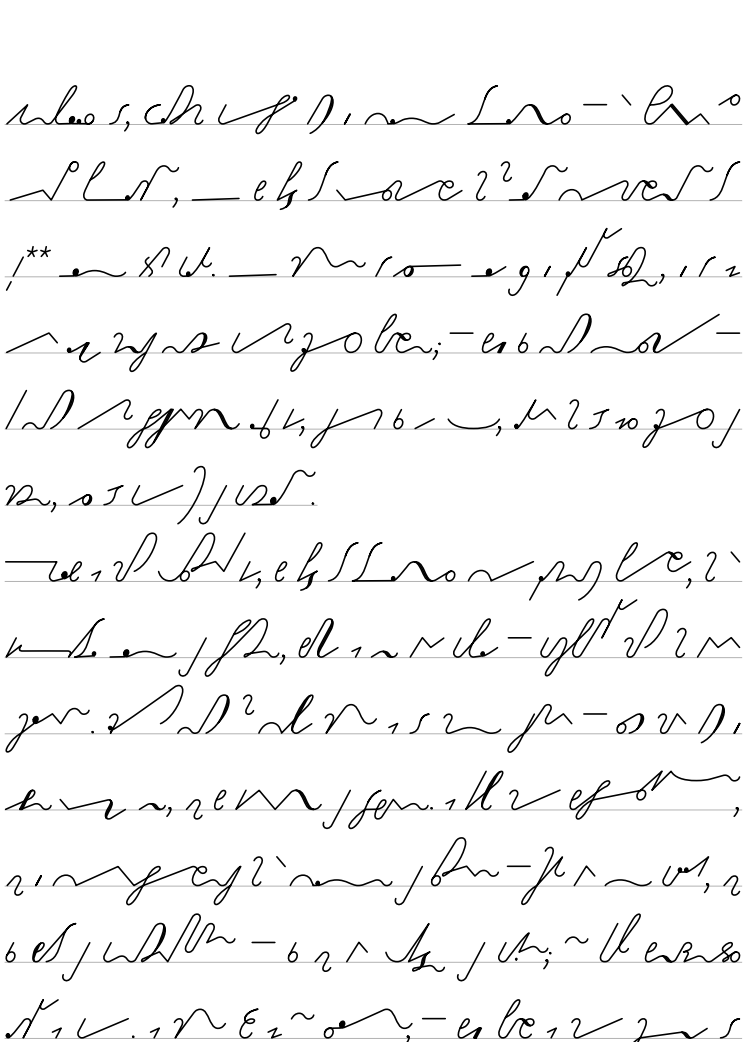


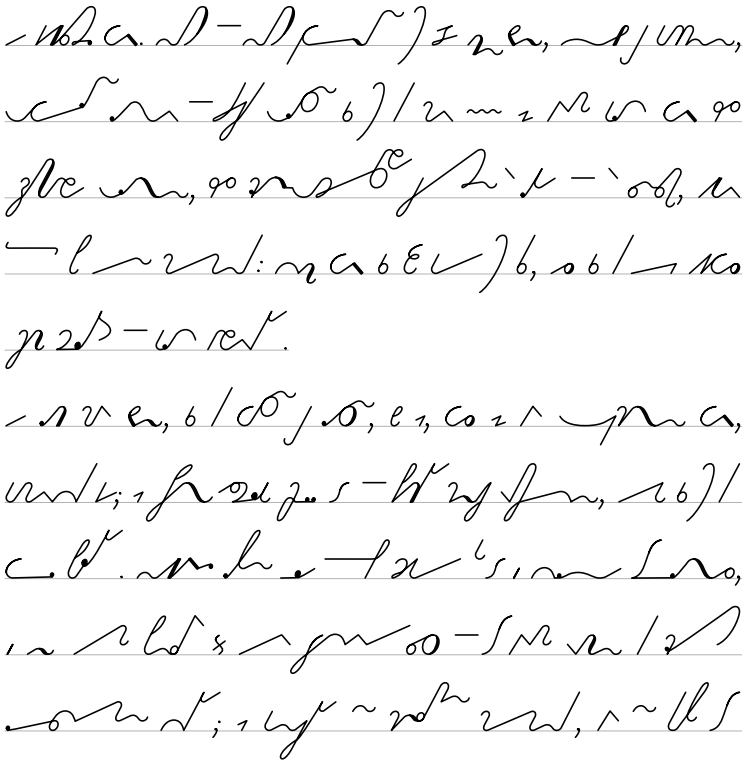


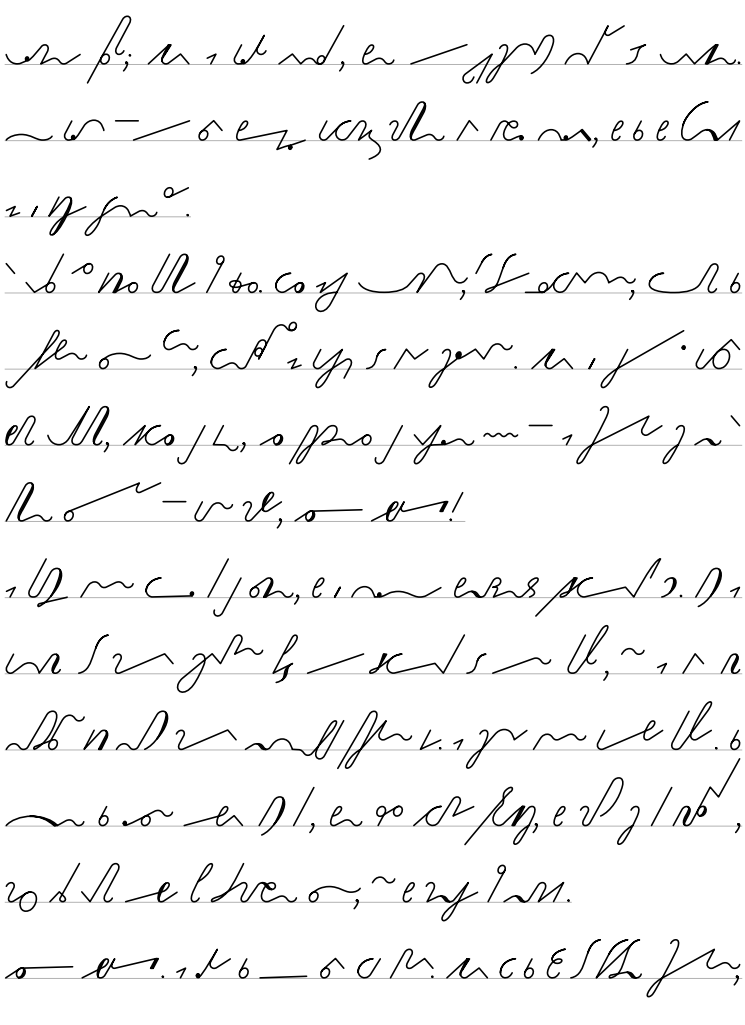


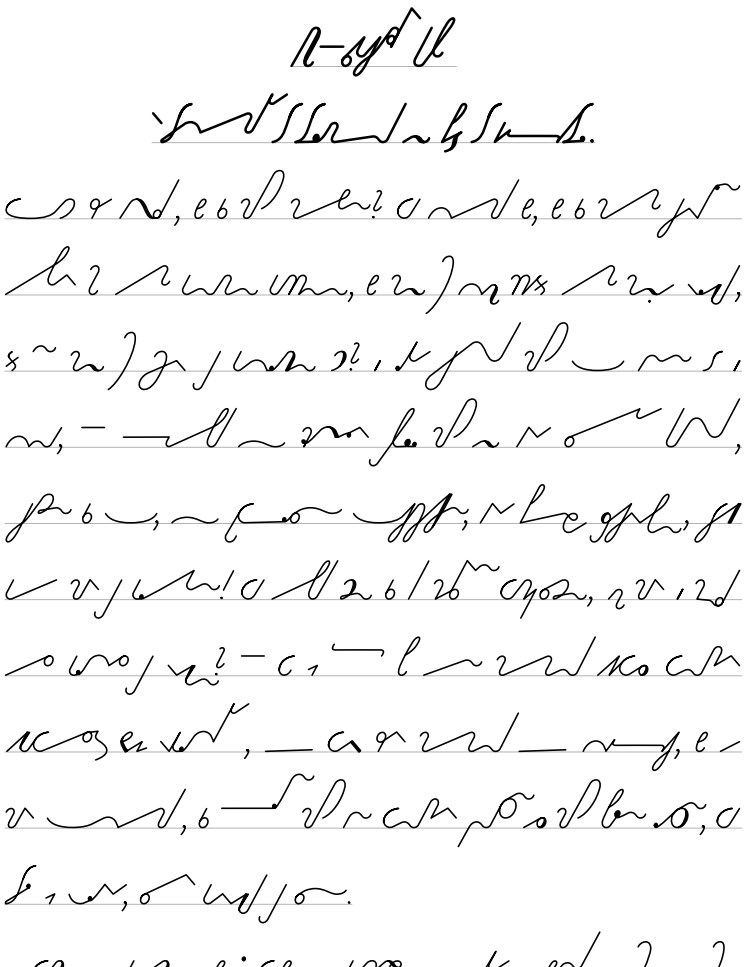


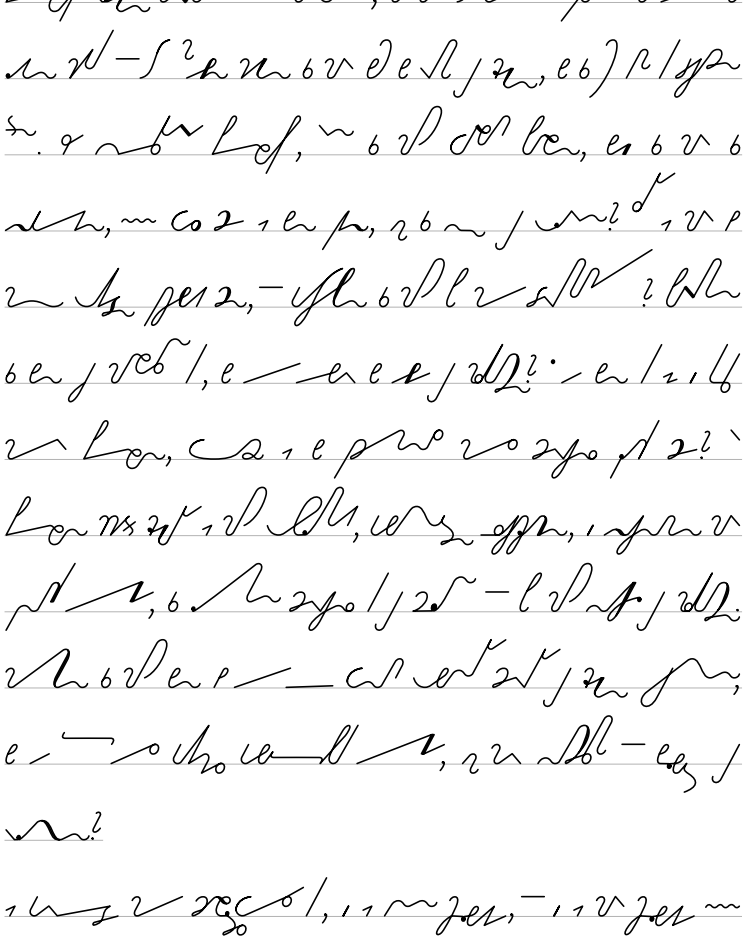


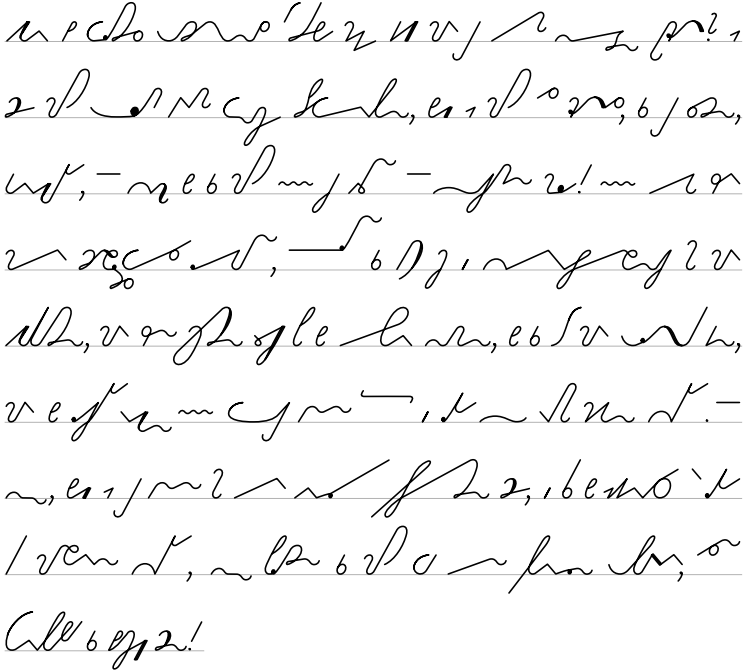


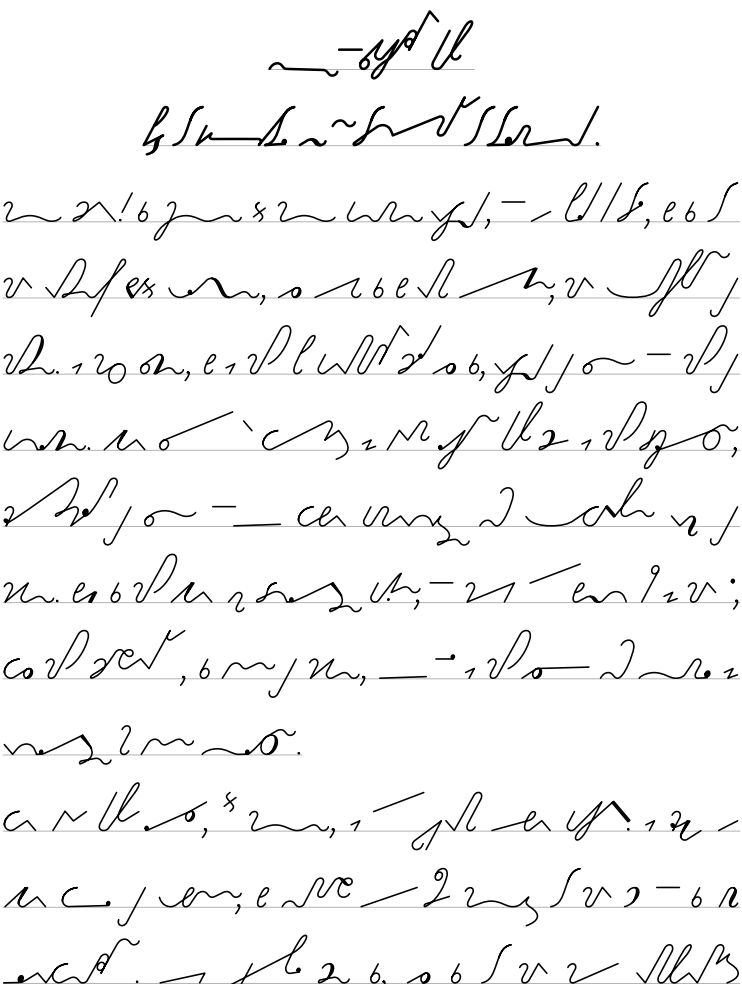


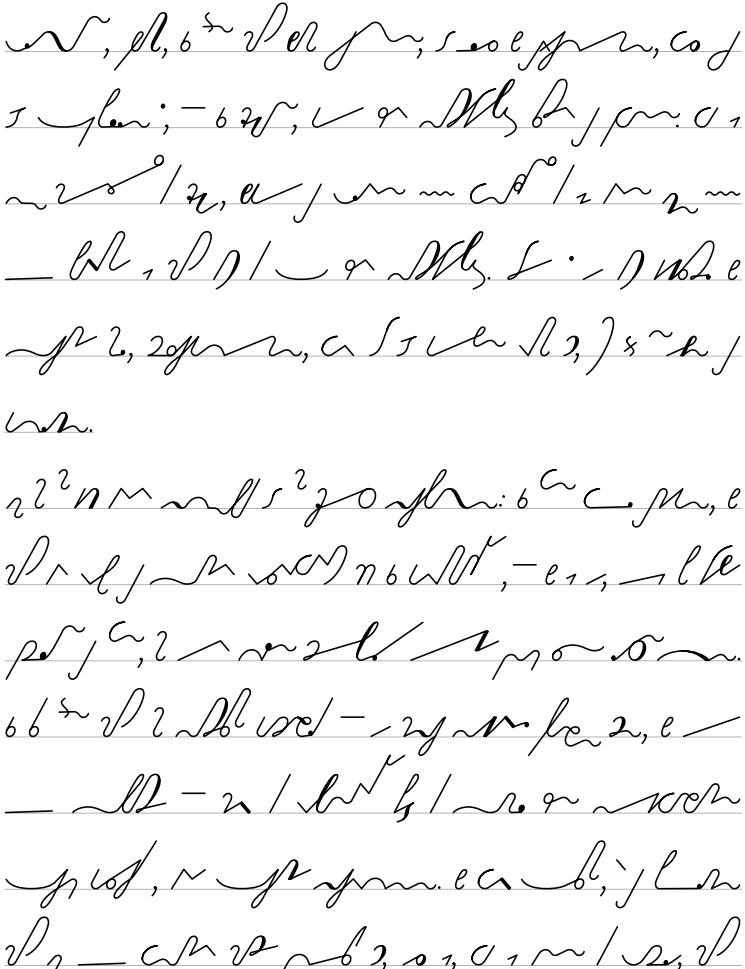


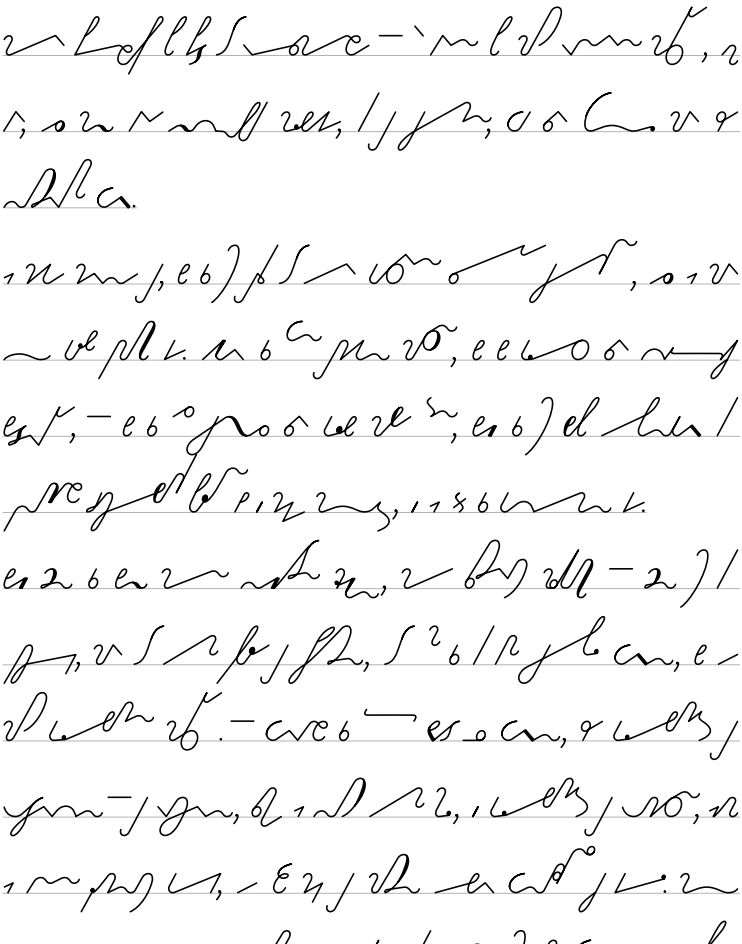


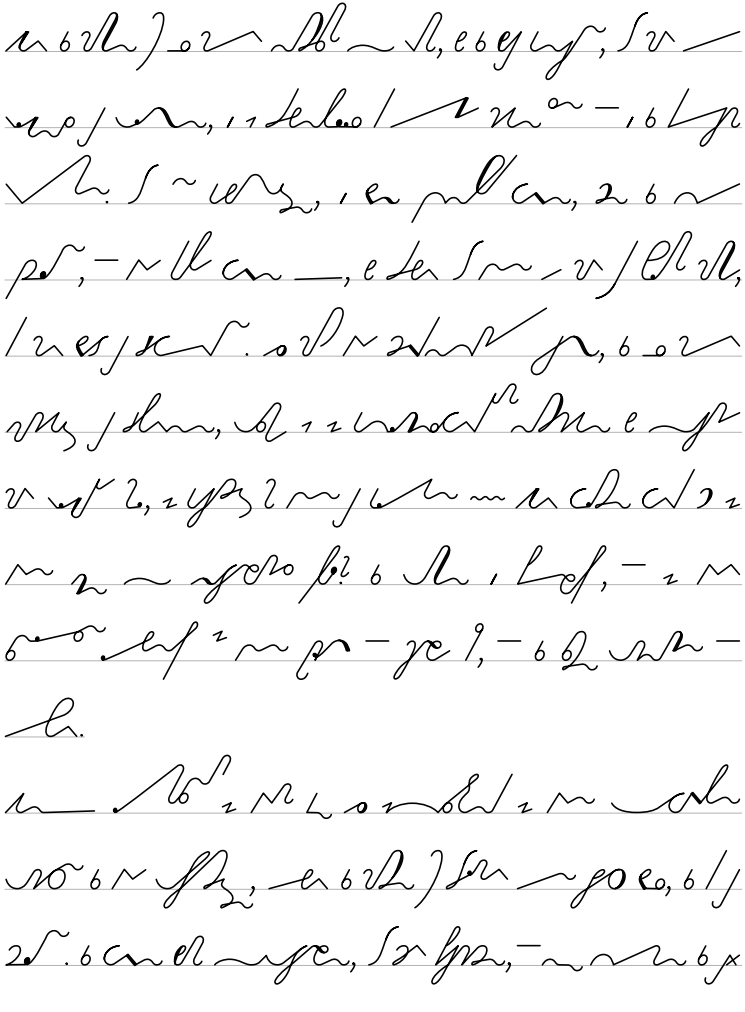


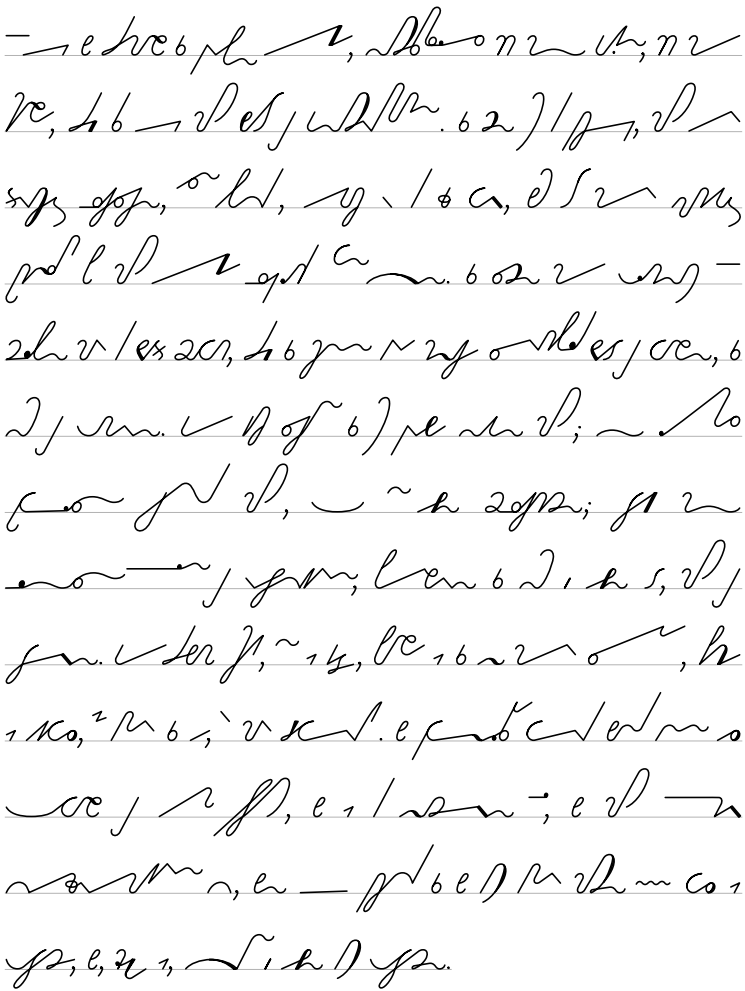


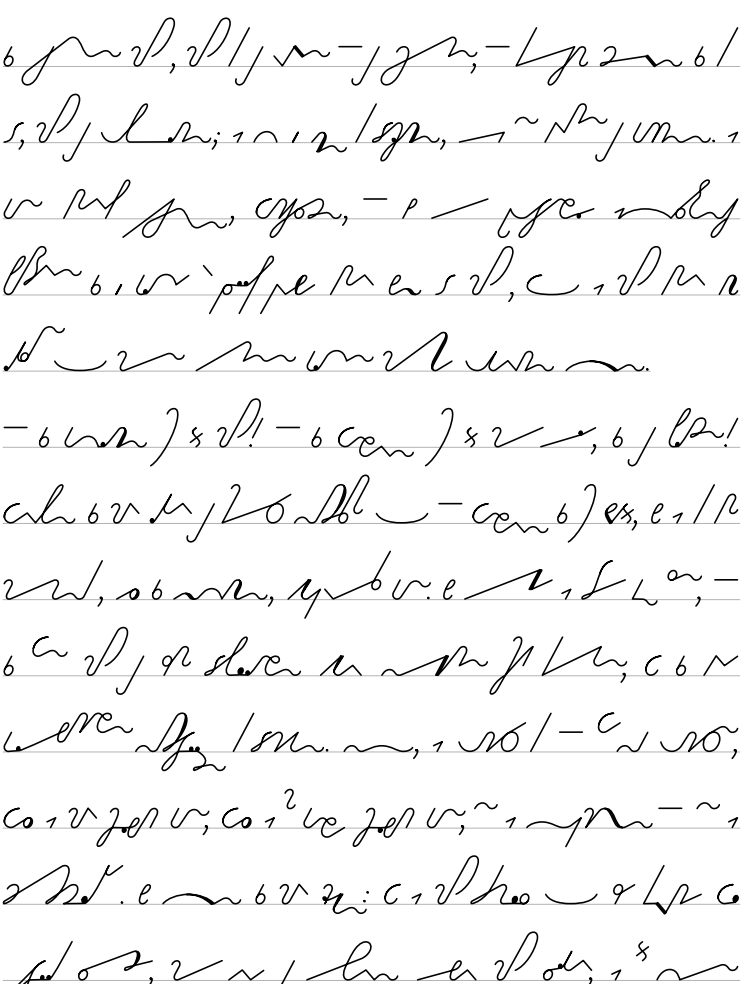


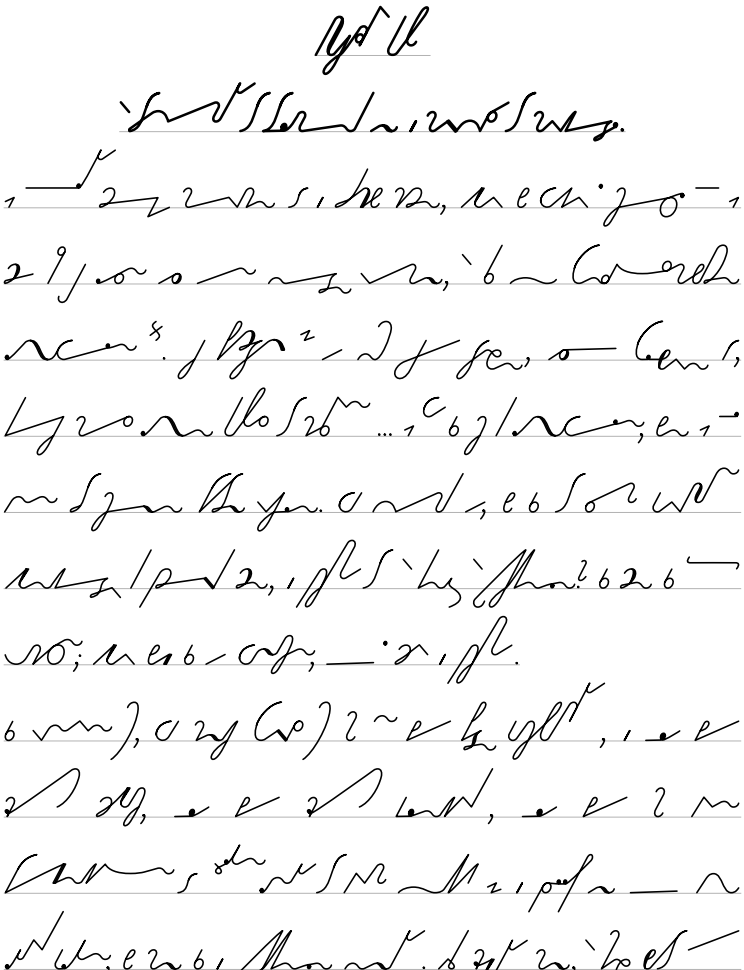


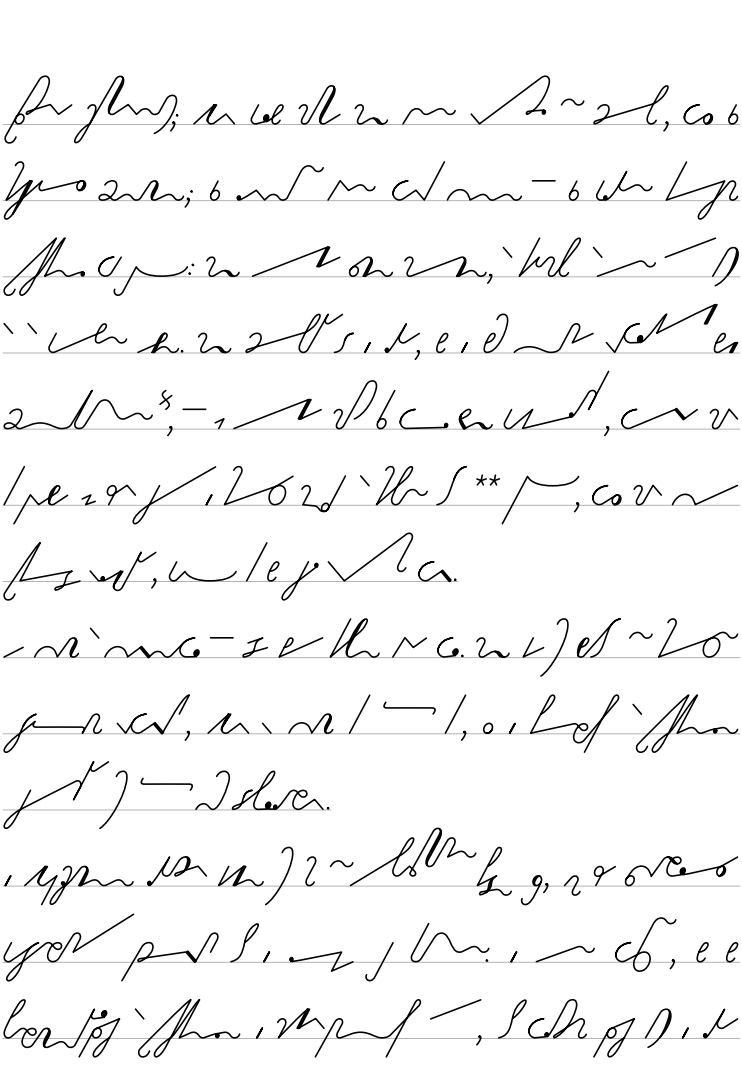


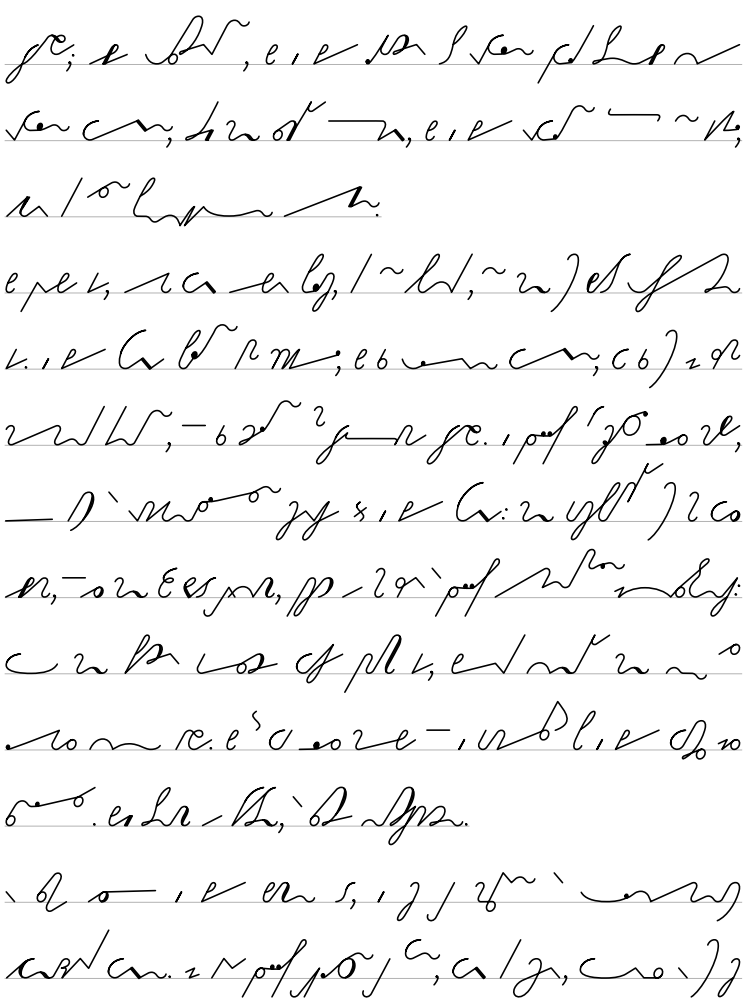


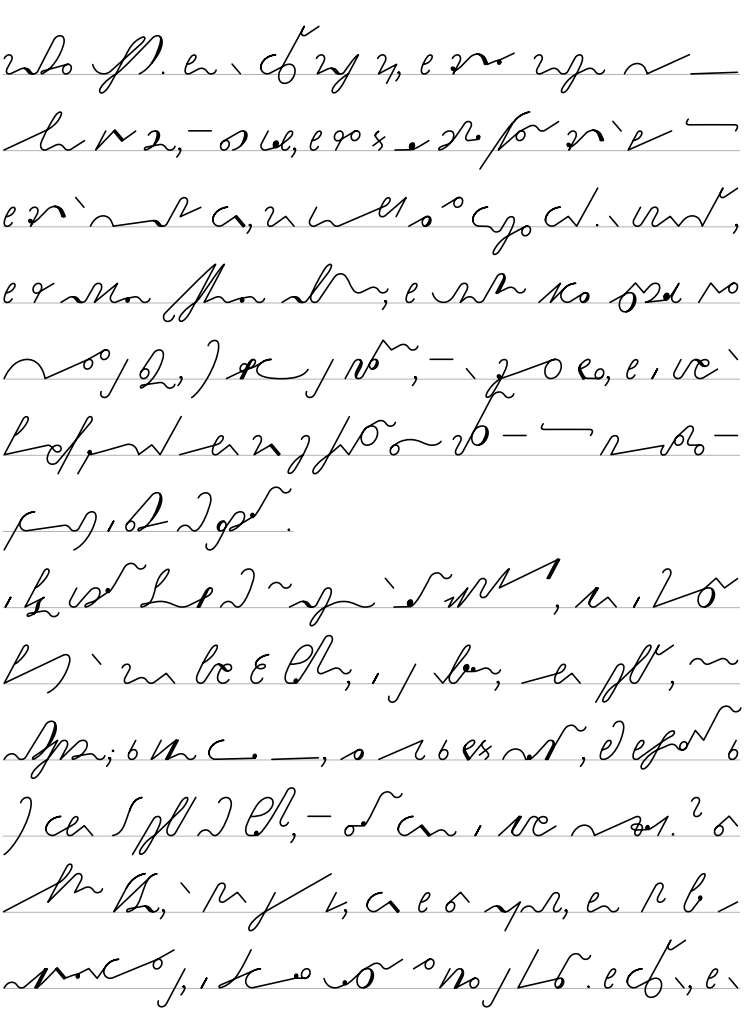


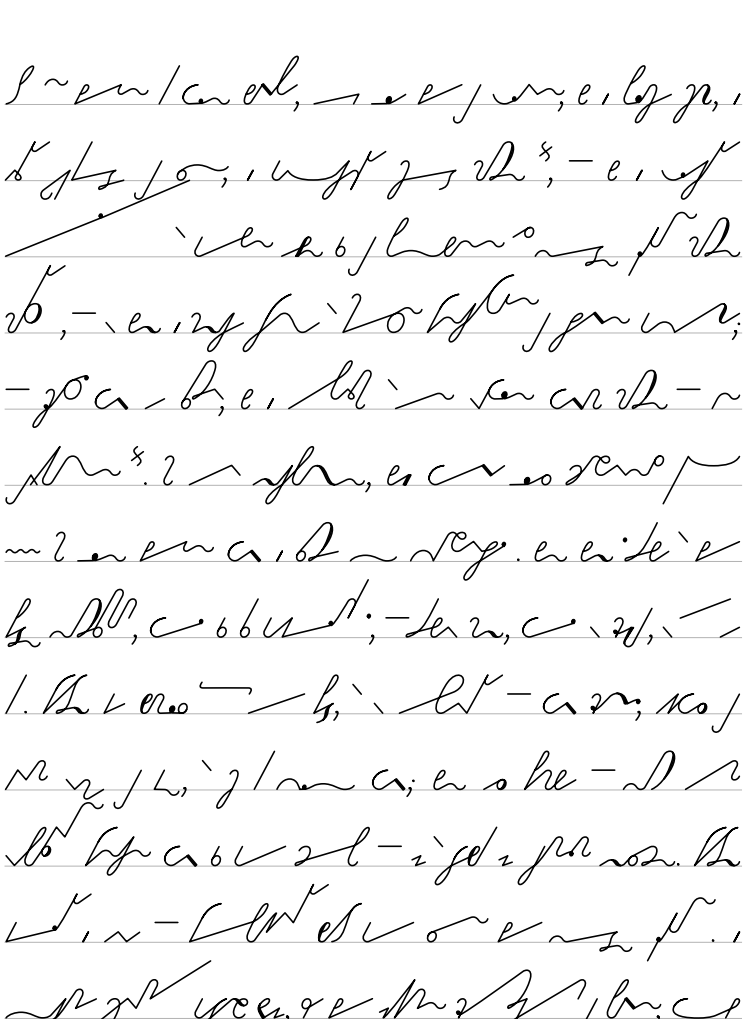


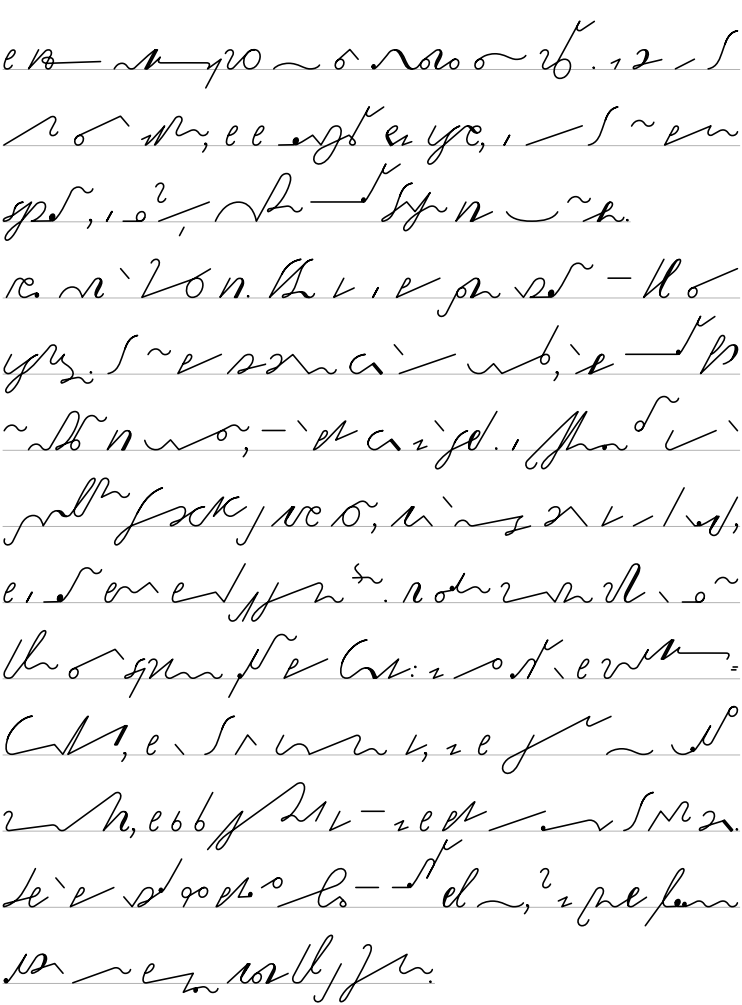


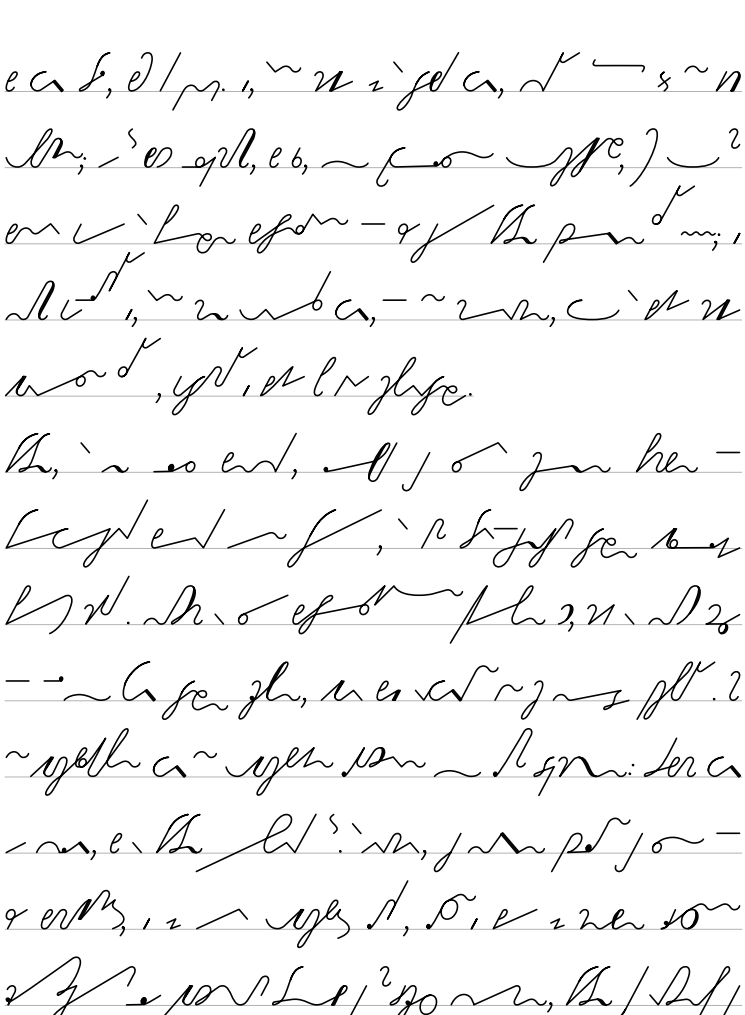


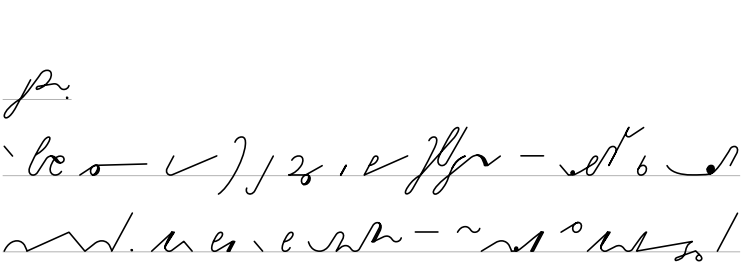




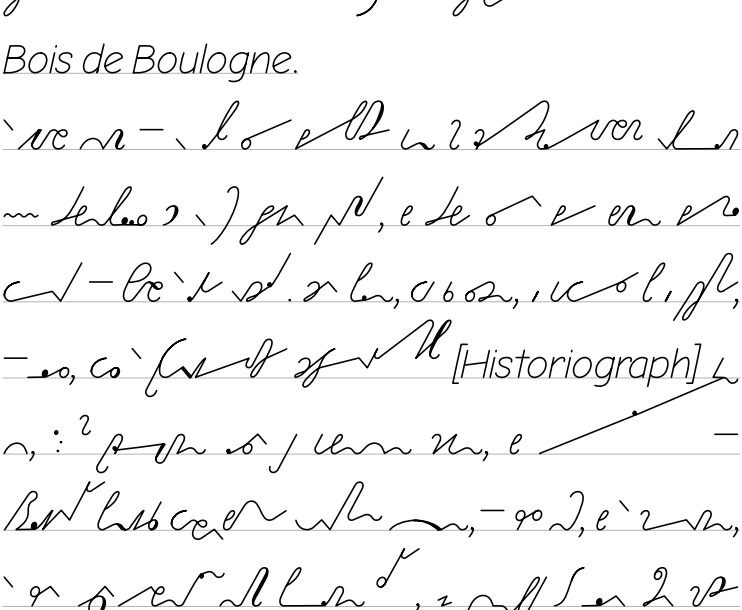


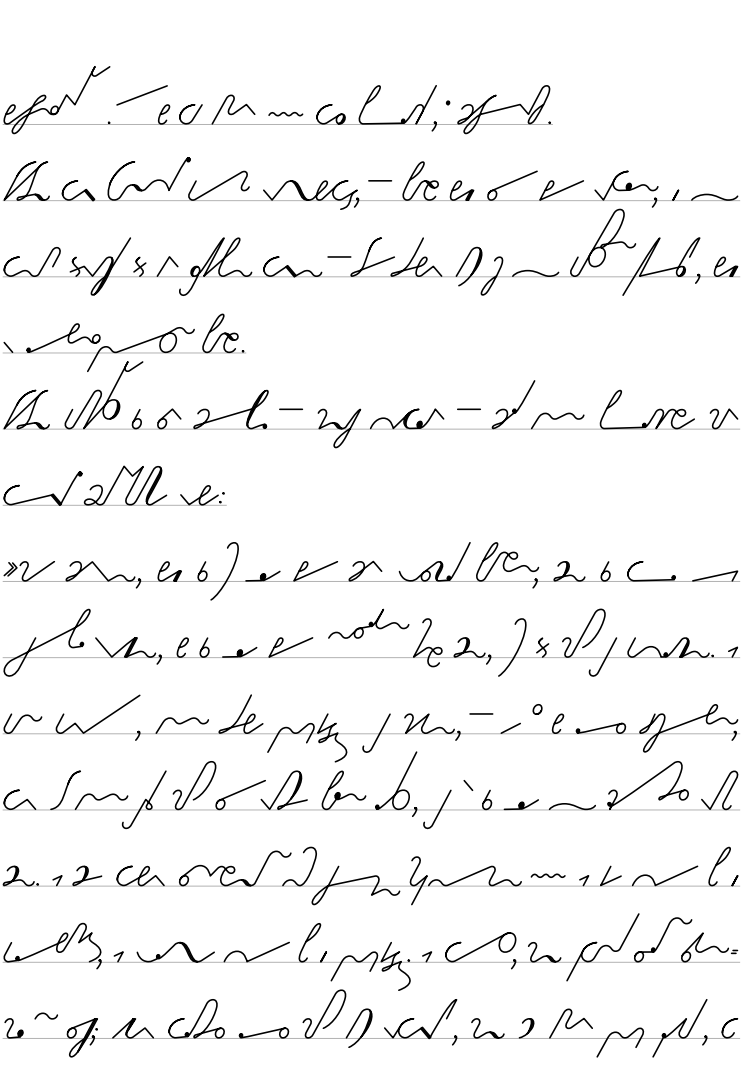


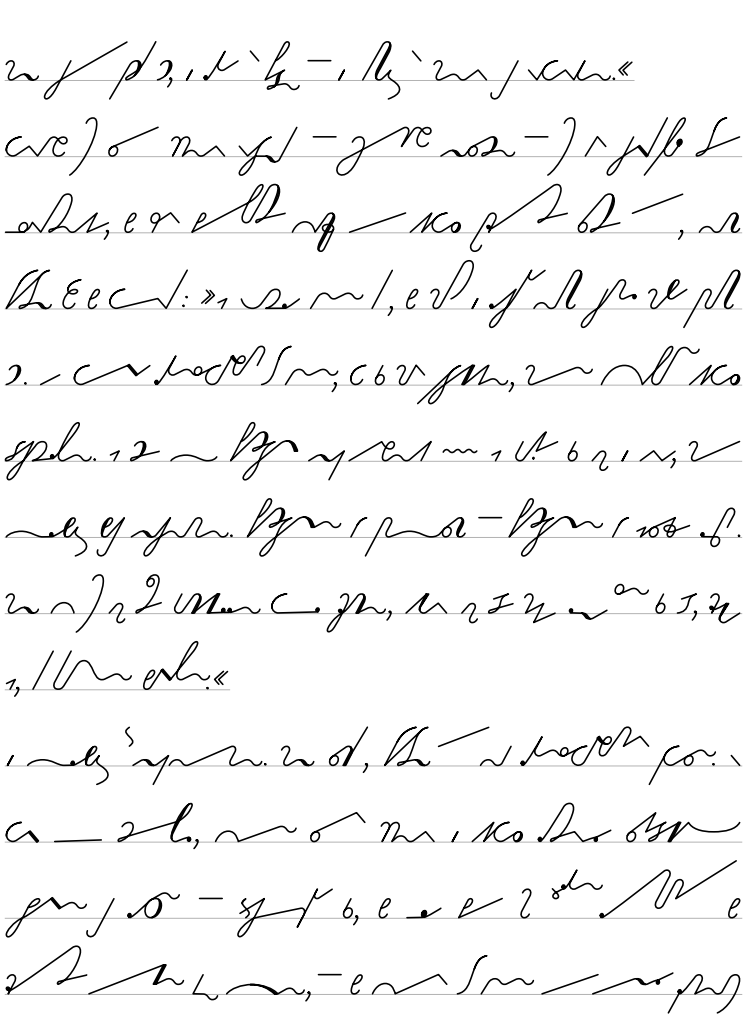


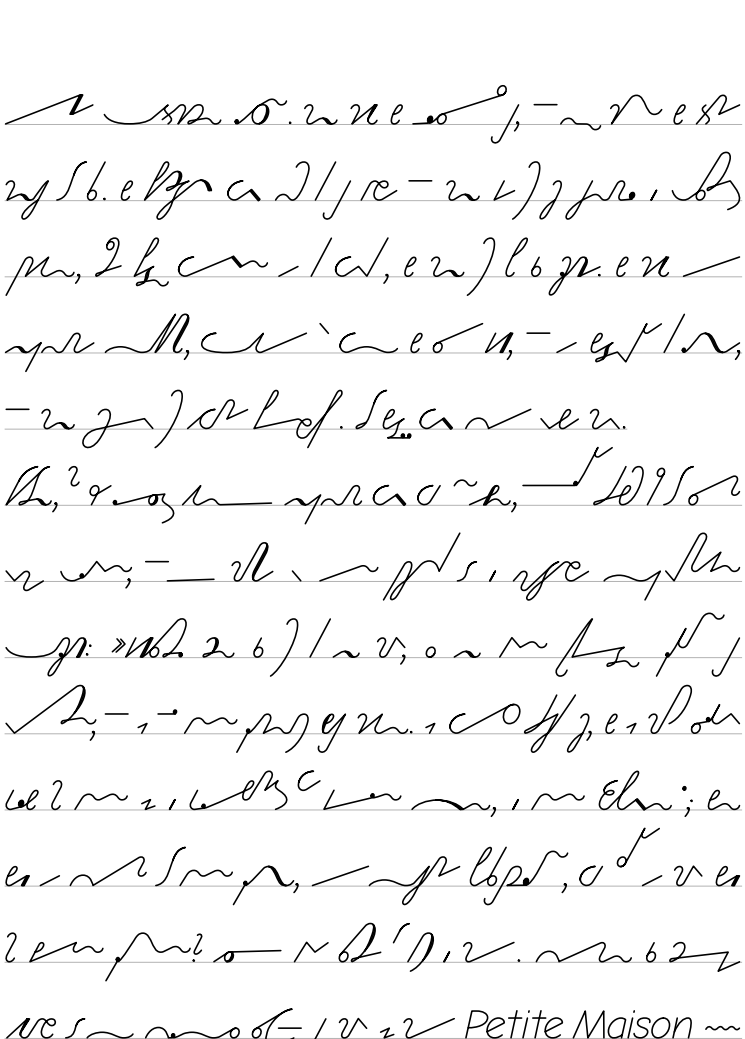


Bois de Boulogne.

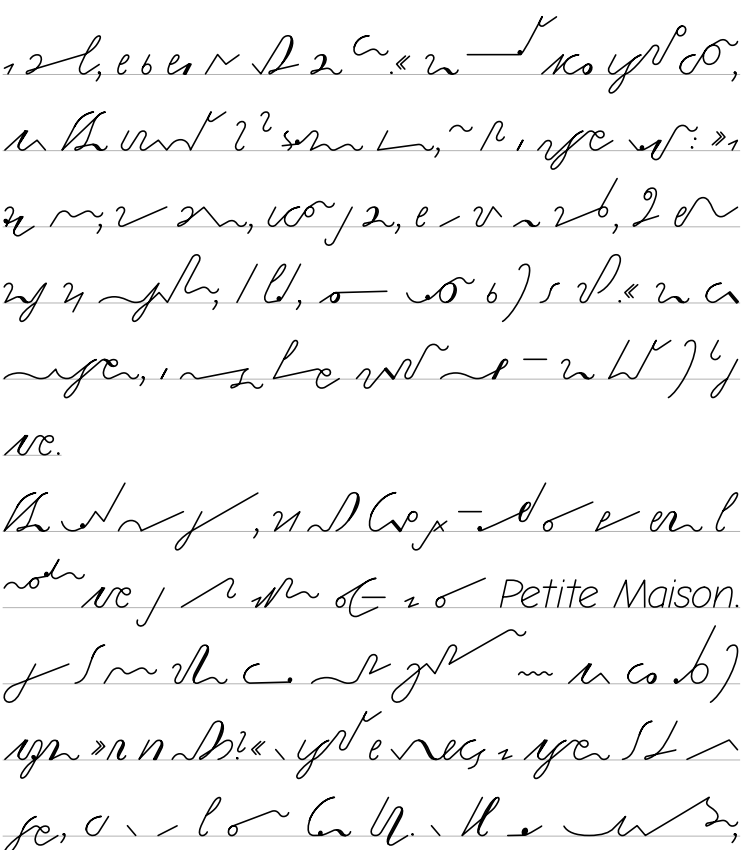




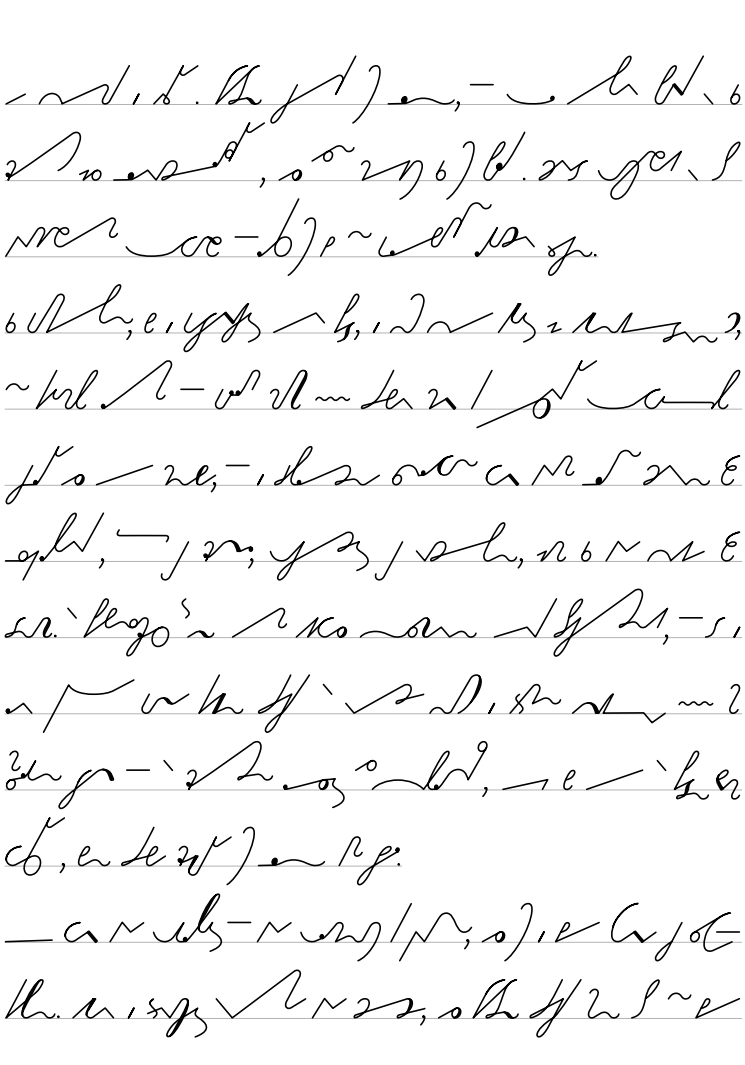


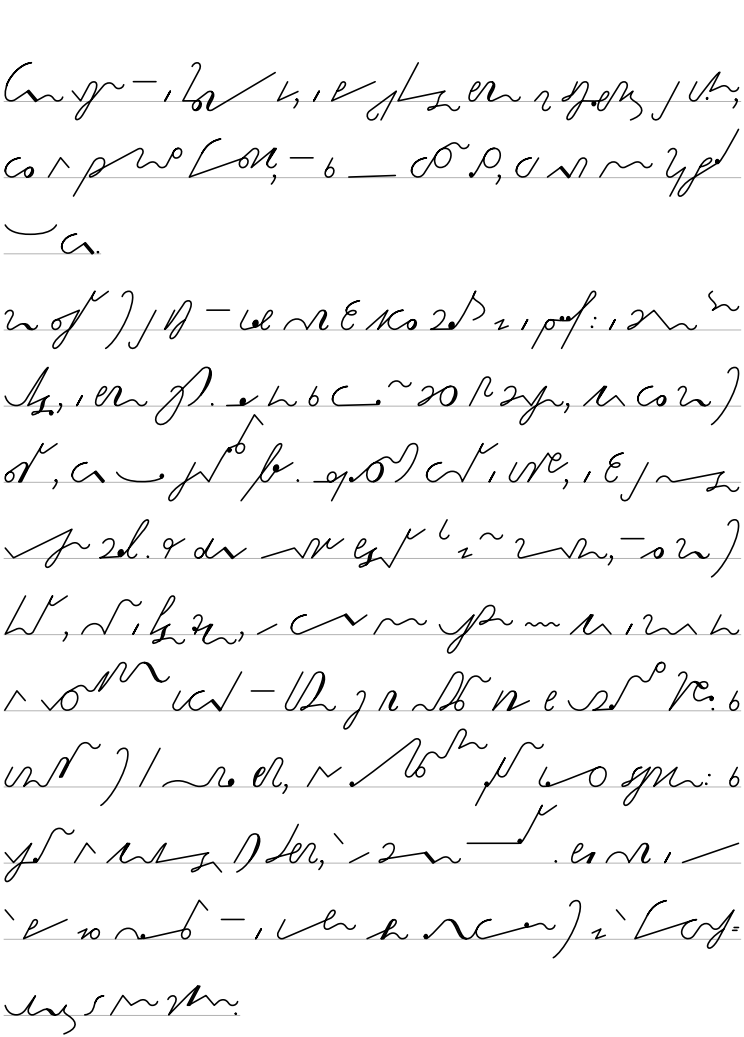


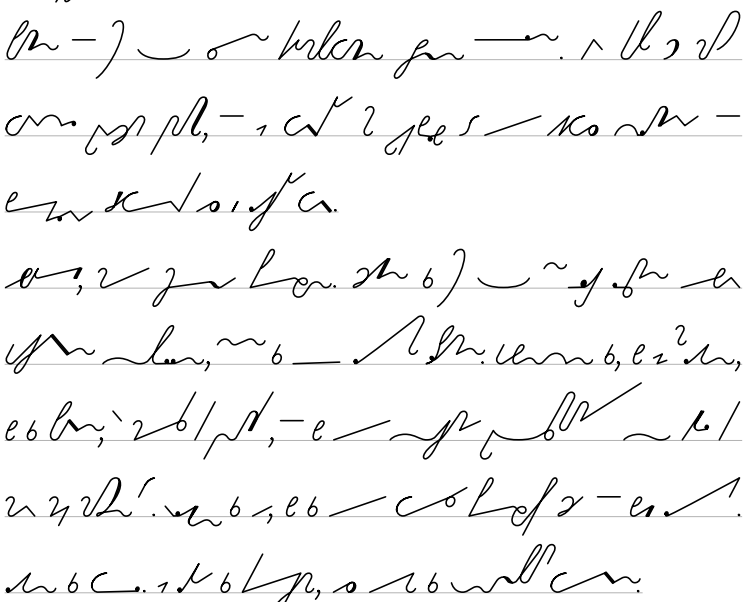
Petite Maison

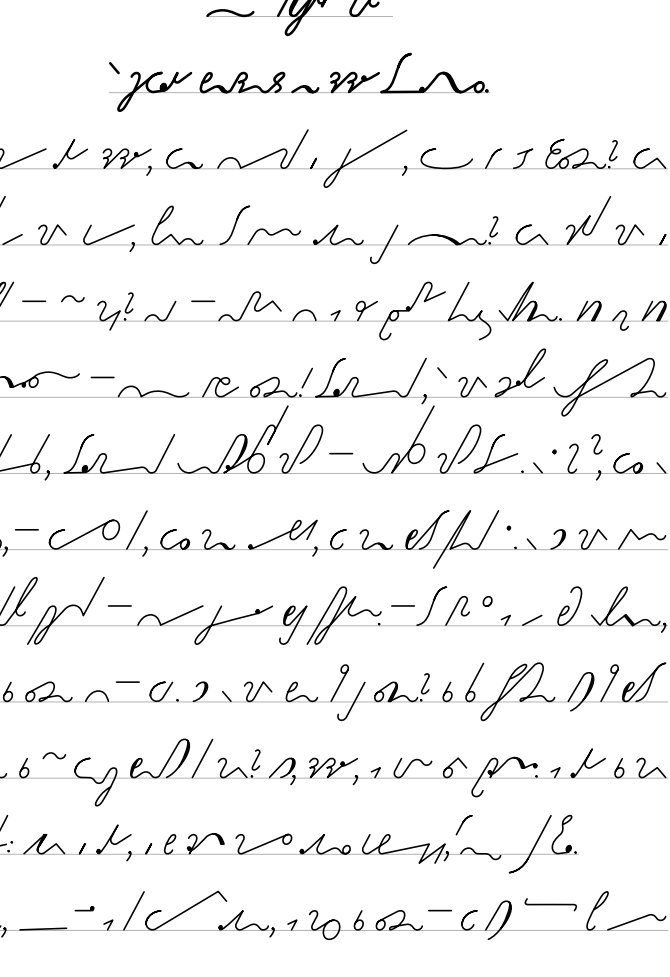


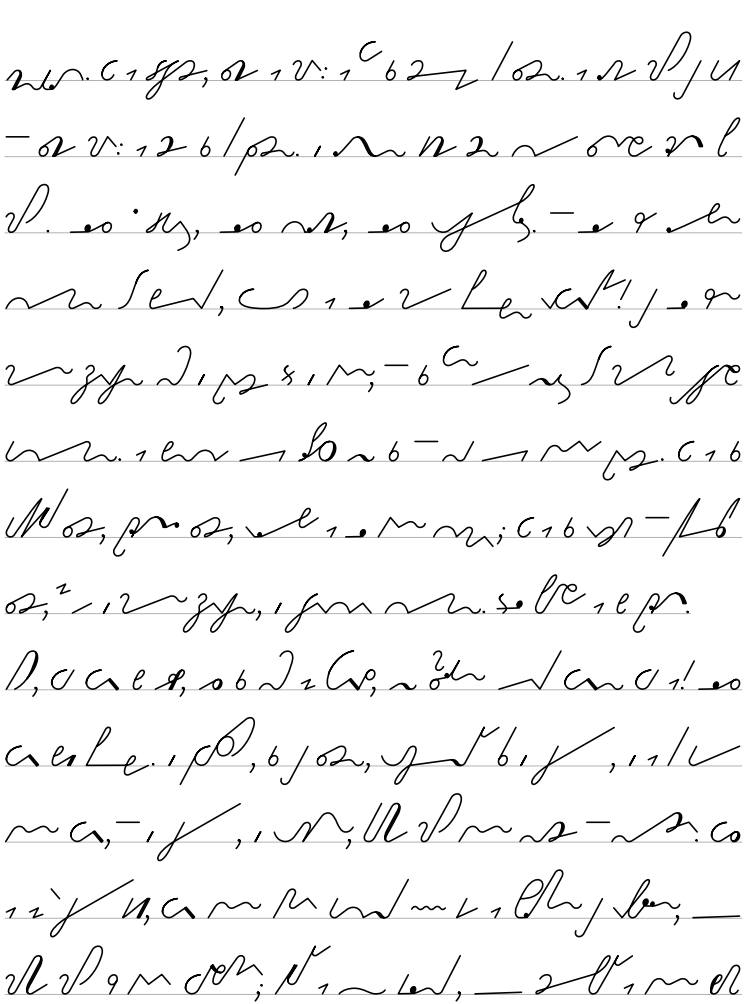
Petite Maison.

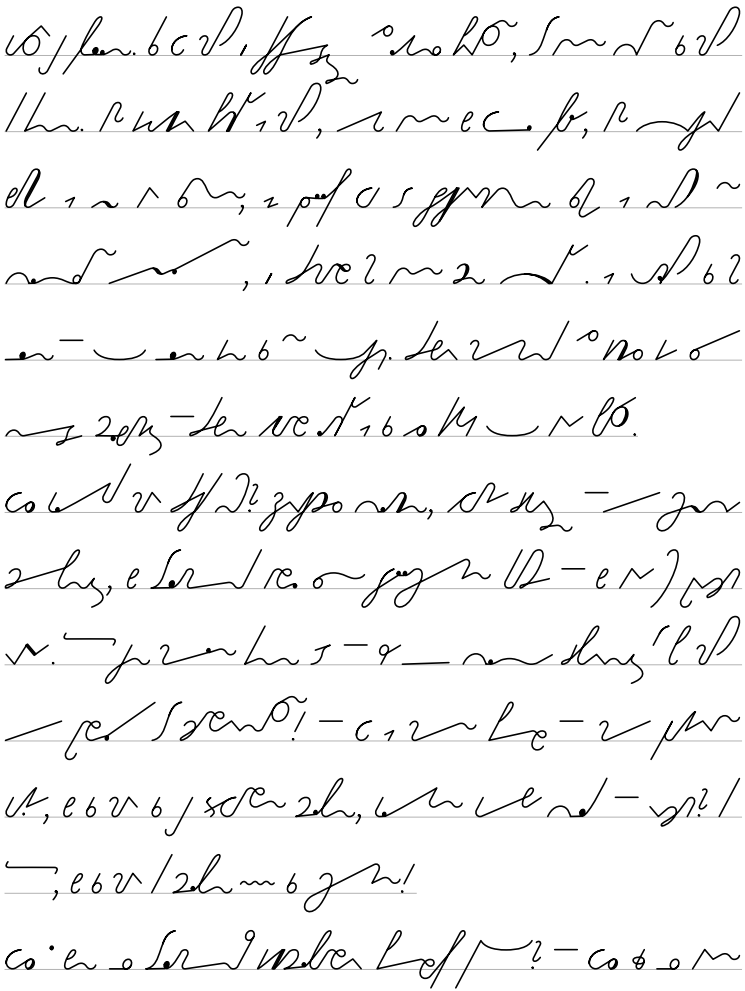


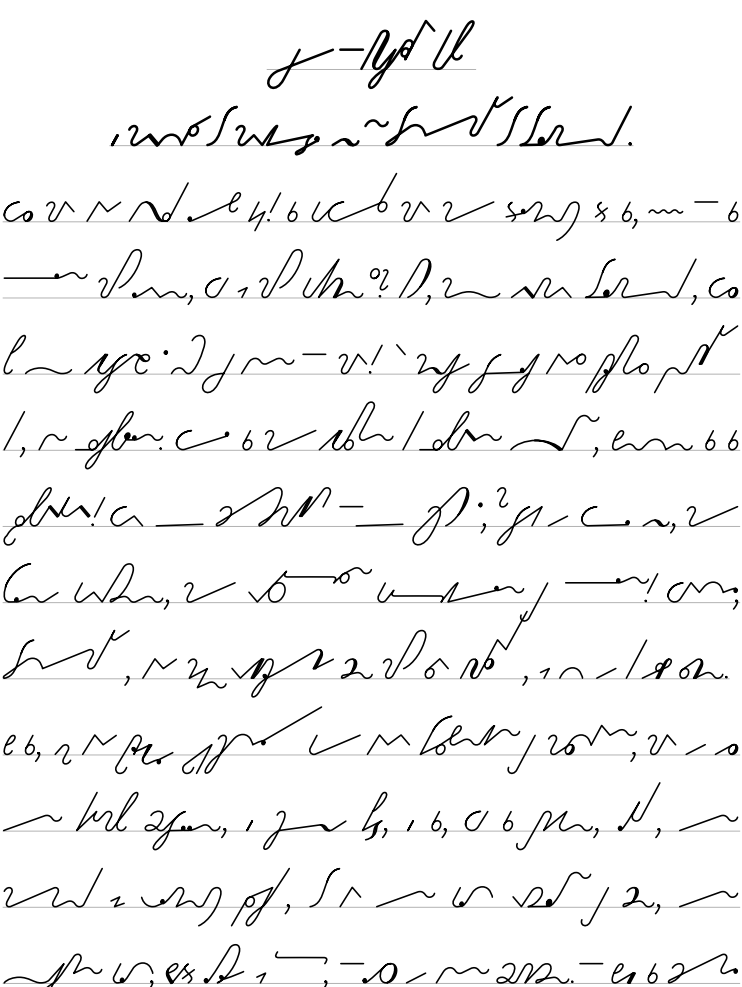


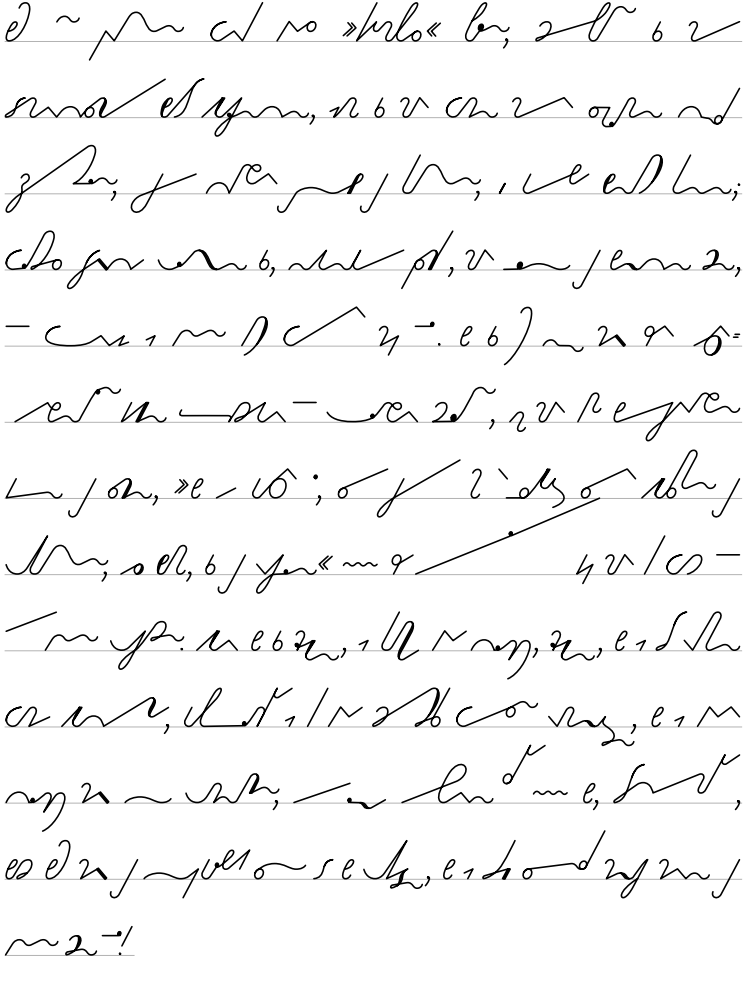


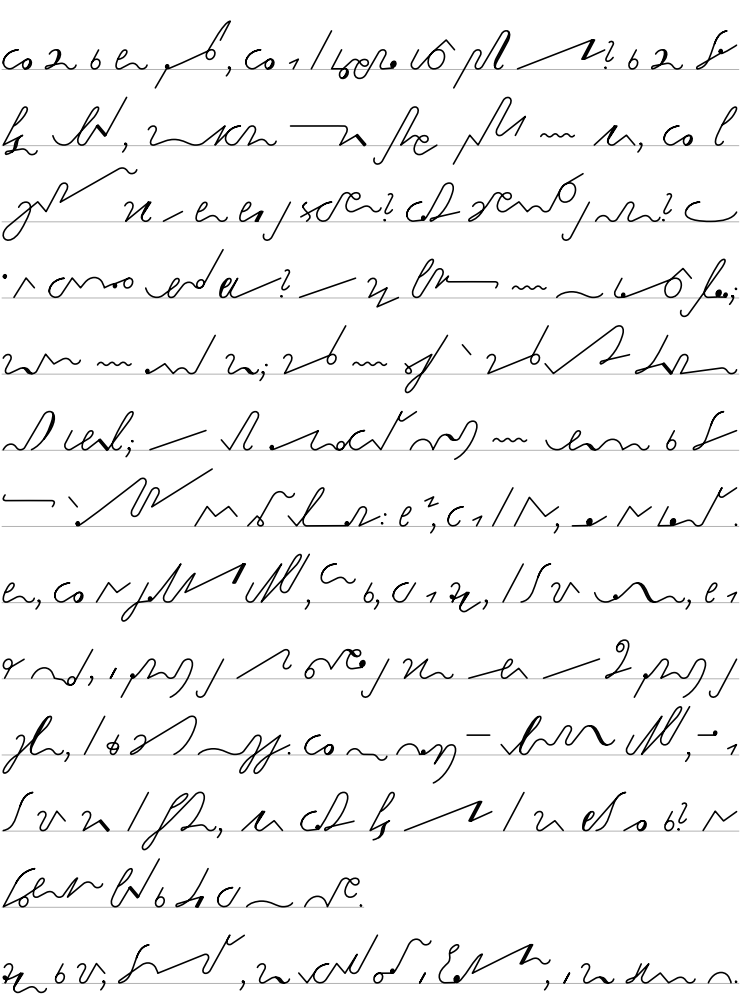


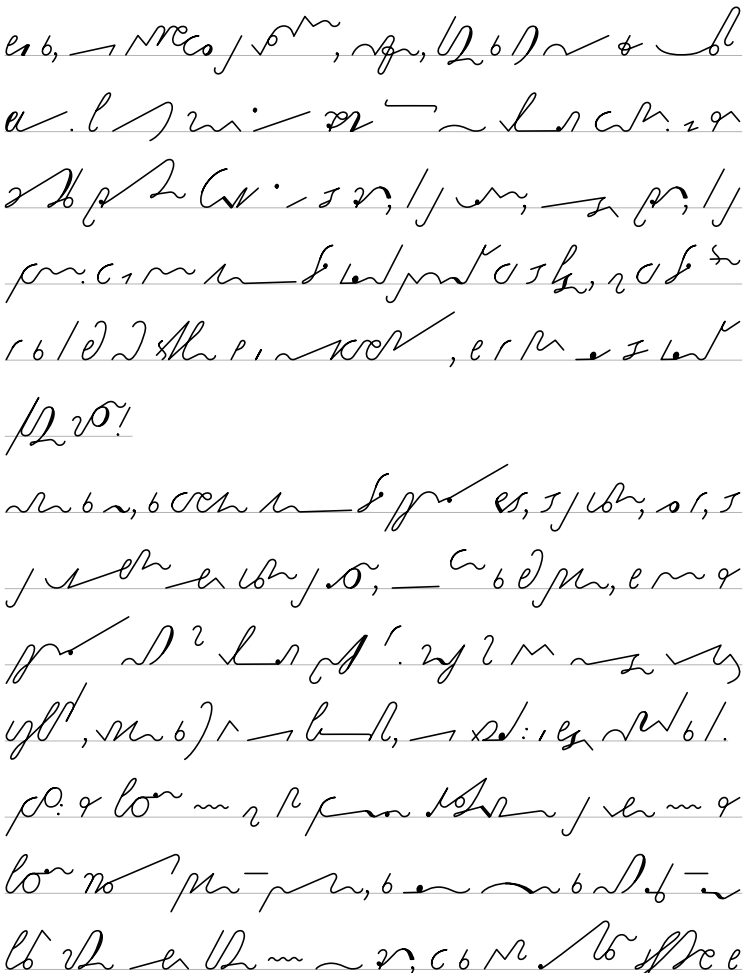


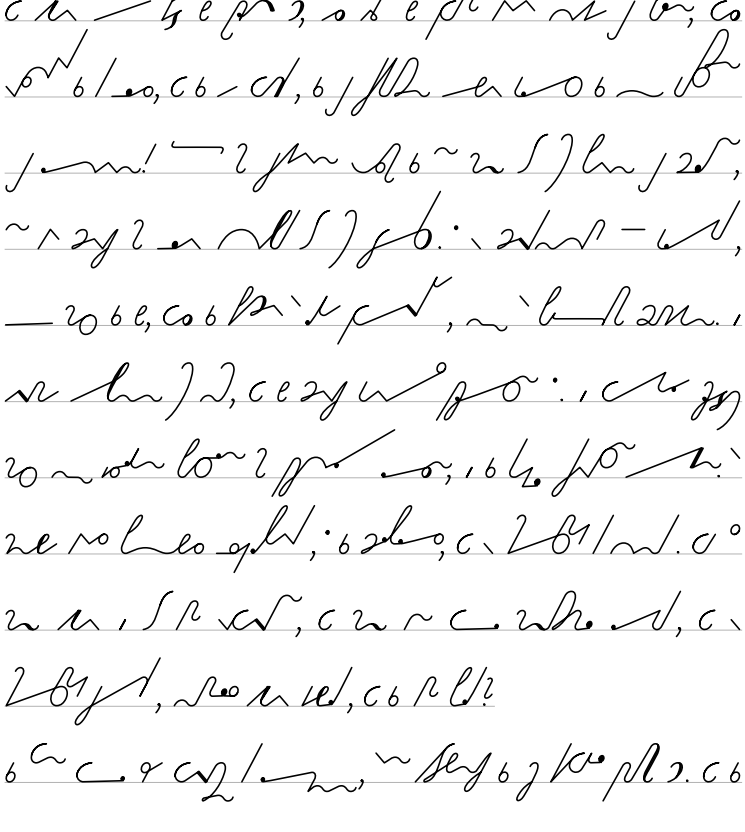


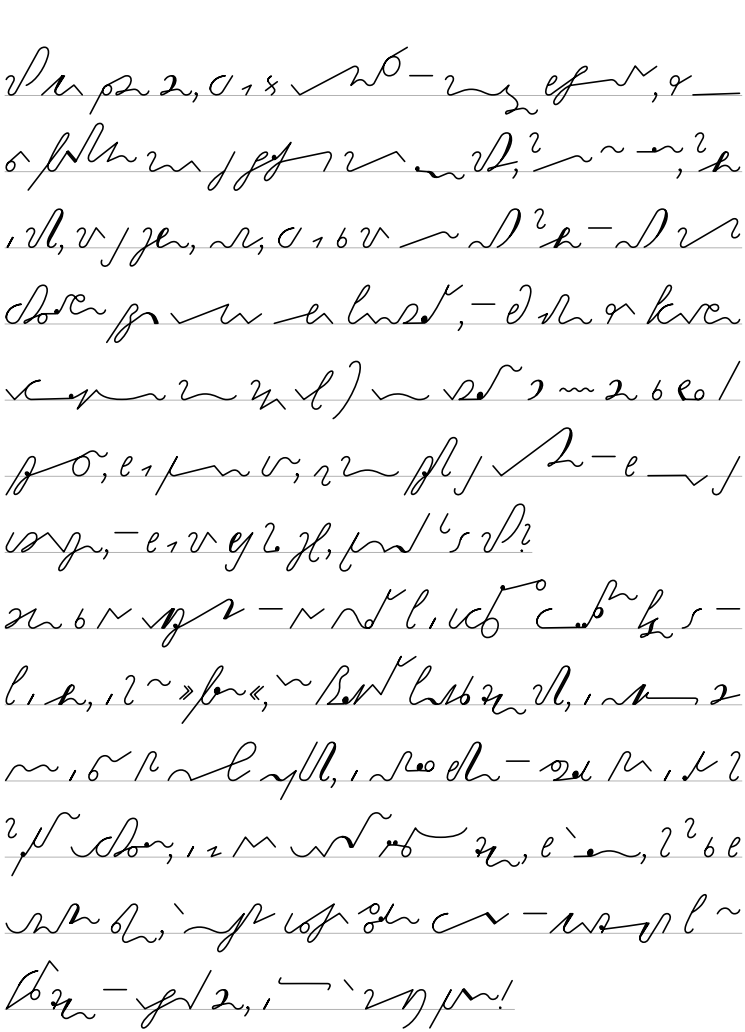


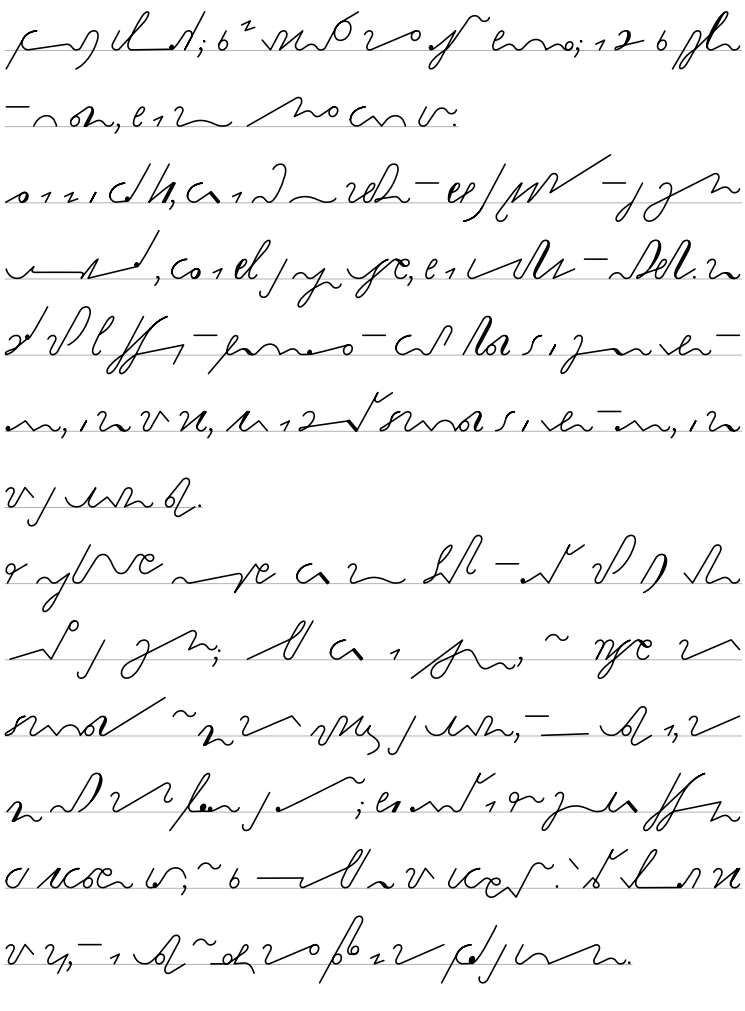


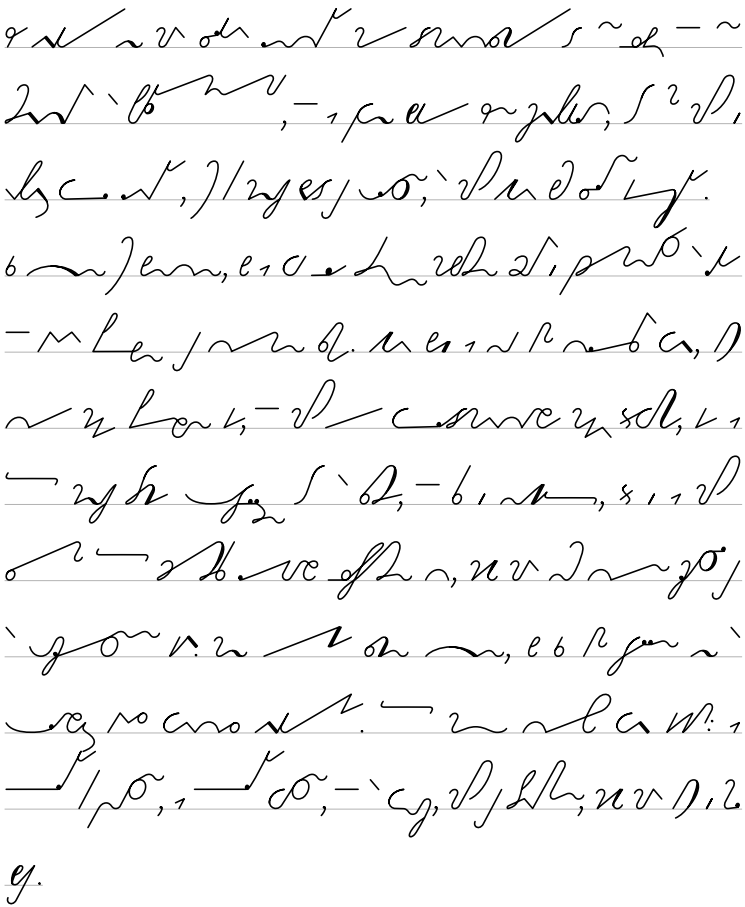


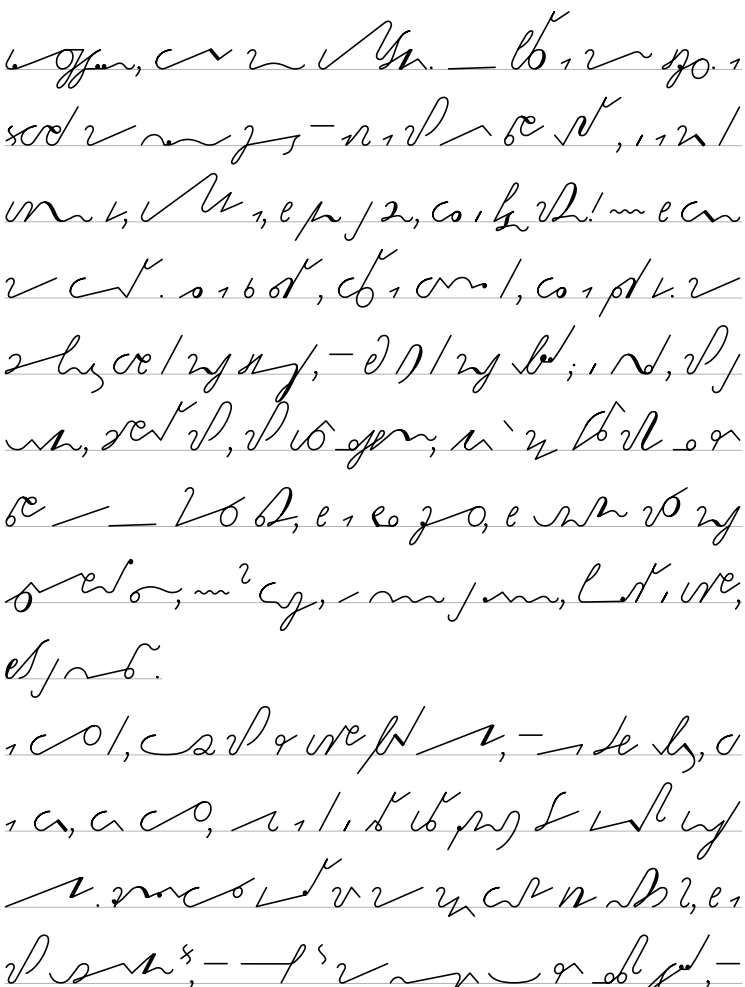


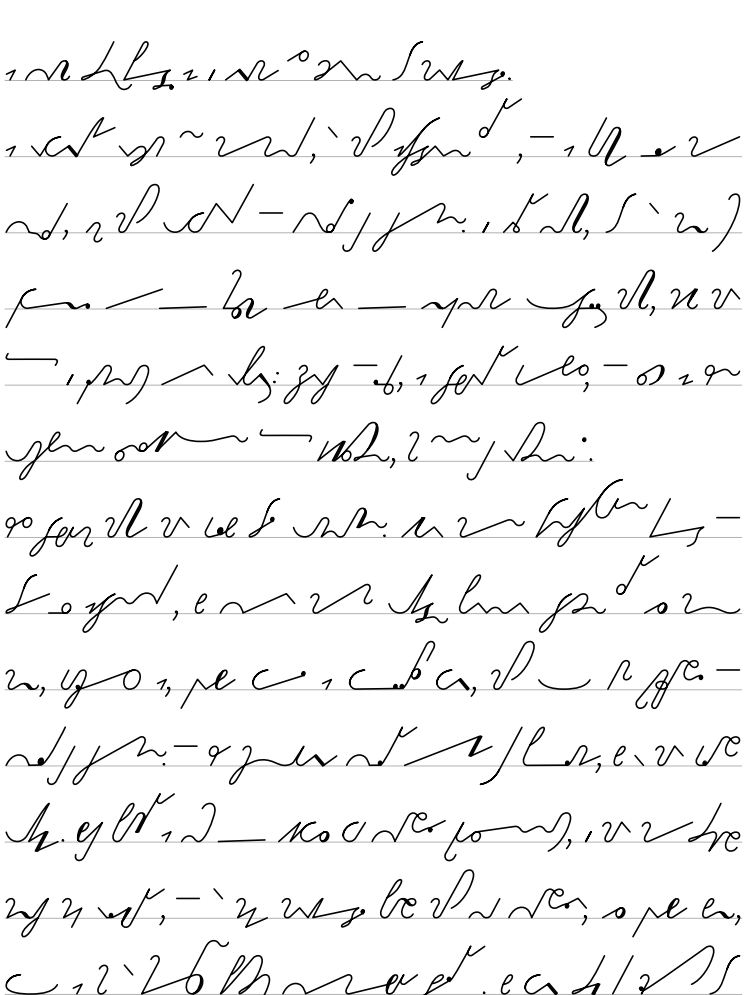


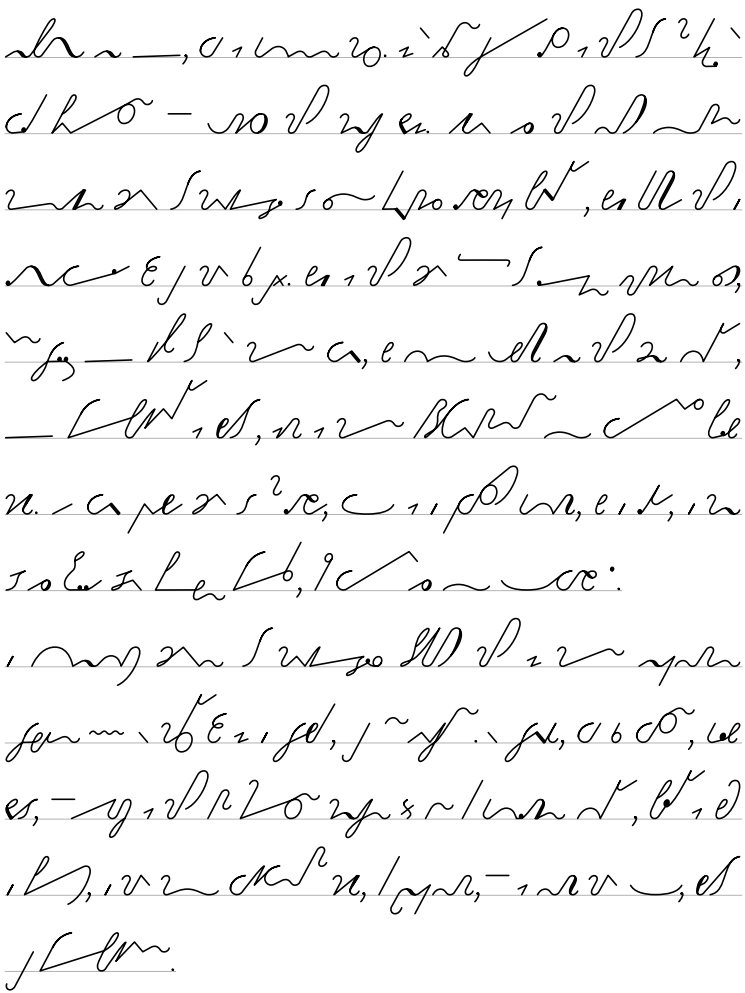


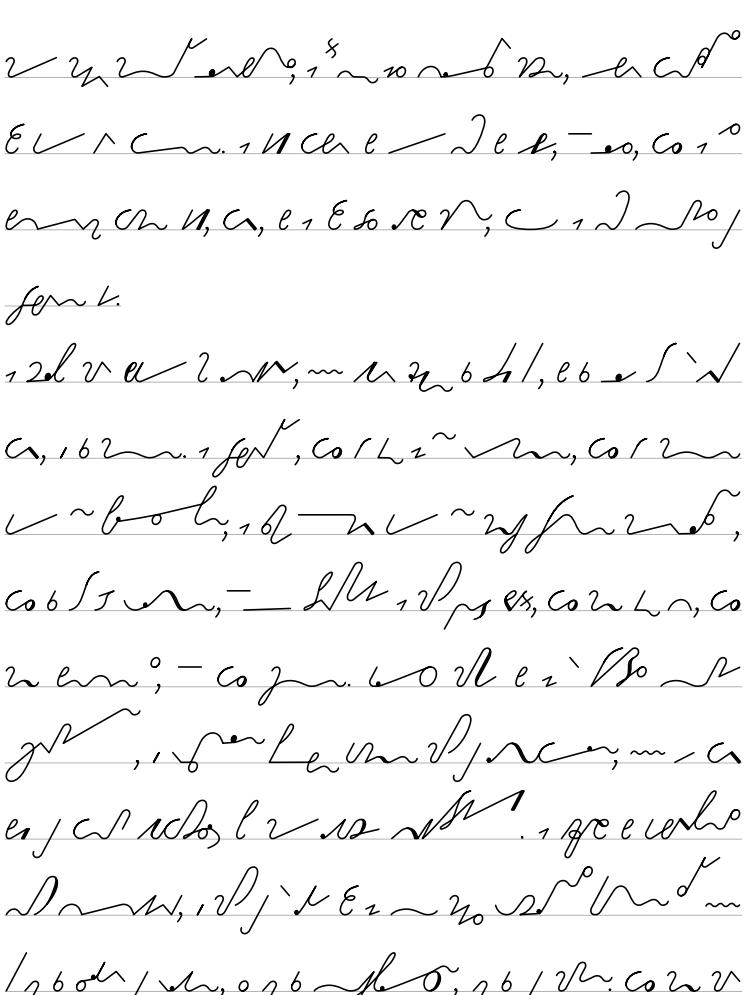


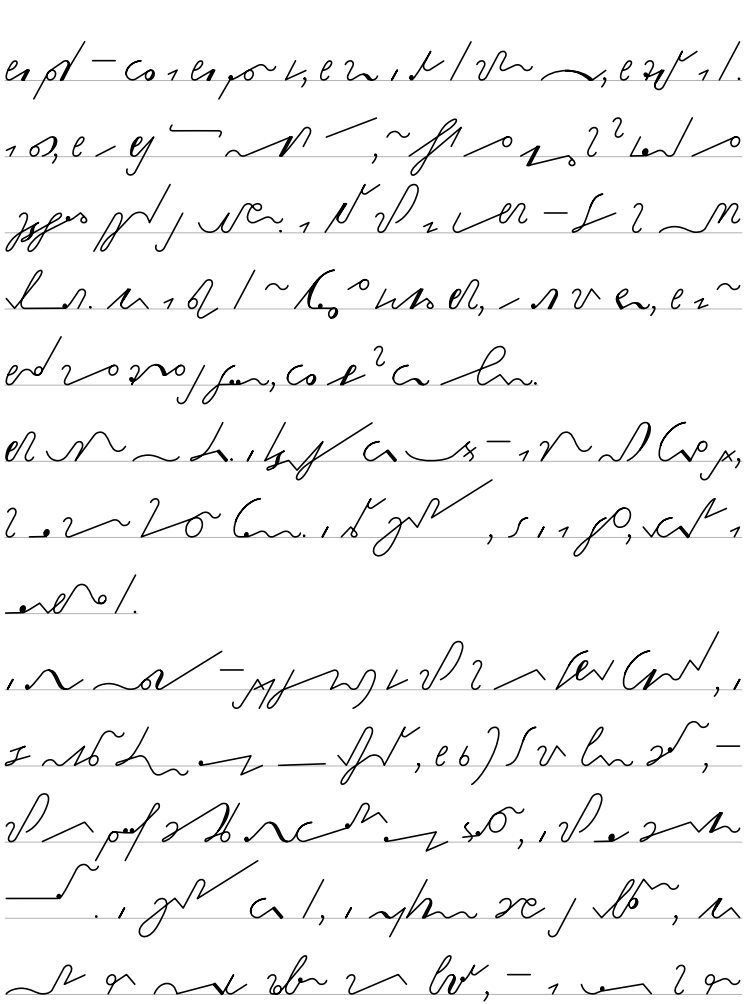


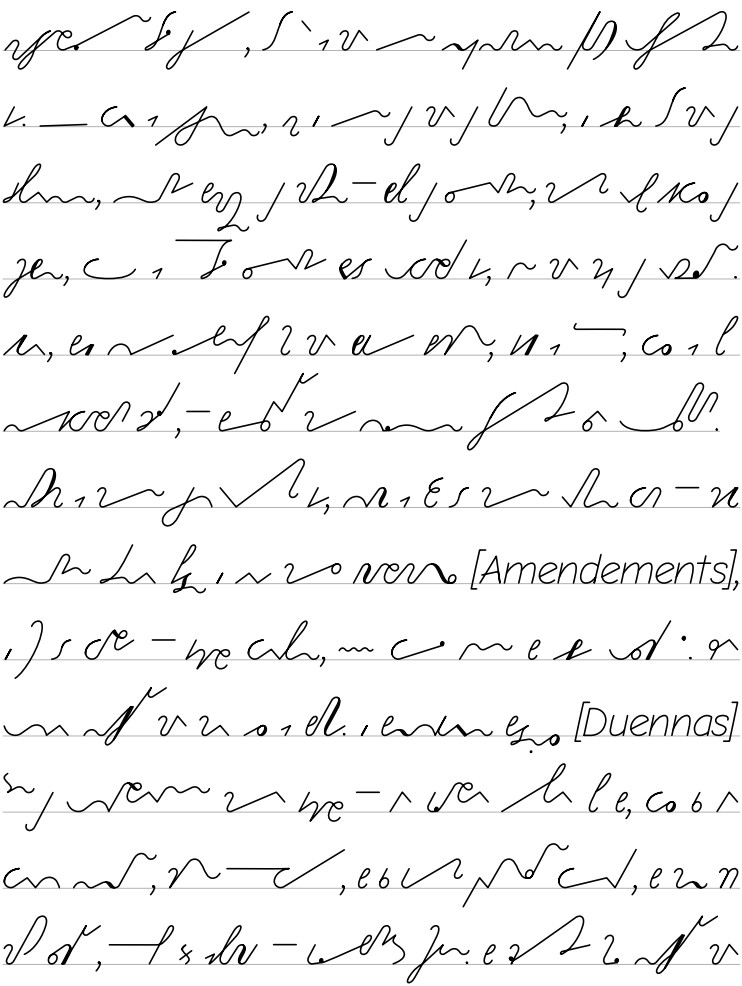


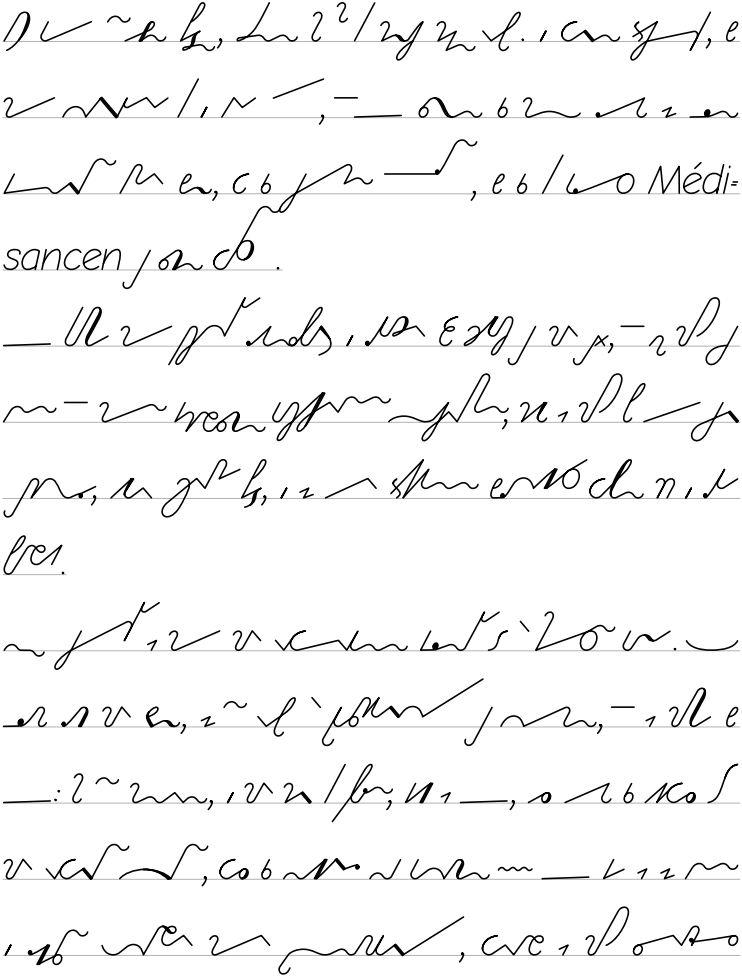


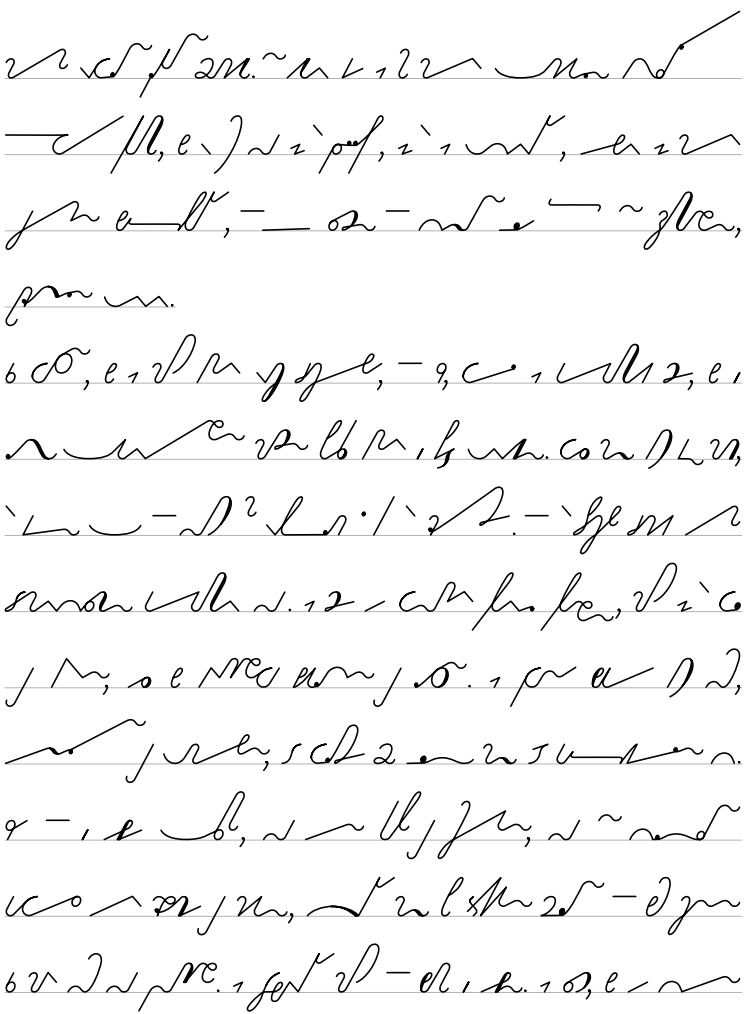


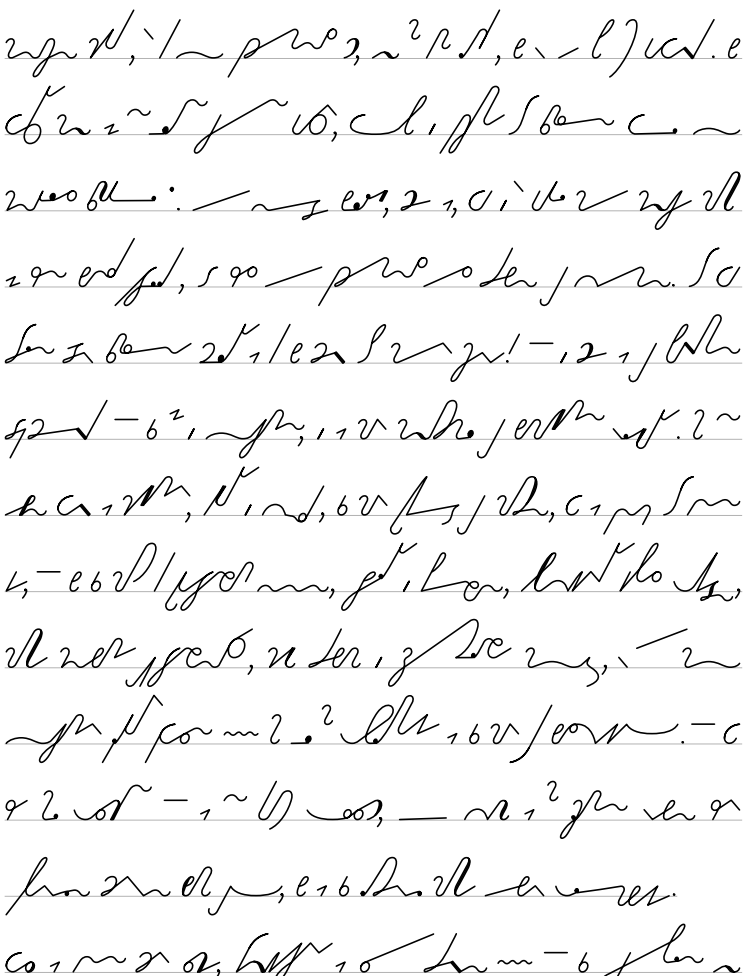


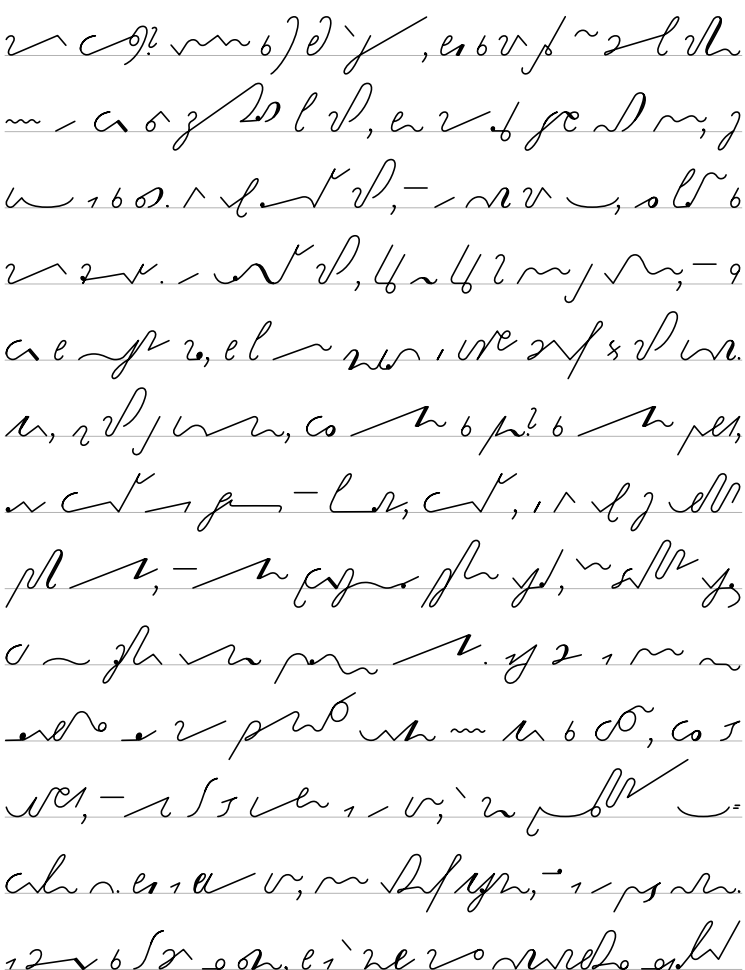


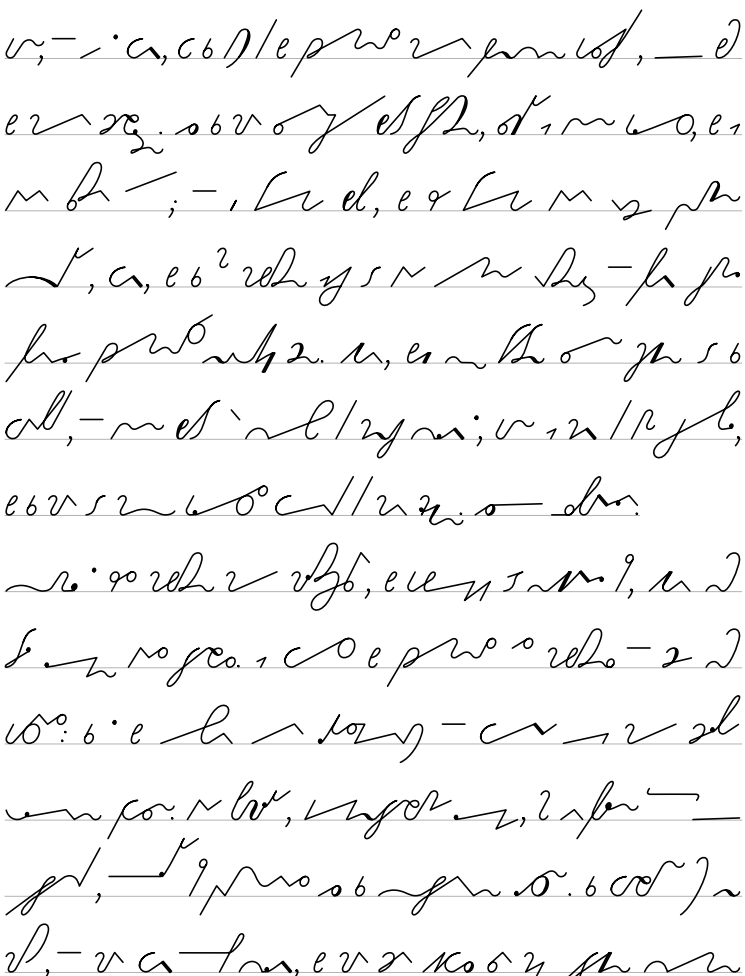


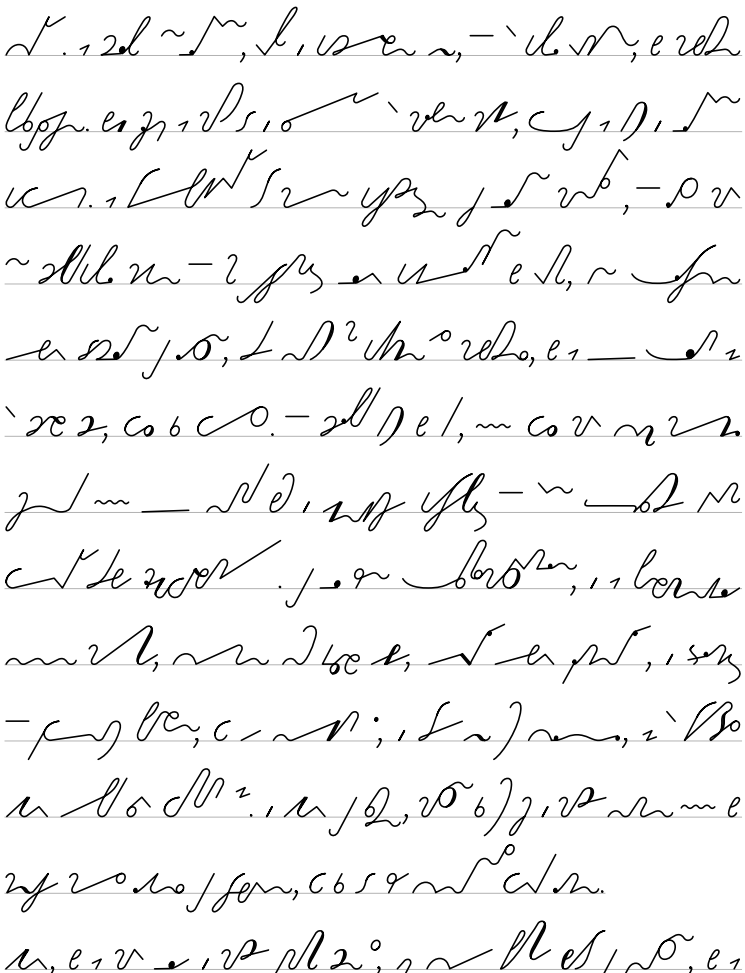


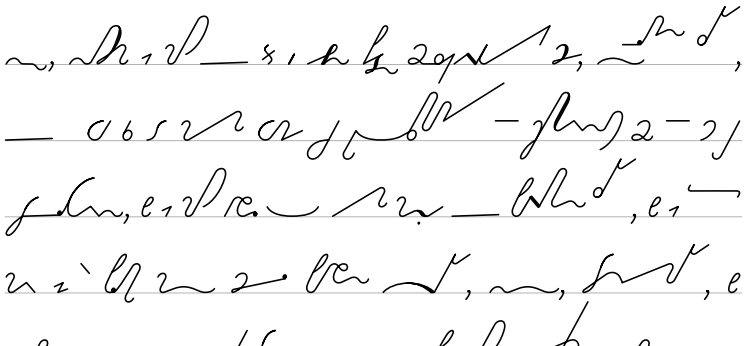


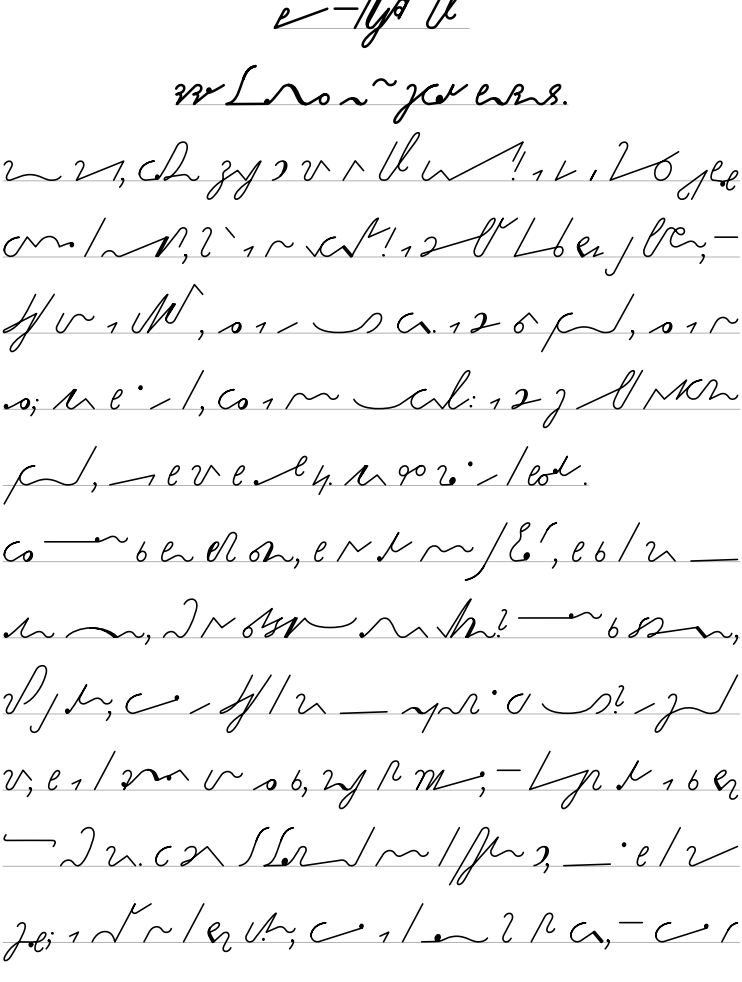


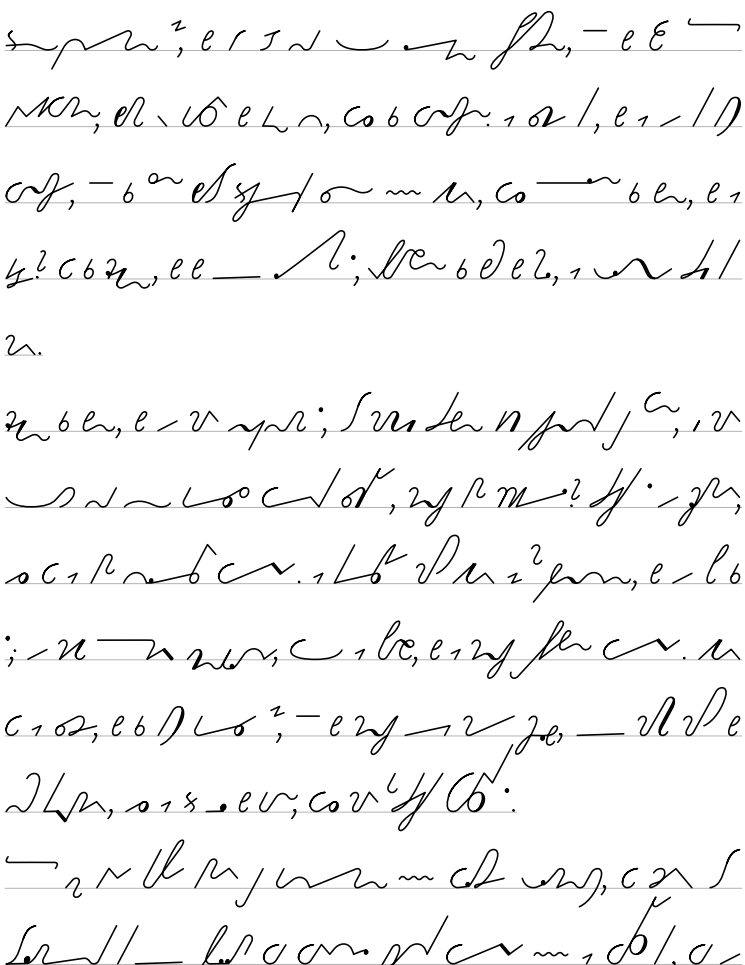


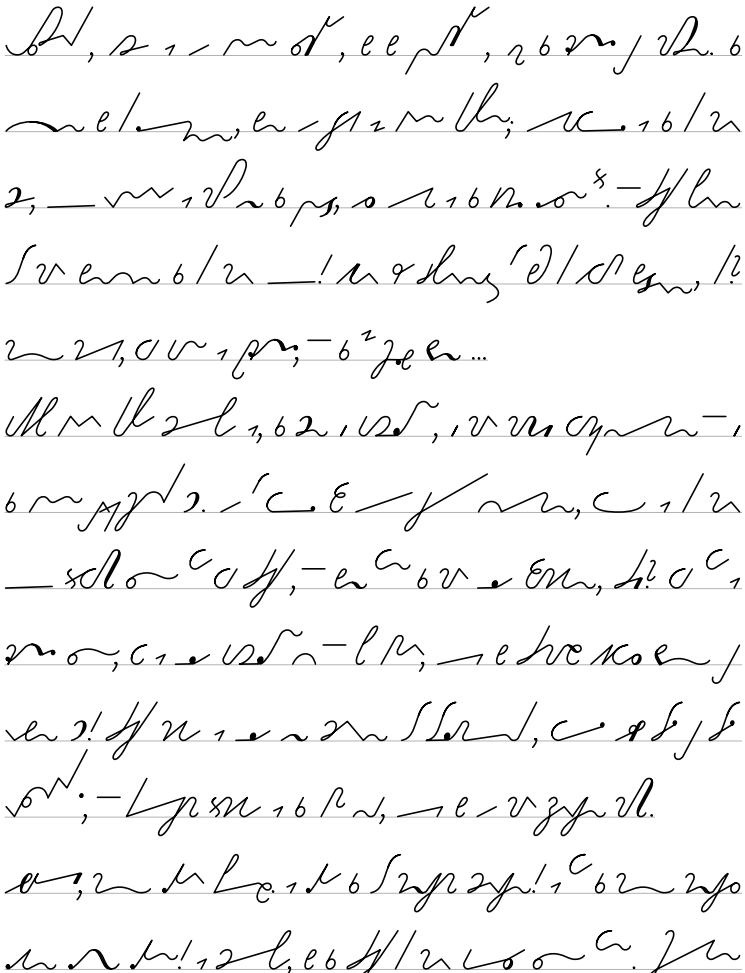


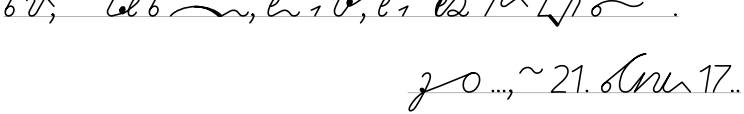


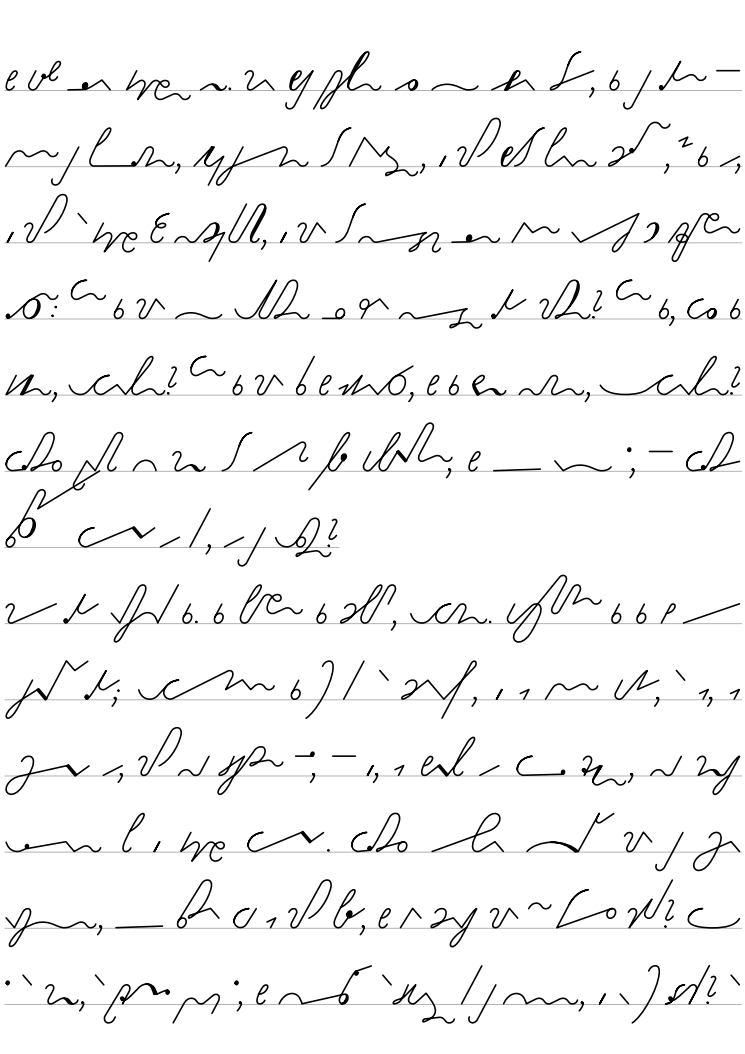


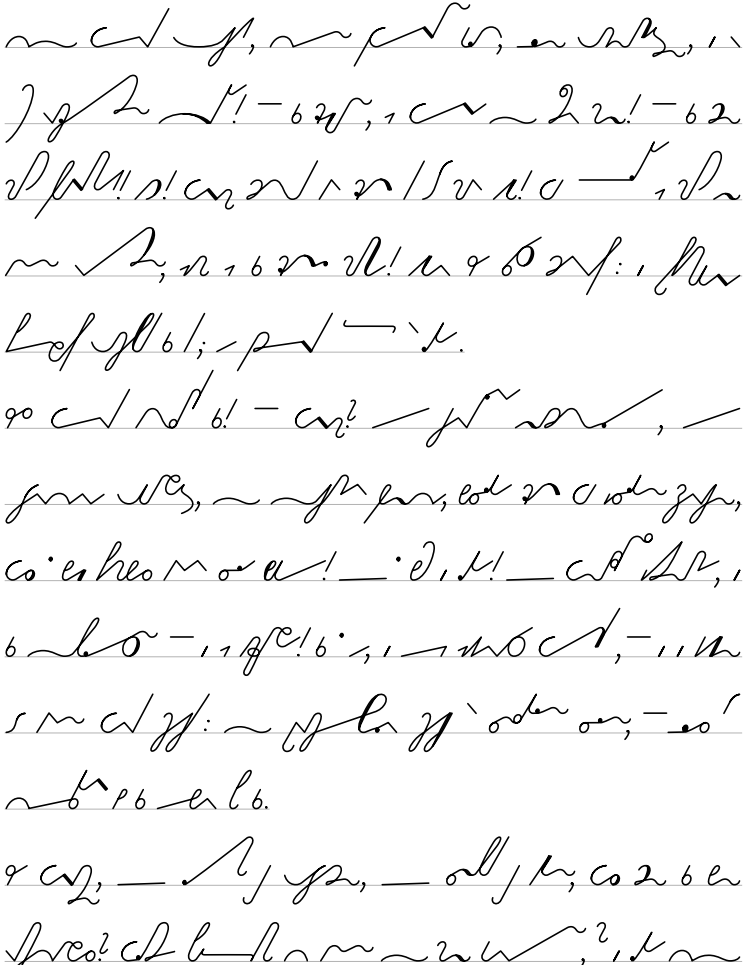


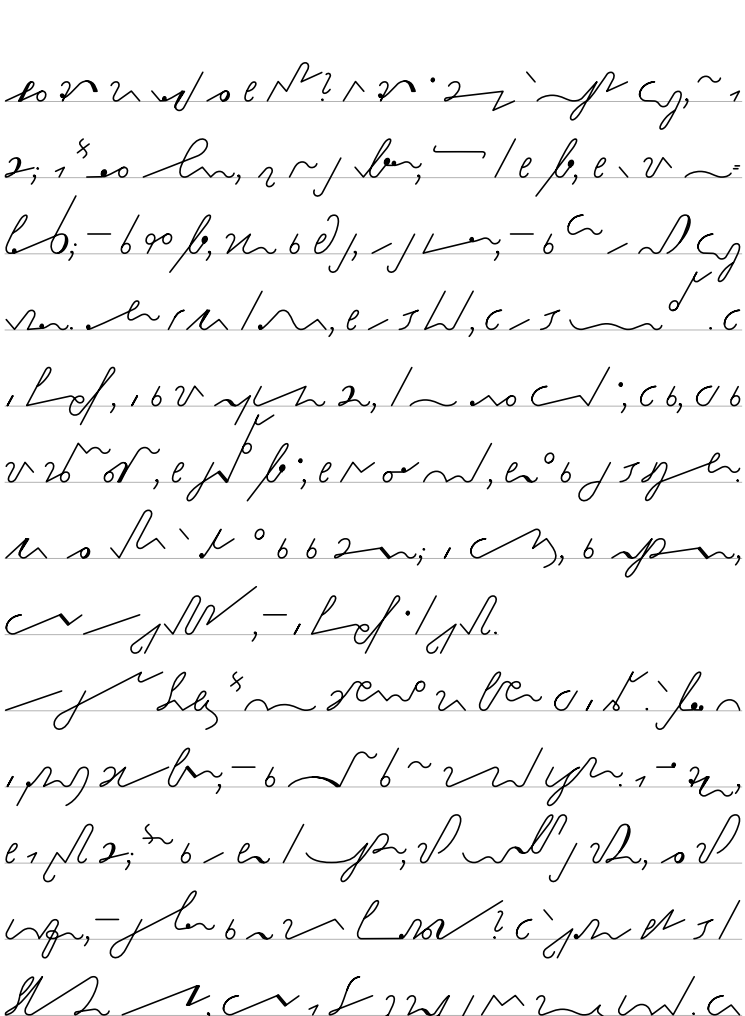


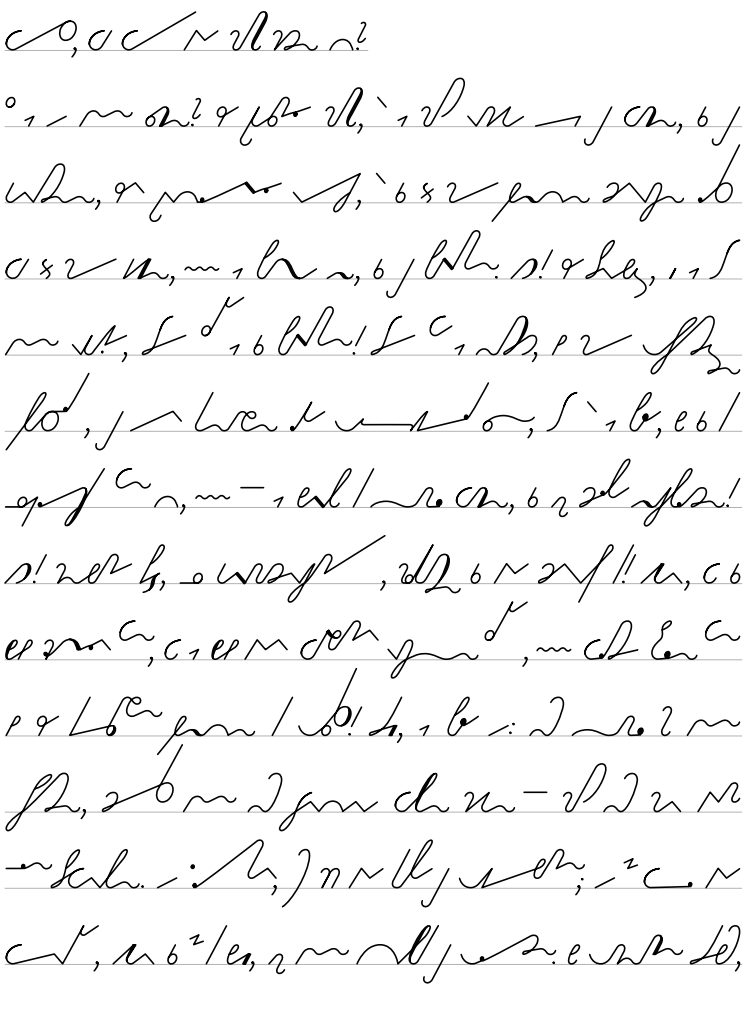


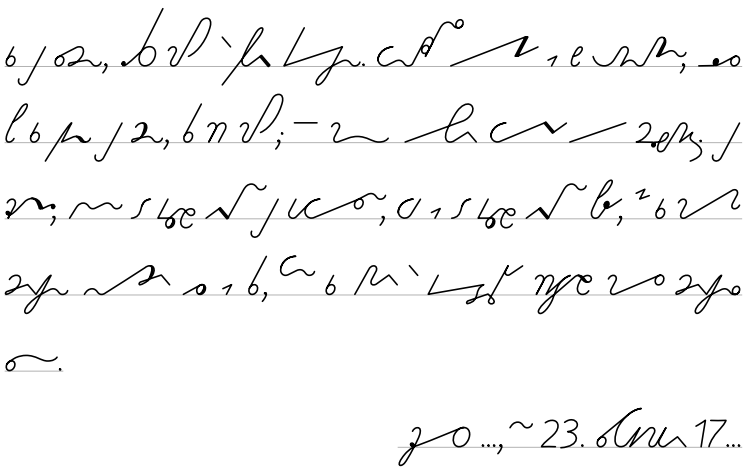


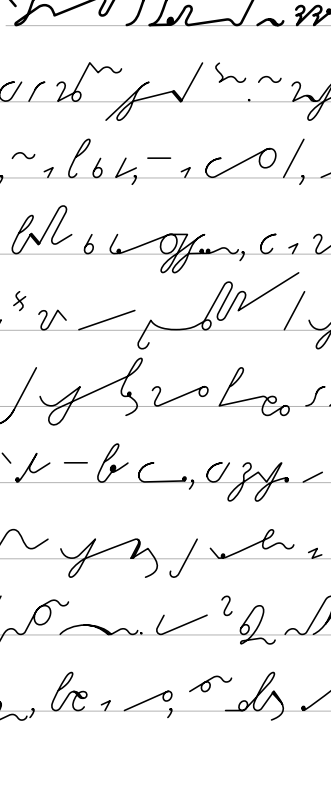


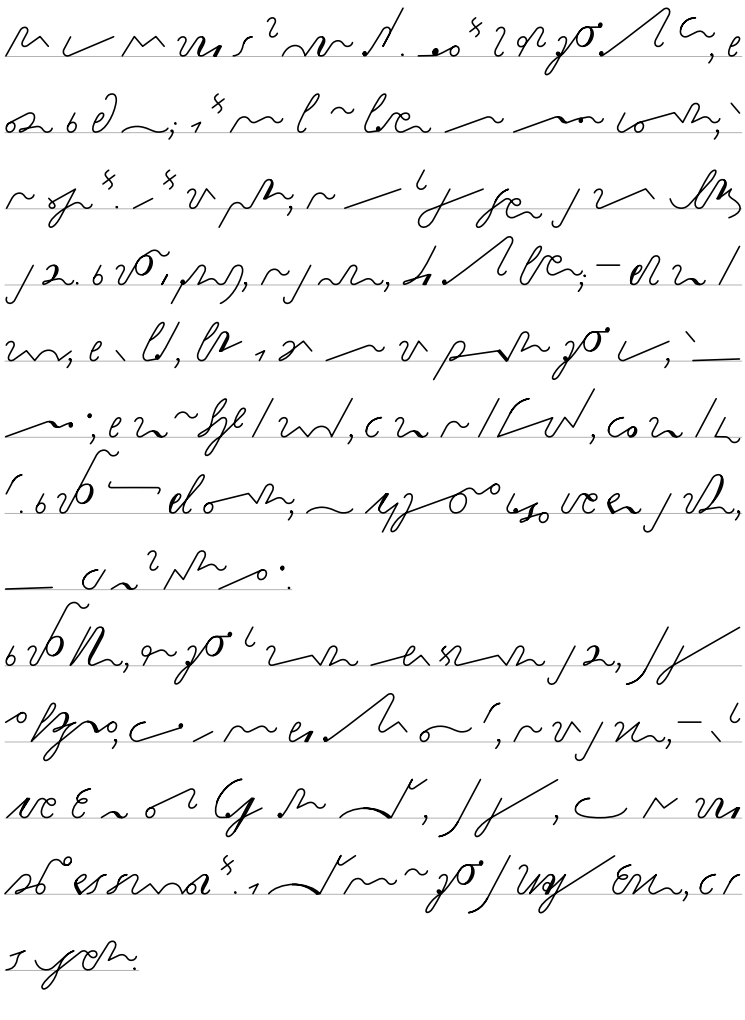


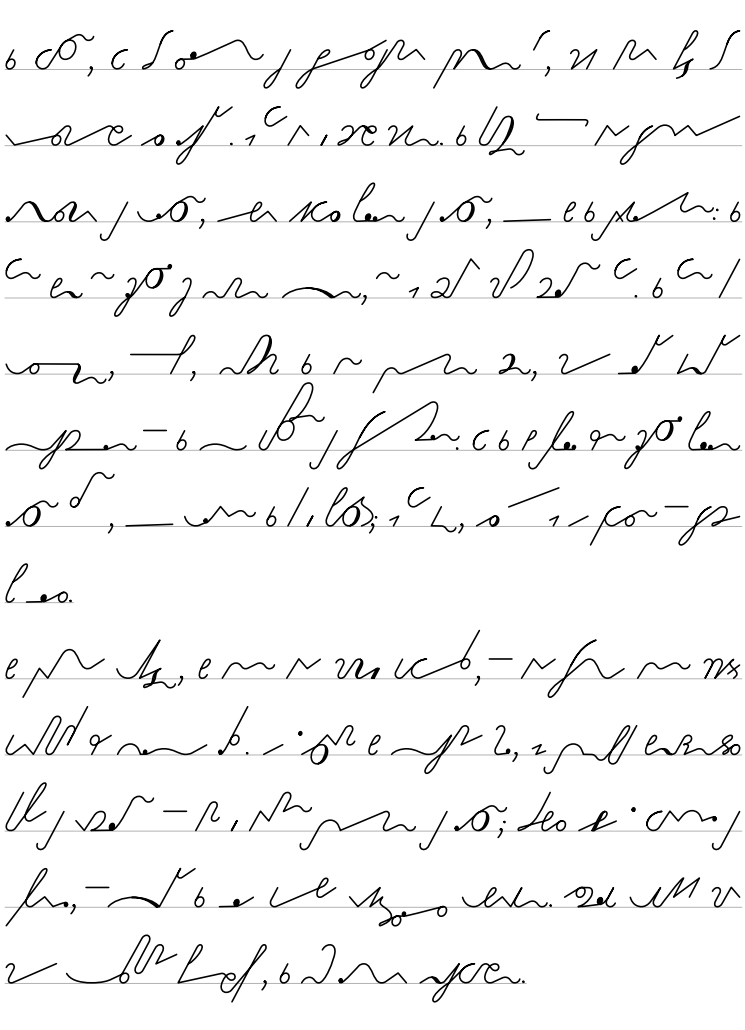


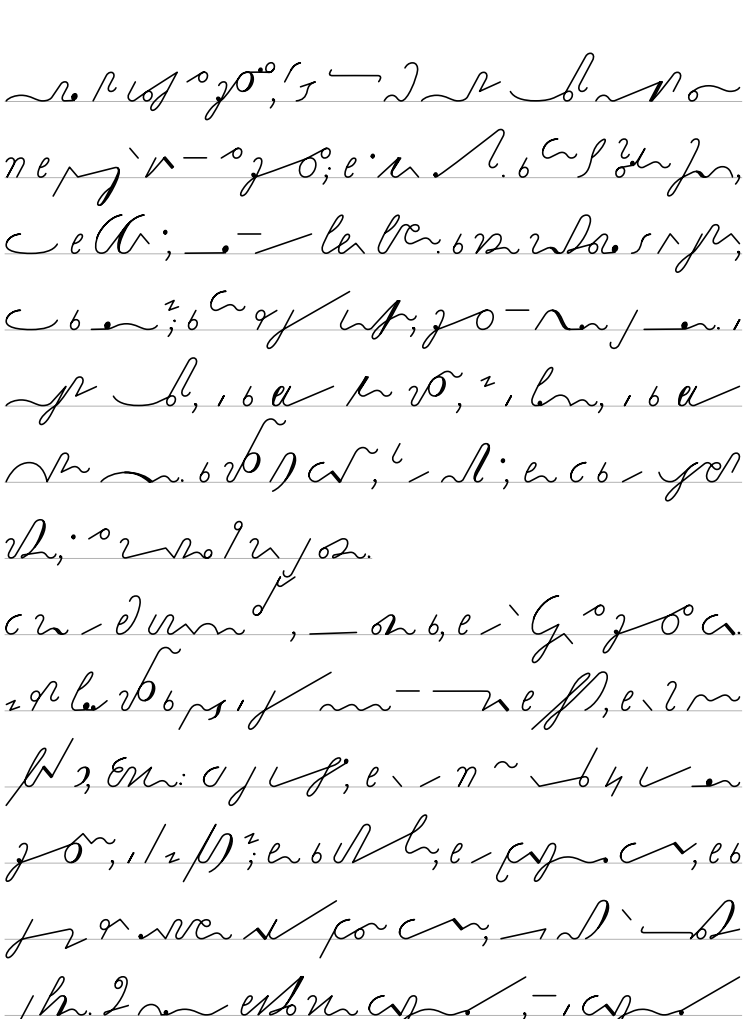


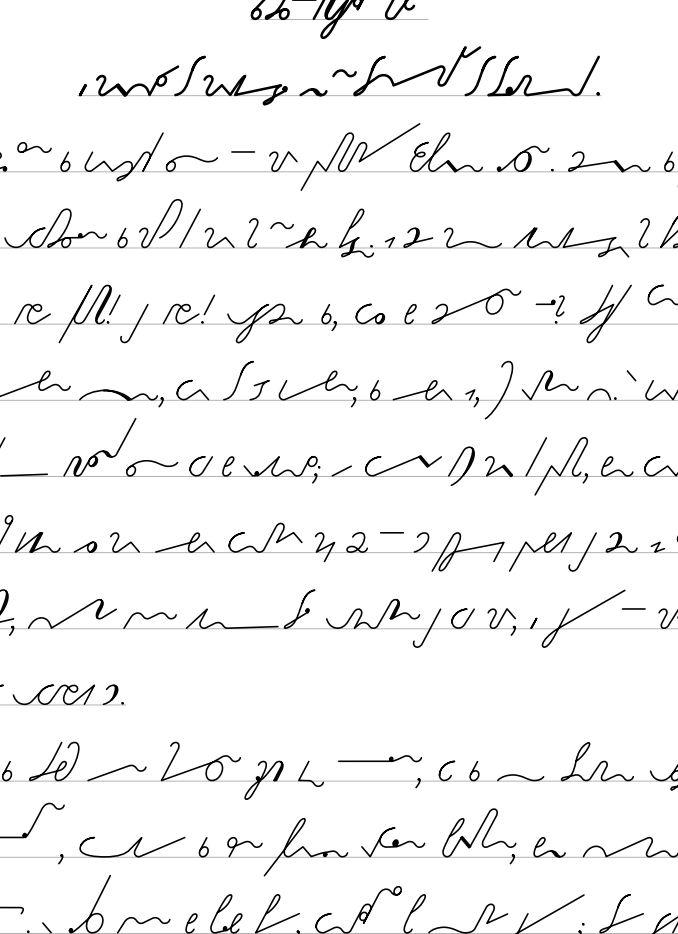


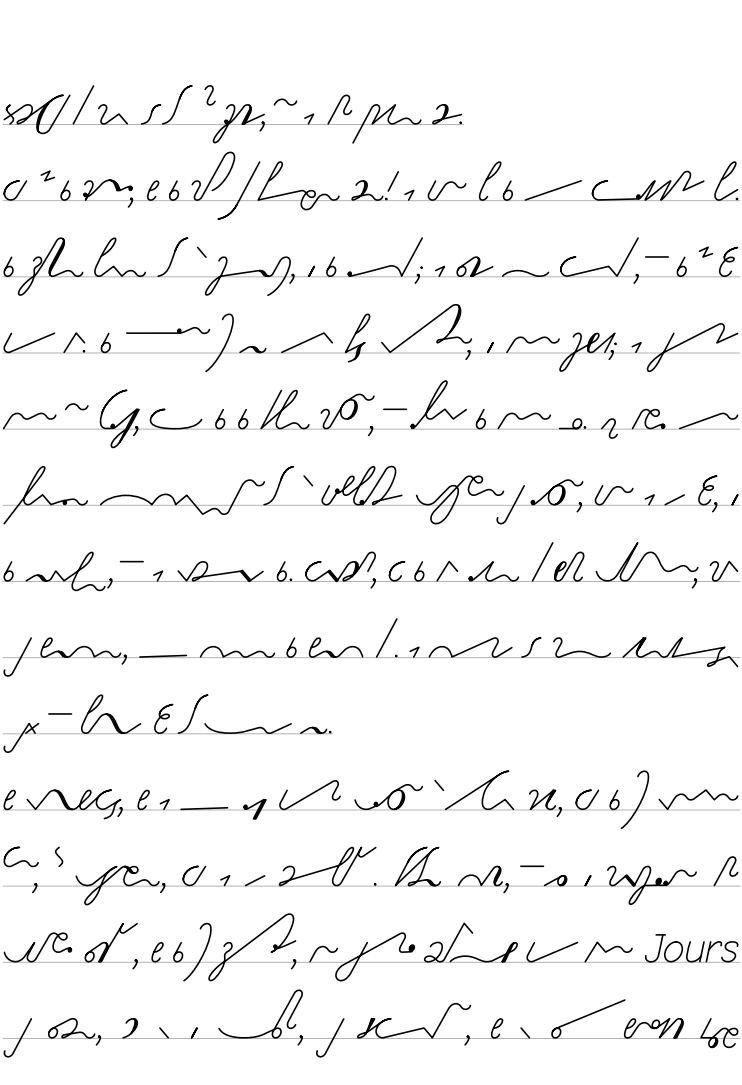


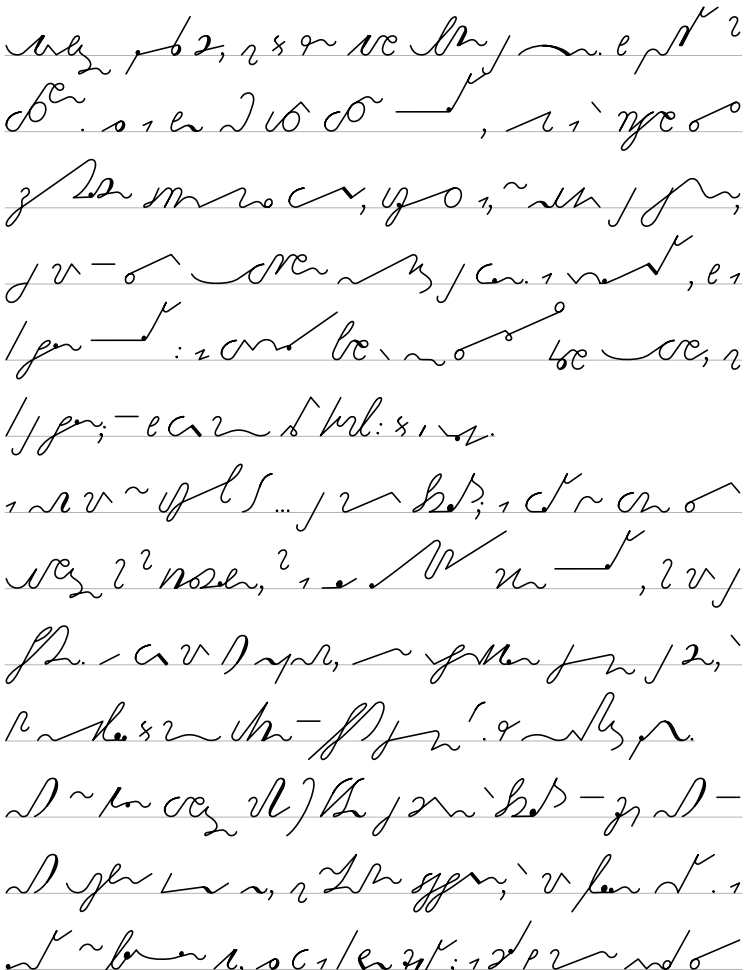


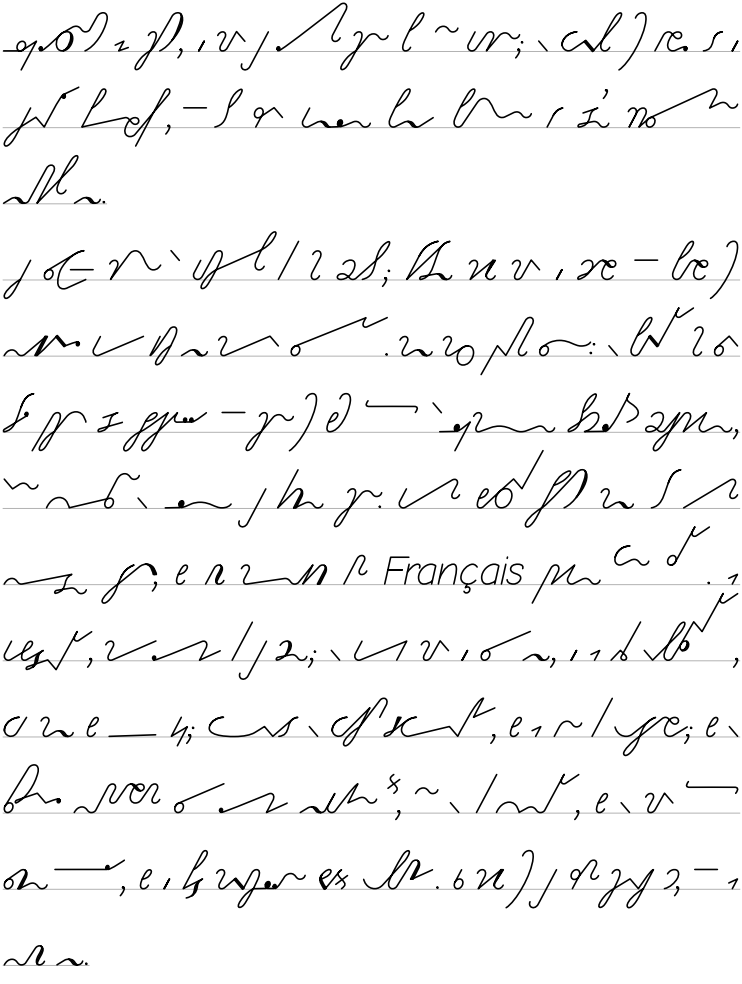


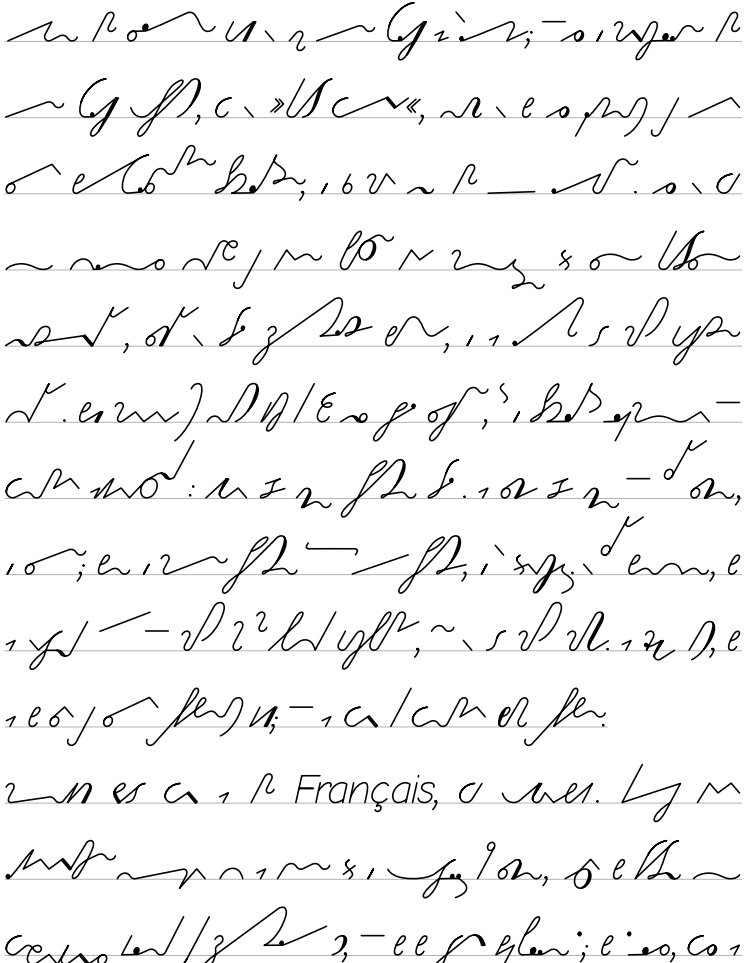


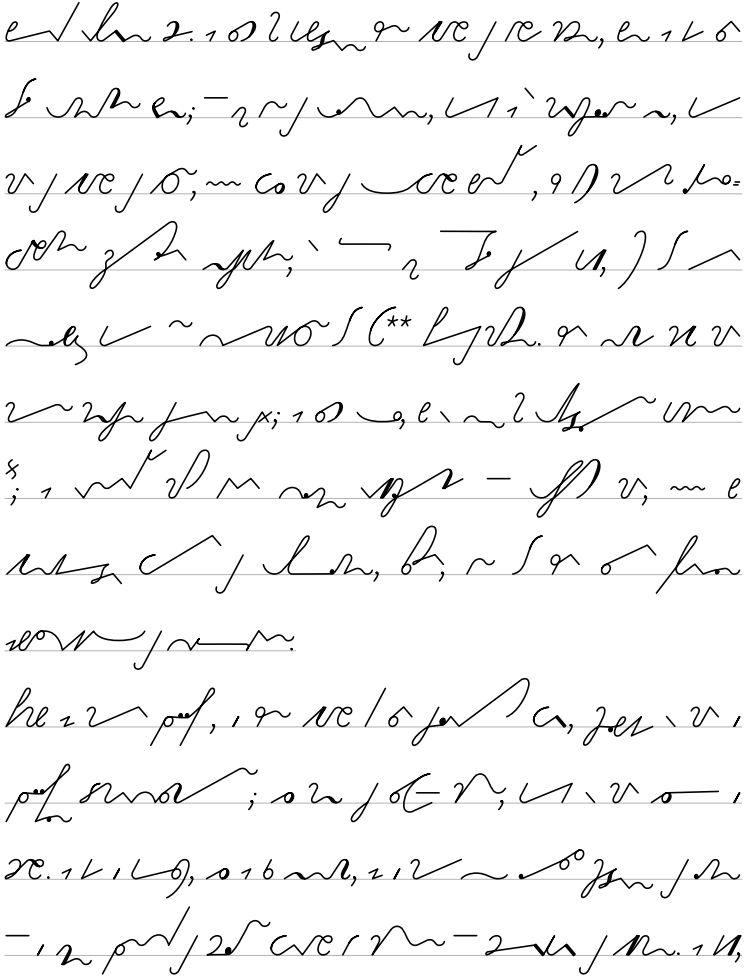


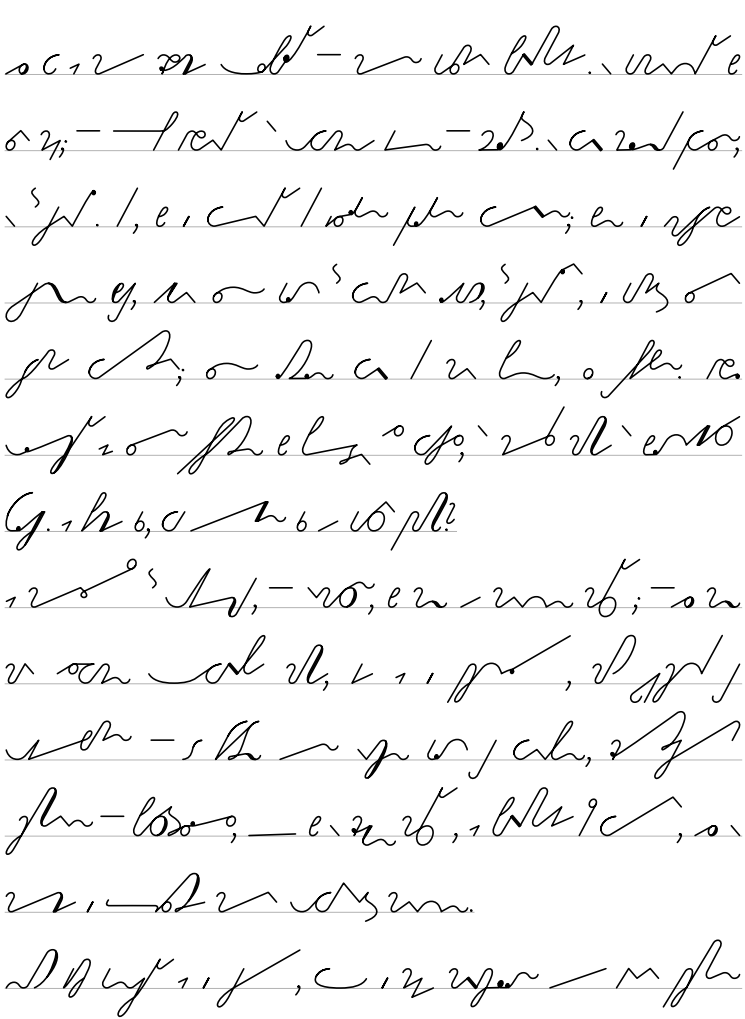


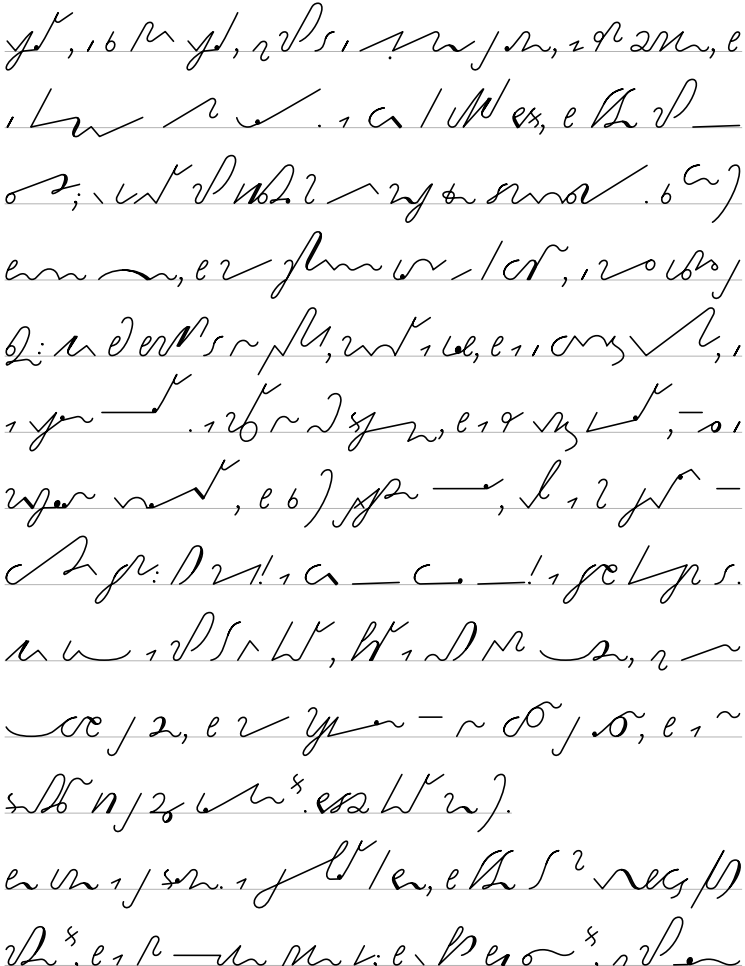


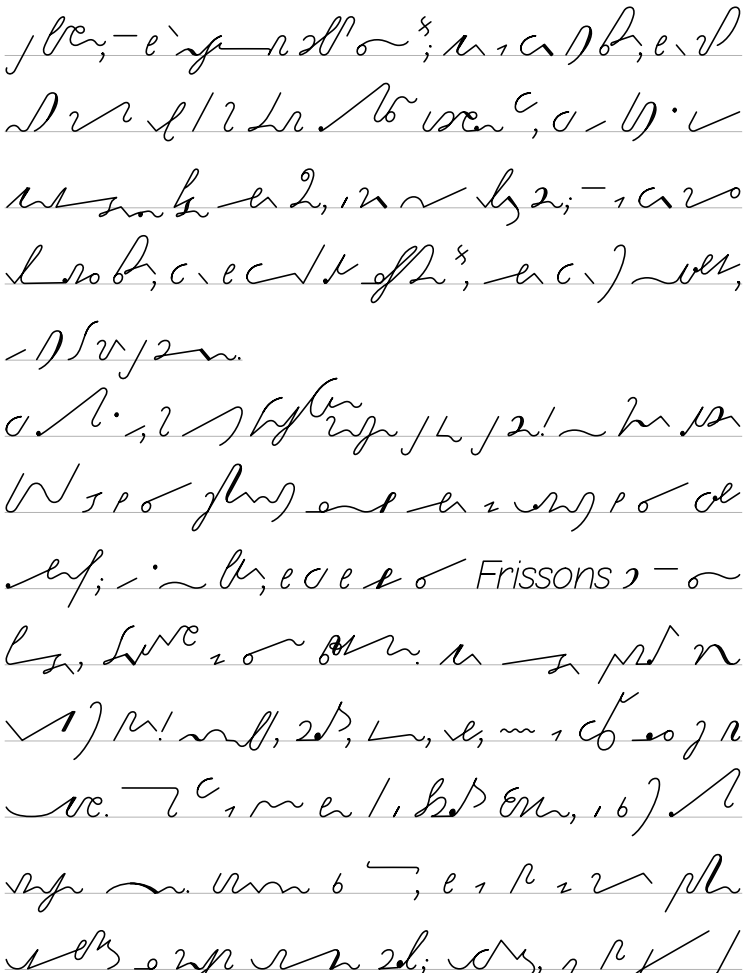


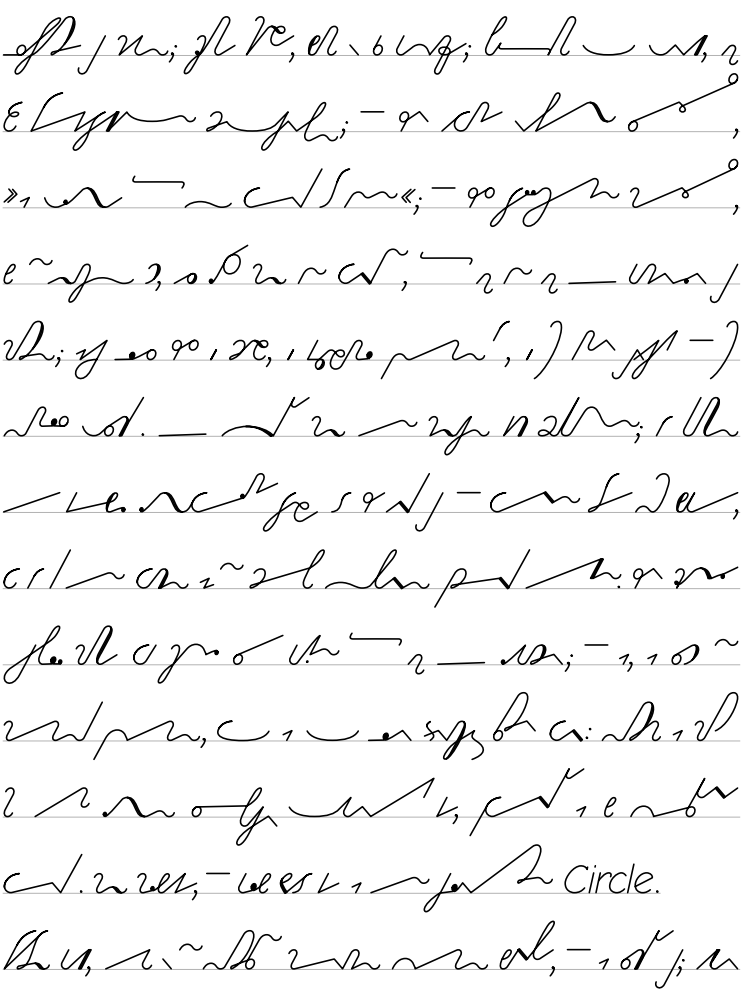




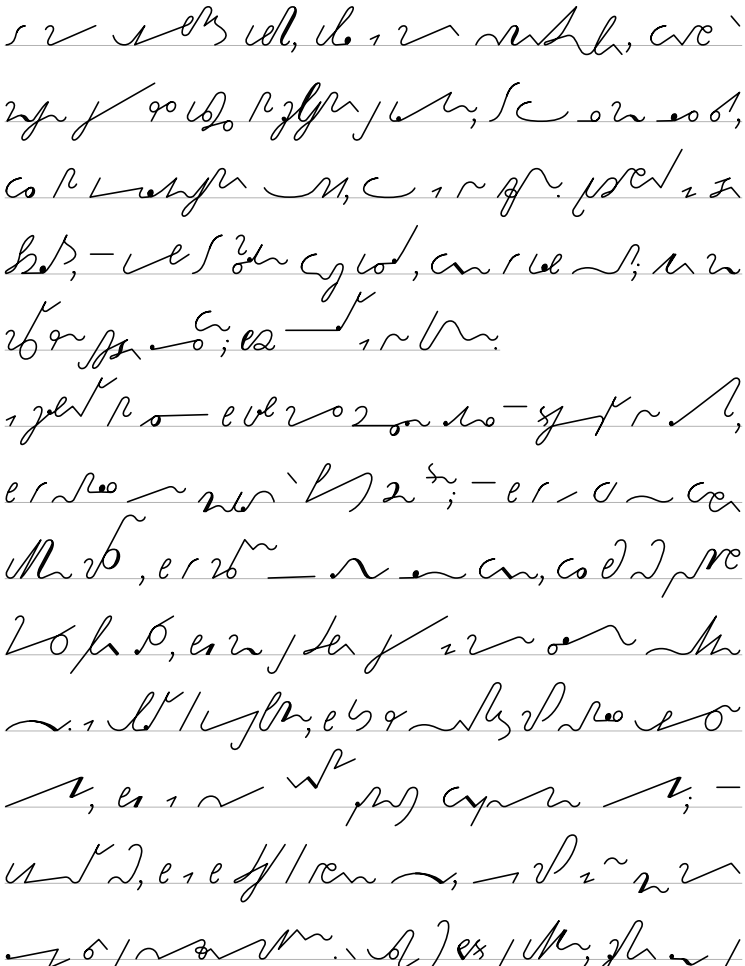


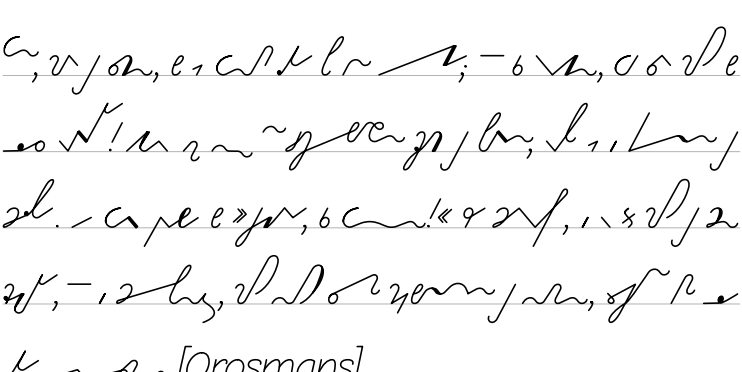




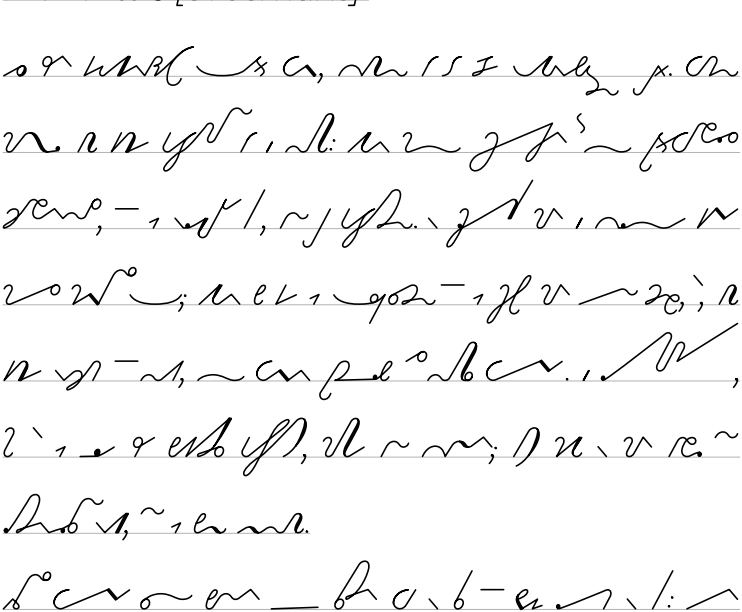


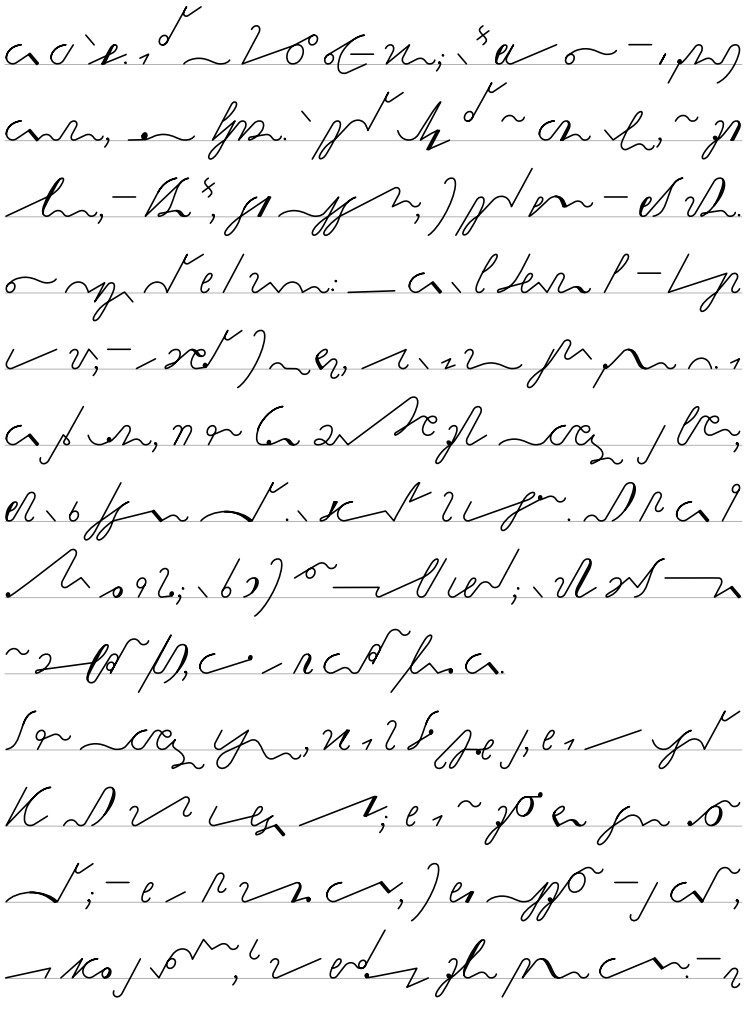
Circle.

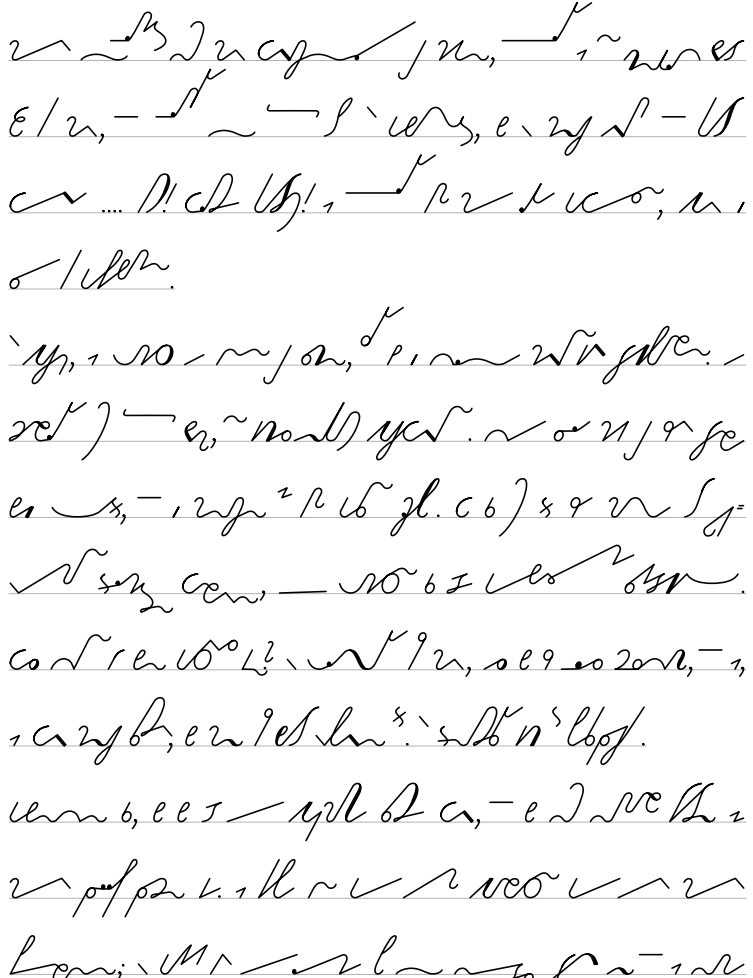


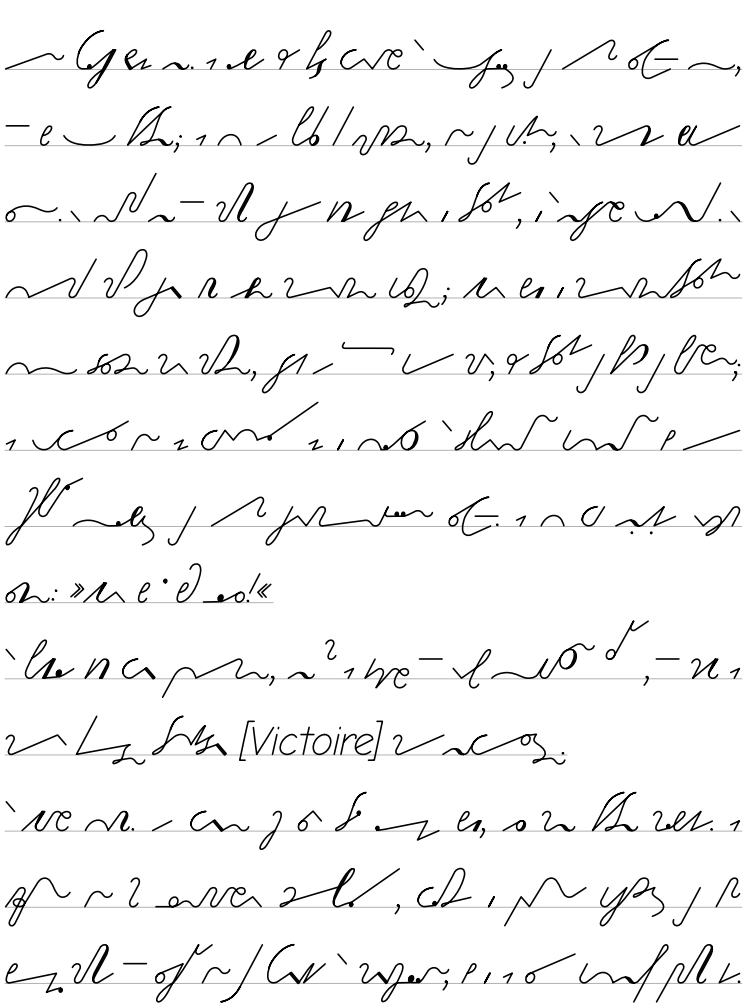


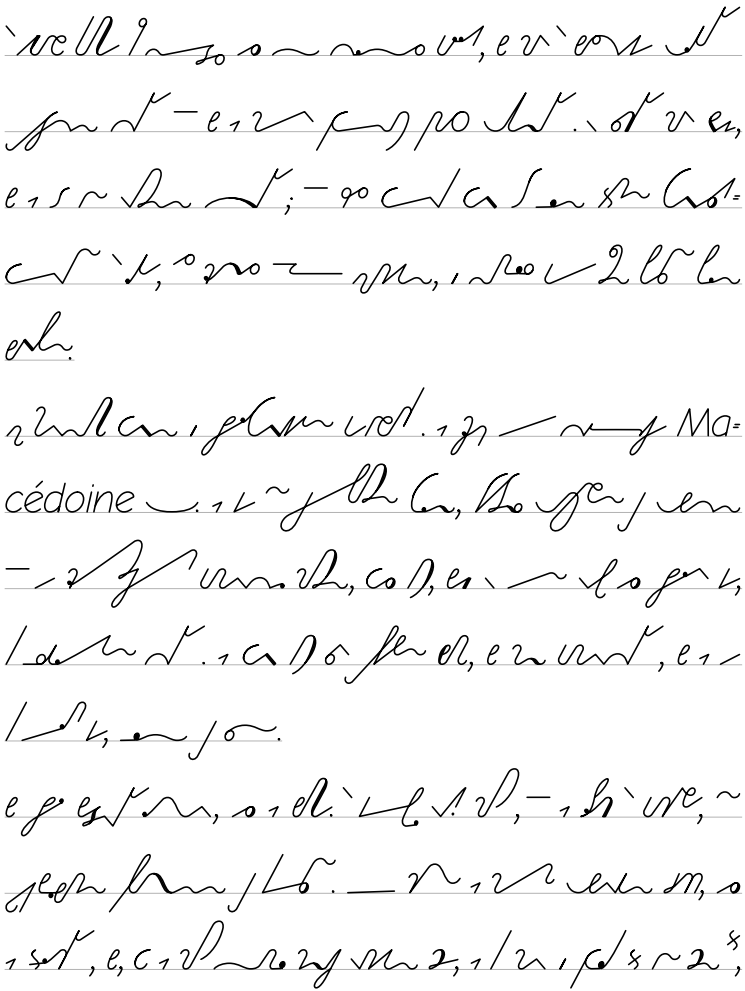
[Orosmans].

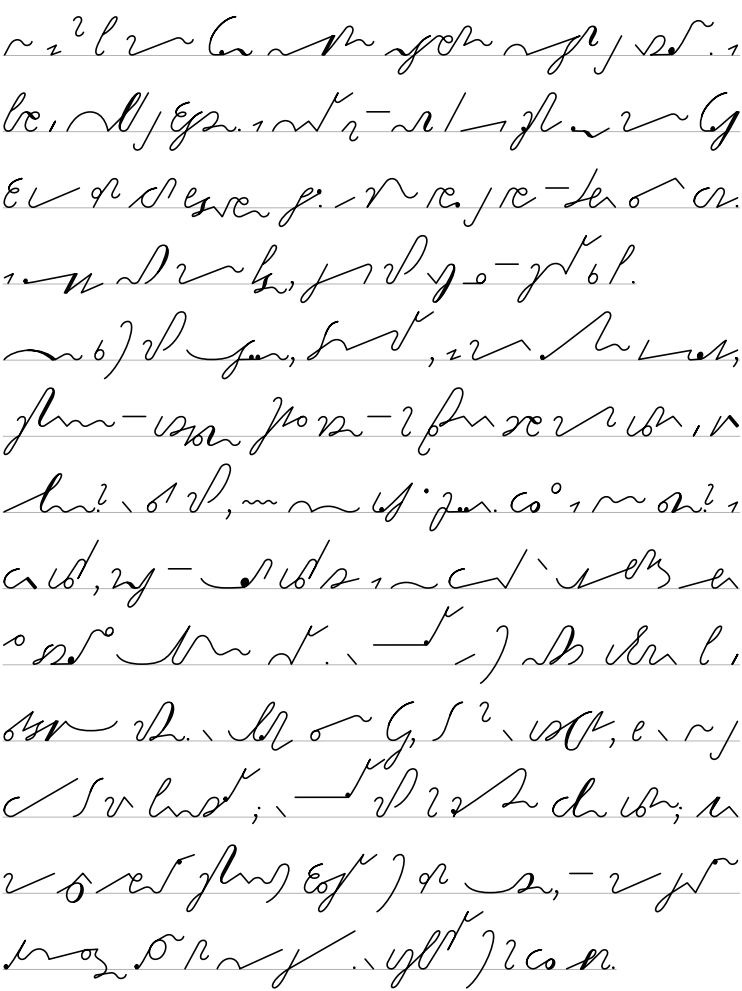


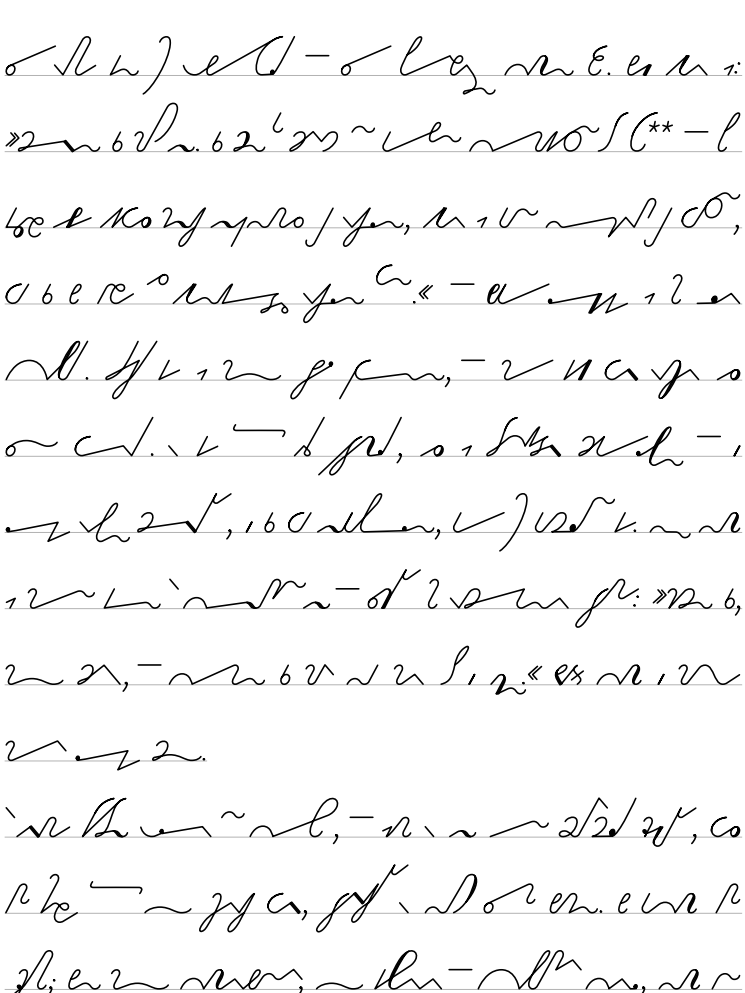


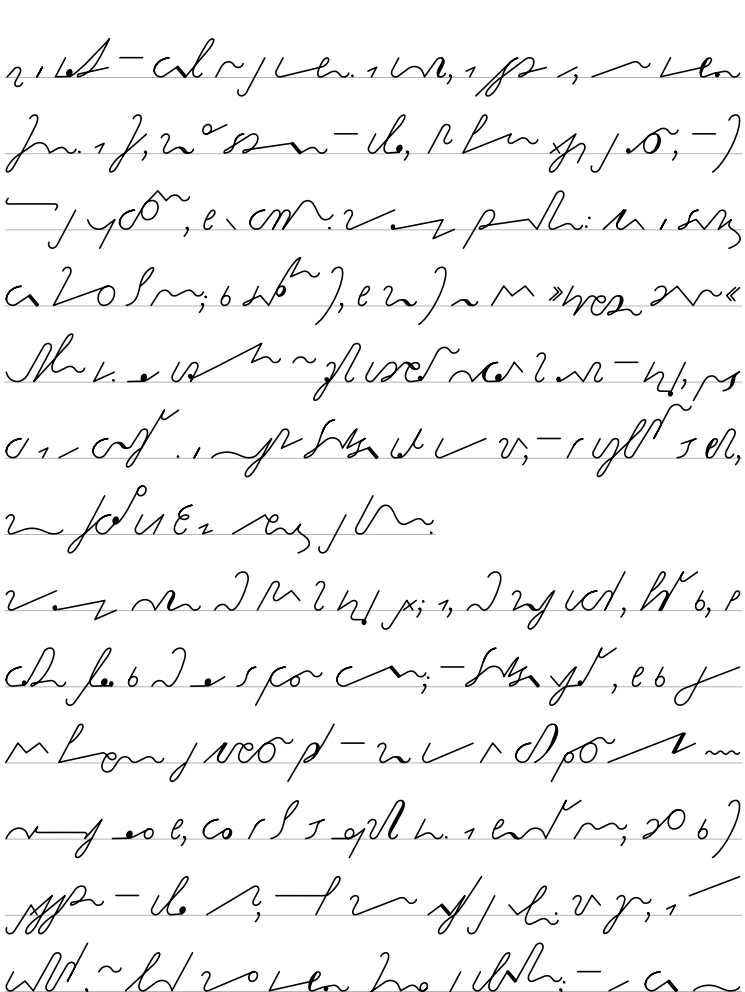


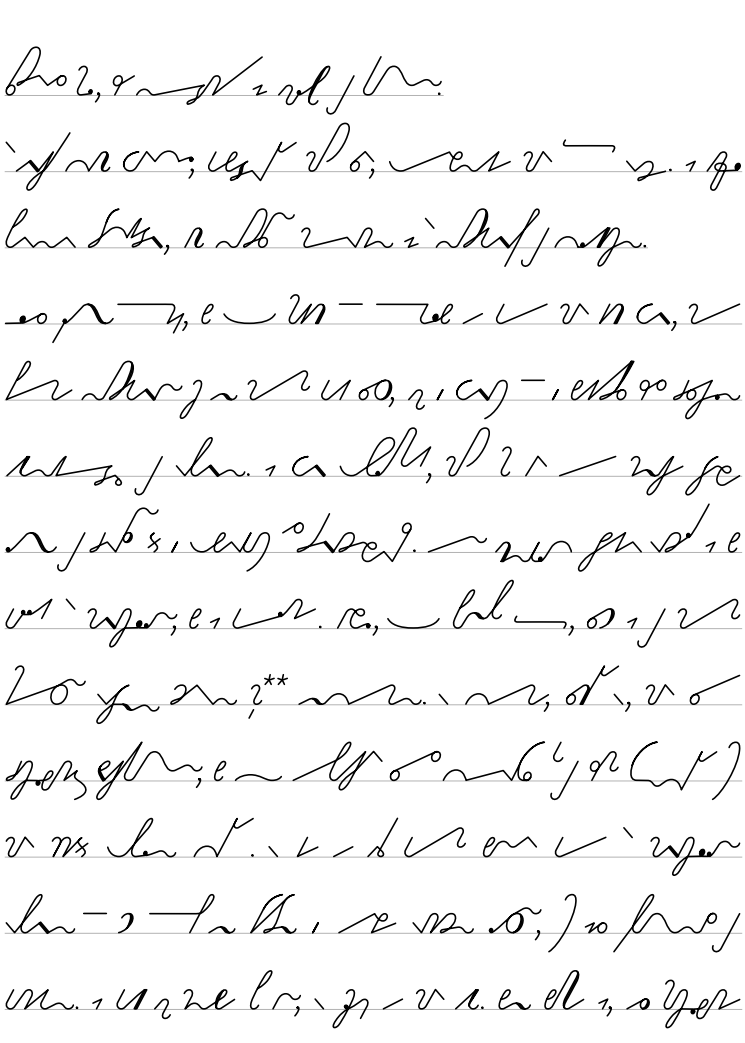


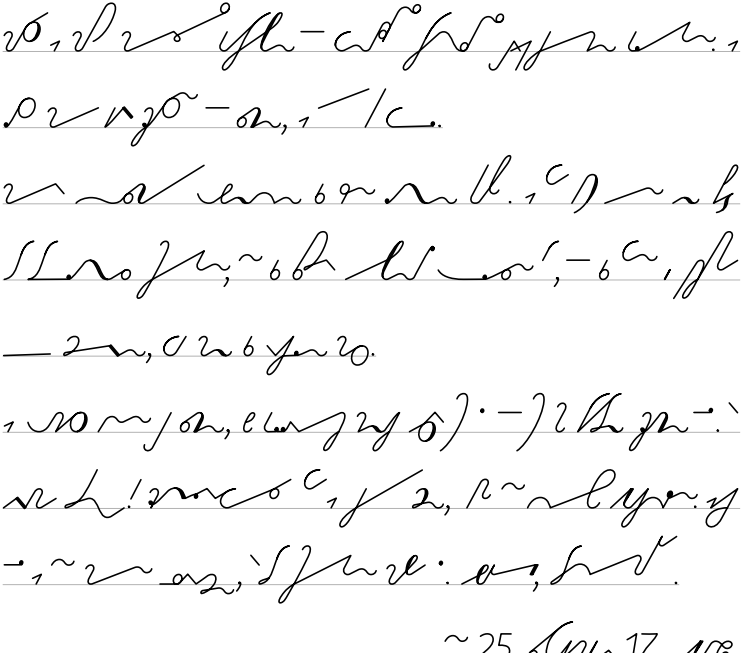






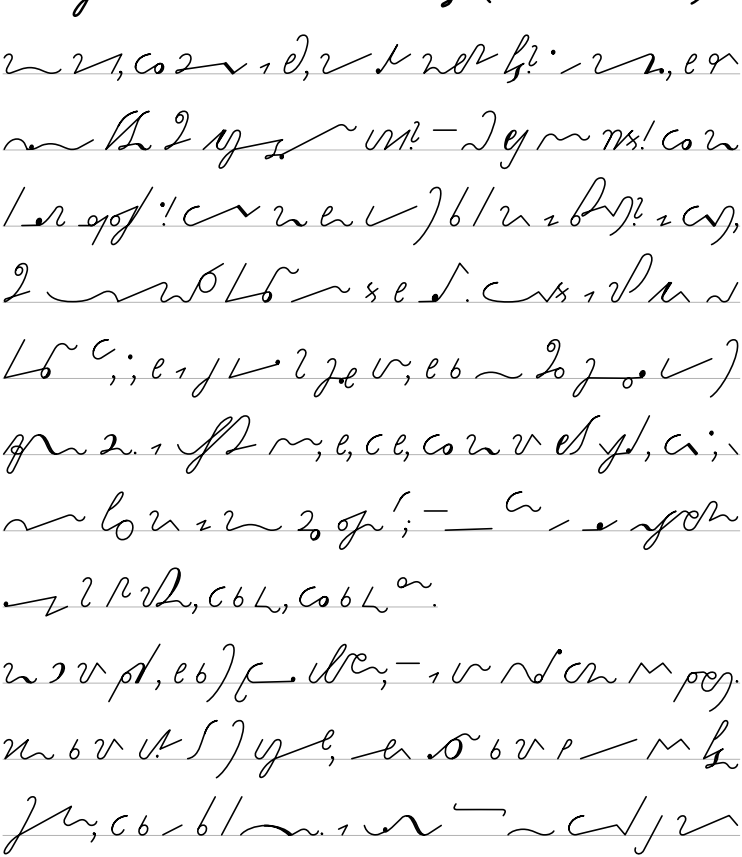


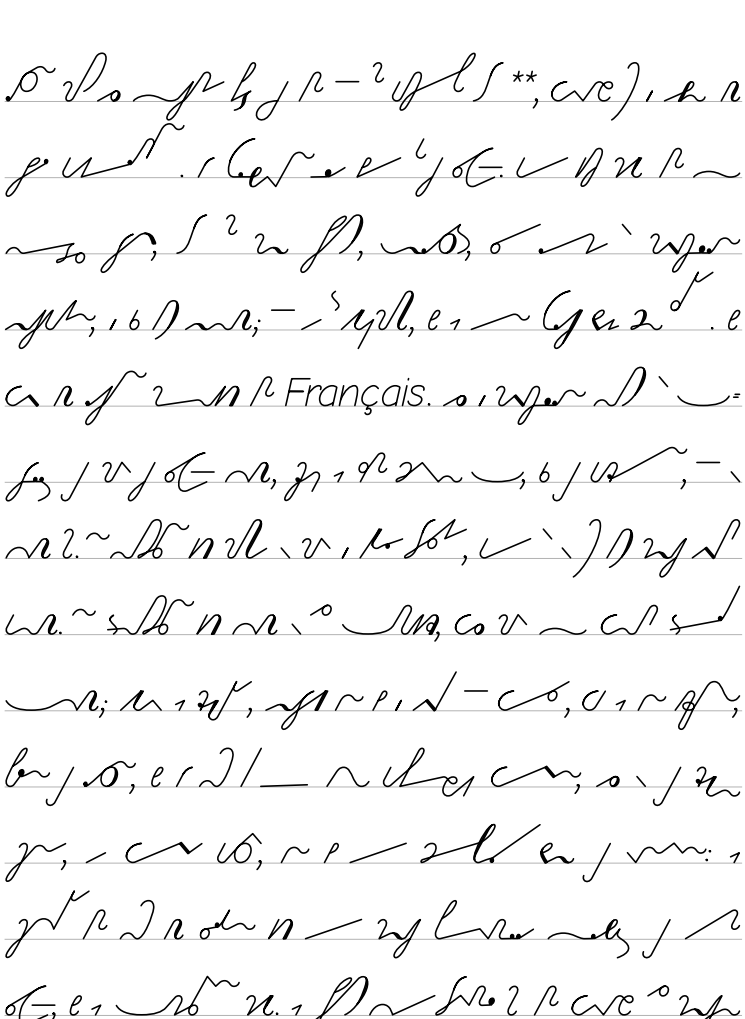




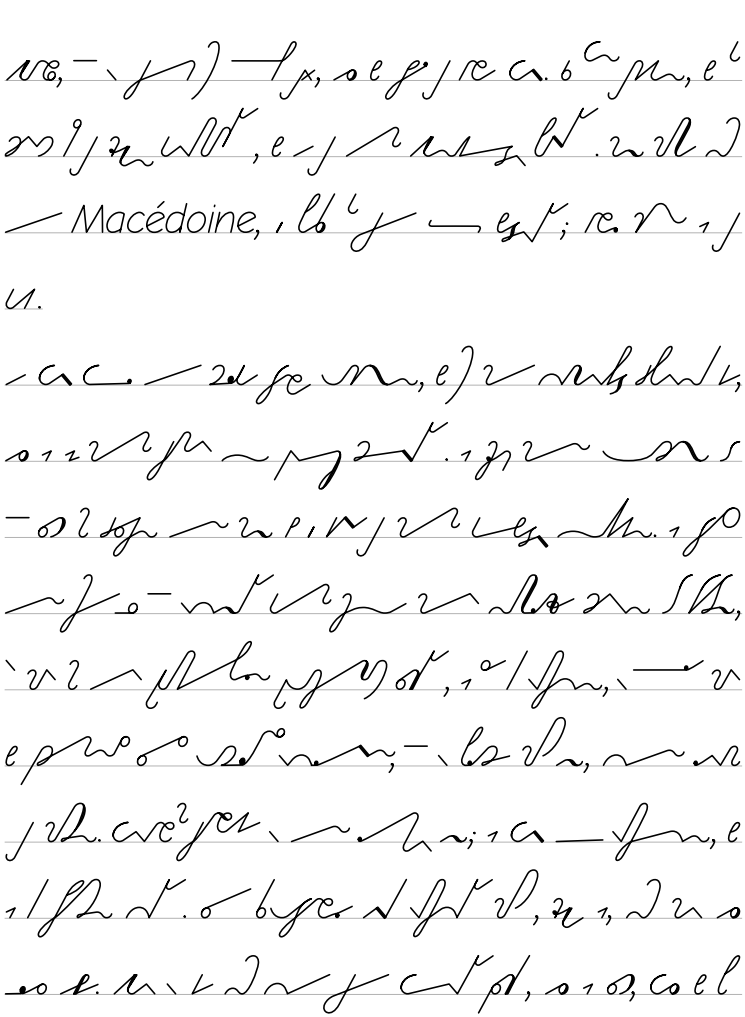
~25. ćerwca 17.. roku.

Chapter 11

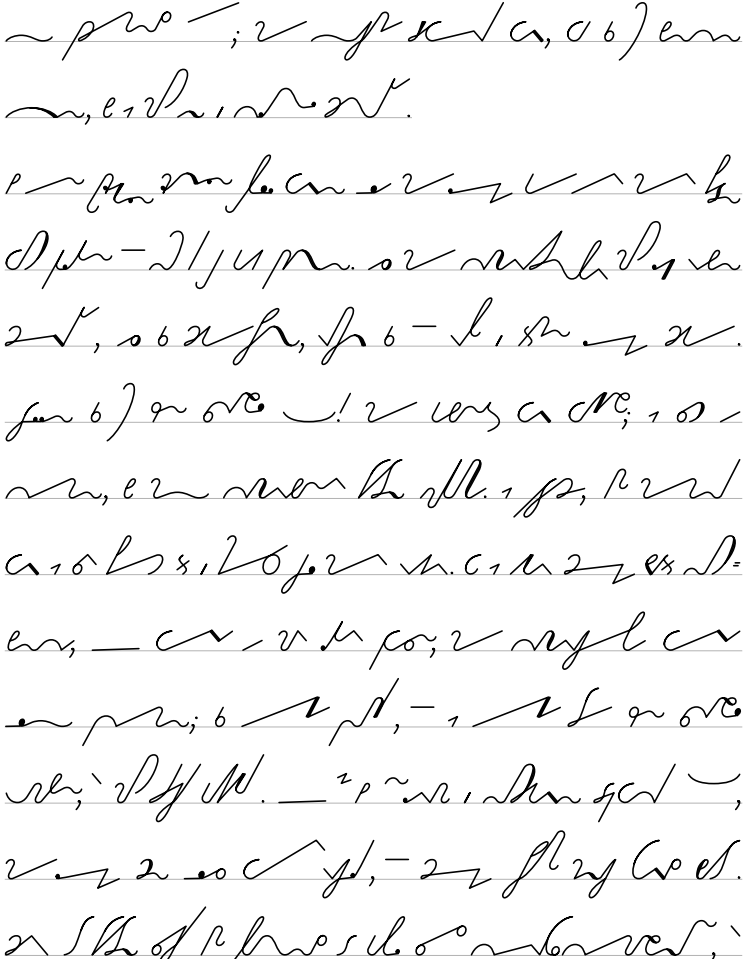


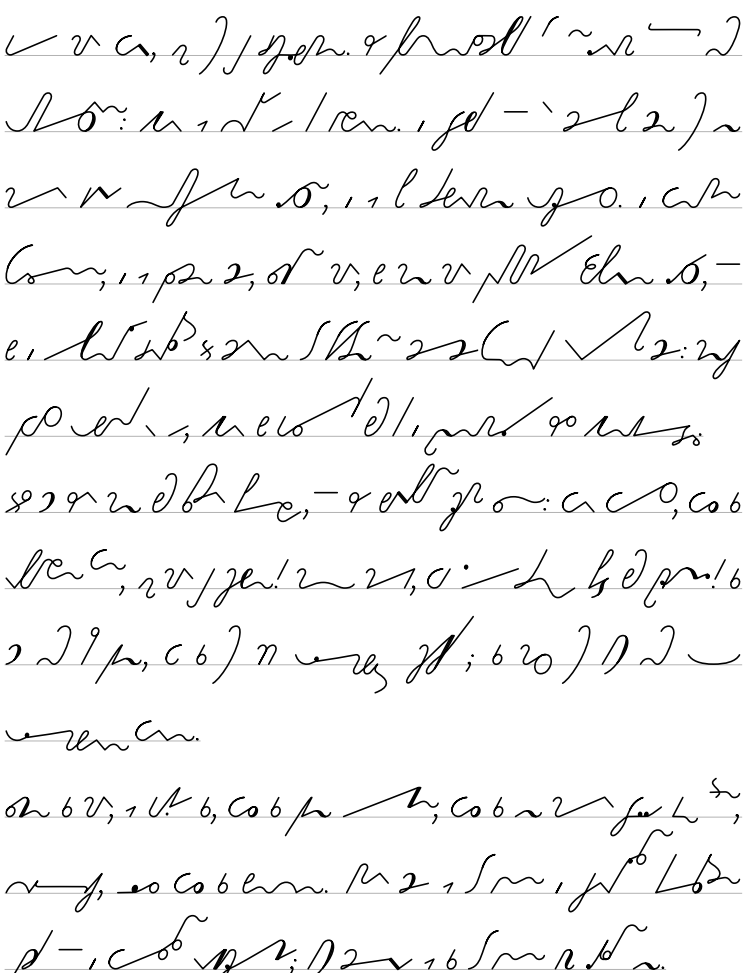


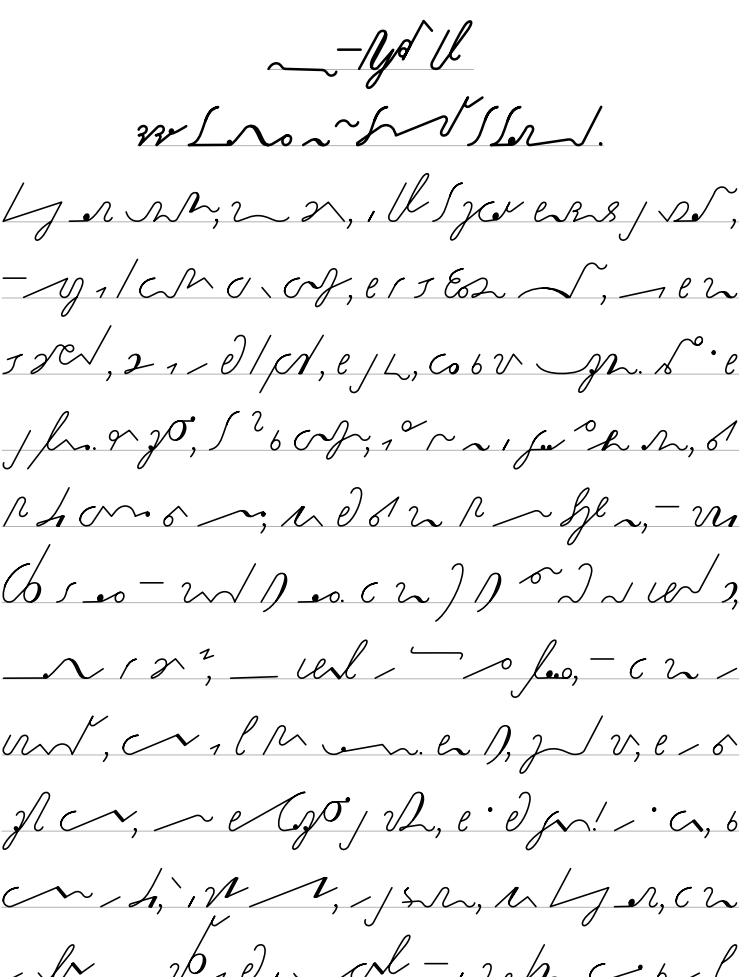
Français.

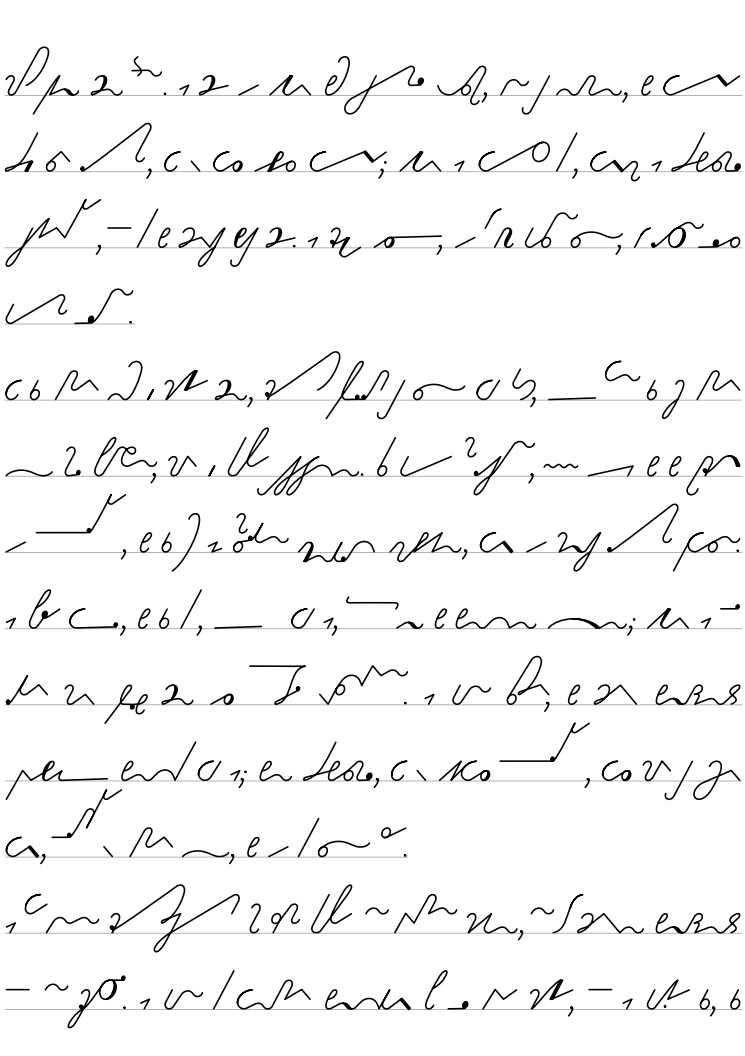


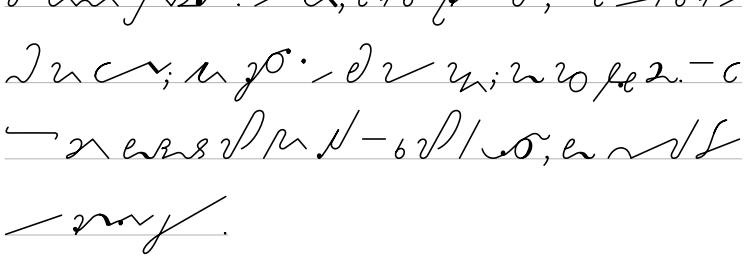
Macédoine,



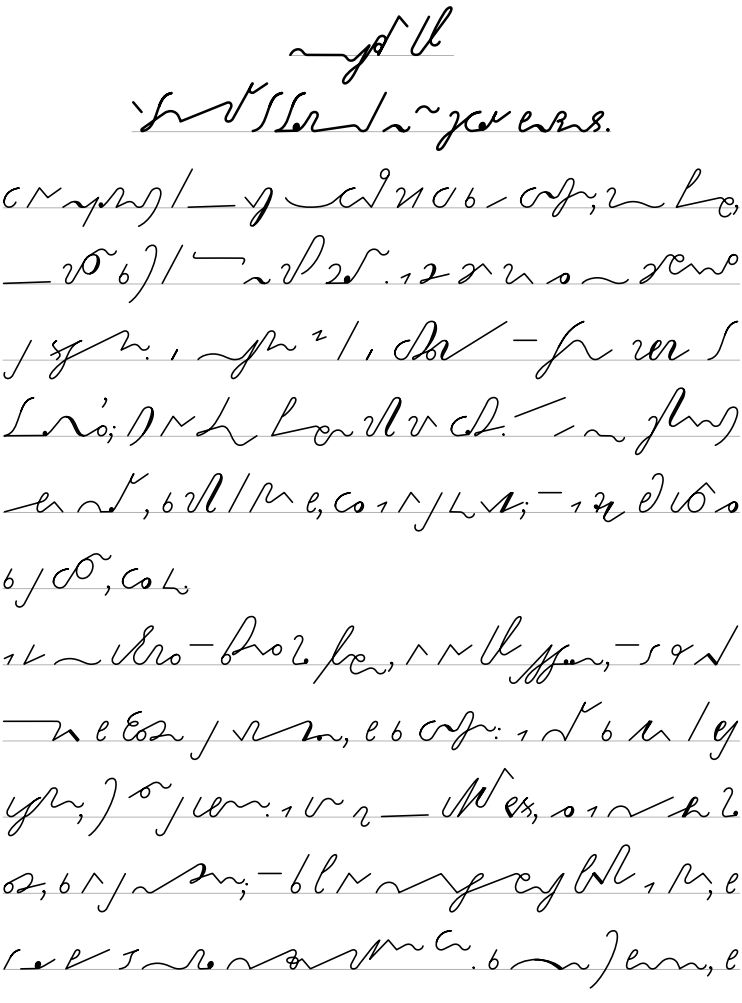


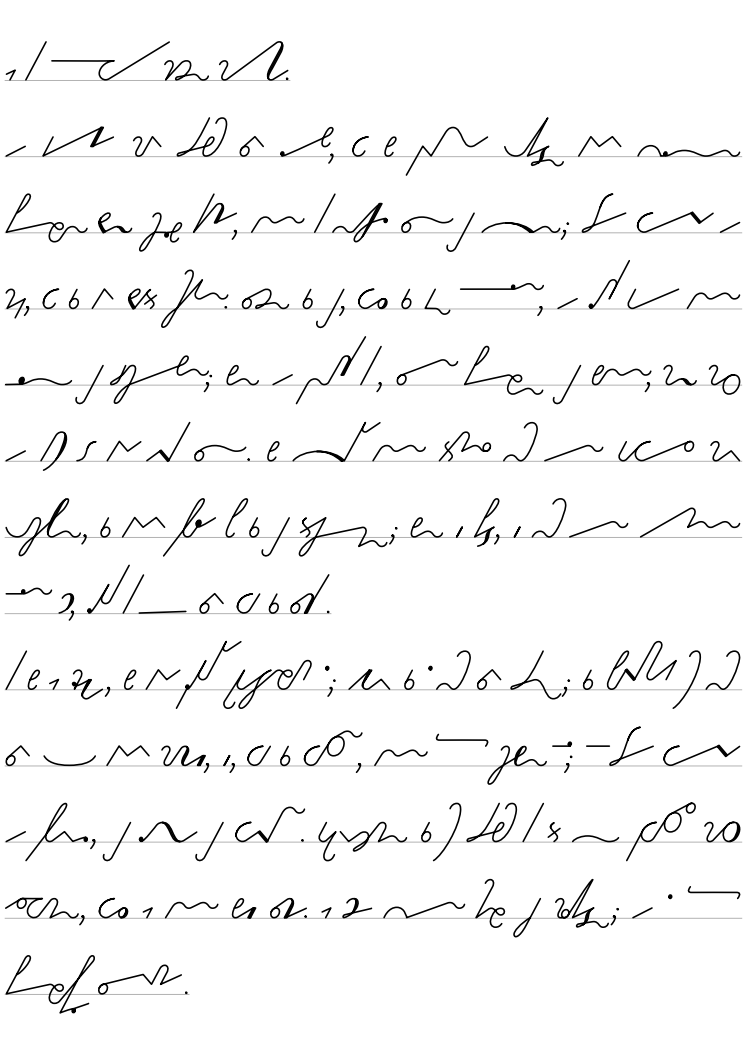


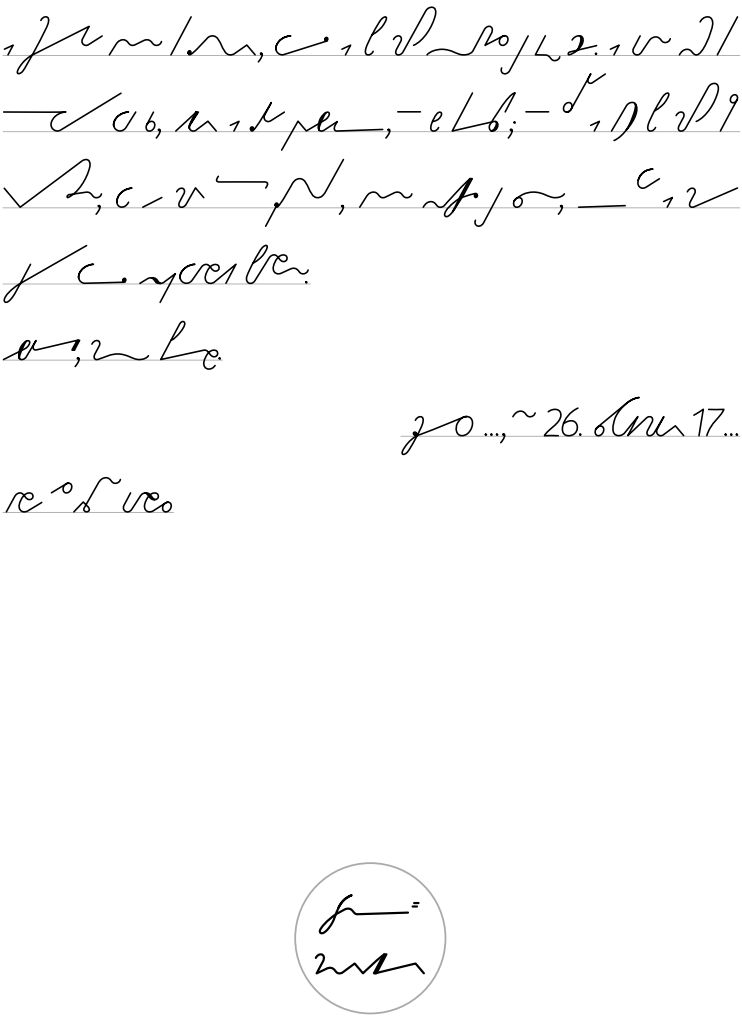




..., 26. Juni 17..







Stenogenerator [2021-11-10] by Jens-Christian Wawrczeck